BURKE'S

EXTINCT, DORMANT, AND SUSPENDED PEERAGES; A NECESSARY COMPANION TO ALL OTHER PEERAGES.

This Work comprises the whole of the Peerages of England which have been suspended or extinguished since the Conquest, particularizing the members of each family, in each generation, and bringing the lineage, in all possible cases, through either collaterals or females, down to existing houses; thus connecting in many instances the new with the old nobility.

"* When it is considered that the most illustrious peers of England were swept away in the devastating conflicts between the houses of York and Lancaster—in the wars of the Edwards and Henrys, and more recently in the season of civil commotion, it is presumed that a work of this description, supplying much historical, bibliographical, and domestic detail, cannot fail to be considered as a great desideratum in all libraries.
PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION.

After a long and very laborious revision, amounting to the recomposition of a portion, and the emendation of the whole, the new Edition of "The Peerage and Baronetage" is at length completed.

From an humble and unpresuming origin, the Work, to judge by the anxiety evinced for its re-appearance, is now one of importance and general interest—the most flattering position which the labours of a literary man could attain, and one which, if he did not strain every faculty to preserve, he would be unworthy to enjoy. That such an effort has been made strenuously—the enlarged size of the Book—the great mass of matter it comprises—the numerous families it includes—embracing the whole privileged and titled orders, with their wide-spreading connexions—generation after generation—will, it is hoped, be sufficient to attest:—that such an effort has been made successfully, remains for public opinion to determine.

For that which regards the existing members of each family, application has been made to its chief, and those applications have been responded to with promptitude and courtesy—demanding expressions of thanks and obligation:—for the more important, the genealogical, division of his labours, the Author has resorted to the acknowledged authorities which have preceded him, and to the Public Records of the Country—in few instances has he solely relied upon private information.
COMPANION TO THE PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE.

Now in course of Publication,
In Parts, price 7s. 6d. each, or on small paper 4s. 6d. each, embellished with Portraits, Armorial Bearings, &c. To be completed in Sixteen Parts or Four handsome Volumes.

HISTORY OF THE LANDED GENTRY; OR,
Commoners of Great Britain and Ireland.

BY JOHN BURKE, ESQ.
AUTHOR OF THE "PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE."

COMPRISING ACCOUNTS OF ALL THE EMINENT FAMILIES IN THE UNITED KINGDOM, AND OF UPWARDS OF 100,000 INDIVIDUALS CONNECTED WITH THEM.

This important Work has been undertaken by Mr. Burke as a sequel to his "Dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage of the United Kingdom," and upon a somewhat similar plan; in order that, when completed, the two Publications may embrace the whole body of the British Peerage, Baronetage, and Gentry, and may furnish such a mass of authentic information in regard to all the principal Families in the Kingdom, as has never before been brought together.

The novelty and utility of the present undertaking combine to invest it with no common claims to public attention. The highly influential and extensive class to whom it refers have hitherto had no work of reference exhibiting an entire and authentic account of their respective families, although it is obvious how large a share of interest attaches to such an object, both for the parties themselves, and for all connected with them, by the ties either of alliance, friendship, neighborhood, patronage, or political constituency. The British Landed Gentry will now, however, possess a work to which they can refer with pride and satisfaction, as being, in the most peculiar sense, their own. The records of their honours and achievements—the copious details of their bright and long derived lineage—the incidental particulars of their connexions and collateral alliances—and the curious anecdotes and traditions concerning their families, which have been, at infinite pains and immense cost, assembled in this work, will, it is confidently presumed, render it highly acceptable to every member of that distinguished class for whose use, benefit, and credit it has been published.

OPINIONS OF THIS UNDERTAKING.

"A great and national undertaking. Of the Peers and Baronets of Great Britain we have heard and read; but of the Commons—of Families equally celebrated in History—we have till now remained in total ignorance."—Globe.

"A most valuable work, the want of which has been long and severely felt by the country, and which we had almost despaired of seeing supplied."—Observer.

"A work of great utility and interest. Its researches are highly curious, and the information it supplies touching the Gentry of the country is not less worthy of regard than that to which we have hitherto been confined as to the Peerage and Baronetage."—Morning Post.

"A book of the deepest interest, and containing, indeed, so vast a portion of family history, as perhaps the annals of no other country could produce. Besides the descents, dignities, and armorial bearings of every family, it contains the most memorable actions of persons who have distinguished themselves, intermixed with curious anecdotes. It includes, also, a countless number of particulars relating to the inter-marriages of the various families."—Sun.

ORANMORE.

ORANMORE AND BROWNE, BARON, (Dominick Browne) of Carr Browne Castle, in the county of the town of Galway, and of Castle Macgarrett, Co. Mayo, in the Peerage of Ireland, b. 28 May, 1707; m. in 1841, Catherine-Anne Isabella, eldest dau. and co-heir of the late Henry Monck, Esq., and has issue, Geoffrey Dominick Augustus FrasRusick, b. in 1819.

Henry George Monck, b. in 1842.
Henrietta Araminta Monck.
Margaret Elizabeth Catherine Augusta.

His Lordship, for many years a Member of the Commons’ House of Parliament, was raised to the Peerage in 1836.

Lineage.

This family of Browne originally sprang, there is strong reason to believe, from the Montemerys of England, and the supposition is thus sustained:

Philip, one of the youngest sons of Roger de Montgomeri, Earl of Shrewsbury, held lands in Ballinsworth, in Wales, and bore for arms, arg. an eagle displayed au. Several of the first invaders of Ireland were descendants of those who had acquired lands in South Wales by conquest; and, from the exact similarity of arms and from the circumstance of the Irish Browne having named their castle in the county of Wexford Ballinsworth, it is not at all improbable that the Montemerys were their original progenitors.

From Sir William le Brune, Knt., who witnessed a charter of Herefey de Montmorency to the Abbey of Dunbrothy, in Wexford, immediately after the conquest of Ireland in 1170, descended

Sir Nicholls le Brune of Brownes, Knt., Lord of Mulranken, in Wexford, living in 1296 and in 1298, whose son,

Reginald Browne, of Mulranken, in Wexford, was father of Nicholas Browne, of Mulranken, summoned in 1342 to attend the Lord Justice of Ireland with horse and arms, among the other gentlemen of the county of Wexford. He was s. by his son,

John Browne, of Mulranken, grandfather of Sir Matthew Browne, Knt., of Mulranken, living in 1352, who m. Cardula, dau. of Sir John Hore, Knt., of Brandon Castle, Co. This nobleman, who represented the Co. Dorset, for ten years, was the first Member elected under the Reform Act, for the Borough of Marylebone, from which representation he retired on account of ill health, acquired the Barony of Portman by patent of Creation, as gazetted 24 Jan., 1837.

Lineage.
The Portmans appear to have been of distinction in the Co. of Somerset, so early as the reign of Edward I.: at that period flourished,

Thomas Portman, whose grandfather had borne the arms which the family still bear. The lineal descendant of this Thomas,

Sir William Portman, Bart., Serjeant-at-Law, in the time of Henry VIII., was first appointed one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and afterwards constituted Lord Chief Justice of England. He d. in 1555, and was s. by his son,

Sir Henry Portman, Knt., who m. Joan, dau. of Thomas Michel, Esq., and dying in 1599, was s. by his son, Humphrey (Sir), 4th Bart., also d. unm.

William (Sir), 5th Bart., of whom presently.

John, m. to George Sperke, Esq. of Whitehallclose, and had a daughter,

Phillipa, m. to Edward Berkeley, Esq. of Pylie; the grandson of this marriage, William Berkeley, Esq. of Pylie, eventually inherited the estates, and assumed the surname of Portman only.

Anne, m. to Sir Edward Seymour, of Burst Pomeroy, and had, with other issue, Edward, eldest son, ancestor of the present Duke of Somerset.

Henry, 5th son, of whom hereafter as heir of the Portmans.

Elizabeth, m. to John Binet, Esq. of Holcombe.

Grace, d. unm.

The Baronetcy and representation of the family eventually devolved on Sir John's 4th son,

Sir William Portman, Bart., who m. Anne, dau., and co-heir of John Colles, Esq. of Barton, by Elizabeth, dau., and sole heiress of Humphrey Wyndham, Esq. of Wiveliscorne, and was s. by his son, Family of Campbell.

This family, originally from Argyllshire, has been settled nearly two centuries in the county of Fife.

GEORGE CAMPBELL, a steady adherent of his clan, and its chief, the first Marquess of Argyll, by which his fortune became considerably impaired, if not entirely ruined, settled in 1662, at St. Andrews, and became proprietor of the estate of Baltillo, in the parish of Cores. His eldest son took the degree of Master of Arts at St. Andrews's in the year 1687, and gained the highest honors of the university, then of high reputation for all branches of learning. His grandson,

INTRODUCTION.

THE PEERAGE.

The nobility of England, like the nobles of other countries, are a privileged order; but, personally, their immunities are very unimportant, and minister much more to the pomp than the power of the possessor. In their legislative capacity, the peers of England form one of the estates of the realm—that immediately between the crown and the people; in their judicial, they constitute its highest tribunal and court of dernier appeal: their functions—legislative and judicial—are inherent and exercised without responsibility. The nobility of England hear the ensign of dominion in the minor crown; but it is merely the ensign—they wield no minor sceptre. They are clothed in the purple and ermine of royalty, but they are invested with no regal jurisdiction, and they enjoy no sovereign seignory. In no one instance can the proudest peer transgress, with impunity, the laws of the land; in no one instance can the haughtiest lord invade the rights of the humblest commoner; and in no one instance (in matters of moment), can a noble exercise authority which a commoner dare not assume. Thus, then, the aristocracy of the British Empire, like its other inimitable institutions, exists but as a link in the great chain which connects the community at large,—a link, more polished, perhaps, than any of the other—hardly more powerful.

The first order of nobility, introduced after the Norman Conquest, was that of Baron by Tenure, a dignity attached to the possession of certain lands, held, according to the feudal system, directly under the crown, and conditionally, upon the performance of some honorary services to the king; such as attending him in the field and the cabinet; and furnishing a stipulated quota of knights, or men at arms; which quota was regulated by the territorial possessions of the baron, those possessions being divided into allotments, for each of which he was required to provide a knight, armed cap-a-pie, whenever the sovereign commanded his presence in the field; hence, according to the number of warriors the feudal lord provided, he was said to possess so many knights' fees. But in

* Origin of hereditary nobility. "We must not," says Francia Hotoman, the celebrated civilian, in his "Franca Gallia," written in 1374, "omit making mention of the cunning device made use of by Hugh Capet, for establishing himself in his new dominions (of King of France, anno 987). For whereas all the magistracies and honors of the kingdom, such as Dukedoms, Earldoms, &c. had been hitherto, from ancient times, conferred upon select and deserving persons, in the general conventions of the people, and were held only during good behaviour, whereof (as the lawyers express it) they were but beneficiaries, Hugh Capet, in order to secure to himself the affections of the great men, was the first that made those honors perpetual, which were formerly but temporary; and ordained, that such as obtained them should have an hereditary right in them, and might leave them to their children. Of this, see Franciscus Conanus, the Civilian, Comment. i. chap. 9."
the reign of King John, so large a body of these lords of the soil were found to have alienated their grants, and so many to have become impoverished in consequence, that it was found necessary to enact a law, declaring such personages alone as retained their original tenures unspoiled, qualified to retain the title of Baron, and degrading the less prudent to the rank of tenants in chief, or knights. It was subsequently discovered, however, that the title of Baron could not thus easily be taken away, and it was then arranged, that the opulent lords should be styled Barones Majores,—the poor ones Barones Minores; and from that period until the reign of Henry the Third,* when the privilege was entirely withdrawn from territorial lords, the Barones Majores alone appear to have assisted in the legislative councils of the nation. Barons by tenure have, however, long ceased to exist; and more than a century and a half ago (A.D. 1669), in the case of the Fitzwalter peerage, when Benjamin Mildmay was restored to that barony, in opposition to Robert Cheke, the lord of the soil, whence the dignity was alleged to have sprung, the House of Lords declared, "that baronies by tenure, having been discontinued for many ages, were not then in being, and so not fit to be revived, or to admit any pretence of right of succession." And recently, in 1805, the house resolved, in the case of the Barony of Ros, claimed by the Duke of Rutland, as feudal lord, from the possession of Belvoir Castle, said to have been the fountain of that dignity, "that his grace was not entitled to the barony;" and it was subsequently confirmed to one of the co-heirs, Lady Henry Fitzgerald.† There is, however, one earldom extant, that of Arundel, which the ducal house of Norfolk enjoys by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle; but that, like other exceptions, only establishes the rule, as the honor endures solely by special act of parliament, passed in the third year of King Charles the First. To Barons by Tenure, succeeded or persons elevated to the rank of nobility, by being summoned to attend the king in council, or parliament; which writs were of that description called brevia clausa, from being closed with yellow wax, and impressed with the great seal of England. The first of these summonses upon record appears to have been tested on the 24th of December, in the 49th year of Henry the Third; from which period no similar writ seems to have issued until the 22nd year of Edward the First, when about sixty persons were summoned to attend the king, "wheresoever he might he, to advise on the affairs of the kingdom;" but it has been questioned whether that summons constituted a peer of parliament.

To establish an hereditary Barony by Writ, it was requisite, Sir William Blackstone was of opinion, that two writs of summons should have issued, and a sitting in two parliaments have taken place; but the great law-luminary seems, upon this occasion, to have been under misapprehension: for, in the case of the Barony of Clifton,

* Matthew Paris states, that there were two hundred and fifty baronies in the time of Henry the Third; but there were not so many barons, for several feudal lords held a plurality of baronies. In this reign, the prerogative of the crown, regarding barons, was settled by an act of parliament, passed in consequence of the quarrel between the King and Simon de Montfort; and thenceforward no nobleman could sit in parliament without a writ of summons. But there was this material difference between the greater and the lesser barons;—these, were summoned at the pleasure of the crown; those, as a matter of right.

† Her ladyship was only youngest co-heir of one moiety of the Barony; the entire representation of the elder co-heir being vested in Sir Henry Hunloke, baronet.
INTRODUCTION.

there was but one writ and one sitting; and that barony was allowed. Baronies by Writ are heritable by heirs male or female; but in the event of the demise of the baron without the former, and with more than one heir, the barony theo devolving coo-jointly upon the heiresses, it falls into abeyance amongst them, and so continues, until all but one of the daughters, or the sole heir of one of the daughters, survives. The crown can, however, at any time, especially interfeere, and terminate the abeyance in favour of any of the co-heirs, but it can only alienate the barony from the representatives of the first baron. It is imperative that it be cooferred upon one of those. The mode of terminating an abeyance in favour of a commoner, is by summoning the individual by the title of the barony which had been so abeyance. The course observed towards a peer of a higher dignity, is the issue of letters patent by the crown, in confirmation of the barony; and a similar course, that of patent, is adopted towards heiresses.

The mode of creating peers by writ of summons has been, however, a long time discontioued, and the only writs now issued are those to the eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls, in their father's baronies; but such writs do not create heritable peerages. If, however, a writ of summons issue to the eldest son of a peer, as a baron, under a misapprehension that the barony had been vested in his father, then the writ is deemed a new creation, and the dignity is heritable as a barony by writ. This was established in 1736 by the decision regarding the Barony of Straoge, to which James Staoley had been summoned in 1628, under the supposition that the barony had belonged to his father, William, sixth Earl of Derby; and again, in the similar case of the Barony of Clifford. The first writ to an elder son is stated to have issued in the twenty-second year of King Edward the Fourth, when Thomas Fitz-Alan was summoned to parliament (in his father's, the Earl Arundel's, barony), as Baron Maltravers. As Baroos by Tenure gave place to Barons by Writ, so the latter have been superseded by Barons by Letters Patent.

The first instance of which occurred in the reign of the second Richard, when John Beauchamp, of Holt, was elevated to the peerage as Baroo Beauchamp, of Kidderminster, by letters patent, dated the 10th of October, 1387. Lord Beauchamp never took his seat, however, io parliament, as he died in the same year, and was succeeded by his son, with whom the dignity expired in 1420. In olden time, it was deemed necessary to invest with robes the newly created baroo in open parliament; and, so lately as the era of King James the First, that monarch, in perso, solemnly inducted the barons, created by patent in the thirteenth year of his reign, by enrobing each peer in scarlet, with a hood furred with minever: but in the same year it was determined to discontinue those ceremonies in future, the legal advisers of the crown having declared that the

* Abeyance.—When this inheritance (a Barony falling amongst co-heiresses) is in the dormant state, it is said to be in abeyance: not in the ordinary sense of the term in which it is applied to an estate in fee simple, or freehold in suspense, floating, fixing no where, and vesting in no one; but it simply denotes that the title to a Barony, which has descended upon and is vested in co-heirs, remains in them in an inactive and dormant state, incapable of being asserted or being enjoyed. It falls into abeyance, because, in point of right, no one co-heir can sustain a claim to it; and because all the co-heirs together, though they constitute the complete heir to the ancestor, cannot claim it with effect, and therefore cannot claim it at all.—Cruse upon Dignities.

† There is an instance, in the reign of King Charles the First, of the son and heir of a baron, who possessed two baronies, having been summoned to parliament in one of them. The Hon. Conyers Darcy, son of Conyers, Baron of Darcy and Conyers (who was subsequently created Earl of Holderness), was summoned to parliament in his father's barony of Conyers in 1680.
delivery of the letters patent constituted a sufficient creation; and in the patents of more modern times, the ceremony of public investiture is expressly dispensed with.

Barons are styled "Right Honorale," and addressed officially by the Crown, "Right trusty and well beloved."

Viscount.

The next grade in the British Peerage is that of Vice-Comes or Viscount, which title formerly applied to the Sheriff of a county, but was not used as a designation of nobility before the reign of Henry the Sixth, when that monarch created John, Baron Beaumont, K.G. by letters patent, dated 12th February, 1440, Viscount Beaumont, a dignity which expired with his lordship's son and successor in 1507. A viscounty is always created by patent, and it descends according to the specified limitation. The honor was originally conferred as an advancement to barons, but afterwards created frequently with the barony; and in modern times it has been conferred without a barony, as in the instance of Viscount Leinster, Viscount Sidmouth, Viscount Goderich, &c.

The style of a Viscount is "Right Honorale," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and well beloved Cousin."

Earl.

The dignity of Earl, which existed in England before the Conquest, was, according to Mr. Cruise, originally annexed to a particular tract of land; and there were three descriptions of Earldoms.

"The first was where the dignity was annexed to the seisin and possession of an entire county, with jura regalia; in which case, the county became palatine, and the person created Earl thereof acquired regal jurisdiction and royal seignory. By reason of the royal jurisdiction, the Earl Palatine had all the high courts and offices of justice which the King had, with a civil and criminal jurisdiction; and, by reason of his royal seignory, he had all the royal services, and all the royal estreats which the king had; so that, in fact, a county palatine was in every respect a feudal kingdom of itself, but held of a superior lord."*

The second description of earldom was that which derived the title only from a county, but had no territorial possession annexed to it within the county, nor any of the privileges of an Earl Palatine, and whose revenues arose from participating in the profits derivable from the pleas of the county court.

The third kind of Earldom was constituted by the crown's granting a considerable tract of land, to be held "per servium unius comitatus."

For several centuries, Earldoms have been created by letters patent, and the descent of the honor regulated accordingly. The ancient ceremony of investiture, as in other dignities, has been discontinued; and the custom of deriving the title from some county or town has been extended, in consequence of the number of earls, to villages, private estates, and family surnames.

The style of an earl is, "Right Honorale," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and well beloved Cousin."†

He bears also, upon some occasions, the title of "Puissant Prince."

† This mode of address is as ancient as Henry the Fourth, by whom it was first adopted. That prince being either by his wife, his mother, or his sisters, actually related or allied to every earl in the INTRODUCTION.

Marquess.

A Marquess, marchio, is the next degree of nobility. "His office (says Sir William Blackstone) formerly was (for dignity and duty were never separated by our ancestors) to guard the frontiers and limits of the kingdom; which were called the marches, from the ten-tonic word marche, a limit: as in particular, were the marches of Wales and Scotland, while each continued to be an enemy's country. The persons who had command there, were called Lords Marches, or Marquesses, whose authority was abolished by statute, 27th Henry VIII., though the title had long before been made a mere ensign of honor."

The first English Marquisate was conferred by King Richard II., in 1386, upon Robert de Vere, who was created Marquess of Dunlin, and in the next year Duke of Ireland. His grace was, however, banished and attainted in 1388, whose honors became forfeited. And the second creation of the same dignity occurs in the same reign, when John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset, (eldest legitimated natural son of John of Gaunt) was created, 29th September, 1397, Marquess of Dorset. From that period, the dignity of Marquess appears to have remained dormant, until the reign of Edward VI., but thenceforward it became a regular and common grade of nobility.

A Marquess is invariably created by letters patent, and the descent regulated accordingly.

The style of a Marquess is "Most Honorable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and entirely beloved Cousin."

He hears also the title, upon some occasions, of "Puisneau Prince."

Duke.

The Dukedom,* the most elevated dignity in the English peerage, was first introduced by King Edward III., who created his eldest son, Edward the Black Prince, in 1337, (then Earl of Chester,) Duke of Cornwall, and, subsequently, Prince of Wales, when the Dukedom merged in the principality, and has ever since been vested in the heir apparent to the crown, who, at his birth, becomes Duke of Cornwall. The second Dukedom was conferred on the 6th March, 1351, upon Henry Plantagenet, (son and heir of the Earl of Derby,) under the title of Duke of Lancaster, which dignity expired at his grace's decease in 1360, without male issue, but was re-conferred, in 1362, upon John of Gaunt, who had espoused the duke's second daughter, and eventually sole heiress, the Lady Blanch Plantagenet. In the reign of Elizabeth, anno 1572, the whole order became utterly extinct; but it was revived about fifty years afterwards by her successor, in the person of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

kingdom, artfully and constantly acknowledged that connection in all his letters and other public acts; from whence the usage has descended to his successors, though the reason has long ago failed.
—Blackstone.

* Duke. In France, before the Revolution, the title of Duke was very superior to the other dignities, and the Peerage was composed of Dukes only; but the rest of the nobility were properly jealous of this pre-eminence, and opposed with spirit every encroachment of the peers. In a procession of the order of the Holy Ghost several Ducs et Pair, endeavoured to prevent M. de Gmache from walking at the side of the last duke. The master of the ceremonies hastened to inform the King of the dispute, who decided that the dukes were wrong if they pretended that a gentleman should not walk aside of them. So, after the procession, the dukes said they had never formed such a pretension and that it was a misunderstanding.

INTRODUCTION.

A Duke is styled "His Grace," and the "Most Noble," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved Cousin and Counsellor."

His grace is likewise entitled, upon some occasions, "Puissant Prince."

SPIRITUAL PEERS.

Archbishops.

Archbishops have the ducal title of "Grace," and take precedence of all dukes, next to those of royal blood. The Archbishop of Canterbury ranks as first peer of the realm, and the Archbishop of York, as third, coming immediately after the lord chancellor. His grace of Canterbury styles himself, "by divine providence," while the Archbishop of York, and the bishops, adopt the term "permission," instead of "providence."

Bishops.

By an act of parliament passed in the thirty-first year of Henry VIII., it was settled that bishops take precedence of all barons, and immediately after viscounts; the Bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester, preceding their Right Reverend brethren.

Bishops are styled "Lords," and "Right Reverend Fathers in God."

Note.—In the time of the Saxons, the bishops, abbots, and other ecclesiastical persons, held their lands free from all secular services, except the trinoda necessitas: namely expeditio, pontium et arcuum extraction, et reiecto. But soon after the establishment of the Normans, they were charged with the same obligations of military service as laymen. In consequence of this change, the bishops became tenants in capite per baroniam, and were of course, bound to attend the curia regis; which at that time was considered as a burthensome office. It is, therefore, probable, that the bishops did not willingly acquiesce in this alteration; and when the immunities of the church were so much restrained by the constitutions of Clarendon, in 10th Henry the Second, it was expressly declared that the archbishops and bishops should hold their lands as baronies, and attend the King's court.

The bishops were always exempt from doing homage for their baronies, but were bound to take the oath of fealty.

The great abbots were also bound to attend parliament, if summoned, when they held their land per baroniam.

OFFICIAL COSTUME OF THE PEERAGE.

Duke.

The robes worn by a Duke, at a coronation, consist of a mantle and surcoat of common velvet, lined with white taffeta, the mantle doubled from the neck to the elbow with ermine, having four rows of spots on each shoulder.

His grace's parliamentary robes are of fine scarlet cloth, lined with taffeta, doubled with four guards of ermine at equal distances, with gold lace surmounting each guard, and tied up to the left shoulder by a white ribbon; his cap is of crimson velvet, lined with ermine, having a gold tassel on each top; and his coronet, which is of gold, is set with strawberry leaves, also of gold.

Marquess.

The robes worn by a Marquess, at a coronation, are of crimson velvet, lined with white taffeta, having four guards of ermine on the right side, and three on the left, placed at equal distances, each guard surmounted with gold lace; the robe is tied up to the left shoulder by a white ribbon.

His lordship's cap is of crimson velvet, lined with ermine, having a gold tassel at top. His coronet is of gold, and is encompassed by pearls and golden strawberry leaves, intermingled.

Earl.

The coronation robes of an Earl are similar to those of a duke and marquess, with the exception that there are but three guards of ermine and gold lace.

His lordship's cap is the same as that of a marquess.

His coronet has pearls raised upon points, with strawberry-leaves low between them.

* The Lord-treasurer Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, was the first peer of the degree of Earl who wore a coronet.

Viscount.

The robes of a Viscount differ from those of an earl, in having two rows of plain white fur only.

His lordship's cap is the same as that of an earl, and the golden circle of his coronet is surmounted by fourteen pearls.

Baron.

The robes of a Baron have two guards only of white fur, with as many rows of gold lace; in all other respects they correspond with the robes of the other peers.

The coronet was granted to Barons by King Charles II. They wore, previously, but a plain circle of gold. The coronet of a Baron has four pearls set at equal distances upon the circle.

PRIVILEGES OF THE PEERAGE.

Peers are free from all arrest for debt, and cannot be outlawed in any civil action; nor can any attachment lie against their persons.

They are exempt from attending courts-leet, or sheriff's turns; or, in case of riot, the posse comitatus.

When arraigned for any criminal offence, it must be before their peers, who return a verdict, not upon oath, but upon honour.

Peers are tried in courts erected specifically for the purpose, in the centre of Westminster Hall, at the expense of the crown, which courts are pulled down as soon as the investigation terminates.
By the law denominated scandalum magnatum, any man convicted of spreading a scandalous report regarding a peer of the realm, no matter whether true or false, is subject to an arbitrary fine and to remain in prison until the same be discharged.

Peers have the privilege of sitting covered in courts of justice, during their proceedings.

Peers of parliament have the privilege of franking letters; but it is as members of parliament, not as peers.

Peers have the privilege of voting in parliament by proxy.

The Barons of Kingsale enjoy, exclusively, the hereditary privilege of being covered in the Royal presence.

A Peer cannot lose his nobility, but by death or attainder; though there was an instance, in the reign of Edward the Fourth, of the degradation of George Nevile, Duke of Bedford, by act of parliament, on account of his poverty, which rendered him unable to support his dignity. But this is a singular instance, which serves at the same time, by having happened, to show the power of parliament; and by having happened but once, to show how tender the parliament hath been in exerting so big a power. It hath been said, indeed, that if a Baron wastes his estate, so that he is not able to support the degree, the King may degrade him: but it is expressly held by authorities, that a peer cannot be degraded but by act of parliament.—Blackstone.

Note.—Some peers of Ireland, created since the Union, have taken their titles from places in England; but by a sort of fiction, the name of an English county is never introduced into the patent. Lord Rendlesham is, of Rendlesham, without any county. Lord Macdonald is of Slate in the county of Antrim, whereas Slate is in the Hebrides. Lord Newborough is “of Ireland.”

THE BARONETAGE.

In England.

The order of Baronet, instituted by King James the First, in 1611, is said to have been suggested by the Barones Minores, (minor barons,) but the title is of ancient standing, both in England and France, and was used in the former for Banneret, when it was meant to designate a knight banneret, who was a parliamentary baron, as in the statute of Richard the Second, by which every archbishop, &c. baron, baronet, knight of a shire, &c. &c. are commanded, under penalty of amerelament, or other punishment, according to ancient usage, to appear in parliament; and in the reign of Henry the Sixth we find that a juror challenged himself, because his ancestors had been “baronets, or seigneurs des parlements.” As knighthood, which had existed from the earliest period, and long antecedently to nobility, always implied the performance of certain specific services, it was deemed advisable, upon the institution of this hereditary equestrian order, to attach to it some particular conditions: and a rebellion at that period happening to rage in the northern province of Ireland, called Ulster, each newly-created baronet was obliged to pay into the exchequer a sum of money adequate to the maintenance, in Ireland, of thirty soldiers for three years, at eight-pence per day, which, with the official fees, amounted to nearly twelve hundred pounds. It was required, too, that the candidate for the dignity should be a gentleman by birth, and in the possession of an unencumbered estate of one thousand pounds per annum. The number of baronets was first confined to two hundred, but the order is now only limited by the discretion of the crown.

Baronets take precedence of all knights, except those of the Garter, knights who are of the privy-council, and bannerets created under the royal banner displayed in open war, the king himself being present. Baronets have the privilege to bear in a canton of their coat of arms, or in a whole escutcheon, the arms of Ulster, viz. “in a field argent, a sinister hand, gules.” The word “Sir” is prefixed to the Christian name of a baronet, as it is used before that of a knight, and his wife is entitled “Lady,” “Madam,” or “Dame,” “according (as it is stated in the patent of creation) to the custom of speaking.”

Baronets, and the heirs male of their bodies, have place, in the armies of the king, near about the royal standard, for the defence of the same.

Baronets, and their male heirs, are entitled, at their obsequies, to two assistants of the body to support the pall, a chief mourner, and four assistants to him, being the medium funereal honors between those of a baron and a knight.

The eldest son of a baronet, on coming of age, enjoyed the right of claiming the honor of knighthood from the king, until George the Fourth, by letters patent, dated 19th December, 1827, annulled the privilege. His majesty could not we presume, though, revoke an especial clause in the patents already granted; the regulation must therefore have been prospective solely.

Of Ireland.

The Baronetcy of Ireland followed that of England, and was instituted by King James I. for the same avowed purpose—the plantation of the Province of Ulster. The dignity was first conferred by letters patent, dated 30th September, 1619, upon Sir Dominick Sarsfield, lord-chief-justice of the court of king’s-bench; and in the next month (14th October), Sir Francis Blundell, knight, was advanced to the same honor.

The Baronetage of Ireland was placed upon an exactly similar footing, regarding immunities, arms, &c. as the order instituted for England.

Of Nova Scotia, or Scotland.

The order of Baronets* of Nova Scotia (or Scotland) was also projected by King James I. for the purpose of encouraging the plantation of the province of Nova Scotia, in America, the earliest settlement made by the Scots beyond the Atlantic; but that monarch deceasing, his Majesty’s son and successor, King Charles I. soon after his accession, put the project into execution, and instituted the order, by creating the Hon. Robert Gordon, of Gordonstone, son of the Earl of Sutherland, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by patent dated 22nd of May, 1625, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, a limitation invariably granted to all Nova Scotia baronets previous to the Restoration. In addition to the honor and privileges of the order, each baronet, prior to the surrender of Nova Scotia to the French, had a grant of eighteen square miles of land.

* The only instance of this dignity having been conferred upon a female occurs in that of Dame Mary Holles, of Asherton, who, in 1633, was elevated to the Baronetcy of Scotland, with remainder to her heirs whatsoever.
in that province, three miles the one way, extending along the sea-shore or navigable rivers, and six miles within land the other way. These grants were erected into baronies, with most ample privileges, and were destined to the patentees, their heirs and assignees; and infestment, taken on the Castle Hill of Edinburgh, was declared, in each patent, to be sufficient to complete the transfer of the property. In 1629, King Charles granted to the Baronets of Nova Scotia the privilege of wearing a ribbon and badge, which last was presented by his Majesty, in person, to each gentleman of the order. The grant runs thus: “That they, and every of them, and their heirs male, shall wear and carry about their necks, in all time coming, an orange taurine silk ribbon, whereon shall be pendant, in a scutcheon, argent, a saltire, azure; thereon an inescutcheon of the arms of Scotland, with an imperial crown above the scutcheon, and incircled with the motto, “Fax mentis honestæ Gloria.”

Note.—Since the Legislative Unions between England and Scotland, and Great Britain and Ireland, the separate Orders of Baronets have been superseded by one general Institution of Baronets of the United Kingdom.
THE ROYAL FAMILY.

Reigning Sovereign.

HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY, Victoria I. QUEEN OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, Defender of the Faith, Sovereign of the Orders of the Garter, Bath, Thistle, St. Patrick, St. Michael and St. George (of the Ionian Islands). Her Majesty was born on the 24th May, 1819, and ascended the throne upon the decease of her uncle, King William IV. on the 20th June, 1837.

Arms—Quarterly: first and fourth, gu. three lions, passant, guardant, in pale, or, for England; second, or, a lion, rampant, within a double treisure, flory, counterflory, gu. for Scotland; third, ar. a harp, or, stringed ar. for Ireland; the whole encircled with a Garter.

Royal Lineage.

WILLIAM, DUKE OF NORMANDY, born in 1024, surnamed the Conqueror, from his triumph over Harold, at Hastings, on the 13th October, 1066, was crowned King of England, by Aldred, Archbishop of York, at Westminster Abbey, on the 29th of December, in the same year. William married Maud, or Matilda, daughter of Baldwin, the Fifth Count of Flanders, and had issue, Robert, surnamed Courthorn, successor to the Duchy of Normandy, died in Cardiff Castle, 10th February, 1134.

Richard, killed by a stag in the New Forest, and died a youth.
William Rufus, successor to the crown of England.
Henry, successor to the crown of England after his brother.
Cecilia, who took the veil at the monastery of Pescamp, and was afterwards abbess in the Holy Trinity, at Caen, where she died in 1126.
Constantia, married to Alan Pergant, Earl of Brittany, and died issueless, in 1126.
Alice, contracted to Harold.
Adela, married to Stephen, Earl of Buis, and had four sons and a daughter, viz.
William, (an imbecile), married a daughter of Gillon D'Solelo, and had issue.
Theobald, who succeeded to the earldom of Buis.
Henry, Bishop of Winchester, died 6th August, 1171.
Stephen, who succeeded his uncle Henry upon the English throne.
Maud, married to Richard, Earl of Chester, and was drowned with her husband, in 1110.
Agatha, died unmarried, but betrothed to Alphonso, King of Galicia.
Gundred, married to William de Warren, Earl of Surrey, died 27th May, 1085.

William the Conqueror died on the 9th September, 1087, and was succeeded in his English dominions by his second son,

WILLIAM THE SECOND, surnamed Rufus, crowned 26th September, 1087. This Monarch was accidentally slain while hunting in the New Forest on the 2nd August, 1100, and dying unmarried, the crown devolved upon his next brother,

HENRY THE FIRST, surnamed Beaullers, who married, first, Matilda, or Maud, daughter of Malcolm the Third, of Scotland, and niece of Edgar Atheling, the last of the Saxon Princes in succession to the Throne, by whom he had issue,

William, born in 1102; married in 1110, Matilda, daughter of Fouk, Count of Anjou, but was lost at sea in the following year, and left no issue.
Matilda, betrothed in her eighth year (1110), to the emperor, Henry the Fifth, of Germany; but, becoming a widow, married, secondly, Geoffrey Plantagenet, Count of Anjou, and had (with other children),

Henry, who succeeded to the English throne, as second of that name.

Henry the First married, secondly, Adaliza, daughter of Godfrey, Duke of Lovaine, and niece of Pope Calixtus; but of this marriage there was no issue. The King died from eating too freely of lampreys, 2nd December, 1135, and was succeeded by (the youngest son of his sister, Adela, Countess of Blois,) his nephew,

Stephen, crowned 26th December, 1135; married Matilda, daughter and heir of Eustace, Earl of Bologne. The pretensions of this monarch to the throne were opposed by his cousin, the Empress Matilda, and the contest finally terminated in a compromise, by which Stephen was to away the sceptre during his life, upon condition of its devolving upon Henry Plantagenet, the son of the Empress, at his decease. He died on the 26th October, 1134, and was succeeded accordingly by HENRY THE SECOND,* born in 1133; married in 1151, Eleanor, daughter and one of the co-heiresses of William the Fifth, Duke of Aquitaine, by whom he had issue.

6. Margaret, m. to Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy.

7. Elisabeth, m. to John Do la Pole, Duke of Suffolk.

* This lady had been Governess to the Duke's daughters by his first.

† It has recently been discovered, that in the original patent of legitimacy to the Beaumonts (which, as it was ratified by parliament, parliament alone could alter), the exception of inheritance to the crown does not occur; the words "excepta dignitatem regali" being inserted only by the caution of Hanwy IV. in his confirmation ten years afterwards.

‡ Roger Mortimer, fourth Earl of March, was son and heir of Edmund Mortimer, third earl, by the Lady Philippa Plantagenet, daughter and heir of Lionel, Duke of Clarence. He died in 1308, and was succeeded by his son, Edmund Mortimer, third Earl of March, who died 28th Nov. 1327, when the Earldom of March expired; but the Baroniæ Mortimeræ, with the estates of the Mortimers, and their pretensions to the crown, devolved upon his nephew, Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York: and thus was founded the claim of the White Rose.

THE ROYAL FAMILY.

Thomas (of Woodstock), Duke of Gloucester, Constable of England, murdered at Calais in 1307, leaving issue by his consort, Eleanor, daughter and co-heir of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex.

Margaret, m. to John Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, and d. s. p.

King Edward the Third died on the 21st June, 1377, and was succeeded by (the only son of the Black Prince,) his grandson, as

RICHARD THE SECOND. This Monarch married first, Anne, daughter of the Emperor Charles the Fourth, and 2ndly, (in 1396,) Isabel, second daughter of Charles the Sixth of France, but had no issue. He was deposed and murdered in 1399, when the crown passed to his cousin, as

HENRY THE FOURTH, (eldest son of John of Gaunt,) who espoused, first, Mary de Bohun, daughter and co-heir of Humphrey, Earl of Hereford, by whom he had four sons,

Henry, Prince of Wales.

Thomas, Duke of Clarence, who fell at the battle of Bangy, in 1421, and died issueless. His wife was Margaret, third daughter of Thomas, and sister and co-heir of Edmund Holland, Earl of Kent, and widow of John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset.

John, Duke of Bedford, Earl of Richmond, &c., the celebrated Regent of France in the minority of King Henry the Sixth. This Prince's cruelty to the enthusiastic Maid of Orleans inde-

Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, Regent of England during the minority of Henry the Sixth, died in 1446, issueless. He had two wives, viz., Jaqueline, Countess of Holland, daughter and heir of William, Duke of Bavaria, from whom he was divorced, and Eleanor, daughter of Reginald, Lord Cobham.

Blanch, married first, to Louis, Duke of Bavaria; secondly, to the King of Arragon; and, thirdly, to the Duke of Baar.

Philippa, married to the King of Denmark.

King Henry married, secondly, in 1403, Joan, daughter of Charles II, King of Navarre, and widow of John de Montford, Duke of Brittany, but had no other issue. He died on the 20th March, 1412, and was succeeded by the Prince of Wales, as

HENRY THE FIFTH, born in 1368, Crowned 9th April, 1413. This warlike monarch, the renowned hero of Azincour, espoused, on the 3rd January, 1420, Katherine, youngest daughter of Charles the Sixth, King of France, by whom he had an only son,

Henry, Prince of Wales.

The King died just as he had reached the summit of glory, on the 31st of August, 1422, and the Queen remarried, soon after her royal consort's decease, with Sir Owen Tudor, a gentleman of the Principality of Wales, said to be of royal lineage, by whom she had two sons and a daughter, viz.

Jasper Tudor, created Earl of Pembroke. (See Burke's Extinct Peerage.)

Edmund Tudor, created Earl of Richmond, who married Margaret, only daughter and heir of John, first Duke of Somerset, and great granddaughter of John of Gaunt, by his third marriage (see Edward the Third), and left an only son, Hans, Earl of Richmond, who acceded the throne, as seventh of that name.

Tacia Tudor, married to Reginald, Lord Grey de Wilton.

King Henry the Fifth was succeeded by the Prince of Wales, as

HENRY THE SIXTH, born in 1421, crowned 6th November, 1429, who espoused, in 1443, the celebrated Margaret of Anjou, daughter of Regnier (titular King of Sicily, Naples, and Jerusalem) Duke of Anjou; (descended from the Count of Anjou, brother of Charles the Fifth;) by whom he had an only child,

Edward, Prince of Wales, born in October, 1452; espoused, in 1470, Lady Anne Neville, second daughter and co-heir of Richard, Earl of Warwick, but was murdered after being taken prisoner at the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471, and died issueless. His widow married Richard the Third.

In this unhappy reign the first blood flowed between the houses of York and Lancaster, and the contest endured for the ensuing thirty years; it ceased at length after immolating at the shrines of the conflicting factions, fourscore princes of the blood royal at least, with almost the whole body of the ancient nobility of England.

Henry the Sixth, who was deposed after the second battle of St. Albans, in 1461, died in the Tower of London, a few days after the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471, by (supposed) violence. Upon his deposition, the crown was assumed by Edward, Duke of York, son of the Protector, Richard, Duke of York, (see Edward the Third,) as

EDWARD THE FOURTH, born 29th April, 1441, proclaimed 3rd March, and crowned 28th June, 1464. This monarch had to contend for his doubtful title with MARGARET OF ANJOU, and the Lancastrians; but, after a variety of fortune, he succeeded in establishing himself firmly upon the Throne. The King espoused, 1st May, 1464, Elizabeth Wydevile, daughter of Sir Richard Wydevile, (by Jacqueline of Luxemburg, widow of the ROYALTY John, Duke of Bedford, see Henry the Fourth,) and widow of Sir John Grey, of Groby, who fell in the second battle of St. Albans, under the Lancastrian banner, by whom he left, at his decease, 9th April, 1483, Edward, Prince of Wales.

Richard, Duke of York, who espoused, in his infancy, Anne, only child and heiress of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, but he was murdered, with his brother, in the Tower.

Mary, d. unm.

Katherine, married to William Courtenay, Earl of Devon; and had issue.

Edward the Fourth was succeeded by the Prince of Wales, as

EDWARD THE FIFTH, b. 4th Nov. 1470. This Prince was murdered, 22nd June, 1483, with his only brother, the Duke of York, in the Tower, soon after his accession, by order it is asserted of his uncle the Protector GLOUCESTER, who then usurped the Throne, under the title of

RICHARD THE THIRD, crowned 7th July, 1483. This Monarch married Lady Anne Neville, daughter and heiress of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, and Relict of Edward, Prince of Wales, only son of King Henry the Sixth, by whom he had an only son, Edward, Prince of Wales, who predeceased him.

King Richard fell at Bosworth Field; and his great rival, HENRY TUDOR, Earl of Richmond, only son of Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, (see Henry the Fifth,) ascended the Throne, by the title of

HENRY THE SEVENTH,* b. 26th July, 1455, crowned by Sir William Stanley, in the field of Bosworth, immediately after the battle, 22nd August, 1483, and on the 30th of the ensuing October, at Westminster Abbey, by Cardinal Bourchier, Archbishop of Canterbury. The King espoused, on the 18th January, 1486, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of King EDWARD IV. and had issue, Eleanor, who married Henry Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, and left an only daughter and heiress, Margaret, who espoused Henry Stanley, Earl of Derby.

King Henry the Seventh died 21st April, 1509, and was succeeded by his only surviving son,

HENRY THE EIGHTH, born 28th January, 1491; crowned 24th June, 1509; married first Catherine of Aragon, the widow of his deceased brother, by whom he had an only daughter, Mary, who ascended the throne at the decease of her half-brother.

The King was divorced from his first Queen in 1533, when he avowed his marriage (which had previously taken place) with Anne Boleyn, daughter of Sir Thomas Boleyn, created Earl of Ormonde, by whom he had an only surviving daughter, ELIZABETH, who succeeded her half-sister upon the throne.

King Henry married, fourthly, in 1539, Anne, daughter of the Duke of Cleves, from whom he was divorced in the same year. He married, fifthly, on the 8th August, 1540, Katherine, daughter of Sir Edmund Howard, whom he brought to the block in a few months afterwards; and, sixthly, Katherine, daughter of Sir Thomas Parr, of Kendal, and relict of the Hon. Edward Borough, and of Edward Neville, Lord Latimer, which lady survived him, and married, subsequently, Thomas, Lord Seymour, of Sudley, uncle to King Edward VI. King Henry died on the 28th of January, 1547, and was succeeded by his only son, as

EDWARD THE SIXTH, born on the 12th of October, 1537; crowned 25th February, 1547; died in July, 1553, unmarried, when the crown devolved, after an unsuccessful opposition on the part of Lady Jane Grey, (see Henry the Seventh,) upon his eldest sister, as

QUEEN MARY, born 8th February, 1553; crowned 30th November, 1553; espoused, 23rd July, 1554, Philip, Prince of Spain; but dying issueless, on the 17th November, 1558, the crown devolved upon her half-sister,

QUEEN ELIZABETH, born 7th September, 1553; crowned 15th January, 1558; who was succeeded, at her decease (unmarried,) 24th of March, 1603, by her kinsman, James the Sixth, of Scotland, (see Henry the Seventh,) who ascended the English Throne under the title of

JAMES THE FIRST,* born 19th June, 1566; crowned King of England 23rd July, 1603. This monarch espoused, in 1580, Anne, daughter of Frederick the Second, of Denmark, and had with other children, Sophia, born 3rd November, 1777.

Amelia, born 7th August, 1783; died unmarried 2nd November, 1819.

His Majesty, King George the Third, died in the sixtieth year of his reign (the longest in the annals of England), on the 29th of January, 1820, and was succeeded by the Prince of Wales, as

GEORGE THE FOURTH. His Majesty had previously exercised the Royal authority as Regent. He was born 12th August, 1762, and married 8th April, 1793, to his cousin, Her Serene Highness Princess Caroline-Amelia-Elizabeth, second daughter of Charles-William-Ferdinand, Duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel, by whom (who died 7th August, 1821,) he had an only daughter, Princess Charlotte-Augusta, of Wales, born 7th March, 1796; married, 2nd May, 1816, to Prince Leopold-George-Frederick, third son of Francis Anthony-Frederick, late reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg; and died in childbirth, 6th November, 1817.

His Majesty died 26th June, 1830, and was succeeded by his brother, William-Henry, Duke of Clarence, as WILLIAM THE FOURTH. His Majesty was born 21st August, 1763. He entered at a very early period of life the naval service, and passing through the regular gradations, attained the rank of post captain in 1786; in 1790, he was appointed Rear-Admiral, subsequently became Admiral of the Red, and succeeded Sir Peter Parker as Admiral of the Fleet in 1811. He married 11th June, 1818, Her Serene Highness Princess Adelaide-Louisa-Theressa-Amelia, eldest daughter of George-Frederick-Charles, late Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, and had two daughters, who both died in infancy. His Majesty died 20th June, 1837, and was succeeded by his niece, the Princess Victoria, THE PRESENT REIGNING SOVEREIGN.

On the centre of the fourth quarter an escutcheon gu., charged with the crown of Charlemagne or, being the badge of arch-treasurer of the Holy Roman Empire.

George III. The same arms until the union with Ireland in 1801, when the royal arms were altered, as they are borne at this day, the ensigns of France being discontinued.
KINGS OF SCOTLAND.

The remote History of Scotland, like that of other countries boasting antiquity, is enveloped in darkness. Whatever light may be thrown upon its early transactions, from the absence of any thing like familiar or interesting detail, affords but little information to the general reader, and is only of value to the microscopic eye of the laborious antiquary. We shall therefore commence our sketch of its royal line with the accession of KENNETH THE SECOND, from whose reign the Scottish History first assumes an intelligible form.

KENNETH THE SECOND, surnamed Mac Alpine, having united the Scots and Picts under one sceptre, became First King of all Scotland. He died in 836, and was succeeded by his brother,

DONALD, who was succeeded, after an inglorious reign of four years, by his nephew,

CONSTANTINE THE SECOND (a son of KENNETH Mac Alpine). In this monarch's reign the Danes invaded Scotland, and the King giving the barbarians battle, fell into their hands, and was beheaded in 878, leaving no issue. He was succeeded by his brother,

ETHUS, surnamed the Swift-footed. The rule of this Prince was brief and turbulent. A party headed by Grig or Gregory, rendering an appeal to the sword indispensable, Ethus was wounded in battle, and dying soon afterwards, the crown was usurped by his rival,

GREGORY, surnamed the Great. This Monarch, who was contemporary with ALFRED, King of England, upon ascending the throne, selected for his colleague, Eocha, King of Strathclyde, grandson of KENNETH Mac Alpine, but both were compelled to abdicate within three years, when

DONALD THE FOURTH assumed the reins of government; and after a prosperous rule of eleven years, was succeeded by the son of Ethus,

CONSTANTINE THE THIRD, who reigned forty years, and then retiring to a monastery, resigned the sceptre to the son of Donald the Fourth,

MALCOLM THE FIRST, who was succeeded by

KENNETH THE THIRD, who was killed in 994, when the throne was usurped by

CONSTANTINE THE FOURTH (great-grandson of Ethus, the Swift-footed), who died the following year, and was succeeded by his son,

KENNETH THE FOURTH, whose grandson,

Rancho, Thane of Lochabry, had a son,

Fleance, who espoused Mary, daughter of Griffydh ap Llewelyn, Prince of North Wales, and left a son,

Walter, who returning to Scotland after the restoration of MALCOLM GRAN-WOHR, was created Lord High Steward, from which office, his House assumed the supreme of Stuart. The great-grandson of the Lord Steward, Walter, had issue,

1. Alexander, an eminent warrior, of whose great-grandson,

Robert, ascended the throne, as Robert the Second, and was founder of the Stuart Dynasty.

Euphane, who married Sir Patrick Graham, patriarch of the eminent families of Menteith, Graham of Gartmore, and Graham of Netherby and Esk.

2. Robert (Sir), founder of the House of Lennox.

The right of Kenneth the Fourth being contested by Malcolm, son of Kenneth the Third, he was deposed in 1003, and his competitor ascended the throne, as MALCOLM THE SECOND. This Monarch had two daughters, Beatrix, married to Grimes, Governor of the Scots Island, and left a son, Duncan, successor to his grandfather.
Dorcha, married to Finley, Thane of Angus, and left a son, Macbeth, of whom hereafter.
The King was murdered in 1035, and was succeeded by his grandson,
DUNCAN THE FIRST, who had two sons, Malcolm.
Donald.
This unfortunate Prince was slain by his cousin, who ascended the throne as MACBETH. This Prince espoused the Lady Gruoch, daughter of Kenneth the Fourth.
The celebrated Lady Macbeth who, with her husband, has afforded materials to the Bard of Avon, for one of his most splendid works.) He had a son, Lahaulan, who was crowned King after his father's defeat, but was slain within a few months by King Malcolm.
Macbeth was eventually killed by Macduff, Thane of Fife, in 1057, and the rightful heir ascended the throne, as MALCOLM THE THIRD, surnamed Cean-mohr,* who married Margaret, sister of Edgar Atheling, and had three sons,
Edgar,
Alexander, } successively kings.
David,
Matilda, married to Henry the First of England.
Malcolm fell in battle, when besieging Alnwick Castle, 13th November, 1098, and was succceeded by his eldest son,
Edgar, who died s. p. in 1106, and was succeeded by his brother,
ALEXANDER THE FIRST, who died also issueless (io 1124), and was succeeded by his brother, DAVID THE FIRST, who espoused Maud, daughter of Waldeoff, Earl of Northumberland, by Judith, niece of William the Conqueror (refer to Burke's Extinct Peerage, article St. Liz, Earls of Huntingdon), and had an only son, Henry, Prince of Scotland, who died before his father, leaving issue by his wife, the Lady Adeline de Warren, daughter of William, Earl of Warren and Surrey,
1. Malcolm, who succeeded his grandfather upon the throne.
2. William, successor to his brother.
III. David, Earl of Huntingdon, in England, who married Maud, daughter of Hugh (Kintillie), Earl of Chester, and had a son and four daughters, viz.
1. John (surnamed Le Scot), who inherited the Earldom of Chester, and died s. p.
2. Margaret, married to Alan de Galloway, and had two daughters, Duncal, married to John de Balilol, and was mother of John de Balilol, who was declared King of Scotland by Edward I. of England.
3. Marjory, married to John Comyn, and died, leaving John, called the Red Comyn, who claimed the crown of Scotland, and was killed by Bruce in the church of the Friars Minore.
4. Isabel, married to Robert de Brus, and was mother of Robert Bruce, who contended for the crown.
5. Maud, died unmarried.
6. Ada, married to Henry de Hastings, and had a son,
Henry de Hastings, whose grandson,
John, second Baron Hastings, was one of the competitors for the crown.
David the First died in 1153, and was succeeded by his grandson,
MALCOLM THE FOURTH, who died unmarried, in 1165, and was succeeded by his brother,
WILLIAM the Lion,† who was succeeded in 1214, by his only son, ALEXANDER THE SECOND, who married first, Joon, daughter of King John, of England, but by her had no issue, and he espoused secondly, Mary, daughter of Ingelram de Courcy, and had a son, his successor, in 1249.
* Cean-mohr, great-headed.
† So surnamed from having adopted the Lion as the armorial bearing of Scotland. From this emblem the chiefs of the Scottish Heralds is called Lion, King of Arms.
KINGS OF SCOTLAND.

ALEXANDER THE THIRD, who married Margaret, daughter of Henry the Third of England, and had three children,

Alexander, who both died s.p. in their father's lifetime.
David, who succeeded.
Margaret, married in 1201 to Eric King of Norway, and left an only daughter, Margaret, successor to her grandfather.

The King died in 1285, and was succeeded by his granddaughter,

MARGARET, the Maid of Norway, who died unmarried on her passage to Scotland.

Upon the death of this queen, there arose a violent competition for the vacant throne, between the descendants of David, Earl of Huntingdon, (refer to David the First,) namely,

JOHN BALIOL.
Robert Bruce.
John, Lord Hastings.

The competitors having finally agreed to submit their claim to the arbitration of Edward the First, of England, that monarch decided in favour of

JOHN BALIOL, who was accordingly declared King of Scotland, in 1292. In the reign of this prince, Fought—Conquered—and Fell, the renowned Sir William Wallace. Baliol died in 1296, when an interregnum of ten years ensued; at length,

ROBERT BRUCE, Earl of Carrick, was declared King, as Robert the First. This prince, The Bruce of Bannockburn, was the most illustrious monarch that ever swayed the Scottish sceptre, and his name alone, so long as one descendant shall survive of the

"Scots, whom Bruce has often led," will be sufficient to fill with enthusiasm the coldest breast in Caledonia. He married first, Isabel, daughter of Donald, Earl of Murr, and had one daughter, Margery, who married Walter, third Lord High Steward of Scotland, and had a son, Robert Stuart, of whom hereafter as first of the Stuarts.

The King espoused secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Aymer de Buro, Earl of Ulster, and had issue,

David, his successor.
Margaret, married to William, fourth Earl of Sutherland, ancestor of the present Countess of Sutherland.
Matilda, married to Thomas de Isaac.
Elizabeth, married to Sir Walter Oliphant.

Upon the death of this renowned monarch in 1329, the administration was assumed by John Randolph, third Earl of Moray, as Regent of Scotland, during the minority of DAVID THE SECOND, who was crowned at Secon in 1331. With this monarch Edward Baliol, aided by the English king, disputed the throne. King David died in 1370, and was succeeded by his nephew, Robert Stuart.

ROBERT THE SECOND. In this reign was fought the celebrated battle of Otterburn, wherein was slain the Earl of Douglas, and the English under the "Perces of Northumberland" sustained a total defeat. King Robert married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Adare Mure, of Rowallan, in the county of Ayr, and had, with other issue,

John, Earl of Carrick, who changed his name to Robert, upon succeeding to the throne.
Robert, Duke of Albany, who was Regent of Scotland during the minority of his nephew, King James the First.
Alexander, Earl of Buchan and Ross.
Margery, married to John Dunbar, Earl of Moray.
Jane, married first, to Sir John Lyon, ancestor of the Earls of Strathmore; and, secondly, to Sir James Sandelands, of Calder, ancestor of the Lords Torphichen.
Elizabeth, married to Sir Thomas Hay, of Errol, ancestor of the Earls of Errol.

The King espoused, secondly, Euphemia, Countess of Moray, daughter of Hugh, Earl of Ross, and had inter alios, David, Earl of Caithness and Strathern.

Walter, Earl of Athol. This nobleman was beheaded at Edinburgh, in 1437, for the murder of his nephew, King James the First, and his title and extensive estates became forfeited.

Robert the Second died in 1390, and was succeeded by his eldest son, ROBERT THE THIRD, who married Annabella, daughter of Sir John Drummond, and had issue,

David, Earl of Carrick, who was created Duke of Rothesay * in 1388. This prince fell a victim to the ambition of his uncle, the Duke of Albany, by whom he was starved to death in Falkland Castle, in 1402.

James, who succeeded his father.

Mary, married first, to Sir George Douglas, Earl of Angus, by whom she had issue; secondly, (in 1404,) to Sir James Kennedy, and the lineal descendant of this marriage is the present Archi-erald Kennedy, Marquess of Ailsa. Her ladyship espoused thirdly, Sir William Graham, of Kincardine, from which union descended the Grama's of Cleavestone, (the gallant Lord Dunbar, and Thomas Graham, the equally gallant Lord Lyndoch). The Princess Mary weded fourthly, Sir William Edmonstone.

Margaret, married to Archibald, Earl of Douglas, Duke of Touraine, Marshal of France, who fell at Vernouil, in 1424.

Elisabeth, married to James, Lord Dalkeith, grandfather of James, first Earl of Morton.

Robert the Third † died in 1406, and was succeeded by his only surviving son,

James the First, who espoused Lady Jane Beaumont, daughter of John, first Earl of Somerset, and granddaughter of John of Gaunt, and had issue,

James, Duke of Rothesay, his successor.

Margaret, married to Louis, Dauphin of France, afterwards Louis XI.

Isabel, married to Francis, first Duke of Brittany.

James, married first to James, third Earl of Angus; and, secondly, to George, second Earl of Huntly.

Eleanor, married to Siegmund, Archduke of Austria.

Mary, married to John, Lord of Camperio, in Zealand.

Johanna, married first, to the Earl of Angus; and, secondly, to James, first Earl of Morton.

King James was murdered by his uncle, Walter, Earl of Atholl, at Perth in 1437, and was succeeded by his son,

James the Second, during whose minority Sir Alan Livingston was Regent of Scotland. His Majesty married Mary, daughter of Arnold, Duke of Gelders, and had issue,

James, Duke of Rothesay.

Alexander, Duke of Albany, married twice, and by his second wife, Anne, daughter of the Count of Boulogne, had a son,

John, Duke of Albany, Regent in the minority of James the Fifth

John, Earl of Mary, who was killed to death by his brother in 1439.

Mary, married first to Thomas, Lord Boyd, to whom she conveyed the Isles of Arran, of which he was made Earl. Her ladyship espoused, secondly, James, Lord Hamilton.

Margaret, married to William, 3rd Lord Crichton.

The King was killed by the bursting of a piece of ordnance at the siege of Rosburgh Castle, in 1460, and was succeeded by his son,

James the Third, who married Margaret, daughter of Christian, the First, King of Denmark, and being murdered by the confederated nobility, involuntarily headed by his own son the Duke of Rothesay, in 1488, was succeeded by that prince, as

James the Fourth, who married the Lady Margaret Tudor, eldest daughter of King Henry the Seventh, and falling at Flodden, in 1513, was succeeded by his son,

James the Fifth. This Monarch espoused first, Magdalen, third daughter of Frances the First, King of France, but by that Princess had no issue. He married secondly, Mary, daughter of Claude de Lorraine, Duke de Guise, and left an only daughter,

Mary.

The King † died in 1542, and was succeeded by his only child,

* It is understood that from this, the Principality and Stewarts of Scotland, the Dukedom of Rothesay, the Earlom of Carrick, the Lordship of the Isles, and Barony of Harelaw, have been vested in the first born son and heir-apparent of the Sovereign, who from the moment of his birth or of his father's accession to the throne, enjoys these honours.

† Robert the Third left 2 natural sons,

John Stewart, of Blackhall and Ardgowan, ancestor of Sir Michael Shaw-Stuart, bart, of Blackhall.

James the Fifth left illegitimate children.

By Elisabeth Shaw, of the family of Sachoie, James, Abbot of Kelso and Melrose, died in 1558.
MARY, Queen of Scots, born the year her father died, and inherited the throne in seven days after her birth. This lovely and unfortunate princess espoused, first, in 1558, Francis, Dauphin of France, afterwards Francis II, who d. s. p. in two years afterwards. Her Majesty married secondly, Henry, Lord Darnley, by whom she had a son,

JAMES, Duke of Rothesay.

The Queen wedded thirdly, James Hepburn, fourth Earl of Bothwell, but had no other issue. The fate of the unhappy Mary is a matter of too much notoriety to be dwelt upon at any length. Her rule was opposed by a confederation of the Scottish nobles, headed by her bastard brother, the Regent Moray, and to those she was forced to surrender at Carberry Hill, 15th June, 1567, whence she was sent prisoner to Lochleven-Castle, and there placed under the immediate surveillance of the Lady Margaret Douglas, the Regent’s mother. In this state of restraint the Queen was compelled to sign a formal resignation of the crown to her son James, Duke of Rothesay. Subsequently she effected her escape from the walls of Lochleven by the aid of the generous and intrepid George Douglas, and unfurling the royal banner, faced her foesmen at Lanark; but the God of battle for once, at least, forsook the cause of beauty, chivalry, and right; and Mary sustained a signal defeat. In this her extremity, the Queen of Scotland fled into England, and flung herself in full confidence upon the boasted magnanimity of the English nation, and the generosity of her kinswoman, the English Queen—but she reposed alas! upon a shadow—the nation showed her no sympathy—the Queen gave her no protection. From both she experienced a series of cruel and unrelenting persecutions; and after enduring nineteen years of unjustifiable and unmitigated captivity, was put to death at Fotheringay Castle, by decapitation, on the 8th of February, 1587.

"She fell, but fell with spirit truly Roman, To plot the vengeance of a rival woman."

In the whole range of tyranny, by which the reign of her predecessor is indubitably branded, there is nothing more unjust, more malignant, more bloodthirsty, than the imprisonment and murder of this helpless woman, by Elizabeth. No tongue has attempted a palliation—no pen has dared to defend the murdereress, for there are deeds of gratuitous violence in the detestation of which all men coincide, and the voice of humanity proclaims aloud as abhorrent to every feeling of the breast. Upon the (forced) resignation of the crown by Queen Mary at Lochleven, her son James, Duke of Rothesay, then but a year old, was declared King, as

JAMES THE SIXTH, and under this monarch the sceptres of England and Scotland became united at the decease of Elizabeth in 1603, when he ascended the English throne, as King James the First.

HOUSE OF GUELPH.

The founder of the illustrious family of Guelph,

ANULPHUS, HUONULPHUS, or GUELPH, younger brother of ODOACER, conqueror and first barbarian King of Italy, obtained possession in Bavaria, where he died in 489, leaving an only son,

OLFIVANDUS, who did not assume the supreme authority in Bavaria, but entered as a volunteer into the Roman army, under the celebrated Belisarius, with whom he became a favorite, and eventually obtained a command. The period of this gallant soldier’s death is unascertained, but he left an only son,

By Margaret, daughter of John, twelfth Lord Erskine, who married afterwards Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven, JAMES, Earl of Moray, the celebrated Regent of Scotland (see Earl of Moray in the dictionary).

By Euphemia, second daughter of Alexander, first Lord Elphinstone, ROBERT, Earl of Orkney.

By Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Carmichael, JOHN, Prior of Coldinghame, whose son, FRANCIS, was created Earl of Bothwell.

ULIGAGUS, who served under Belisarius in that general's last campaigns in Pavia, and was subsequently engaged in the defence of Italy, against the Lombards. He died in 590, and his son, or grandson,

CADUINUS, residing chiefly in France, enjoyed the confidence of Queen Brunhilda, a princess then in the zenith of power; and having, at the head of the Austrasian army, subdued a great part of the kingdom of Burgundy, these provinces were erected into a duchy, and the victorious general made Duke thereof in 613. In the latter years of Caduinus he was commissioned by Clothaire the Second, under the title of Ambassador of the King (Missus Regius,) then acknowledged sovereign of Austrasia, Burgundy, and Nemesis, to collect and digest the laws of the Bavarian and German nations dependent upon France, a duty which he fulfilled with so much zeal and success as, in a great measure, to establish the dominion of that power throughout the neighbouring provinces. Caduins died in 640, and his son,

CATHICUS, obtained the government of Alsace, and was *Mayor of the Palace in the kingdoms of Neustria and Austrasia, in the reign of Childeeric, son of Clovis, and afterwards in that of Dagobert the second, along with whom he was murdered in the forest of Vaires, anno 670. From this period the Dukes of Bavaria, aligning with the Lombards, began to acquire large possessions in Italy, where a branch of the Guelpic family had already been established as Dukes of Este, in the Lombard kingdom. From Duke Cathics we pass to

GUELPH, son of Ruthard, Count of Altdorf, from whom, who died about 823, descended

GUELPH, sometimes called Welfard, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Nather Bavaria, married Imagi, daughter of Frederick, Count of Luxembourg, and had issue, Guelph, Duke of Carinthia.

Cunegunda, married to Azo the Second, Marquess of Este, and had a son, Guelph, who inherited the states of Altdorf at the decease of his uncle.

Guelph, alias Wolfard, was succeeded in 1036 by his son,

GUELPH, Duke of Carinthia, who was succeeded by his nephew,

GUELPHI, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Upper and Lower Bavaria. This prince engaged in the first Crusade, anno 1096, and died in returning from the Holy Land, at Paphos, in Cyprus, in 1101, leaving by his wife Judith, daughter of Baldwin the Fifth, Count of Flanders, and sister of Maud, wife of William the Conqueror, four sons, and was succeeded by the eldest,

GUELPH, who died issueless in 1119, and was succeeded by his brother,

HENRY THE THIRD, surnamed Niger. This prince married Welfilda, daughter and heiress of Magnus, the last Duke of Saxony, of the line of Billang; and in her right assumed the title of Duke of Saxony; though the Emperor Henry the Fifth seized upon the Duchy and conferred it upon another family. The dukes obtained, however, the Duchy of Spoleto and the Margraviate of Tuscia, with the principality of Sardinia. He died in 1127, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

HENRY THE FOURTH, surnamed Superbus, who married Gertrude, daughter and heiress of the Emperor Lothaire, by Richessa, daughter and eventually heiress of Henry the Fat, Duke of Saxony; by whom he obtained a restoration of the Dnchy of Saxony. This prince subsequently acquired the Duchy of Brunswick, (now Brunswick,) and the county of Northeim, and was invested with the Margraviate of Tuscia, and all the dominions of his aunt-in-law, Mathildis, wife of Guelph the Sixth. He died by poison in 1138 or 1139, and was succeeded by his son,

HENRY THE FIFTH, surnamed The Lion, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria, who added to his possessions the counties of Meclenburg and Luneburg, by conquest from the Slaves. But neglecting his duty to the Emperor, Frederick Barbarossa, and joining the Pope, he was publicly proscribed in 1180, and despoiled of his Saxan and Bavarian dominions, by the neighbouring princes, who combined against him. Henry still retained, however, Brunswick and Luneburg, but was obliged by oath to absent himself from Germany for three years, when he repaired with his second consort, Maud, to the court of her father, King Henry the Second, of England; and through that Monarch's intercession, obtained permission to return home in 1183, but was again

* The youth and imbecility of the Royal Race (of France) had allowed the mayors of the palace to rise from being mere servants of the court, to the important rank of commanding in the kingdom. They were appointed to the office by the grandees of the state, and not by the sovereign; and after the death of Dagobert (A.D. 641), they assumed the command of the armies, and the management of the finances, so that nothing was left to the descendant, Moeroveus, but the empty title of king.
driven into England in 1189: he returned, however, in the same year, and died on the 6th August, 1195, leaving issue by his second wife, the English princess, three sons and a daughter, viz.

HENRY, of Zelle.
Otto, of Brunswick, elected Emperor in 1198; crowned in 1206, and died issueless, in 1218.
Mehnild, married to Henry Barewen, Prince of the Wenden.

The eldest son,
HENRY, Longus, of Zelle, was Count Palatine of the Rhine, from 1195 to 1215. This princepartitioned his father’s dominions between his brothers; and, after his decease, his nephew,

OTHO, Puer, (son of William, of Winchester), who was first created Duke of Brunswick-Luneburg, laid claim to Brunswick, as heir male; but his claim being disputed, he established it by his sword, in 1228, and styling himself Duke of Brunswick, gave and confirmed to that Principality many privileges. The prince married Matilda, daughter of Albert the Second, Elector of Brandenburg, and from him descended

WILLIAM, (son of Ernest Piis, of Zelle), founder of the new house of Luneburg, who was born 4th July, 1235, and succeeded to the government in 1259. This prince married Dorothy, daughter of Christian the Third, King of Denmark, by whom he had seven sons and eight daughters. The sons having agreed amongst themselves not to divide the dukedom, determined that one only should marry, and decided by lot the individual, at the same time they agreed to reign primogeniture; and those engagements they adhered to inviolably, to the admiration of all Europe. The matrimonial prize fell to

GEORGE, the sixth brother, a great military commander, who married, in 1617, Anne Eleanor, daughter of Lewis the Fifth, Landgrave of Hesse-Darmstadt, by whom he had (with four daughters) four sons, viz.,

CHRISTIAN-Lewis, the eldest, who became Duke of Zelle; but dying issueless, in 1665, was succeeded by his next brother.
GEORGE-WILLIAM, of Calenberg and Gottengen, who espoused Eleonora d’Emars, daughter of Alexander d’Olbreuse, by whom he left an only daughter, Sophia-Dorothea, the unhappy consort of King George the First, of England.
JOHN-FREDERICK, who succeeded to Calenberg and Gottengen, (the Hanoverian dominions,) upon the demise of his brother, George-William. This prince became a catholic, and died in Italy, in 1679, leaving four daughters.
ERNST-AUGUSTUS.

The youngest son,
ERNEST-AUGUSTUS, became Bishop of Osnaburg in 1662, and succeeded, upon the demise of his brother, John-Frederick, to the Dukedom of Hanover. This prince, a military commander, was made ninth Elector of the Empire, on the 9th of December, 1692, under the title of ELECTOR OF HANOVER, and GREAT MARSHAL of the Empire; not, however, without considerable opposition from six of the other electors, having the support only of the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburg. His Serene Highness married Sophia, daughter of Frederick, Elector Palatine and King of Bohemia, by the English Princess Elizabeth, daughter of King James the First, and had issue,

GEORGE-Lewis, who ascended the British Throne under the title of GEORGE THE FIRST, in right of his mother, the Electress Sophia, who had been declared successor to the Crown by the Act of Settlement, passed on the 6th of March, 1702. Her Serene Highness, who was esteemed a lady of great wit and sound judgment, died at Hanover on the 8th of June, 1714, about seven weeks prior to the decease of Queen Anne.
Frederic-Augustus, an Imperial General, killed in the war with the Turks in 1699.
Maximilian-William, General of the Venetians, who embraced the doctrines of the Church of Rome, and became the Emperor’s General; died in 1702.
Charles-Philip, Colonel of an Imperial regiment of Dragoons, killed by the Turks in 1699.
Christian, drowned in an engagement with the French in 1702.
Ernest-Augustus, Bishop of Osnaburg, created Duke of York and Albany, and Earl of I’later, on the 29th of June, 1716, and invested with the order of the Garter. He died unmarried in 1728.
Sophia-Charlotte, married in 1681, to Frederic, Elector of Brandenburg, afterwards King of Prussia, and died in 1705.

The Elector, Ernest-Augustus, died on the 23rd of January, 1698, and was succeeded in the Electorate by his eldest son,

GEORGE-Lewis, who became subsequently the

FIRST BRITISH MONARCH OF THE HOUSE OF GUELPH.

PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE.

ABERCORN.

ABERCORN, MARQUSS OF (James Hamilton), Viscount Hamilton, of Hamilton, Co. Leicestershire, in the peerage of England; Earl of Abercorn, Baron of Paisley, Abercorn, Hamilton, Mountcastle, and Kilpatrick, in the Peerage of Scotland; Viscount and Baron Strabane; Baron Mountcastle, in the peerage of Ireland: and a baronet of that part of the United Kingdom; & 12 Jan., 1811; s. to the honors of his family, as second Marquess, on the demise of his grandfather, 27 Jan., 1818. His Lordship m. 25 Oct., 1832, Lady Louisa-Jane Russell, 2nd dau. of John, present Duke of Bedford, and has two dau.

Note.—The Marquess of Abercorn and the Earl of Verulam are the only noblemen who enjoy peerages in the three kingdoms.

Lineage.

The pedigree of the Hamiltons is authentically deduced from Bernard, kinsman of Rollo, first Duke of Normandy, which Bernard was appointed governor, at the decease of Rollo, to his son and successor, Duke William, surnamed De Longue Espée, and from him (Bernard) descended Roger de Bellamont, (commonly called Beaumont,) Lord of Pont Audemer, one of the confidential advisers and companions (with his two sons) of William the Conqueror. This Roger terminated a splendid career by founding the Abbey of Preaux, in Normandy, and becoming a monk therein himself. Of his two sons, Henry, (the 2nd son) surnamed De Newburgh, rebuilt and fortified the Castle of Warwick, and was Earl of Warwick in 1070, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage); while Robert, the elder, having ably contributed, as commander of the right wing of William's army, to the triumph of Hastings, obtained large possessions in England from the Conqueror, (not fewer than ninety-one extensive manors became his:) and from HENRY I., in 1103, the Earldom of Leicester, with other considerable grants. This powerful noblemans d. 2 June, 1118, and was succeeded in the Earldom of Leicester by his second son ROBERT, whose eldest son and successor, ROBERT, third Earl of Leicester, had three sons; the youngest of whom, WILLIAM, surnamed de Hamilton, from the place of his birth, the manor of Hamilton, in Leicestershire, became founder of the illustrious house of Hamilton.

LORD CLAUND HAMILTON (third son of James, second Earl of Arran, and Duke of Chatelherault, by his wife, Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest daughter of James, third Earl of Morton,) was amongst the most zealous partisans of Mary, Queen of Scots, and for his fidelity obtained from James V., 29 July, 1507, a grant of the whole Barony of Paisley, with the dignity of Baron Paisley. His Lornship m. Margaret, only dau. of George, Lord Seton, and had four sons and one dau., viz.: 1. James, Master of Paisley, who was created, in 1603, Baron of Abercorn, with remainder to his heirs male, and assigns whatsoever, and advanced, on 19 July, 1606, as certain of the Scottish Honors into the hands of the Crown, and obtained a new grant thereof in favour of his niece the Lady Anne Hamilton, who in consequence inherited and became DUCHESS OF HAMILTON.

On the failure of heirs male in the elder branch of the Noble House of Hamilton, the male representation devolved, as stated above, upon the line of Lord Claud Hamilton, and the Earls of Abercorn, as lineal descendants of his Lordship have always claimed the dukedom of Chatelherault. In 1712, at the Peace of Utrecht, the claim was preferred by James, the 6th Earl; and it is inscribed on the monument erected in the family burying-ground at the Abbey of Paisley, amongst the honors and titles of James 6th Earl, the great grand uncle of the present Marquess of Abercorn.

For a more detailed narrative of this gallant soldier, refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage, under Beaumont, Earls of Leicester.
to the dignities of Baron Hamilton, Mowbray and Kilpatrick, and Earl of Abercorn. His Lordship was subsequently called to supply a vacancy in the House of Peers in Ireland by the same title; and having obtained a large grant of land in the barony of Strabane in that kingdom, erected there a school-house, with a school-school-house, and church, and founded a town of about 80 houses. His Lordship m. Marion, eldest dau. of Thomas, 5th Lord Boyl, and, dying 13th March, 1617, left issue:

1 JAMES, 2nd Earl, of whom presently, as successor of his grandfather.

2 Claud, who succeeded to the Irish estates, and on the resignation of his brother, 3rd Earl of Abercorn, was created 14 Aug., 1624, Lord Hamilton, Baron of Strabane, and Lord of the peerage of Ireland. His Lordship m. in 1622, Lady Jane, dau. of George, 1st Marquess of Huntingly, and dying in 1636, left (with a dau) two sons, James, who s. d. as Lord Strabolgie, and Sir Claud O'Neill against the parliamentarians, but was unsuccessful, declining in 1639. His Lordship d. a Roman Catholic.

GEORGE, 4th Lord Strabolgie, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Christopher Fagan, Esq., of Fethiern, Co. Dublin, and left, with other issue, CLAUD, Lord Stra- bolgie, of whom hereafter.

3 WILLIAM, Sir, d. e. p.

4 GREEN, (of Donalong, Co. Tyrone, and of Neag, of Ballynag, Co. Tipperary, a faithful adherent of the cause, who was rewarded with a baronetcy.

CLAUD, (Sir) Gentleman of the King's Privy Chamber, from whom lineally descended the present Lieut.-Gen. Claud Hamilton, Bart. of Woodbrooke.

GEORGE, (Sir) of Greenlaw and Roscrea, in Ireland, whose only daughter, Margaret, m. in 1666, with Acheson, Bart. a Lord of Session, and Secretary of State for Scotland, ancestor of the Lords Gofstron.

FRANCIS, who signalled himself under the bann of Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, was Gentleman in Ordinary of the Privy Chamber, to James and obtained in 1714, large grants of land in Ireland; he m. Sidney, dau. and heiress of Sir John Vaughan, a Privy Counsellor, and Governor of London-derry, by whom he had issue,

1 JAMES, of Manor Hamilton, who left two dau., one of whom, Jane, m. Sir W. Gore, of Manor Gore.

SINNAY, m. to Sir John Hamilton, of Castle Hume.

2 FERBRACE, killed in

3 MARSHALL, m. to William, 1st Marquess of Douglas.

CLAUD, 1st Lord Paisley, d. 1621, and was s. by his grandson

JAMES, 3rd Earl of Abercorn, as 2nd Baron of Paisley. This nobleman had been previously advanced to the peerage of Ireland 8 May, 1617, by the title of Lord Hamilton, Baron of Strabane, which honor, upon his Lordship's petition to CHARLES I., was transferred to his next brother, the Hon. Claud Hamilton. The Earl was excommunicated, by the general commission of the church of Scotland, in 1649, as a Roman Catholic, and obliged to depart his kingdom. He m. Caroline, dau. and heirress of Ger- vals, Lord Clifton, of Leighton Bromeswold, relict of Esme, Duke of Richmond and Lennox, and had issue:

1 JAMES, Lord Paisley, who predeceased him leaving an only dau.

WILLIAM, an officer in the army, killed in the wars in Germany, and d. a. p.

GEORGE, successor to the Peerage.

His Lordship was s. at his decease, by his only surviving son

GEORGE, 3rd Earl, who d. unmarried, and was s. by his cousin, (revert to Claud, 2nd son of James, master of Paisley, first Earl of Abercorn.)

CLAUD, Lord Strabolgie, as 4th Earl of Abercorn. This nobleman, attending James II., after the Revolution from France, was sworn of the privy-council upon his arrival in Dublin. His Lordship on the discomfiture of his Royal Master, at the Boyne, having embarked for France, lost his life in the voyage. In 1691, he had been outlawed, and forfeited all his estate and title of Lordship, but the Earldom of Abercorn devolved upon his brother.

CHARLES, 5th Earl, who, the late Lord's attaintder being reversed, succeeded likewise to the restored title and estate of Strabane; but, leaving no issue at his decease in 1701, the family honours and estates devolved on his kinsman, (revert to Sir George Hamilton, Bart. of Donalson, 4th son of James, first Earl of Abercorn.)

JAMES HAMILTON, who, in 1689, declined assuming the title of Earl at the decease of his grandfather, 1706, but was known as Captain Hamilton. This gentleman was in the military service and confidence of James II., but, espousing the cause of William, he arrayed himself against his royal master, and took a distinguished part at the siege of Londen- derry.

Successing to the Earldom of Abercorn, his Lordship, in virtue thereof, took his seat, in 1706, as a member of the Scottish Parliament. Ireland was, however, the usual place of his residence; and of that realm, 2 Dec., 1711, he created Baron Mountcaster and Viscount Strabane. The Earl m. 1689, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert Reading, Bart., of Abercorn, and had issue nine sons and four daughters. His Lordship d. 28 Nov., 1734, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

JAMES, 7th Earl, who m., in 1711, Anne, eldest dau. of Col. John Plumer, of Blakeswye, Co. Herts., and had with one dau., six sons, of whom

1 JAMES, became 8th Earl.

of Egypt: and he fell, in the moment of victory, at the celebrated battle of Alexandria. The following just tribute to his memory appeared in the London Gazette, from the pen of Lieut.-Gen. Hutchinson, afterwards Lord Hutchinson, the late Earl of Donoughmore, who succeeded to the command of the army. "Head quarters, camp, four miles from Alexandria, 3 April, 1801. We have sustained an irreparable loss in the person of our never sufficiently to be lamented Sir Ralph Abercromby, who was mortally wounded in the action, and died 28 March. I believe he was wounded early, but he concealed his situation from those about him, and continued in the field giving his orders with that coolness and perspicacity which had ever marked his character, till long after the action was over, when he fainting through weakness and loss of blood. Were it permitted for a soldier to regret any one who has fallen in the service of his country, I might be excused for lamenting him more than any other person; but it is some consolation to those who tenderly loved him that, as his life was honourable, so was his death glorious. His memory will be recorded in the annals of his country: will be sacred to every British soldier, and embalmed in the recollection of a grateful posterity." Sir Ralph married

Abercromby

Abercromby, Sir Robert, of Birkenbog, Co. Banff, and chief of the clan of Abercromby; b. 4 Feb., 1784, m. 22 Oct., 1816, Elizabeth, only child of Samuel Douglas, Esq. of Netherlaw, and has issue.
Sir Robert inherited the title as 5th Bart. at the decease of his father, 18 July, 1831.

Lineage.

The surname Abercornbr, like others of great antiquity, was assumed from a territory in the Co. Fife, and the possession of that property was esteemed the chief of the family, until the 17th century, when the chieftainship, by the extinction of that line of Abercromby, devolved upon Abercornbr, of Birkenbog, the head of which house,
James Abercornbr, of Pitmedden, Ley and Birkenbog
(the lineal descendant of Humphreus de Abercromby, son of Abercornbr of that Ilk), who obtained a charter of the lands of Harthill and Ardan from Robert I. was killed at Flodden, leaving by Margaret, his wife, dau.
of Sir James Ogilvie, of Findlist, a son and successor, George Abercornbr, of Pitmedden, in 1458, who m.
Christian, dau. of — Barclay, and was direct ancestor of Alexander Abercornbr, of Pitmedden, &c. who m.
Elizabeth, dau of Leslie of Pitcaple, and was s. by his son Alexander Abercornbr, of Pitmedden, Birkenbog, &c., who m. Margaret, dau. of William Leshe of Balquhan, and had two sons, namely,
James, his btr.
Alexander, Laird of Fetternear, who m. Jena, dau.
of John Seaton, of Newark, and had two sons, of whom the elder was created Lord Glassford by James VII. and the younger, Patrick, M. D., became known as "Author of the Martyr Achievements of the Scottish Nation."

The elder son,
James Abercornbr, of Birkenbog, was father of Alexander Abercornbr, of Birkenbog, Falconer to Charles I. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Bethune of Balfour, and had (with two younger sons, John, ancestor of the Abercornmbs of Glassaugh, and Walter, of Brroom Hills, and a dau., the wife of Robert Grant, of Dalvyle), a success-

1. Alexander Abercornbr, of Birkenbog, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 1657. Sir Alexander took so active a part against King Charles that an historian of the period characterized him as "a main covenanter." In May, 1645, he joined Major Urry, and was at the battle of Aukland; but Montrose retaliated, by quartering himself and some of his troops at Birkenbog. Sir Alexander m.
three, and had by his last wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Baird, of Auchmaddan, two sons, viz.,

James, his btr.

Alexander, ancestor of Lord Abercornbr.

Sir Alexander was s. by his eldest son,
1. Sir James. This gentleman m. 1645, Mary, dau.
of Arthur Gordon, Esq. of Straloch, representative of the family of Silverton, and had a numerous family. Sir James represented Co. Banff in the parliament of Scotlard, in 1664. He was s. at his decease, by his 3rd son, H. Sir Robert, who m. 1729, Helen, dau. of Alexander Abercornbr, of Tulibody, and had three sons and three daughters. Sir Robert d. 11 May, 1797, and was s. by his son, in the family. This gentleman left five sons and two daughters, and was A. by his eldest son.

Patrick Gordon, of Methilc and Haddo, who obtained charters under the great seal, from James III., in 1481, from James IV., in 1565, and from James V., in 1514, all of considerable tracts of land, besides acquisitions from Lord Sinclair, the Bishop of Aberdeen, and others; the whole of which were embodied in one charter. Sir Gordon lived a very prolonged period of life, and, dying in 1581, was A. by his grandson.

James Gordon, of Methilc and Haddo, whose property was considerably extended by grants from James V. In the beginning of Mary's troubles, this gentleman was one of those who signed the association in 1567 for the defence of the young prince James II. But, upon ascertaining that the Queen had been imposed upon, he joined the Earl of Huntley, her majesty's lieutenant in the North, adhered faithfully and firmly to her interests ever after, and obtained royal charters of several other lands and baronies. He m. Marjory, dau. of Sir Thomas Mentzer, of Pittodrie, Controller of Scotland; and, dying in 1589, was A. by his grandson.

His Lordship is the 16th Baron, and 2nd Earl.

Lineage.

The barony of Bergavenny, of Abergele, as it is now written, was originally a feudal dignity, and in the time of Henry III.

William, Lord Coalplu, having espoused Eva, dau. and co-heir of William, Lord Braose, acquired with that lady and lands of Bergavenny, and thus became its feudal lord. This nobleman is said to have been summoned to parliament as Lord Bergavenny, and to have been the first who had assumed the designation; but there is no record of the fact extant. He d. 1245, and was s. by his son,

GEORGE CANTLUPE, who d. s. p. 1272, when the castle and lands passed to the son of his sister, his nephew and heir.

JOHN HASTINGS, 2nd Lord Hastings, who then became feudal Lord of Bergavenny. This nobleman d. 1313, and was s. by his son,

LAWRENCE HASTINGS, 3rd Lord Hastings, who was raised to the dignity of Earl of Pembroke, in the 13th of Edw. III., and in that the feudal Barony of Bergavenny merged, until the decease of

JOHN HASTINGS, K.G., 3rd Earl of Pembroke, who d. without issue, in 1390, when the castle became extinct, and the lands and castle of Bergavenny passed, Collins says, by peresousi, but Dugdale alleges, by verteux d'un entoil, to

WILLIAM BEAUCHAMP, 4th son of Thomas, Earl of Warwick, who was summoned to parliament from 23 Nov., 1372, to 26 Aug., 1440, as "Wilhelmus Beauchamp, de Bergavenny." His Lordship, who was a K.G., d. 1440, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD BEAUCHAMP, Lord Bergavenny, who was created Earl of Worcestershire 1420. His Lordship m. Isabel de Spencer, sister and heir of Richard, eighth Baron Despencer, and Baron Burghersh, and d. 1421, leaving an only dau. and heiress,

THE LADY ELIZABETH BEAUCHAMP, who espoused

SIR EDWARD NEVILLE (4th surviving son of Ralph, first Earl of Westmorland, by his second wife, Joanne, dau. of John of Gaunt; and niece of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick and Salisbury), commonly called the King Maker. Refer to Buck's Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article, Neville, Earls of Westmorland. Sir Edward, thus becoming possessed of the castle and lands of Bergavenny, was summoned to parliament as BARON BERGAVENY, from 3 Sep., 1450 (26 Hen. VI.) to 25 Aug., 1472 (12 Ed. IV.). His Lordship was a staunch partizan of the House of York, and high in the confidence of Edw. IV. He had issue, by the heiress of the Beauchamps, Richard, who pre-deceased him.

GEORGE, his successor.

Alfred, m. d. Sir Thomas Grey, Knt. Katherine, m. to —— Irby, Esq.

His Lordship espoused, secondly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Robert Howard, Knt., and sister of John, Duke of Norfolk, by whom he had three surviving dau. He d. 18 Oct., in the 16 of Edw. IV., and was s. by his son,

SIR GEORGE NEVILLE (who had been knighted at the celebration held at Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471), as 2nd Lord Bergavenny of this family. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heiress of Sir Hugh Fenne, Knt., sub- treasurer of England; and had, with other issue, 1. GEORGE, his successor.

2. Edward, Viscount Waddington Park, in Kent, who was a military man of high reputation, and a Knight Bannerm in the time of Hen. VII. He was eventually, however, attainted as before 3rd, on the charge of "devising to maintain, promote, and advance, one Reginald Pole, late Dean of Exeter, enemy of the king, beyond the sea, and to deprive Edward Nevell, and many of the earls, dukes, and of. Andrew, Lord Windsor, and widow of Ralph, Lord Scrope, of Upsal, by whom he left (with three dau.,

His Lordship m. 2ndly, Elizabeth ———, and dying 20 Sept., 1492, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE NEVILLE, 3rd Lord Bergavenny. This nobleman was created a Knt. of the Bath in the reign of EDWARD V., was distinguished against the Cornish rebels, temp. HENRY VII., and became the companion in arms of HENRY VIII. In his French wars; from the last monarch he obtained the post, with many high and important commands, and was summoned to parliament in the 1st of the king's reign, as "George Nevile de Bergavenny, Chivaler." At the coronation of Queen Anne Boleyn, his Lordship claimed the office of chief larderer, and was allowed to officiate. He d. in the 27th of HENRY VIII., and was s. by his eldest son (by Mary dau. of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham),

HENRY, who was summoned to parliament, as 4th Lord Bergavenny, in the 3rd and 4th of EDWARD VI. This nobleman was the first to demand from the crown, in the name of Oxford in the chamber of presence, but obtained, in less than a month, special pardon for the offence. His Lordship was one of the peers who sat in judgment upon the unfortunate Mary of Scotland. He m. Frances, dau. of Thomas Manners Earl of Rutland, by whom he left at his decease 1 Feb., 1584-7, an only dau., ELIZABETH, the Lady of Sir Thomas Fane, Knt., who then claimed the barony of Bergavenny; but, after a long investigation, the House of Peers decided that the said barony belonged to the heirs male, whom he created by letters patent, the heir-female, granted, by letters patent, the baron of Le Despencer to her ladyship and her heirs; and her cousin (revert to Sir Edward Neville, second son of George, second baron),

EDWARD NEVILLE was confirmed in the barony of Bergavenny, as 5th Baron. His Lordship m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of Sir John Brome, of Halton, in Oxfordshire, by whom he had four sons. He espoused 2ndly, Grisold, dau. of Thomas Hughes, Esq. of Uphill, but by that Lady had no issue. He d. in 1600, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, as 6th Baron Bergavenny, summoned to parliament from 19 March, 1608, to 14 Nov., 1611. This Nobleman claimed, in the 2nd of JAMES I., the Earlom of Westmorland, but unsuccessfully. He m. Rachael, dau. of John Leonard, Esq. of Knoll, in Kent, and had, of issue,

v. Emily Caroline, m. 31 July, 1830, to Charles, youngest son of Henry, Earl of Bathurst.

His Lordship is one of the co-heirs to the barony of Williams of Thame. Lineage.

The earliest honour of this branch of the House of Lindsey being derived from the ancient family of Norris, of Norreys, we shall commence our genealogical detail with the Norris's, a family located at Speke, in Lancashire, long before the time of Henry III.

Sir Henry Norris, Knt., of Speke, had (with an elder son, William, ancestor of the Norreys of Speke and Davyhulme),

John Norris, of Bray, progenitor of Sir William Norris, of Pattenden, Co. Berks, who was one of the Knt. of the Body to Edward IV., and in the 2nd of Henry V. had a command in the king's army at the battle of St. Albans. He m. 1st, Isabel, dau. and heiress of Edmund Ingledeshort, and widow of John Neville, Marquess of Montagu, and had three surviving dau., Sir William m. 2ndly, Lady Jane De Vare, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford, and had a son,

Sir Edward Norreys, Knt., who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Francis, Viscount Lovel, by whom he had issue, John, Esquire of the Body to Henry VIII. m. Elizabeth, sister of Edmund, Lord Bray, but died without issue.

Henry (Sir).

The Younger sons,

Sir Henry Norris, succeeded Sir William Compton as Usher of the Black rod, 23 Oct., in the 16th of Henry VIII.

"to bear the same before the King, or his Lieutenant, at St. George's feast in the Castle of Windsor." He was also Esquire of the Body to the King, one of the Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, and Constable of Wallingford Castle. "But," says Dugdale, "upon 1 May, there being a solemn just held at Greenwich, wherein George Bullen, Viscount Rochford, was Chief Challenger, and this Henry, Principal Defendant; the King suddenly desisted thence, no cause for it being at all known which much discomposed the whole company, particularly the Queen. Some say, that she let fall her handkerchief, wherewith one (supposed her favourite) did wipe his face, and that it was perceived by the King. But whatever it was, the next morning, this Henry, with the Lord Rochford was conmitted to the tower, so likewise the Queen: who, when she came thither, fell upon her knees, beseeching God so to help her, as she was not guilty of what she was accused. Others were also committed, at that time, upon the same account. It is reported, that she seemed to exclaim against this Henry, as if he had accused her; yet said they should both die together. But so they did not: nor on the same day, but being tried before the Duke of Norfolk (high steward for that occasion) and found guilty by her peers. He also, with the rest, soon after, and beheaded on the 14th of that month. It is likewise reported, that the King greatly favoured this Henry, and that he much grieved that he was to die with the rest: also, that thereupon he offered pardon to him; conditionally, that he would confess that whereof he was accused: but he answered resolutely that, in his conscience, he thought the Queen guiltless of the objected crime, but, whether she were or not, he could not accuse her of anything, and that he had rather undergo a thousand deaths than betray the innocent. Upon relation whereof to the King, he cried out, Hang him up, Hang him up, then."

This unfortunate gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Thomas Lord Dacre of the South, and left issue:

Henry.
Mary, who m. 1st, Sir George Carew, and 2ndly, Sir Arthur Champernon.

The son,
Sir Henry Norris, of Ryctoe, Co. Oxford, Knt., was accredited ambassador to the court of France, in the 14th of Elizabeth, and, having fulfilled the duties of his mission to the entire satisfaction of his royal mistress, was summoned to parliament as "Henrico Norris de Ryctoe, Chir." from 8 May, 1572, to 24 Oct. 1577. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of John, Lord Williams of Thame, by whom he acquired the manor of Ryctoe, in Oxfordshire, and had issue:

William, Marshall of Berwick, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Richard Morrison, Knt., and, dying before his father, left an only child, Francis, who succeeded as 2nd Lord Norris.

John, (Sir) one of the most celebrated military character of the reign of Elizabeth.

Edward, (Sir) Governor of Ostend.

Henry.

Thomas, President of Munster, and sometime Justice of Ireland.

His Lordship d. in 1600, and was s. by his grandson,

Bridport Wray, who m. 1st, the Hon. Edward Backville, 2nd son of Edward, 4th Earl of Dorset; 2ndly, Montagu, 2nd Earl of Lindsey being his Lordship's 2nd wife, and had issue by Lord Lindsey, James Bertie, of whom hereafter as Lord Norris or Noreys.

Henry Bertie, a captain in the army.

Mary Bertie, m. to his Lordship's 2nd wife, Charles Dormer, 2nd Earl of Carnarvon, and d. s. p.

In the year that his Lordship had been advanced in the Peerage, he committed suicide, when the Earlom of Berkshire expired: but the barony of Norris, or Norreys, descended through his dau. to his great grandson,

The Honorable James Bertie, who was summoned to Parliament as Baron Noreys of Ryctoe, 27 Oct., 1675, (with precedence from 8 May, 1672,) and created Earl of Abingdon, 30 Nov. 1682. His Lordship was Lord-Lieutenant and customs officer of the Co. Oxford, before and after the Revolution, from 1674 to 1677, although he opposed the accession of the Prince of Orange to the throne, and subsequently the measures of the court. He m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. and heiress of Sir Henry Lee, of Ditchley, Co. Oxford, Bart., and had six sons and three daus. He espoused 2ndly, in 1686, Catharine, eldest dau., and co-heir of Sir Thomas Chamberlayne of Northbrooke, Bart. and widow of Richard, 4th Viscount Wenman, but by that lady had no issue. Devon, Knt., by whom w. 1677, he had an only son, Robert, his successor. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, dau. and co-heir of Wm. Lord Burghley, and widow of Henry de Vere, Earl of Oxford, but had no other issue. He d. Dec. 1680, and was s. by his son.

Robert, 2nd Earl of Elgin, Baron Bruce of Kinloss, and Baron Bruce of Whorlton, who, for the very essential services rendered to Charles I., and his Lordship’s active exertions in promoting the Restoration, was created in the English Peerage, March 18, 1663-4, Baron Bruce of Skelton, Co. York: Viscount Bruce, of Amphill, Co. Bedford; and Earl of Ailesbury, Co. Bucks. He m. Diana, dau. of the Hon. Robert, 1st Earl of Stamford, by whom he had eight sons and nine daughters. At the coronation of James II., 23 April, 1685, the Earl of Ailesbury was one of the lords who bore St. Edward's staff; and he was appointed, 30 July following, Lord Chamberlain of the Household. He d. 10 Oct., in the same year, and was s. by his eldest surviving son.

Thomas, 3rd Earl of Elgin & 2nd Earl of Ailesbury, who, m. 13 Aug., 1676, Elizabeth, only surviving dau. of Henry, Lord Beauchamp, son of William, Marquess of Hertford, (afterwards 2nd Duke of Somerset,) and at the death of her brother, William, 3rd Duke of Somerset, (26 Sept., 1671,) sole heir to Tottenham Park and Sennanver Forest in Wiltshire, beside divers estates in that and other counties. By this great heiress his Lordship had issue, Charles, his successor, who was summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as Lord Bruce.

Elizabeth, m. to George Bruenell, 3rd Earl of Cardigan, by whom she had four sons; the youngest of whom,

Thomas Bruenell, succeeded his uncle, the Earl of Ailesbury, in the Baronie of Bruce, of Tottenham.

The Earl of Ailesbury, although amongst the first to invite the Prince of Orange into England, as a mediator between the crown and the people, peremptorily refused to sanction his advancement to the throne, or to swear allegiance to the government of the Revolution. In 1684-5, during King William's absence in Ireland, Queen Mary issued a proclamation for the apprehension of his Lordship, with other suspected persons, but he was not then imprisoned, in a few years afterwards, however, being accused of attending meetings at the Old King's Head Tavern, in Leadenhall-street, for the restoration of King James, he was committed to the Tower, which so affected the tenants that she died in childbirth, 12 Jan., 1606-7; the earl was admitted to bail on 12 Feb., following. His Lordship obtained subsequently leave from King William to reside at Brussels, where he married Charlotte, Countess of Sanna, of the ancient and noble house of Argentau, in the duchy of Brabant, and by her, who d. July 23, 1710, had an only daughter, Charlotte Maria, who m. 1722, the Prince of Hone, and d. 1736, leaving several children.

His Lordship d. Nov. 1741, and was s. by his only surviving son, AILESBEURY.

Lineage.

Duncan de Carrick, proprietor of a considerable estate to the district of Carrick, Co. Ayr, was father of Nicol de Carrick, who granted the church of St. Cuthbert, at Maybole, to the monks of North Berwick, in 1229; from this Nicol descended.

Sir Gilbert de Carrick, 2nd, who obtained from Malcolm, Earl of Lennox, a charter of the lands of Kennedy, &.c. This Sir Gilbert was one of the prisoners taken at the battle of Durham in 1346.

About this time the family began to drop the ancient name of Carrick, and to assume that of Kennedy. Alexander Kennedy, clerk, Canon of Glasgow, Chancellor to John Baliol, King of Scotland, one of those who swore fealty to King Edward 1, in 1296, is the last name on record.

Sir John Kennedy, designated son of Sir Gilbert de Carrick, in many documents and writings, obtained a confirmatory charter from David II. of the lands of Castly, Co. Ayr, with other territorial possessions which he had acquired with his wife, Mary, dau. of Sir John Montgomery. He was s. by his son.

Sir Gilbert Kennedy, one of the hostages delivered to the English in 1357, for the liberation of David II. This gentleman was s. by his son,

Sir James Kennedy, who carried on the line of the family, and obtained from Robert II., a charter of confirmation of the barony of Carrick, to be Caput totius suprae, and to have the command of the military of Carrick, &c., the king's charter bears, "Delecto consanguineo suo Jacobo Kennedy Militii," &c. Sir James m. to the Lady Mary Stewart, widow of George Douglas, Earl of Angus, and dau. of Robert II., and got a confirmation from that monarch, then his father-in-law, of the lands and barony of Dalrymple, to himself and the Princess his wife, dated at Dundonald, in 1453. Sir James Kennedy was s. by his eldest son.

Sir Gilbert Kennedy, Knt., who was elevated to the Peersage of Scotland, in 1452, by the title of Lord Kennedy; and in 1460, was appointed one of the six Regent of the kingdom, during the minority of James III. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. of Herbert Lord Maxwell, by whom he had three sons and two daughters; the latter were Catherine, wife of Alex., 2nd Lord Montgomery. Matrose, the wife of Sir John Wallace, of Craige.

*This lady espoused, 3rdly, Sir William Graham, of Kincardine, and, 4thly, Sir William Edmonstone.

His Lordship was e. by his eldest son.

John, 2nd Lord, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander, Montgomery, by whom he had a son, David. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Lady Elizabeth Gordon, dau. of George, Earl of Huntly, and by her had three sons and two daughters. He was s. in 1584 by his eldest son.

David, 3rd Lord. This nobleman, being of the privy-council of James IV., was created, by that monarch, in 1542, Earl of Cassilis. His Lordship m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of William, Lord Bothwick, by whom he had three sons. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Thomas Boyd, Earl of Arran, relict of Alexander, Lord Forbes. The Earl fell at the battle of Flodden, and was s. by his son.

Gilbert, 2nd Earl, who m. Isabel, dau. of Archibald, Earl of Argyll, and was slain Dec. 1527, in endeavouring to rescue Jan. V. from the Earl of Angus. He was s. by his son.

Gilbert, 3rd Earl, who filled the high office of Lord Treasurer of Scotland, and assisted, as a deputed Scottish peer, in 1556, at the marriage of the ill-fated Mary Stuart with Francis, Dauphin of France. The ceremony was celebrated with great pomp, but, when the crown matrimonial was demanded, the Scotch deputies, in a respectful but firm manner, discovered a fixed resolution of consenting to nothing that tended to introduce any alteration in the order of succession to the crown. This opposition to the views of the French court gave great offence, and occasioned a report that poison was administered to the deputies, of whom Lord Fleming died at Paris, and the Earls of Cassilis, Argyll, and Bishop Reid, President of the Court of Session, at Dieppe, all three in one night, Nov. 28, 1556. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Alexander Kennedy, of Bagny, and had, with two daughters,

i. Gilbert, his successor.

ii. Thomas, of Culleen, who received the honour of knighthood at the coronation of James VI. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of David Macgill, of Crainton-Riddell, and had three sons. Sir Thomas fell a victim to revenge, being assassinated by Kennedy, of Drummurchie. His youngest son,

Sir Alexander Kennedy, of Culleen, eventually carried on the line of the family. He m. a dau. of Kenneth, Lord Amiillan, and had two sons. The younger,

Alexander, of Craigoch, was s. by his son,

John, of Kilkenzie, who m. Isabella, dau. of Alexander, Archibald, who inherited as 11th Earl of Cassilis. Sir Alexander was s. by his elder son,

John, 2nd Earl, Esq., of Culleen, who m. the Hon. Margaret Hamilton, eldest dau. of John, first Lord Bapeny, and was s. by his son,

Sir Archibald Kennedy, who

of Errol, and widow of Lord Kerr, and by that lady had, with a son, his successor, in 1609.

John, 7th Earl, who m. Susan, youngest dau. of James, 1st Duke of Hamilton, and, dying in 1701, was s. by his grandson.

John, 8th Earl, with whom the male issue of this branch of the family ceased. His Lordship dying 7 Aug., 1739, and leaving no children, the honours devolved upon

Sir Thomas Kennedy, 4th Bart. of Culleen. (Revert to descendants of Hon. Thomas Kennedy, 2nd son of Gilbert, 3rd Earl.) His Lordship did not, however, obtain them until the House of Lords had resolved, 27 Jan., 1792, that he had a right to the title and dignity of Earl of Cassilis, as heir male of David, 1st Earl; and to the title of Lord Kennedy, as heir of Gilbert 1st Lord." The Earl dying unmarried 30 Nov., 1775, was s. by his brother.

David, 10th Earl; at whose decease, 8 Dec., 1792, without issue, this branch became also extinct, and the honours passed to his kinsman, (revert to descendants of Hon. Thomas Kennedy, 2nd son of 3rd Earl.)

Archibald Kennedy, Capt. R.N., as 11th Earl of Cassilis. His Lordship, who was a distinguished officer, m. twice, and had by his 2nd wife, Anne, dau. of John Wattis, Esq., of New York,

i. Archibald, his successor.

ii. John.

iii. Robert, m. Miss Malcolm, and has, with three daughters, one son, John, Secretary of Legation, at Naples, m. 3 Aug., 1814, Maria, only dau. of Saml. Briggs, Esq.

iv. Anne, m. 1789, to William-Henry Digby, Esq. and d. 1820.

His Lordship d. 30 Dec., 1794.

Ainslie, Sir Robert-Sharpe, of Great Toggington, Co. Lincoln, esq. in the title as 2nd Bart, at the decease of his uncle, 22 July, 1812.

Binacre

George Ainslie, Esq., son of Alexander Ainslie, the descendant of an ancient Scottish family, having acquired a fortune by commerce at Bordeaux, returned to his native country, in 1772, and purchased the estate of Pitton, Co. Edinburgh. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Philip Austruther, Baronet, of Pitton, and d. 1781, leaving issue.

Philip, 5th, b. 1728, m. 1772, Eliza, 6th dau. of John, Lord Gray, and had (with four younger sons, who all d. unm. and five daus., two of whom married, viz. Margaret, m. to Francis Earl of Moray, and Louisa, wife of John Lee Allen, Esq. of Errol House, Co. Perth), 6 sons, George — Robert, Lieut. in the army, 6 b. 1774, m. 1802, Sophia, Charlotte, dau. of Charles, 6th Earl of Warr, Esq. of Welligore.

The antiquity of this family is indispensible; it ranks amongst the most ancient of North Britain, and can be deduced, by well authenticated evidence, from Dubhcan, son of Indechtraig, Thane of Angus, who flourished in the early part of the 1oth century. We shall begin, however, with a more recent progenitor.

GILCHRIST (or Gilles Cruisid, signifying the servant of Christ), the 5th Earl, or Thane, of Angus, in 1120, whose son,

GILBERT, or GILBER, Thane of Angus, fought in the battle of the Standard in 1314; was one of the hostages for the release of KING WILLIAM the LION from the English, in 1174; and d. 1180, leaving issue by a dau. of Earl Coypartick, sister of Waldeve, 1st Earl of Dunbar, inter alios, a third son,

GILBERT, a obtained from WILLIAM the LION the lands of POURIE, GOILVIE, and others, and thence assumed the surname of GOILVIE. From him lineally descended

SIR WALTER GOILVIE, of Wester Pouriie and Auchterhouse, Sheriff of Angus, who fell at Gaucisino, in 1353, leaving by Isabel, dau., and heiress of Sir Malcolm Ramsey of Auchterhouse, three sons, viz.

Alexander, (Sir) of Auchterhouse, whose great-grand- dau. and representative, MARGARET GOILVIE, m. 1469, James Stewart, Earl of Buchan, and conveyed to that nobleman the Barony of Auchterhouse and hereditary Sheriffalty of Angus. Thence descended CHRIȘTIAN-STEWART, Countess of Buchan, who m. Robert, 2nd son of Douglas of Lochierne, and d. 1580; her grand-dau. MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan, m. John Erkine, 2nd son of John, Earl of Mar, and d. 1620. One of their descendants, an Earl of Buchan, sold the lands and Barony of Auchterhouse, which, after passing through various hands, were re-purchased by John, 4th Earl of Airlie.

Walter, (Sir) of Lintrathen, of whom presently.

John, (Sir) who got from his elder brother a charter of the lands of Innerquharlty, dated 3 June, 1429, was ancestor of the Ogilvies of Innerquharlty.

The second son,

SIR WALTER GOILVIE, Knt., one of the Privy Council of JAMES I., was constituted, in 1425, LORD HIGH TRAJ- StERS OF SCOTLAND, Master of the Royal Household, in 1430, and a Commissioner for renewing the truce with England in the following year. Sir Walter attended the Princess Margaret upon her marriage with the Dau- phin, 1434, and, by an order from the King, erected the tower, or fortalice, of Erlo, or Airlie, into a royal castle. This eminent person, m. Isabel de Durward, heiress of Lin- trathen, by whom he acquired that Barony, and was sub- sequently designated therefrom. He d. 1440, leaving two sons; from the younger of whom, Sir Walter, sprang the Earls of Findlater and Setonfield, and the Lords of Banff; the elder,

SIR JOHN GOILVIE, Knt. of Lintrathen, was, s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES GOILVIE, Knt. of Airlie, Ambassador from Scotland to Denmark in 1491, who was elevated to the Peareage of Scotland, on 26 April, 1491, by the title of LORD GOILVIE, of Airlie. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth Kennedy, of the Cassils family, and had a son, JOHN, his suc- cessor. He espoused, 2ndly, Lady Mary Douglas, dau. of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus, and had by her,

U n i c e n g e.

A N D R O N J O S T Y A N K E P P E L, Lord of Yontz, accompanied the Prince of Orange in 1686, and, on the establishment of his master upon the throne of England, was created 10 Feb., 1685-6, Baron Ashford, of Ashford, Co. Kent; Viscount Burg, Co. Paleste of Lancaster; and Earl of Albemarle, a town and territory in the Duchy of Normandy. The Earl was subsequently honored with the garter.

About this time (says Burnet) the king set up a new favorite, Keppel, a gentleman of Guelder, who was this nobleman a foil to the highest degree of favor that any person had ever obtained at the king's court. As it was now (1695) made Earl of Albemarle, and soon after Knight of the Garter, and, by a quick and unaccountable progress, he seemed to have engrossed the royal favor so entirely that he disposed of every thing that was in the king's power. He was a cheerful young man, that had the art to please, but was so much given up to his own pleasure that he could scarce submit to the attendance and drudgery that was necessary to maintain his post. He had never been dignified himself in any thing. He was not cold nor dry, as the Earl of Portland was thought to be; who seemed to have the art of creating many enemies to himself, and not one friend; but the Earl of Albemarle had all the arts of a court, was civil to all, and procured many favors.

ALLEN.

ALLEEN, Viscount (Joshua-William Allen), Baron Allen of Stillorgan, Co. Dublin, in the Peerage of Ireland; s. to the title, as 6th Viscount, at the decease of his father, 1 Feb., 1816. His Lordship is a military officer, and has served under the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsula.

Lineage.

John Allen, the progenitor of this noble family in Ireland, settled in that kingdom some time in the latter end of the reign of Elizabeth. He came from Holland to Dublin, as factor for the Dutch merchants, (the family had emigrated from England to Holland in 1580,) and, beside amassing a very large fortune, distinguished himself by a refined taste in architecture. He was s. by his son, Sir Joshua Allen, Knt., an eminent and opulent merchant of Dublin, who served the office of Lord Mayor of that city in 1673, and received the honor of knighthood. Sir Joshua completed the house at Mullynahack, (then near Dublin,) begun by his father, called, "Allen's Court." He m. Mary, dau. of Mr. Wybrow, Co. ALVANLEY.

ALVANLEY, Baron (William Arden), of Alvanley, Co. Chester; b. 20 Feb., 1789; s. to the title, as 2nd Baron, at the decease of his father, Liturage.

"The elder branch of the Arderne, (says Lysons, in his Cheshire,) "whose chief seat was at Aldford, where they had a castle, because extinct in the principal line, by the death of Walkeline Arderne, in or about the reign of Richard II. The present John Arden, Esq., for so the family have of late triumphed the name, is descended from Sir John Arden, a younger brother of Walkeline, beforementioned, whose posterity settled in the parish of Stockport, in the 15th century: and he is also the representative of the Barons of Mountall, and of the ancient family of the Dunes, of Uttington and Fliassards. A younger branch of the Arderne settled at Alderley, about the beginning of the reign of Edward III, and, after a few descents, in a female heir, who married into the Weaver family, whose heiress married the ancestor of Sir J. T. Stanley, Bart. The Ardenes of Leicestershire were great great-grandchildren of a younger son of Ralph Arden, of Harden, in the 15th century."

The abovemented

Sir Ralph Arden, of Harden, d. about 1429, leaving, by the daughter of Stanley of Hooton, two sons, the younger, Thomas, was the progenitor of the Ardenes of Leicestershire, and the elder, John Arden, inherited Harden. From this gentleman descended, through several generations,

Sir John Arden, Knt., whose grandson, John Arden, Esq., of Arden, Co. Chester, m. Mary dau. of Cuthbert Peppar, Esq. of Pepper Hall, Co. York, and heiress of her brother, Preston Pepper, Esq., and had two sons, viz. John, of Harden, and Richard-Pepper Arden, Esq., who was appointed Solicitor-General 1763. Attorney-General in 1764, Master of the Rolls in 1768, and constituted Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in 1794, when he was elevated to the Peersage (22 May, 1794), in the dignity of Baron Alvanley, 8th of Alvanley Co. Chester. His Lordship m. 1784, Anne-Dorothea, eldest dau. of Richard-Wiliam-Boodle, Esq., and sister of Edward, Lord Skelmorlie: by whom he left issue, under the command of His Royal Highness the late Duke of York, in the early part of the first war with revolutionized France, as Lieut.-Col. of a regiment of infantry; from which exchanging into the hussars, he subsequently distinguished himself, during Sir John Moore's campaign, as the gallant leader of the cavalry brigade in the Spanish peninsula; and at the close of the sanguinary struggle contributed mainly, at the head of the united British, Hanoverian, and Belgian horse, to the glorious result of Waterloo; in that memorable conflict, at nearly the close of the battle, his Lordship received a wound on his right knee, which rendered amputation eventually necessary. The Marquess has been twice Lord Lieut. of Ireland.

Lineage.

William Paget, one of the Serjeants-at-Mace of the City of London, left, with other children, William Paget, who, after receiving the rudiments of education under the famous Lily, in St. Paul's School, and passing through the University of Cambridge, entered the family of the Savile Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, and was thence introduced into political life. In the 23rd Henry VIII., Paget went into France to obtain the millions of the learned in that kingdom, touching his royal master's divorce from Queen Katherine; and therefore, during the remainder of Henry's reign, we find him actively and confidentially employed, often as a diplomatist upon secret and important missions: and at one time he filled the office of Secretary of State. He received the honor of knighthood, and had a legacy of £300 from the King, who constituted him one of his executors, and of the Council to Edward VI. Sir William Paget subsequently formed a close alliance with the Protector, Somerset, and thus retained the opportunity of devoting his great abilities to the services of the State. On 14 Feb., 1546-7, he was elected a Knight of the Garter, and he was summoned to parliament as Baron Paget of Beauchestet, Co. Stafford, 23 Jan., 1552. In the government of the Protector he took a prominent part, and participated in the downfall of his patron. He was committed to the Tower, fined £2,000 by the Star Chamber, and deposed of the insignia of the Garter. His disgrace was not, however, of endurance—within a short time he obtained his liberty, with a general pardon for all offenses, and a remission of the debt due to the Crown. On the death of Edward he espoused the cause of Mary, and after her ascension to the throne was sworn of the Privy Council. He had also a restoration of the Garter, and he obtained several important grants from her Majesty. He was afterwards appointed Lord Privy Seal. When Elizabeth succeeded, in 1558, he retired from public life at his own request; and Camden informs us that her Majesty "retained an affection and value for him, though he was a strict zealot of the Romish church." His Lordship m. Anne, daughter and heir of Henry Preston, Esq., and, dying in 1563, was by his eldest son.

Elizabeth Paget, who m. Sir Henry Lee, Knt., but had no issue. There is some confusion as to this lady's having inherited the Barony. Collins says she died 29 June, 1571; if so, her uncle enjoyed the dignity before her decease; for we find that gentleman, the family of Stephen Paget, in 1579, summoned to parliament as Baron Paget, on the 4th of the preceding April. In the 27th of Elizabeth, this nobleman, being zealously attached to the Roman religion, and letters having been intercepted which betrayed good feelings towards the Queen of Scots, he deemed it advisable, on the apprehension of Francis Throg-

Anstruther. A princely family, whose chief took the style of de Candela Dominus de Anstruther, was settled in Fife in the early and obscure periods of Scottish History. In the time of Malcolm IV. (who ascended in 1132) there are authenticated records of William de Candela, who was Lord of Anstruther; his grandson and lineal heir having adopted the designation of his lands as his surname, became

Earl of Anstruther, as appears by a deed of 1281, wherein he is so designated. The 10th chief in descent from this Henry, Sir James Anstruther, was appointed Harbours on the Menai, in 1825, and in seven years after was made one of the Masters of the Royal Household.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the very ancient family of Anstruther, of Anstruther, springing from

1. Robert Anstruther, Esq. (3d son of Sir Philip Anstruther, of Anstruther) who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1804. Sir Robert m. thrice: 1st, Miss Kinness, an heiress, who d. without issue; 2ndly, Jean-Mumthirt Wren, an heiress also, whom he had six sons and two daus.; and 3rdly, Marion, dau. of Sir William Free-ton of Yorkshire, by whom he had one son and two daus. Sir Robert was s. at his decease by his eldest son, Sir Philip. This gentleman m. Catharina, only dau. of Lord Alexander Hay, of Spott, son of John, 1st Marquis of Tweeddale, and has six sons and four daus., viz. Robert; Alexander; John; William; Philip; James; Jean; Christian, m. to James Lumsden, Esq.; and Catharine. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son.

11. Sir Robert, b. 21 April, 1773, who m. Lady Janet Erskine, youngest dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Kellie, by Jauet, his Countess, dau. of the celebrated Dr. Archibald Pitcairn, and had three sons and three daus., viz., Robert; Alexander, Chief Justice of Madras; Philip; Jean, m. to Sir T. Strange; Catharine, and Elizabeth, m. to Col. Campbell, of Stonefield. Robert, the eldest son, b. 3 Mar. 1768, entered at a very early period of life into the Guards, and, in 1793, accompanied his regiment into Holland. In 1796, he joined the Austrian army in the Brigan, under the Archduke Charles, then at war with France; and, in one of the victories gained by the Austrians, received a wound in the left side. In 1797, he returned home, purchased a company in the 3rd Guards, and was appointed deputy Quarter-Master-General. In 1798, he went to Portugal against the Spanish, under the command of Lord Abercrombie, and having been severely wounded in the face, was returned in the spring of the ensuing year, and, in the autumn of the same year, embarked with the expedition to the Heider. In 1800, Capt. Anstruther went to Egypt, as Quarter-Master-General to the army, under the command of Gen. Sir John, his brother, and the order of the Crescent was conferred upon him by the Turkish monarch. In 1802, he was appointed Adj.-Gen. in Ireland. In 1806, he went to Portugal as Brig.-Gen., and distinguished himself at the celebrated battle of Vimiera. In the subsequently disastrous campaign in Spain, under the gallant Sir John Moore, Gen. Anstruther commanded the rear guard of the army, which he brought safely into Corunna, on the night of 12 Jan.: but survived only one day the extraordinary exertions he had made, and the fatigue he had endured during the march. He d. 14 Jan., 1809, and lies interred in the north-east bastion of the citadel of Corunna. Sir John Moore, by his own desire, was buried by the side of the General. With very superior abilities in his profession, both military and diplomatic, Gen. Anstruther combined the advantages of being a profound scholar, an elegant writer, and a very accomplished gentleman. He m. 16 Mar., 1799, Charlotte-Lucy, only dau. of Col. Lirragh.

The family of Campbell is one of the most distinguished in Scotland, and its head, AROVLL, in feudal times, was perhaps the most powerful subject in the kingdom. Eight centuries ago, Gillespich Campbell acquired, by marriage with an heiress, the Lordship of Lochow, in Argyllshire, and from him descended SIR COLIN CAMPBELL of Lochow, who, distinguishing himself as well by the great acquisitions he had made in his estate, as by his warlike actions, obtained the surname of More or Great; and from him the chief of this illustrious family is in the Gaelic styled, to this day, MacCallum Mor. He was knighted by Alexander III., 1299, and was one of the nominees, 1291, on the part of Robert Bruce, in the contest for the Crown of Scotland. This renowned and warlike chief was slain in a conflict with his powerful neighbour, the Lord of Lorn, at a place called the Sow's Back, and of a great obelisk is erected over his grave. This event occasioned continued feuds for a series of years, between the houses of Lochow and Lorn, which terminated at last by the marriage of the 1st Earl of Argyll with the heiress of Lorn. Sir Colin m. a lady of the name of St. Clark, and had issue,

Niel, his successor,

Donald, progenitor of the Campbells of Loudoun.

Dugald, (Sir) who swore fealty to Edward I. in 1299, but afterwards joined Robert Bruce.

Arthur, who, having sworn fidelity with his brother to King Edward, like him afterwards joined Robert Bruce, from whom he obtained two charters of the lands of Dunstaffnage, with the manors thereunto.

Duncan, likewise a supporter of the Bruce.

Sir Cello was, by his eldest son, Sir Niel Campbell, who was knighted by Alexander III., towards the close of his reign. He swore fealty, with his brothers, in 1299, to King Edward, and afterwards joining Robert Bruce, adhered to him in prosperity and adversity, and fought by his side in almost every field from the battle of Methven to that of Bannockburn. The king had so high a sense of his services that he gave him his sister Lady Mary Bruce in marriage, and granted to him and his said wife, and John, their son, all the lands which belonged to David de Strathgie, Earl of Atholl. When the triumph of Bannockburn had decided the independence of Scotland, Sir Niel Campbell was one of the great Barons in the parliament which met at Ayr, 24 April, 1313, and fixed the succession to the crown. By the Lady Mary Bruce he had these sons, viz.,

Colin.

John, (Sir) of Mounlokin, who upon the forfeiture of David de Strathgie, 11th Earl of Atholl, was advanced to that dignity. He fell at the battle of Halidon-hill, 1333; and dying without issue, the Earldom of Atholl reverted to the crown.

Duncan of Menstrie.

Sir Niel d. 1316, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir Colin Campbell, of Lochow, who accompanied the king into Ireland in 1316, to assist in placing his brother, Edward Bruce, upon the throne of that kingdom. The Scotch forces, however, were through a wound received by Sir Niel, from Robert Bruce, issued positive orders to his soldiers to march in order of battle, and on no pretence to leave their ranks. It happened that two English yeomen discharged their arrows at Sir Colin, who rode off at full speed to avenge the insult. The king followed and struck his nephew so violently with his truncheon, that he was all but unhorsed, exclaiming, "Return, your disobedience might have brought us all into Jeopardy." Sir Colin, in 1334, assisted the steward of Scotland in the recovery of the Castle of Devenon from the English, which gave the first turn of fortune in favor of King David Bruce, and he was in consequence appointed hereditary governor of that fortress. He m. a lady of the House of Lennox and had three sons and a daughter, viz.,

Archibald.

John, whose issue derive the Campbells of Barbreck, Succoth and others. (See Buras's History of the Commoners, Vol. II. p. 583.)

Dugald.

Alicia m. to Alan Lauder, of Hatten.

He d. 1340, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir Archibald, of Gillespie, Campbell, of Lochow, who was s. by his son,

Sir Colin Campbell, of Lochow, who m. Margaret, 2nd dau. of Sir John Drummond, of Stobhall, and sister of n of Annabel, queen consort of Robert III., by whom he had issue, viz.,

Duncan.

Colin, of Ardkinglass.

Donald, Christian, m. to Duncan MacFalle of Arrochar.

Sir Colin was s. at his decease by his eldest son, Sir Duncan Campbell, of Lochow, who assumed the designation of Argyll, and was raised to the dignity of a Lord of Parliament by James V., in 1465, by the title of Lord Campbell, heving, in the previous reign, been of the privy council, and been appointed the king's justiciary and Lord Lieut. of the Co. Argyll. His Lordship m. 1st, Lady Marjory Stewart, dau. of Robert, Duke of Albany, Reay of Scotland, and had three sons, viz.,

Celestine, who d. young.

Archibald, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Carnwath; and dying before his father, left a son, Colin, who s. his grandfather.

Colin, (Sir) ancestor of the Campbells of Glenorchy, now Marquesses of Bute.

Lord Campbell, m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Blair, natural son of Robert III., and had three more sons. His Lordship was one of the hostages for the redemption of James I., in 1424, and his annual revenue at that time was stated to be fifteen hundred marks, a larger income then that of any other of the hostages. He d. at the close of the year 1433, and was s. by his grandson,

Colin, 2nd Lord Campbell, who was created Earl of Argyll 1457. His Lordship was appointed Master of the King's Household, in 1464; and, after filling several most important public situations, as Ambassador to the courts of England and France, justiciary, &c. he was eventually made LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR of SCOTLAND. He m. Isabel Stewart, eldest dau. and co-heiress of John, Lord of Lorn, and, in consequence, added the gallery to his achievement, with the designation of Lord Lorn to his other titles. Of this marriage there were two sons and seven daus. The Earl d. 15 May, 1548, and was s. by his elder son, Archibald, 2nd Earl of Argyll, who fell in the command of the Vanguard at the celebrated field of Fliedden, on 9 Sept., 1513, leaving with a numerous family beside by Elizabeth, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox, his successor.

Colin, 3rd Earl of Argyll. This nobleman was appointed, 1520, Lieutenant of the Borders, Warden of the Marches, hereditary Sheriff of Argyllshire, Justice-General of Scotland, and Master of the King's Household. His Lordship m. Lady Jane Gordon, dau. of Alexander Earl of Hunting, and, dying in 1533, was s. by his eldest son,

Archibald, 4th Earl. This nobleman was the first person of importance in Scotland who embraced the Protestant religion, and he became subsequently a strenuous advocate for the Reformation. He m. 1st Helen, dau. of James, Earl of Arran, and had one son,

Archibald, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of William Cume, Earl of Menteith, by whom he had, (with two daus.,) Colin, who succeeded as 5th Earl.

His Lordship m. 1558, and was s. by his eldest son,

Archibald, 5th Earl, who, at the breaking out of the civil wars in Scotland, espoused the cause of Queen Mary, and commanded her Majesty's forces at the battle of Langside, 1569. After the assassination of the Regent Moray, the Earl of Argyll, and other noblemen of the Queen's party, was appointed by Alexander, 3d Earl, and his Lordship was then constituted, with the Duke of Chatelherault and the Earl of Hunting, her Majesty's Lieu tenant in Scotland. When the Regent Lennox fell in 1571, also by assassination, he was candidate for the Regency, but, not being elected, succeeded his brother as 6th Earl.

* His 2nd son, John, was ancestor of the Campbells, of Lochell and his 3rd, Alexander, became Dean of Morsy. and Anne, of James V. (this lady was at supper with her sister Queen Mary, when Rizzio was murdered, 9 March, 1565; and she stood sponsor, as proxy for Elizabeth of England, at the baptism of James VI.) The Earl m. Lady Johanna Caunchingham, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Glescaurn, but had no issue. He d. in 1579, when the regent gentlemen devolved upon his half-brother, Sir Colin Campbell, of Hoquaham, as 6th Earl, who was sworn of the Privy Council, in 1577, and appointed Lord-High-Chancellor of Scotland in two years afterwards; by his 2nd wife, Agnes, dau. of William Keith, Earl Marischal, and widow of James, Earl of Moray, he had two sons.

Archibald, his successor.

Colin, of Lamlie, created a Barl.

His Lordship d. 1584, and was s. by his elder son,

Archibald, 7th Earl, a military officer of high reputation, who, after distinguishing himself in arms at home, entered the service of Philip III. of Spain, and obtained renown in the wars of that monarch against the States of Holland. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of William, Earl of Morton, by whom he had, with four daughters,

Archibald, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir William Cornwallis of Brome, and had, with a dau., another son, James, created Earl of Irvine 1642, who d. a.p. when the dignity expired.

The Earl d. 1638, and was s. by his elder son,

Archibald, 8th Earl, who was advanced to the Marquessate of Argyll, by letters patent, dated 15 Nov., 1641. This nobleman resigned into the hands of Charles I. the jurisdiction of all Scotland, which had been in his family for several ages, reserving only to himself and his heirs the jurisdiction of the Western Isles, and of Argyll, and wherever else he had lands in Scotland, which arrangements were ratified by act of parliament, in 1633. His Lordship, during the civil war, was a most zealous and active supporter of the royal cause, and at the King's coronation at Scone, 1 Jan., 1650-1, had the honor of placing the crown upon his Majesty's head. After the defeat of the Royalists at Worcester, Argyll retired to Inverness, where he continued to act as ensign for a whole year, until, falling sick, he was surprised by Gen. Dean, and brought prisoner to Edinburgh. Having received orders from Gen. Monk to attend a Privy Council, his Lordship was thus entreated to be present at the ceremony of the coronation of Lord Protector. On the restoration of the monarchy, the Marquess immediately repaired to London, for the purpose of congratulating the King; but his Majesty, refusing to see him, ordered his committal to the Tower, where he remained until Dec. following, when he was sent back to Scotland by sea, and narrowly escaped shipwreck. He was soon afterwards tried for high treason and condemned to death, 25 May, 1651. To two days subsequently, he wrote a long letter to the King, vindicating his memory, and imploring protection for his poor wife and family; slaid by noon, with his friends with great cheerfulness; and was accompanied by several of the nobility to the scaffold: where, after an interval of devotion, his head was strick off by the maiden at the market-cross of Edinburgh. He had m. Margaret, dau. of William, Earl of Morton, and was s. by the elder of two sons.

Archibald, 9th Earl, who, in 1653, was restored to the estate and honors of his family, as Earl of Argyll. This nobleman, for refusing to subscribe to the Test Act, was found guilty of high treason 19 Dec., 1681, and sentenced to death, but effected his escape from the Castle of Edinburgh, under the disguise of a page, holding up the train of Lady Sophia Lindsay his step-daughter, and departed the kingdom: he was subsequently taken, in an abortive attempt to invade Scotland, in the beginning of the reign of James II., and executed at the same place, and in the same manner as his father, 30 June, 1685.

His Lordship m. 1st, Mary, dau. of James, 2nd Earl of Moray, by whom he left, with other issue,

1. Archibald, his successor.

ii. John, of Mameore, M.P. for Argyshire, 1700; m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, 4th Lord Elphinstone, and, dying 1736, left, with other children, John, who inherited as 4th Duke of Argyll.

iii. Charles, M.P. for Co. Argyll, 1741, d. the same year unmarried.

iv. Neil, was s.

The Earl was s. by his eldest son,

Archibald, who was acknowledged Earl of Argyll by the Convention of Estates in Scotland, anno 1685, before the reversal of the attainder against his father, and was created, by the new monarch, after the Revolution, in recompense for the services he had rendered in promoting that measure (23 June, 1701), Lord Inverary, Milt. Mure., and Tyr., Viscount of Lochaven and Glenell; Earl of Campbell and Cowal; Marquess of Kiiing and Lenor; and Duke of Argyll. His Grace m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Lyde, of Minard, by his Elizabeth, Countess of Dysart and Duchess of Lauderdale, and left two sons and a dau. He d. 29 Sept., 1713, and was s. by his eldest son,

John, 2nd Duke: b. 1715. This nobleman, a great military commander, was created a British Peer by Queen Annu, 29 Nov., 1760, as Baron Chatham and Earl of Green-wich, and advanced to the Dukedom of Greenwich 13 April, 1719. In 1733-6, his Grace was constituted Field-Marshal of all his Majesty's forces. Not less distinguished in the council than the field, the Duke is thus immortalized by Pope:—

"Argyll, the state's whole thunder born to wield,
And shake alike the senate and the sea."*

His Grace m. 1st, Mary, dau. of John Brown, Esq., but by that lady had no issue: he m. 2ndly, Jane, one of the Maids of Honor to Queen Anna, dau. of Thomas Warburton, Esq. of Winnington, Co. Cheshire, and had five daughters, viz.:

1. Caroline, m. 1st, Frances, Earl of Dalkeith, and 2ndly, the Rt. Hon. Charles Townshend. This lady was created Baroness Greenwich, 29 Aug., 1767. (See Hone, Erskine and Dalmat Poree.)

ii. Anne, m. William Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, but d. a.p.

iii. James, yong.

iv. Elizabeth, m. the Rt. Hon. James-Stewart Mackenzie, brother of John, Earl of Bute.

v. Mary, m. Viscount Cole, heir apparent of Thomas, Earl of Leicester, but d. a.p.

His Grace d. Oct., 1743, and, leaving no male issue, his English honors ceased, while those of Scotland devolved upon his brother,

Archibald, 3rd Duke of Argyll, who had been created previously (1746) a Scottish Peer, by the titles Lord Orrery, Dunoon, and Arve, and Viscount and Earl of Eday. His Grace was at the head of the Government of Scotland. He m. Miss Whitefield, but, dying without issue, 15 April, 1761, his own immediate honors became extinct, while those of his family descended to his cousin,

John, 4th Duke, K.T. (revert to the Hon. John Campbel of Mamore, 2nd son of Archibald, 9th Earl.) This nobleman m. 1720, Mary, dau. of John, 2nd Lord Bcllenden, and had five children, viz.:

Arran, Earl of (Arthur-Saunders Gore), Viscount Sudley of Castle Gore, Baron Saunders, of Deepa, Co. Wexford, in the Peerage of Ireland, and a Bart., of the same part of the United Kingdom; b. 20 July, 1761; m. Dec., 1787, Mary, eldest dau. and co-heiress of the late Sir John Tyrell, Bart. of Heron Hall, Essex, which lady d. 31 Aug., 1822. His Lordship is to the honours, as 3rd Earl, at the decease of his father, 8 Oct., 1809.

Lineage.

This noble family deduces from

Gerard Gore, an alderman of the city of London at the close of the 18th century, who m. Helen, dau. of John Davenant, Esq. of Davenant-Land, in Essex, and had eight sons, of whom,

Richard, the eldest, M.P. for London, d. leaving seven daughters.

John, (Sir) the 4th son, was Lord Mayor of London, 1824; from this gentleman derives the present William Gore-Langton, Esq. of Newton Park. (See Burke's Peerages.)

Paul, (Sir)

The youngest son.

Paul Gore, Capt. of a troop of Horse, went over to Ireland with his regiment in the reign of Elizabeth, and obtaining large grants of land, which he conveyed into a manor designated Merrow-Gore, settled there. Capt. Gore, m. Isabella, dau. of Francis Wickrigh, Esq., and niece of Thomas, Earl of Stratford, by whom he had issue,

Ralph, ancestor of the extinct house of Gore, Earl of Ross, and of the present Sir Ralph Gore, Bart., and Arthur Gore, Esq. of Newtown Gore, Co. Mayo, who was created a Bart. of Ireland, 10 April, 1662. Sir Arthur m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir George St. George, of Carrick, Co. Letirini, Bart., and had, with seven dau., four sons, viz.

I. Paul, who m., 1684, Anne, eldest dau. of Sir John Gore, Knt. of Saccusole, Co. Lorth, and dying before his father, 20 Oct., 1685, left issue,

A. Arthur, successor to his grandfather,

B. Peter Mahon, Dean of St. Patrick, R. N. D. Dublin.

II. Arthur, m. ——, widow of — Baynes, Esq., d. 1693, leaving a son, Arthur.

III. William, of Woodford, Co. Leitrim, M.P. for that county, m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Newcomen, Bart., and had, with a dau. Sarah, who m. Sir Arthur Newcomen, of Moss-town, Bart.: two sons, viz.

1. William, of Woodford, M.P. who, dying without issue, left his estates to his nephew,

2. Robert, m. Letitia, dau. of Henry Brooke, Esq. of Colebrooke, Co. Fermanagh, and had a son, William Gore, Esq., M.P., for the Co. Leitrim, who succeeded to his noble estates, and m. Frances-Jane Gore, daughter and heiress of Ralph Gore, Esq. of Barnumount, Co. Kilkenny, M. P., and widow of Sir Haylocke Evans-Morris, Bart., Jiy whom he left a son, William, who, m. 1813, Mary Jane, only dau. and heiress of Owen Ormonsey, Esq., of Willowbrook, Co. Sligo, and of Porthkingle, in Shropshire. M. of Gore, on his marriage, assumed the additional surname and armorial Ormonsey. Mrs. Ormonsey-Gore represents the ancient noble family of Godolphin, and has inherited such portions of the Godolphin property as, being purchased after the last Lord Godolphin made his will, did not pass under it to the Duke of Leeds. See Burke's History of the Commons.

IV. George, an eminent lawyer, who filled the office of Attorney-Gen. in Ireland, and was subsequently one of the Judges of the Court of Common pleas there. He m. Bridget, younger dau., and at length heiress, of John Sanny, Esq., of Teneriff, Co. Longford, and had with a dau., Bridget, m. to Catta Harman, A.M. Denn of Waterford; three sons, viz.

1. John, M.P. for the Co. Longford, d. 1798,

2. John, Barrister-at-law, who became Chief-Jus- tice of the Court of King's Bench in Ireland, and was advanced to the Peerage of that kingdom, 17 Jan., 1766, as Baron Arrowsmith, Co. Longford. His Lordship was chosen Speaker of the House of Lords, 1767, on the death of Lord Chancellor Bown. He m. Frances, 2nd dau. of Richard, Viscount Pow.

3. Henry, M.P. for Co. Longford, and a Lieut.-Col. in the army, m. 1764, Miss Smith, only dau. of Siffin- fington Smith, Esq., but had no issue. This gentleman had the Baronage of Arrowsmith revived in his favor, but it expired again at his decease.

Sir Arthur Gore was a. by his grandson,

Sir Arthur, M.P. for the Co. Longford, 1727, who m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Maurice Annedale, Esq. of Little Bath, Co. Kildare, and had four sons and four daughters. He d. 10 Feb., 1741, and was a. by his eldest son,

Sir Arthur, created, 15 Aug., 1728, Baron Saunders of Deepa, Co. Wexford, and Viscount Sudley, of Castle Gore; and 12 April, 1762, Earl of Arran and Islay, Co. Galway. His Lordship m. 1736, Jane, heiress of H. Saunders, Esq. of Saunders Court, and heir of William Worth, Esq., and dying 17 April, 1753, was a. by his eldest son, Arthur-Saunders, K. P., 2nd Earl, b. 25 July, 1734; m. 24 July, 1750, Catherine, only dau. of William, Viscount Glenrowan, by whom (who d. 1770) he had issue,

I. Arthur-Saunders, present Earl.

II. William-John, Col. in the army, m. 1758, Caroline, dau. of Sir Thomas-Phym Hailes, Bart. and has issue,

ARU

Arundel is one of the co-heirs to a moiety of the ancient Barony of Fitzpaine.

Liturgy.

This noble house is a branch of the ancient family of Arundel, which flourished in the West of England many centuries. Roger de Arundel, at the general survey, was found possessed of 28 Lordships in the Co. Somerset; from this Roger descended:

SIR JOHN ARUNDEL, of Lanborne, Co. Cornwall, who was Sheriff of that county, in 1416, 1424, and 1457, and was made a Kn. of the Bath at the coronation of Henry IV. He m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of Sir William Lamborne, Kn., and had three sons, viz.

1. John, his successor,
2. Thomas, Sir ancestor of the Lords Arundel of Terence.
3. Humphrey, m. Joane, sister and heir of Sir John Colshall, Kn., and had issue,

Sir John was a. by his eldest son.

SIR JOHN ARUNDEL, who m. Elizabeth, Lady Neil Biddeford, and dau. and heir of Sir—de Rochford, and was a. by his son,

SIR JOHN ARUNDEL, one of the gallant commanders in France, temp. Henry VI. He m. 1st, Elizabeth de Morley, daughter of Thomas Lord Morley, and had a dau., Ame, who m. James Tirrel, Esq.

Sir John espoused, 2ndly, Katherine, relict of Sir William Stafford, of Frome, and co-heir of Sir John Childescock, of Childesocks and Caundle, Co. Dorset, by whom he had one son and six dau.; he was s. by the former,

SIR THOMAS ARUNDEL, K.B., who m. Catherine, dau. of Sir John Dyman, and was a. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN ARUNDEL, of Lapton in Cornwall, K.B. and a. Knt. banneret. This gentleman m. 1st, the Lady Eleanor Grey, dau. of Thomas, Marquess of Dorset, and had issue, John, (Sir) of Lanburn, ancestor of the Arundels of Lanburn in Cornwall, and of Childesock, Dorset.

Thomas, of whom presently.

Sir John espoused, 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Sir Thomas Granville, and had a. dau., Mary, who m. Robert Ratcliffe, Earl of Sussex. The second son,

SIR THOMAS ARUNDEL, Knt., had, by gift of his father, Wardour Castle, Co. Wilts, formerly a possession of the Crown. This gentleman was created a Knt. of the Bath, at the coronation of Anne Bolyn; but was convicted temp. Edward VI., with Edward, Duke of Somerset, of conspiring the murder of John Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, he was beheaded 30 Feb., 1552, Sir Thomas m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Lord Edmund Howard, 3rd son of Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, and sister of Catharine, 5th wife of Henry VIII., by whom he left one dau. and a. son,

SIR MATTHEW ARUNDEL, of Wardour, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Willoughby, Kn. of Wollaton, Co. Nottingham, and dying in 1588, was a. by his elder son,

* Sir John Childesock, m. Isabel Fitzpaine, only dau. and heiress of Robert, 2nd Baron Fitzpaine, (who d. 1551), and had a

Sir John Chideocke, m. whose son and heir,

SIR JOHN CHIDEOCKE, Knt., left two dau., his co-heirs,

1. Katherin-Chideocke, Knt., m. 1st, to Sir Wil-ham Stafford, and had an only child.

2. Margaret Chideocke, m. to William, 2nd Lord

Stourton.

At the decease of Robert, second Lord Fitzpaine, the Baron of Fitzpaine appears to have been suspended, and it is now to allegiance between the representatives of his Lordship's great-grand-dau. above mentioned. (See Burr's Extinct Peerage.)

ARU

SIR THOMAS ARUNDEL, of Wardour. This gallant person went, at a very early age, to Germany, and serving as a volunteer in the imperial army in Hungary, took the standard of the Turks, with his own hand, in an engagement at Gratz; for which heroic achievement he was created, by Rodolph II., Emperor of Germany, a Count of the Roman Empire. The patent of creation, dated at Prague, 14 Dec., 1656, confers the honor upon Sir Thomas, and his heirs male, and female, for ever. Upon Sir Thomas's return to his native country, he was elevated to the Peerage, (4 May, 1665.) as Baron Arundel, of Wardour. His Lordship, who had the validation of the marriage of m. 1st, Lady Maria Wriothesley, dau. of Henry, Earl of Southampton, and had issue,

2. William, of Horathiam, Co. Wills, whose only dau., Mary, m. Sir Henry Titchborough, Bart.
3. Elizabeth, m. to Sir John Philipot.

Lord Arundel m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Miles Philipson, Esq., and had several other children. He d. 7 Nov., 1680, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 2nd Baron, who m. Blanch, 4th dau. of Edward Somerset, Earl of Worcester, by the absence of his husband, defended Wardour with great resolution and only a handful of men, for nine days, against the rebels under Sir Edward Hungerford and Edmund Ludlow, and surrendered eventually on honorable terms. The besiegers violating, however, the treaty, were dissuaded by the determination of the noble proprietor, who directed, on his return, a mine to be sprung under the Castle, and thus sacrificed that noble and magnificent structure to his loyalty. His Lordship d. of wounds received at the battle of Lansdown, 19 May, 1648, and was s. by his son,

HANRY, 3rd Baron. This nobleman was one of the persons committed to prison in 1678, upon the information of the infamous Titus Oates, and suffered five years incarceration. His Lordship, after his release, was sworn, in 1685, of the Privy Council, and constituted Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal in the following year, when he was honored with the Order of the Bath. On the abdication of James II., Lord Arundel retired to Breamore, in Wiltz, where he d. 20 Dec., 1694, and was s. by his eldest son, (by Cecily, dau. of Sir Henry Compton, Kt., of Brambletye, Co. Sussex, and widow of Sir John Fermo, Kt.)

ASHBURNHAM.

ASHBURNHAM, EARL OF (Bertram Ashburn- ham), Viscount St. Asaph, and Baron Ashburn- ham; 6. 23 Nov., 1797; s. to the honors as 4th Earl, at the decease of his father, 27 Oct., 1830.

Lineage.

The Ashburnham (so denominated from the town of that name in Sussex, formerly written Essesburnham), are, according to Fuller, “a family of stupendous antiquity, wherein the eminence hath equalled the antiquity, having been Barons of Bertram in the time of Henry III.” and Francis Thyn, in his Catalogue of Lord Wardens of the Cinque ports and Constables of Dover Castle, thus mentions one of the early progenitors:—“Bertram Ashburnham, a Baron of Kent, was Constable of Dover Castle, A.D. 1665; which Bertram was beheaded by William the Conqueror, because he did so valiantly defend the same against the Duke of Normandy.”

John Ashburnham, Esq., representative of the family at the commencement of the 16th century. m. Lora, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Berkeley, Esq. of Aram, Co. Hants, and was s. by his son,

John Ashburnham, Esq., M.P. for Sussex, 1st and 2nd of Philip and Mary, m. Isabel, dau. of John Nackville, Esq., ancestor of the Dukes of Dorset, and was s. by his son,

ASHBURNHAM.

ASHBURNHAM, Sir William, Baronet, of Bromham, Co. Sussex; b. 21 June, 1709; m. to the title, as 6th Bart., upon the decease of his father, 21 Aug., 1823; m. 7 July, 1825, Juliana, dau. of the Rev. William Humphrey, Rector of Sele, and Vicar of Kensing, Co. Kent.

Lineage.

This family and that of the Earls of Ashburnham spring from a common ancestor.

THOMAS ASH, in the 12th Henry VI, being one of the principal persons in the Co. Sussex, was amongst those who swore, on the part of himself and retainers, to observe the laws then made. He m. Sarah, dau. of Henry Wauny, and had two sons,

John, from whom the Earls, and RICHARD ASH, who m. the dau. and heiress of Sir John Stoneling, K.t. of Bromham, Co. Sussex, by whom he acquired that estate, and had a son and heir,

THOMAS ASH, of Bromham, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Dudley, and aunt of John Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, and was by his only son,

THOMAS ASH, whose son,

LADY ASH, m. 3rdly, dau. of Richard Adams, Esq, Co. Sussex, and sister and heiress of Stephen Adams, Esq. of Heritasham, Co. Kent, and widow of John Lovet, Esq. The grandson of this marriage, LADY ASH, of Bromham, m. Bridget, eldest dau. of Sir George Fleetwood, of the Vache, Co. Bucks, and was by his eldest son, THOMAS ASH, a Commissioner of Excise, Vicount of the Navy, and Representative in Parliament for Hastings, who was created a Bart. May 15, 1681. Sir Denny m. 1st, Frances, dau. of John Ashburnham, Esq. and aunt of John, 1st Lord Ashburnham, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Bridget, m. the Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, rector of Petts and Vicar of Gilling, Co. Sussex.

advisable to leave Oxford, Mr. Ashburnham was the only servant that attended him; and, indeed, the only person except a clergyman, Doctor Hudson, who served for a guide. He was afterwards instrumental in the flight of his royal master from Hampton Court, 11 Nov., 1647; but, upon the failure of the attempt, through Col. Hammond, Governor of the Isle of Wight, who delivered the unfortunate monarch up to the army, his fidelity was questioned. But Lord Clarendon sufficiently clears Mr. Ashburnham from the imputation, observing “that he preserved his reputation with credit with the most eminent of the King’s party; and his remaining in England, after the death of the King, which his enemies charged as an aggravation of suspicion against him was upon the marriage of a lady, by whom he had a great fortune and many conveniences, which would have been seized by his leaving the kingdom; and he did send over to Charles II., and had leave to stay there, and sometimes supplied the King with considerable sums of money. Afterwards he was committed to the Tower by Clarendon, where he remained till his (Clarendon’s) death.” Mr. Ashburnham, 1st, Frances, dau. and heir of William Holland, Esq. of Westburton, and had issue,

WILLIAM, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Lord Poulett, of Hintou St. George, and dying 1653, left a son,

2. Delclay-Loftus, b. 24 March, 1825.

ASTLEY

Lineage.

Of the antiquity of the Astleys there is the most unquestionable testimony, and several curious and interesting proofs are to be found in "Dugdale's Warwickshire."

Sir Thomas Astley, Knt. who fell at the battle of Evesham, temp. Henry III., with Montford, Earl of Leicester, and other insurrectionary barons, founded the family (see Burke’s Extinct Peerage). By his 1st wife, Joan, dau. of Ernald de Lios, he was father of Anna, from whom the Astleys of Patashill, Co. Stafford, derive. By his 2nd wife, Ethelb. dau. of Peter Constable, Esq., of Melton Constable, Co. Norfolk, and sister and co-heiress of Sir Robert Constable, Knt., he had three sons: from the 2nd of whom,

Thomas Astley, of Hill Morton, Co. Warwick, descended (the seventh in direct succession),

John Astley, of Hill Morton and Melton Constable, who m. Frances, dau. and heiress of John Cheveny, Esq., of Sittingborne, in Kent, and was, at his decease, by his only surviving son, Isaac Astley. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Edward Waldegrave, Esq. of Botley, Co. Essex, and had two sons, namely,

Thomas, of whom presently.

Jacob, (Sir) who, having acquired considerable reputation under the Royal Standard during the Civil Wars, was advanced to the Peerage, as Baron Astley, of Reading. His Lordship m. Agnes Impie, a daughter of Henry, Esq. of family, and was, in 1651, by his eldest son,

Isaac, 2nd Baron, who d. 1662, and was s. by his eldest son,

Jacob, 3rd Baron, at whose decease, issueless, 1699, the barony expired.

Mr. Astley was s. by his eldest son,

Thomas Astley, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heiress of George Deane, Esq. of Tilney, Co. Norfolk, and had issue, Frances, his successor.

Isaac, successor to his brother.

Edward, (Sir) m. his cousin, the Hon. Elizabeth Astley, dau. of Jacob, Lord Astley, and, dying 1660, left no issue, and Jacob, of whom presently, as representative of the family.

Mr. Thomas Astley was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Francis Astley, Knt. at whose decease without issue, the estates devolved upon his brother,

Sir Isaac Astley, who was created a Bart., 21 Jan., 1641. His eldest son, 1st, Rachel, dau. of Augustus Mewsenger, Esq., of Blackford, in Norfolk, and, shortly, Bridget, dau. of John Coke, Esq. of Holkham, but had no issue. He d. Dec., 1690, when the Barony expired, while the estates of Hill Morton and Melton Constable passed to his nephew

Sir Jacob Astley, Knt., who was created a Bart., 25 June, 1698. Sir Jacob succeeded not only to the fortune of his uncle, but also to the entaild lands of his maternal grandfather Lord Astley: these being so settled by act of parliament: he represented the Co. Norfolk for forty years in parliament, and, dying 1729, was s. by his eldest surviving son, (by Blanche, eldest dau. of Sir Philip Wodehouse, Bart, of Kimberley, Co. Norfolk.)

Sir Philip. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Thomas Bransby, Esq., of Castor, in Norfolk, and had, with three younger sons, who all died issueless, and two daus, Elizabeth, wife of Caleb Elwin, Esq., of Tidworth, and Jemima, of Christopher Metcalfe, Esq., of Hawstead—a son, and successor to his decease, 7 July, 1729.

Sir Jacob, who, m. 1st, 1721, Lucy, youngest dau. of Sir Nicholas L’Estrange, Bart., of Ilmaston, Co. Norfolk, and co-heiress of her brother, Sir Henry, by whom, who d. 1739, he had, with other issue,

1. Edward, his successor.

2. John, in Holy Orders, m. 1762, Catherine, dau. of Henry Bell, Esq., of Wallington in Norfolk, and d. 1815, leaving two daus.

Godart de Ginkel, Commander-in-chief of King William's Army, in the Irish campaign of 1691, having achieved an important victory at Aughrim, near Athlone, 12 July, in that year was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland by his royal Master, 4 March, 1692, as Baron of Aughrim and Earl of Athlone, obtaining at the same time a grant of 30,000 acres of land, the confiscated Estate of William Dongan, Earl of Limerick. This grant was, however, subsequently reversed by parliament, and the Earl returned to his native country, there to reap fresh laurels as a military commander. His Lordship d. 11 Feb., 1729, and was a. by his son, Godart, 2nd Earl, b. 1693, who, continuing to reside in Holland, was a member of the nobles for the province of Utrech, and Lieut.-Gen. of the Dutch Army. His Lordship m. the Lady Henrietta de Nassau, youngest dau. of William, Earl of Huchfort, by whom he left at his decease, 15 Dec., 1729, two sons, and was a. by the eldest, Godart-Adam, 3rd Earl, at whose decease, 8 Oct., 1736, the honors devolved upon his brother, Godart, 4th Earl, b. 1717, and educated with his Linagie.

This is one of the most illustrious families in Scotland; and, at one period, it enjoyed the absolute sovereignty of the Isle of Man. Freskine, says Sir Robert Douglas, "a gentleman of Frensh origin, came into Scotland during the reign of David I., and obtained from that monarch the sovereignty of the lands of Strathbroick, in the Co. Linliithgow. Soon after the insurrection of the Moraymen, in 1319, Freskine, who probably contributed by his skill and bravery to the subduement of these ancient people, acquired from the same Prince some of the most fertile districts in the lowlands of Moray, and built a fortress at Duftus, where he resided, the mossy ruins whereof are still remarkable." The descendant of this distinguished person,

WALTER, inheriting his paternal lands at Moray, was distinguished by the surname of De Moravia, or Moray. From this Walter de Moravia descended the Morays, Lords Bothwell, the Morays of Abercairny, and

SIR WILLIAM OR MORAVA, who acquired the lands of Tullibardine with his wife, Ada, dau. of Malle Seences, of Stratham, as appears by charters dated in the years 1202 and 1284. He was b. by his son,

ANDREW MURRAY, of Tullibardine. When Edward Balliol invaded Scotland, in 1322, this Andrew Murray, favouring his pretensions, contributed greatly to the decisive victory obtained by Balliol at Duplin, by fixing a stake to a ford in the river Earn, through which his army passed and attacked the English. This rendered Murray so ominous that, when he was made prisoner in a couple of months after, he was immediately put to death for his adhesion to Balliol. He left a son,

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, from whom linearly descended the 5th in succession)

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, living in 1462 and 1511, who had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, his successor,

Andrew, [Sir] ancestor of the Viscount Stormont.

Sir William was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, whose grandson, SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, m. 1547, Lady Agnes Graham, dau. of William, 2nd Earl of Montrose, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MURRAY, 12th feudal Baron of Tullibardine, Master of the Household, and one of the Privy-Council of James VI. who was created Lord Murray of Tullibardine, 25 April, 1614, and 10 July, 1626, Earl of Tullibardine, His Lordship m. Catharine, dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and had, with other issue.

WILLIAM, his successor,

Patrick, of Castletown, afterwards Earl of Tullibardine.argo, who became 2nd Viscount Stormont, but d. issueless.

The Earl d. 1600, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl, who, with his cousin, David Viscount Stormont, when a very young man, had the great fortune to be instrumental in the rescue of the King at Perth, from the attempt of the Earl Gowrie and his brother, in 1600. For this signal service, he obtained the hereditary sheriffship of Perthshire, which has since continued in the family. His Lordship m. 1st, 1600, Cecilia, eldest dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Wemyss, but had no issue: he espoused, 2ndly, Lady Dorothea Stewart, eldest dau. of John, 5th Earl of Atholl, (at whose decease, without male issue, the Earlship of Atholl reverted to the Crown) by whom he had issue,

JOHN, who became Earl of Atholl.

Mary, who married to Sir John Moncrieffe, of Moncrieffe, Bart.

The Earl, a short time before his decease, having petitioned CHARLES I. setting forth that his Countess was the eldest dau. and heir of line of John, Earl of Atholl, and that the family of Stewart, of Inverame, which had obtained the title at that nobelman's decease, had become extinct, the king graciously promised to revive the dignity in his posterity. When his Lordship, wishing to prevent the junction of the Earldoms of Atholl and Tullibardine, and for the purpose of forming two noble families, resigned the latter dignity to the Crown, in favour of his brother Patrick Murray, 2nd Earl of Tullibardine, which disposition was confirmed by patent under the Great Seal, anno 1638. TheEarldom of Tullibardine came back, however, to the Atholl line, upon the demise of Earl Patrick's son, James, 4th Earl, who outlived his main issue. William, 2nd Earl of Tullibardine, d. 1642, was s. by his brother, John, 1st Earl of Atholl, K.T. to whom reverted the Earldom of Tullibardine, in 1670, on the demise of his cousin, James, mentioned above. His Lordship was created Marquess of Atholl, 1676; he m. Lady Amelia-Sophia Stanley, only dau. of 2nd Earl of Derby, by whom he had, with other children, John, his successor, Charles, created Earl of Dunmore. (See that dignity.) Who with Grace succeeded as 2nd Lord Nairne. (See that title.)

His Lordship d. 1713, and was s. by his eldest son, Juw, 6th Earl of Tullibardine, 3rd Earl of Atholl, and 2nd Marquess of Atholl, who was created on 30 July, 1703, Marquess of Tullibardine and Duke of Atholl, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the sons of his deceased father. His Grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William and Anne, Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, by whom he had issue, six sons and a dau.: of which,

John, Marquess of Tullibardine, d. unm. 1709.

William, who s. his brother as Marquess of Tullibardine, was one of the first that joined the Earl of Mar, in 1715, and proclaimed the Chevalier, for which act of high treason he was attainted by parliament. Escaping abroad, the Marquess returned to Scotland 1719, with the Spanish forces, joined the insurgents at Kintail, and was at the battle of Glen Shiel. After the defeat there, his Lordship escaped a second time to the continent, where he lived in exile twenty-six years. He accompanied Charles-Edward to Scotland, landed with him at Bordoale 25 July, 1745, unfurled the Prince's Standard at Glenfinnan 19 Nov., and, supported by a man on each side, held the yeomanry while the manifesto and commission of regency were read. After the defeat, he was taken, and, when freed, he fled in the westward, intending to embark for the Isle of Man; but his horse falling, he surrendered 27 April, 1746, in a bad state of health, to Mr. Buchanan, of Dumnackil. His Lordship was eventually conveyed to London and committed to the Tower, where he d. 9 July, 1746.

James, who s. to the Dukedom.

Charles, a Cornet of Horse, joined the Chevalier in 1715, and had the command of a regiment. Upon the march he never could be prevailed upon to ride, but kept at the head of his regiment on foot in the highland dress. After the surrender of Leith and Edinburgh, being among the prisoners, was tried by a court martial as an deserter, and sentenced to be shot, but he was reprieved, and d. s. p. 1739.

George, who was with his brother the Marquess of Tullibardine, at Kintail, and was wounded at the battle of Glen Shiel. Making his escape abroad, he was several years an officer in the Nardinian service, but, obtaining a pardon, he returned home. Joining Charles-Edward in 1745, he was among the 1st lap. of Lieut.-Gen. of Lieut. General's forces, and acted as such at the battles of Preston, Falkirk, and Culloden, marched into England with them, and brought up the rear in their retreat thence. He was attainted by parliament, but made his escape, and was most graciously received by the Chevalier at Rome. His Lordship m. Amelia, only

* King Edward the Confessor had a royal palace at Brill, in Bucks, to which he occasionally retired for the pleasure of hunting in the forest of Berecehurst. This forest, it is said, was much infested by a wild boar, which was slain by one Nigel, a huntsman, who presented the boar’s head to the king, and, in reward, obtained a tract of land called Bereghine, where he erected a manor-house, and named it, in memory of the transaction, Burstable. At the period of the Conquest, Burstable was conferred upon William de Lusares, but it came back to the Nigel family, temp. Richard I. (1190), when William Fitnigall was appointed forester of Berecehurst, and had a grant of Burstable. From the Nigeles it passed, in 1360, with their heiress John Nigle, to her husband, Sir John de Handlo. The Handlo estates, including Burstable, devolved upon co-heirs in 1354; namely, Margaret, wife of John de Bengay, m. Sir Michael de la Pole; the latter loftier Burstable on the demise of her sister s. p. and her dau. Catherine de la Pole conveyed it to her husband Robert James, Esq., the same dau. and heiress Christiana, m. Edmund Rede, Esq., and the manor of Burstable continued with the Redes for three generations.

Lineage.

The family of Touchet came into England with the Conqueror, and was then of considerable note. It is to be found in the Battle Abbey Roll, and in the Chronicles of Normandy.

William Touchet distinguished himself in the wars of Gascony and Scotland, temp. Edward I. and had summons in Parliament as a Baron from 29 Dec., 1284, to 3 Nov., 1306; but of his Lordship, Dugdale gives no further account. Contemporary with this Lord Touchet was

Sir Robert Touchet, Kn. of Tattenhale, Co. Chester, who was a. by his son,

Sir Thomas Touchet, who d. in the 23rd of Enw. 111, leaving a son,

Sir John Touchet, Knt. a gallant and distinguished soldier in the mortal times of Edward III. He fell in a sanguinary conflict with the Spaniards off Rochelle, in the 44th of the same king. Sir John m. Joan, eldest dau. of James Alderthly, or Audley, Lord Audley of Heleigh (a dignity created by writ of summons 8 Jan., 1313), and sole heiress, in 1320, of her brother Nicholas, last Baron Audley of that family. Sir John d. a. by his son,

John Touchet, who was summoned to Parliament as Lord Audley, 21 Dec., 1405. His Lordship left a. dau. Elizabeth m. to Sir John Baskerville, Knt., of Clunmbe, (See Burke's 'Complete Peerage,' Vol. 1. page 54) a son,

James Touchet, Lord Audley, grandson of

James Touchet, Lord Audley, who, having beheaded an insurrection of the Cornishmen in the reign of Henry VII., was made prisoner at Blackheath, and was afterwards drawn, 29 June, 1467, from Newgate to Tower-hill, in his own coat of arms, painted on paper, but reversed and torn, and there beheaded, when his honors became forfeited: but his son,

John Touchet was restored in blood and to the dignity of Lord Audley, in the 4th Henry VIII. His Lordship m. Mary, dau. of John Griffin, Esq. of Braybrook, Co. Northampton, and was a. by his eldest son,

George Touchet, Lord Audley, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Bryan Tuke, Knt., Treasurer of the chamber to Henry VIII., and was a. by his son,

Henry Touchet, Lord Audley, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Wynd, of Bradwell, Co. Stafford, and died 1505, was a. by his elder son,

George Touchet, 11th Baron Audley (counting from the original writ of summons in 1313 to Nicholas de Alderthly, who, residing in Ireland, was created a Peer of that kingdom by Act of Parliament, 23rd Aug. and 25th Sept. of Castleton, 8 Sept., 1817). His Lordship m. Lucy, dau. of Sir John Mervyn, of Fontell, Co. Wiltz, and, dying 1817, was a. by his elder son,

Martin, 3rd Earl of Castlemaine. This nobleman being accused of certain high crimes and, by virtue of a commission of oyer and terminer, therupon arraigned, had sentence of death passed upon him, and was executed accordingly on Tower-hill, 14 May, 1631. His Lordship left issue by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Mr. Ald. Barnham, of London, three sons, and as many dau.

James Touchet, the eldest son, obtained a new patent, 3 June, 1634, creating him Lord Touchet and Earl of Castlemaine. His Lordship, during the civil wars of Ireland, commanded under the Duke of Ormond, and in 1640, being chosen Gen. of the Irish forces, acted against Cromwell and the parliamentarians. Upon the subjugation of the kingdom, by the usurper, his Lordship withdrew into France, whence he returned to England at the restoration, and obtained a special act of parliament in 1678, restoring to him the place and precedence as Lord Audley, enjoyed by his ancestors, but forfeited by his father, with remainder, in default of issue of his own body, to the heirs of his brother, Mervyn Touchet, 3rd son of the last Lord (passing over George, a beneficent monk, his next brother), and in default of issue of the said Mervyn, to the dux. iv. Cecilia-Preecilla.

Lord Avonmore, 2, to the title as 3rd Viscount upon the demise of his father, 28 Nov., 1814.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the ancient house of Yelverton from which sprang the extinct Earl of St. Germans (see Barlow's "Extinct Peerage") and the present Lady Grey de Ruthyn, consort of the Marquess of Hastings. Of that family two brothers settled in Ireland—one in the Co. Cork, the other in Tipperary. From the former Lord Avonmore himself derives—from the latter his present Viscountess.

AYL. LORD (Matthew Whitworth—Aylmer, K.C.B.), Baron of Balrath, Co. Meath, in the Peerage of Ireland, and a Bart. of that part of the United Kingdom; a Lieut.—Gen. in the army;

b. 24 May, 1777, s. to the honors, as 5th Baron and 8th Bart. at the decease of his father, 22 Oct.,

1785; m. 4 Aug., 1801, Louisa-Anne, 2nd dau.

of Sir John Call, Bart. of Whitworth, in Cor-

wall. His Lordship assumed the surname of "Whitworth," before that of "Aylmer," and the arm of Whitworth, in addition to those of Aylmer, by royal permission, in 1825, upon the decease of his maternal uncle, the late Charles, Earl Whitworth.

Lineage.

This noble family and that of Aylmer, of Donadee Castle, derive from a common progenitor; namely,

Richard Aylmer, Esq., of Lyons, Co. Kildare, one of the keepers of the peace of the Co. Dublin and Kildare, in 1421, and sovereign of the town of Tassegard in 1423;

from this Richard lineally descended Sir Gerald Aylmer,

Knt., who settled at Donades, in the beginning of the 17th century, and founded their family, and also sprung

an only son,

George, 6. 25 May, 1820.

Sir Gerald is Vice-Lieut. of the Co. Kildare.

Lineage.

This ancient family deduces its descent from Athelmaer, or Aylmer, Earl of Cornwall, who lived in the reign of AYL

ETHBOLDS; and its settlement in Ireland is fixed at some time in the 17th century. In the Iohn of Itanav V, A.D. 1427, we find Richard Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, Co. Kildare, one of the keepers of the peace for that Co., as well as for the adjoining Co. of Dublin: and in eleven years afterwards (1435) he is a subscriber, as sovereign of the town of Tankard, to an indenture made to one John Staunton, and his heirs, a waste plot of ground there, for the yearly consideration of one penny at Easter. In the reign of Henry VIII., a member of the family, Sir Gerald Aylmer, Knt. of Duilliardstown, Co. Meath, 2nd son of Bartholomew Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, by his wife, Margaret Chivers, rose to considerable eminence to the legal profession, and was constituted, in 1528, one of the Justices of the Court of Common-Pleas in Ireland; from which he was removed to the Presidency of the Court of Exchequer, and, in 1538, he returned, as Chief Justice, to the former court. The king being disposed to promote him to the same rank in the King's-Bench, the Earl of Shrewsbury opposed the Judge's preferment, representing him as an ignorant man, and unfit for such an office. Whereupon Henry reproved the Lord Cresswell for recommending so improper a person; when Lord Cresswell entreated of his Highness to discourse with Sir Gerald, and that he would then find himself inform'd; the king did so, and asking him the true reason of the decay of Ireland, Sir Gerald answered, "That he was come there because the estates men (who used to reside and defend their lands, and countenance their tenants,) did now generally dwell in England, and left Ireland a prey to the natives; but that if his Highness would oblige them to residence, or seize their estates to his own use if they did not, he would soon find a reformation." The king, with thanks for his advice, assured him care should be taken of it in the next parliament; and the Act of Absentees was accordingly passed 1536, whereby among others, the Earl of Shrewsbury forfeited his lands.

The Baronetcy of Ireland was conferred 29 Jan., 1621, to little more than a year after the institution of the order by James I. upon Intracr.

Various conjectures have been hazarded as to the origin of the surname of Bacon, but to little purpose. It matters naught, however—the antiquity of the family is beyond dispute—and there are few houses in the kingdom becoming eminent by the production of great and eminent men. Besides Frier Bacon, the marvel of his day, Sir Nicholas Bacon, and the great Lord Bacon, there were five other extraordinary personages of the same family.

SIR NICHOLAS BACON, Knt., s. at Chevihurst, in Kent, 15th becoming eminent at the Bar, succeeded Nich. Heath, Archibishop of York, at the accession of Elizabeth, in the custody of the Great Seal, and was sworn of her Majesty's Privy Council. The chief discoveries of the first session of Elizabeth's reign was the suppression of rebellion and the management of that important affair was committed almost wholly to the Lord Keeper, who pursued therein his wise maxim, "Let us stay a little, that we have done the sooner." As a Statesman, he was remarkable for a clear head and profound understanding. His great skill lay in balancing parties, and it is thought that the Queen was indebted to him for that great secret of governing. "Towards the end of his life, he became so remarkable for culpity, that his royal mistress used familiarly to observe, "that the Lord Keeper's soul lodged well." To himself his great size was very cumbrous, insomuch that, after walking from Westminster Hall to the Star Chamber, he became so corpulent, that he was usually so greatly out of breath that the lawyers forbore speaking at the bar until he recovered himself, and gave them notice by knocking with his staff. Sir Nicholas m. 1st, Jane, dau. of William Ferney, Esq. of West Creting, Co. Suffolk, by whom he had issue.

1. NICHOLAS, (Sir) his successor.
2. Nathaniel, (Sir) of Stiffkey, Co. Norfolk, K.B., who became eminent as a painter, and some of his works are preserved at Cullford, where he lived. He left three dau. at his decease, his co-heirs, viz.,

i. Jane, m. Sir Roger 2 Elizabeth, m. Sir Thomas Townshend, of Hitcham, Kent, of Ashwellthorpe, Co. Norfolk, ancestor of Co. Norfolk.

ii. The Lords Townshend, to 3 Winifred, m. Sir Robert whom she brought the Gowy of Claxton, Co. Norfolk.

iii. Edward, m. Helen, dau. and heiress of Thos. Littel, Esq. of Shrubbyland Hall, Co. Suffolk, and, acquiring that estate in 1593, he was ancestor of the Bacons of Shrubbyland Hall, of Ipswich and Earlham.

iv. Anne, m. to Sir Henry Wodehouse, of Watham, Co. Norfolk.

v. Jane, m. 1st, Sir Francis Windham, one of the Justices of the Common Peace; and 2ndly, Sir Robert Mansfield.

vi. Elizabeth, m. 1st, Sir Robert D'Oyley; 2ndly, Sir Henry Nevill; and 3rdly, Sir William Periam, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer.

Sir Nicholas m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Anthony Cooke, of Giddy Hall, Co. Essex, and had two other sons, viz., Anthony, a man of very distinguished parts, and esteemed for his political knowledge, d. a.p. 1619.

Francis, 6. 22 Jan., 1560, brought up to the bar, was appointed Queen's Counsel, and soon after the accession of James I, honored with Knighthood. In 1613, he was constituted Attorney-General, and sworn of the Privy Council. In 1617, Sir Francis was designated Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and the next year he was entitled Lord High Chancellor of England. Within a few months after this he was created to the exchequer by the Privy Seal, July 11, 1618, in the dignity of Baron Verulam, and he was created 27 Jan., 1627, Viscount St. Albans. His Lordship is describable Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; and the next year he was entitled Lord High Chancellor of England. Within a few months after this he was created to the exchequer by the Privy Seal, July 11, 1618, in the dignity of Baron Verulam, and he was created 27 Jan., 1627, Viscount St. Albans. His Lordship is describable Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; and the next year he was entitled Lord High Chancellor of England.

4. Agnes, m. Jan., 1825, John-Newton Lane, Esq. of History of the Commoners.)

v. Eleanor.

Lineage.

The ancestors of this noble family are recorded in Domesday-book as holders of Bagot’s Bromly, Co. Staff-ford, under Robert de Stafford, founder of the old feudal house of Stafford, which terminated sometime in the reign of Richard I., in an heir female, MILICENT DE STAFFORD, who conveyed the feudal Baronetcy to her husband HERVEY DE BAGOT (a younger branch of the family of which we are about to treat). Their son Hervey assumed the surname of Stafford, and was progenitor of the succeeding Barons and Earls of Stafford, and Dukes of Buckingham. (See Burke’s Extinct Peerage.) Of this Hervey the following account is given in “Memorials of the Bagot Family,” compiled in 1823, by the present Lord Bagot.

“It has long appeared a matter of doubt who the Hervey Bagot was that, in the reign of Richard I., m. Mil-cent de Stafford, sister and sole heir to Robert, the last Baron Stafford. Hervey Bagot is always styled a younger son of the house of Bagot, but whether of Bagot’s Brom-ly (the head branch of the family), or of Hyde (another branch), has seemed doubtful to many antiquaries. Ereswicke thinks he was of Bagot’s Bromly. Mr. Chetwynd endeavours to prove that he was of Hyde; and Sir William Dugdale only styles him ‘a gentleman of ancient famlity in those parts.’ After the most attentive and repeated examination of every document bearing upon the subject of this Hervey Bagot’s descent, it is evident, almost to demonstration, that he must have been the brother of Simon Bagot of Bromly; and, consequently, like him, in the third generation from the Bagot who held that manor at the time of the Domesday survey.”

The pedigree of the family, in the possession of the present Peer, attested by Sir William Dugdale and Gregory King, two eminent officers of the College of Arms, “and supporting their statements by extraordinary merit of du-and other family muniments,” according to the memorial already quoted, deduces the lineal descent from Bagot, Lord of Bromly, who held the lands from Robert de Sta-ford, as mentioned in Domesday-book, to Sir Ralph Bagot, Knt., who, in the time of Ew. III.,
m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Richard de Blithfield, of a very ancient family, seated on a manor of that name, within two miles of his residence at Bagot’s Bromly.
With this heiress Sir Ralph became possessed of the estates at Blithfield and Littlehay, in Colton, which had been in the lady’s family from the Conquest; and he removed,
most probably, from his own seat to that of Blithfield, where his descendants continue to reside. From this Sir Ralph the pedigree carries on the line to Hervey Bagot, Esq. (eldest surviving son and heir of Sir Walter Bagot, Esq. of Blithfield and Bagot’s Bromly, Co. Stafford, and Elizabeth his wife, dau. of Roger Cave, Esq.), b. 8 Feb., 1530, and created a Baronet 30 May, 1587, the year after that in which he had served the office of Sheriff for the Co. Stafford. This gentleman suffered much during the Usurpation for his attachment to the royal cause. He m. twice, and was a. at his decease, Dec., 1599, by his eldest son (by Katherine, dau. of Humphrey Adderley, Esq. of Welford-aton, Co. Warwick), Sir Edward Bagot, M.P. for the Co. Stafford, in the Re-Storation Parliament, who m. Mary, dau. of William Lambard, Esq., and relict of John Crawley, Esq. (son and heir of Sir John Crawley, Knt., one of the Justices of the BAIRD.

BAIRD, Sir David, of Fern Tower, Co. Perth; s. to the title, as 2nd Bart., upon the decease of his uncle, 18 Aug., 1829, m. 10 Aug., 1821, Lady Anne Kennedy, eldest dau. of Archibald, present Marquess of Ailsa, by whom he has issue three sons and three daus.

* For an account of the Dennistouns of Dennistoun, see Burrus's History of the Commoners.
The family of Baird is of remote antiquity in North Britain: there is a tradition relating to it which states that William, the Lion, while hunting in one of the south-west counties, happening to struggle from his attendants, was alarmed by the approach of a wild boar, and, calling out for assistance, a gentleman of the name of Baird, who had followed the King, came up and had the good fortune to slay the object of the monarch's alarm: for this signal service William conferred upon his deliverer large grants of land, and assigned him for his coat of arms—a boar passant, and for his motto, "Dominus fecit," which arms are to be seen upon an ancient monument of the Bairds of Auchmedden, in the church-yard of Banff.

The progenitor of the present, or Auchmedden, branch of the Bairds was George Baird, of Auchmedden, Co. Aberdeen, Chief of the Clan, who was living in 1608, and from whom lineally descended,

James Baird, 2nd son of Auchmedden, who was a Commissary of the Ecclesiastical Court, in the time of Charles I. He had two sons,

1. John, (Sir) a Lord of Newbys, under the title of Lord Newbys, father of William, created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, In 1695, whose son and successor,

2. Robert, (Sir) of Saughton Hall.

The younger son of James Baird,

Sir Robert Baird, of Soughton Hall, in Mid-Lothian, had, with other issue, James, his successor, created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, In 1695-96, and William Baird, a Merchant and one of the Baillies of Edinburgh, who was father of William Baird, Esq., heir to his cousin, Sir John Baird, Bart. of Newbys. He m. Alicia, 4th dau. of —— Johnstone, Esq., of Hiltown, Co. Berwick, by whom he had, with other issue, (there were in all six sons and eight daughters).

1. Robert, his successor, who, m. a dau. of David Gaven, of Langoust, by Elizabeth, sister of James, 2nd Earl of Lauderdale, and had, with a dau. Elizabeth, four sons,

1. David, who succeeded his uncle, and is the present Bart.

2. William.

4. James.

II. David, of whom heretofore

Joseph, Major-General in the Army, d. at the Cape of Good Hope, 4 April, 1646. He had m. in 1642, Esther Charlotte, dau. of William, Lord Riversdale, and left, William and other children.

IV. Mary, m. in 1770, to John Erskine, Esq., of Dun, Co. Angus, and was mother of Margaret, Marchioness of Ailsa.

V. Catherine, m. to James Rainie, Esq.

VI. Janet.

VII. Alice, m. to Capt. Andrew Wauchop, of Niddery, Sydney.

VIII. Susan, m. to Lieut.-Col. H. Cezat, and d. 30 April, 1822.

IX. Anne, m. to George Gordon, Esq., of Halhead.

X. Charlotte, m. in 1782, to George Lord Haddo, and d. 8 Oct. 1790.

The 2nd in the above list, but the 5th son,

J. Baird, Esq., having repeatedly distinguished himself in arms, but particularly at Seringapatam, where he headed the storming party, and led them to victory, was created a Bart., April, 1809, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his eldest brother, Robert Baird, of Nova Scotia, Esq., Haldanton, Esq. Sir David Baird was Commander-in-Chief at the capture of the Cape of Good Hope; and his achievements in Egypt procured him the Order of the Bath from his own sovereign, and the insignia of the Crescent from the Ottoman emperor. At the bombardment of Copenhagen he was wounded in the shoulder; and in the battle of Corunna lost an arm, soon after the fall of the gallant and lamented Sir John Moore. Sir David attained the rank of Gen. in the Army, and was Col. of the 24th Foot. He m. 4 Aug., 1810, Miss Preston Campbell, of Fern Tower and Locklane, Co. Perth, hart, dying without issue, 18 Aug., 1829, the baronetcy devolved, according to the limitation, upon his nephew, the present Sir David Baird, Bart.

BALCARES.

BALCARES, EARL OF (James Lindsay), Co. Fife, and Lord Lindsay of Cammerland, in the Peerage of Scotland; Baron Wigan, of Haighball, Co. Lancaster, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; b. 24 April, 1783; inherited the Scottish honors at the decease of his father, as 7th Earl, 27 March, 1825; acquired the Baronetcy of Wigan, by patent, dated June, 1826; m. Nov. 1811, the Hon. Maria-Margaret-Frances Pennington, only surviving child of John, 1st Lord Muncaster, and has issue,

1. ALEXANDER-WILLIAM-CRAWFORD, Lord Lindsay, b. 10 Oct., 1812.
2. James, b. 23 Aug., 1815.
3. Charles-Hugh, b. 11 Nov., 1816.
4. Colin, b. 6 Dec., 1819.

His Lordship is the acknowledged chief of the ancient house of Lindsay.

Lineage.

Sir William Dugdale mentions several considerable families of Lindsay in England, in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, observing, that the surname was first assumed by the proprietors of the lands and manor of Lindsay, Co. Essex. It is the opinion of Scotich antiquaries that one of these Lindsays, coming with King Malcolm Canmore into Scotland, and settling there, obtained the lands of Wachopdale, and other possessions from the Crown, and founded the family of Lindsay beyond the Tweed. It is certain that the Lindsays began to be of note in Scotland temp. Alexander I. (the son of Malcolm), who succeeded to the throne in 1107. From this era our limits compel us to pass to the close of the 14th century, when Sir David Lindsay, 7th feudal Lord of Crawford and Glenesk, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 21 April, 1386, as Earl of Crawford. "The Sir David Lindsay acted the principal part in the celebrated tournament at London Bridge, in May, 1380. John Lord Welles, ambassador from Richard II. to Scotland, at a solemn banquet, where the Scots and English were disgusting of deeds of arms, said, 'Let words have no place; if you know not the chivalry and valiant deeds of Englishmen, appoint me a day and place, where you list, and you shall have experience.' Whereupon, Sir David Lindsay assenting, Lord Welles selected London Bridge as the place for a trial of skill. Lindsay repaire to London with a gullant train of thirty persons; and, on the day appointed, appeared in the lists against Lord Welles. At the sound of trumpet they encountered each other, upon their barbed horses, with square grounden spears. In this adventure Lindsay sat so strong that, notwithstanding Lord Welles' spear was broken upon his helmet and visage, he stirred not, insomuch that the spectators cried out that, contrary to the laws of arms, he was bound to his saddle. Whereupon he dismounted, got on his horse again without assistance, and in the third course, threw Lord Welles out of his saddle to the ground. Then dismounting, he supported his adversary, and, with great humanity visitd him every day, till he recovered the effects of the fall." His Lordship m. Catharine Stewart, 5th dau. of Robert II., and was a. at his decease, 1412, by his eldest son, Alexander, 2nd Earl of Crawford, who m. Marjory, dau. and heiress of David Dunbar, of Cockburn, and grand-daughter of George, Earl of March, and had six sons, of whom Alexander, the 2nd, but eldest surviving, succeeded to the Earldom of Crawford, and the next, Walter Lindsay, styled of Kinlochhave, had charges of the Baronies of Aird and Bewford in 1429, and of the Barony of Panbride in 1463. He m. 1st, Sophia, dau. of Livington, of Saltcoats, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of William, Lord Livington, and had an only son, his successor,

Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell and Bewford, who was a. 1527, by his grandson,

Sir David Lindsay, of Estell and Glenesk (eldest son of Walter Lindsay, who fell at Flodden, 9 Sept., 1513.), to this gentleman, David, 7th Earl of Crawford, made an assignment of his title and estates, with the concurrence of the Crow and, upon the decease of that nobleman, in 1548, Sir David became 8th Earl of Crawford. He retained the dignity, however, for life only; and it returned to his death to the grandson of his predecessor. His Lordship m. Janet, dau. and heir of Andrew, 3rd Lord Gray, and had issue, Alexander Blair, of Balmoy, and of Thomas, 4th Lord Lovat, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir John Campbell, of Calder, and had,

David, (Sir) his successor, whose great great-grandson and lineal descendant,

John Lindsay, of Edzell, upon the extinction of the male line of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, by the death of George, Lord Spynie, 1672, becoming chief of the Lindsays, and entitling the arms upon which his ancestor, David, 8th Earl of Crawford, restored that dignity to David, grandson of the 7th Earl, to the Earldom of Crawford, preferred his claim to parliament, but unsuccessfully. (The Earlom of Crawford, and the estates of that branch of the Lindsays, was conferred, by act of parliament, in 1644, after the forfeiture of Ludovic, 14th Earl, upon John, 10th Lord Lindsay, of Byres, afterwards Earl of Crawford and Lindsay, Lord High Treasurer of Scotland.)

* Alexander, Master of Crawford, and his brother, John Lindsay, having resolved, felth and intrapthir their father, David, 7th Earl of Crawford, were disinherited in consequence by his Lordship, who assigned by deed, dated 20 Dec. 1841, with the approbation of his mother, his honours and estates to his only son, and next male heir existing after these ones, Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell (mentioned above) and the said David inherited at the Earl's decease, in 1842, (the Master of Crawford) and his brother, in consequence the claim thereof, for failure heirs male of this David's body, the estate and honours of Crawford should descend to the heirs male of Edzell. He likewise reserved to himself the title for life, with sufficient property to maintain his rank. Upon the demise then of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the honors, etc., should certainly have descended to the ancestor of Lord Balcarres.

+ Sir Alexander Lindsay, 4th son of David, ninth Earl of Crawford, was created by James VI. a peer of parliament, with the title of Lord Spynie. His Lordship was a. by his son, Alexander, 2nd Lord Spynie, who d. 1616, and was a. by his only surviving son,

George, 3rd Lord Spynie. At the death of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the representation of the family of Lindsay devolved upon this nobleman, and upon his decease, in 1827, John Lindsay, of Edzell, ancestor of the Lords Balcarres, became (as in the text) head of the ancient house of Lindsay. On the title of Spynie, the Lords of Session, in their return to the House of Peers, 1740, observed that the patent of creation has not been found in the records, nor has any person sat in parliament under the title since 1699, neither has any person claimed a vote in virtue thereof at any election since the union.
Lindsay, of Edzell's male line ceased with his grandson, David Lindsay, in 1744, and the representation of the Lindsays then devolved upon the descendant of John Lindsay, David, 3rd Lord Crawford's 2nd son, of whom we are about more particularly to treat.

John, of whom presently.

Robert, of Balhaur.

Walter, Sir, of Kempshill.

James, in Holy Orders, Elisabeth, m. to Patrick Lord Drummond.

Margaret, m. to John Innesworth.

The second son,

John Lindsay, a very eminent Scottish lawyer, was made one of the senators of the College of Justice in 1634, was sworn of the Privy-Council in 1655, and in the following year appointed a Commissioner of the Treasury and Secretary of State, when he resigned the post of Lord of Session in favour of his brother, Sir David Lindsay. This eminent person was also one of the eight Magnates Scottici, constituted Governors of the kingdom, who were designated Octaviani. He m. Margaret, dau, of Alexander Guthrie, burgess of Edinburgh, relic of David Bothwick, of Lochlith, King's Advocate, and had two sons and three daughters. He obtained, by charter, in 1691, the estate of Balcarres, now called the Earl's, at his decease in 1658, by his elder son, John Lindsay, 2nd Lord Balcarres, who d. in minoria, Jan. 1691, and was s. by his brother, Sir David Lindsay, of Balcarres, who was elevated to the Peersage of Scotland, 27 June, 1633, by the title of Lord Lindsay, of Balcarres. His Lordship, m. Sophia, dau. of Alexander, Earl of Dunfermline, and was s. at his decease 1641, by his only son, Alexander, 2nd Baron, who, for his great loyalty and eminent services, was advanced, 9 Jan., 1651, to the Earldom of Balcarres. His Lordship was made Heritable Governor of the Castle of Edinburgh, Secretary of State, and Commissioner to the General Assembly. He m. Anna, dau, and co-heir of Colin, 1st Earl of Seaforth, and had issue, Charles and Colin, and three daughters, Ann, who d. a unmarried; Sophia, m. to Hon. Col. Charles Campbell; and Harriet, to Sir Duncan Campbell, Bart. of Auchinnieick. The Earl d. 30 Aug., 1656, and was s. by his eldest son,

Charles, 3rd Earl. This nobleman dying unstately, the honors devolved upon his brother,

Colin, 3rd Earl. His Lordship, a staunch adherent of the house of Stewart, was obliged at the Revolution to retire to the continent, where he remained in exile for ten years. He obtained at length permission to return, but afterwards (1715) joining the standard of the Chalybes, he owed his safety to his friend, the Duke of Marlborough and the Earl of Danby. His Lordship m. four times; 1st, Lady Mauritia de Nassau, by whom he had no surviving issue; 2ndly, Jean, eldest dau. of David, Earl of Northesk, by whom he had a dau.; 3rdly, Jean, dau. of William, Earl of Roxburg, and had a son, who d. unmarried, and a dau., Margaret, m. to John Earl of Wigtown. Balfour.

Balfour, Sir Patrick, of Denmiln, Co. Fife; inherited the title, as 8th Bert, at the decease of his brother.

Liturugr.

The surname of Balfour was originally assumed from the barony and castle of Balfour, a beautiful seat, standing near the confluence of the rivers Or and Leven. And so early as the year 1229, we find Ingebratamus de Balfour, Vicecomes de Fife, a witness to a charter granted to the monastery of Aberbrothick. (For a full account of the Balfour family, see Burke's History of the Commoners.)
BALL

This very ancient baronetcy remained dormant from the demise of Sir George, 6th Bart., about the middle of the last century, until the present Bart. established his right, in Nov. 1821.

Lineage.

This family, whose surname was anciently written " De Bannewall, " " Berneval, " and " Barnewall, " has preserved its lineage from remote antiquity, and claims, among its earliest progenitors, personages of the most eminent renown. It is the parent stock whence the noble houses of Kingsland and Trimbleston have branched, and the name of its patrionic is to be found, with the other companions in arms of the Conqueror, in the Roll of Battle Abbey. In Ireland, the Barnewalls come under the denomination of " Strongbowmen," having established themselves there in 1172, under the banner of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke.

SIR MICHAEL DE BARNEWALL, Knt., the first settler, joined the English expedition, with three armed ships, and effected a descent upon Beehaven, Co. Cork, previously to the landing of his chief, Earl Strongbow, in Leinster. Sir Michael is mentioned in the records at the Tower of London, as one of the leading captains in the enterprise; and, in the reigns of Henry II. and of Richard I., he was lord, by tenure, of Beehaven and Bantry. From this gallant and successful soldier, we pass to—

SIR ULPHEM DE BARNEWALL, Knt., the tenth in descent, first possessor of Crickstown Castle and estate, and the founder of what is to this day termed the " Crichtown branch " of the family. The great grandson of this Sir Ulpheum was—

ULPHEAM DE BARNEWALL, (fourth of the same christian name), m. dau. of the Lord Farnival, and left three sons, Christopher, (Sir of the 1st Lord Trimbleston. John, ancestor of the Viscounts Kingsland. Barnard, (Sir), an eminent lawyer, who became Lord-Chief-Baron of the Exchequer. The eldest son, SIR CHRISTOPHER BARNEWALL, (as the name began then to be spelt), succeeded to the patrimonial estate of Crickstown, and was, in 1445, and 1449, Clerk of the Court of King's Bench, and Lord High-Treasourer of Ireland. He m. Matilda, dau of Sir — Drake, of Drakeath, and had two sons: the younger, Robert, was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 4 March, 1661, as Baron Trimbleston. While the elder,

SIR NICHOLAS BARNEWALL, his father, and, having been brought up to the profession of the law, was appointed, in consideration of his good and faithful services to the House of York, during the war of the Roses, Chief-Justice of the Common Pleas, in Ireland, for life, by patent, dated 1 Aug., 1461, He m. His Lordship s. to the honors, as 6th Viscount, at the decease of his father, 5 March, 1829.

Lineage.

This family, formerly bearing the surname of Shuttle, is of Norman origin, and while the Duchi was an appellation of the Crown of England, the ruins of Shuttle Castle, their Normanlike possession, were still to be seen; there were several monuments besides throughout the Principality, commemorative of the family.

John Shuttle, Esq., Barrister-at-Law (only surviving son of Benjamin Shuttle, Esq.), inherited, by will, although unallied, and but slightly known, to the testator, the estate of John Wildman, Esq. of Becket, Co. Kilkenny. Mr. Wildman declaring that the only reason he had for making Mr. Shuttle his heir, was that he considered him the most worthy of all his acquaintance of adopting, after the manner of the Romans, a mode of settling property which he had always approved. In a few years afterwards, Mr. Shuttle obtained another property by settlement,—that of Francis Barrington, Esq. of Toffs, Co. Essex, who had m. his cousin, Elizabeth, dau. of Samuel Shuttle, Sheriff of London, and d. without issue. In pursuance of this settlement, Mr. Shuttle, by act of parliament, the surname and arms of "Barrington." He was returned twice to parliament for Berwick-upon-Tweed; but, on the last return, 1722, the Commons, taking into consideration the Harbough lottery, came to a resolution that the honorable member had promoted and carried on that fraudulent undertaking, and therefore expelled him from the House, 15 Feb., 1722. He had previously been elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 1 July, 1720, by the titles of Baron Barrington, of Newcastle, Co. Dublin, and Viscount Barrington, of Ardglass, Co. Down. His Lordship m. BAS

Basset, Baroness (Frances Basset), of Stratton, Cornwall, b. 1 May, 1751, inherited the Peerage, at the decease of her father John Francis, Lord De Dunstanville and Basset, 5 Feb., 1835.

Lineage.

Immediately after the Norman Conquest arose into power and importance, particularly in the midland counties, the great baronial family of Basset, which gave a Chief-Justice to England in the reign of Henry I., in the person of Ralph Basset; from whom sprang the Lords Basset of Drayton, the Lords Basset of Haddington, &c. (See Ryder's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) About the middle of the 12th century, the Bassetts of Cornwall obtained the estate of Tehidy by marriage with the heiress of the great house of De Dunstanville; from that period they appear to have enjoyed considerable wealth and influence until the civil wars, when we find three brothers of the Bassetts all eminently distinguished in the Royal cause—namely Sir Francis Basset, Sheriff of Cornwall, Sir Thomas Basset, Major-Generals in the royal army. Sir Arthur Basset.

Sir Francis Basset, the Sheriff, was with the King at Leicester, when Essex's army surrendered; and his Majesty, Sir Francis relates in a letter to his wife, then says to him, "I now leave, Mr. Sheriff, the county of Cornwall to your protection." (Owing, however, to the large sums of money disbursed in this unhappy struggle, the family estate became considerably reduced; but it was at length retrieved by the marriages of the grand father and grandfather of the present Peeress, with heiresses. The former m. Miss Hele, and the latter Miss Pendraves of this last union,

John-Pendraves Basset, Equ., was the son and heir. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of Sir Edmund Prideaux, Bart. of Netherton, and, dying in 1766, was s. by his posthumous son,

John-Pendraxes Basset, Equ., at whose decease in minority, 28 May, 1765, the estates reverted to his uncle,

Francis Basset, Equ. of Turley, in Northamptonshire, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John St. Asby, of Clowance, Co. Cornwall, Bart., and, dying in Nov., 1769, left issue, Francis, his heir.

John, in Holy Orders, b. 4 Oct., 1790, Mary, dau. of George Wingfield, Equ., and d. 20 May, 1812, leaving a son, John, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

LINEAGE.

It appears, from documents in possession of this noble family, that its ancient surname was Botville; and under that name it enjoyed lands in the manor of Stretton, in Shropshire, for many generations, from the time of King John; in whose reign, the brothers, Sir Geoffrey and Oliver Botville, persons of great eminence and rank in Poitou, came over to England, according to Matthew Paris, in order to assist the king against his rebellious Barons. The surname of Thynne is said to have originated with John Botville, who, from residing in one of the Inns of Court, was denominated "John o' Th' Inne," and thence "Thynne." The eldest son of this John o' Th' Inne, Ralph Botville, of Thynne, m. Anne, dau. of John Higginson of Stretton, and had, with other issue,

Thomas, his successor, William, Master of the Household to HENRY VIII., who collected and published the works of Chaucer, with notes, 1512. He was father of Francis Thynne, Lancaster Herald.

Ralph Thynne was s. by his eldest son,
THOMAS THYNNE, of Stretton, who m. Margaret, dau. and at length, heiress, of Thomas Eynes, Esq., of Stretton (which lady was grand-daughter, maternally, of Humphrey Gatacre, Esquire of the Body to HENRY VI., who was descended, through females, from Sir Richard Penhurges, K.G. See BURKE'S COMMONWEALTH, Vol. III. page 206.) Thomas Thynne was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN THYNNE. This gentleman laid the foundation, Jan., 1570, of the magnificent mansion at Longleat, Co. Wiltz, from which time the building was carried on until 1728, so that twelve entire years were consumed in its erection. This is said to be the first well-built house in the kingdom. The stone and timber were Sir John's own; and, beside carriage and days of gifts, the edifice cost, according to threefolio books in the possession of the Marquess of Bath, £9066. 15. 0. BATHURST.

BATHURST, EARL OF (Henry-George Bathurst, D.C.L.), Baron Bathurst, of Battlesden, and Baron Apseley, of Apseley, Co. Sussex, b. 24 Feb., 1790. His Lordship s. to the honors, as 4th Earl, at the decease of his father, 26 July, 1834.

Bathurst, the earls of, were originally seated at a place called Bathurst, in Sussex, not far from Battle Abbey, but were despoiled of their possessions there in the war of the Roses. Their castle was demolished, and no vestige of the Lordship remained save a wood, called Bathurstwood, in which some of the ruins of the edifice might be traced.

Lawrence Bathurst, who, in the time of Henry VI., was seated at Cranbrook, in Kent, within a few miles of the ancient castle, left at his decease, three sons, Edward, ancestor of the Earls, Robert, of Horsmanden, and John, of Staplehurst.

Edward Bathurst, the eldest son, was father of Lawrence Bathurst, an Alderman of London, who, in the beginning of Elizabeth's reign, was possessed of the manor of Franks, in Kent, and erected a large mansion-house there. Mr. Alderman Bathurst's eldest son, Randolph, inherited Franks. His youngest, George Bathurst, Esq., m. 1610, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Edward Villiers, Esq., of Howtharte, Co. Northampton, and, acquiring that estate by the alliance, settled there. Of this marriage there were thirteen sons and four daughters; six of Henry Charles, Lord Castlereagh, and of the service of Charles L., during the civil wars. The seventh son, Benjamin Bathurst, was a distinguished wit, and a celebrated Latin poet. The youngest son, Sir Benjamin Bathurst, 3rd, was elected, in the reign of Charles II., Governor of the Royal African Company, and in the years 1696 and 1697, Governor of the East India Company. He was afterwards Treasurer of the Household to the Princess Anne, of Denmark, and, on her accession to the throne, Sir Benjamin was constituted Her Majesty's Cofferer. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir Allen Apseley, of Apseley, in Sussex, and, dying 27 April, 1794, left issue:

2. Emily Blanche Charlotte. v. (a daughter.)

His Grace s. to the honours as 7th Duke, at the decease of his father, 23rd Nov., 1835.

BEAUFORT.

Charles Somerset, of whom presently. He was s. in his honours by his brother, Edward, Duke of Somerset, who shared a similar fate 2 July, 1171, and dying issueless, as did his younger brother John, the male line of John of Gaunt terminated, as well as the descendants of Catherine Swinfon, as of his first wife, Blanche, mother of Henry IV.

Charles Somerset, mentioned above as the illegitimate son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, being a person of extraordinary endowments, of national importance, and of the most important diplomatic missions; and was subsequently created a Knight Banneret, made a Knight of the Garter, and appointed Captain of the Guards, A.D. 1406. Sir Charles obtained in marriage Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of William Herbert, Earl of Huntington, Lord Herbert of Ragland, Chester, and Gower; in whose right he assumed the title of Lord Herbert, and was summoned to Parliament as such, in the first year of Henry V.

His Lordship was constituted Earl Chamberlain for life, as a reward for the distinguished part he had in the taking of Tournai, and by the castle of Boulogne, and was created Earl of Worchester, 2 Feb. 1313-4.

The Earl had two wives, beside the heiress of Huntingdon; namely, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Wrey, of de la Wore, by whom he had several children; and Eleanor, dau. of Sir Edward Souton, of Longeslady. His Lordship d. 15 April, 1355, and was s. by the only son of his first marriage, Henry, 2nd Earl of Worchester, who received the honour of his stepfather, during the French campaign, from Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Anthony Browne, Standard-Bearer to Henry V, and dying, 20 Nov., 1349, was s. by his eldest son,

William, 3rd Earl, K.G. This nobleman was sent into France, in 1373, with a font of pure gold, for the baptismal ceremony of a dau. of Charles IX. of that kingdom, at which he was to stand, in the Queen of England's stead, as one of the sponsors. His Lordship m. Christian, dau. of Edward North, Lord North, of Cathlade, and dying, 21 Feb. 1380, was s. by his only son,

Edward, 4th Earl, K.G. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Francis, Earl of Huntingdon, and had several children; whom Thomas, the 3rd son, was made Mnt. of the Bath, 1604-5, and created, 8 Dec., 1629, Viscount Somerset, of Cask, Co. Tipperary. The Earl d. 3 March, 1622-3, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, Henry, 5th Earl, who had been educated in the life-time of his father, to the first parliament of James I. This nobleman took a decided part in favor of Charles I. and maintained his castle of Ragland, with a garrison of 800 men, without leaving any contributions upon the country, from 1631 to 1642, and only surrendered it, eventually, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, on most honorable conditions. This castle was amongst the last places in England from whose battlements the Royal Banner bade defiance to treason; but, after its capitulation, the surrounding parks cut down and sold by the Committee of Sequestration; occasioning a loss to the noble proprietor, moderately estimated at £100,000. The Earl was advanced to the dignity of Mnt. of the Wore, 2 Nov. 1641, and, as only child of John, Lord Russell, and dying, in 1640, was s. by his eldest son, Edward, 3rd Marquess. This nobleman, like his father, attaching himself zealously to the Royal cause, was appointed, by Charles I., Lord Lieut. of North Wales, and addressed by his Majesty as Earl of Clun, until he succeeded to his heritable honours.

King Charles is charged with deputing this lord ("whose religion," says Lord Clarendon, "was of that sort of Catholics the people rendered them odious, by accusing to be most Jesuitical") to negotiate with the Irish rebel Catholics, and to bring over a great body of them for the King's service. The parliament complained. The King disavowed the Earl. But this mysterious affair has been treated at great length by Doctor Birch; and the doctor strenuously urges that the King was not privy to the negotiations. The Marquess of Worcester left behind him a literary work, entitled "A century of the names and scannings of such inventions as at present I can call to mind to have tried and perfected, which (may former notes being lost) I have, at the instance of a powerful friend, endeavour'd now, in the year 1755, to set down in such a way as may sufficiently instruct me to put any of them to practice." First printed in 1763. In this work the power and applicability of the Steam Engine is distinctly described. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Dormer, Kut., and had Haney, Lord Herbert, and two dau.s, Anne m. to Henry Howard, son of the Earl of Arundel, and Elizabeth, Marchioness of Powis. He espoused 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Henry O'Brien, Earl of Thomond, but by that Lady had no surviving issue. He d. 3 April 1607, and was s. by his son, Haney, 3rd Marquess, who was created Duke of Brapport, 2 Dec., 1689. His Grace, refusing to sub- serve the King in an allegiance to the Duke of Monmouth, lived in retirement after the accession of that monarch. He m. Mary, dau. of Arthur, Lord Capel, and widow of Henry, Lord Bencham, by whom he had five sons and four dau.s; of the former the eldest, Charles, Viscount of Worcester, m. Rebecca, dau. of Sir Josiah Child, of Wansūt, Co. Essex, and sister of Richard, Earl Tilley, and had surviving issue, 1 Henry. 2 Henrietta, m. 1713, to Charles, Duke of Grafton. His Lordship d. in the life-time of his father, 13 July, 1722, from the effects of a fall in jumping from his carriage. The Duke d. 21 Jan., 1769, and was s. by his grandson, Haney, 2nd Duke, K.G., b. 2 April, 1684. His Grace m. 1st, 1702, Mary, only dau. of Charles Sackville, Earl of Dorset, but had no surviving issue. He espoused 2ndly, 1707, Rachel, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Baptist Noel, Earl of Gainsborough, by whom he had two sons, Henry and Charles-Noel. The Duke m. 3rdly, Mary, youngest dau. of Peregrine Osborne, Duke of Leeds; without issue. His Grace d. 24 May, 1711, and was s. by his elder son, Haney, 3rd Duke, who m. 28 June, 1729, Frances, only child and heir of Sir James Scandmore, of Hone Lacy, Co. Hereford, Viscount Scandmore, in the Peerage of England, from whom he received the title of Duke of Grafton, in the year 1743. (The lady wedded subsequently Charles Fitz- ray, natural son of the 1st Duke of Grafton, by whom she left one dau, Frances, heiress to the Scandmore estates, who m. Charles, late Duke of Norfolk.) The Duke dying without issue, 24 Feb., 1745-6, the honour devolved upon his brother, Charles-Noel, 4th Duke. His Grace m. 1 May, 1740, Elisabeth, dau. of John Berkeley, Esq. of Stoke Gifford, Co. Gloucester, and sister of Norborne, Lord Botetourt, whose Barony her Grace inherited; by whom he had one son, Haney, his heir, and five dau.s; Anne m. to Charles, Earl of Northampton; Elizabeth, d. unm.; Rachel, d. in infancy; Henrietta, m. to Sir W. Wynn, Bart.; and Mary Isabella, m. to Charles, Duke of Rutland. 1 The Duke d. 20 Oct., 1756, and was s. by his only son, Haney, 5th Duke, L.L.D.; b. 10 Oct., 1744; m. 2 April, 1776, Elizabeth, dau. of the Hon. Admiral Boscowan, and by that lady (who d. 15 June, 1768) had issue, 1. Henry-Charles, Marquess of Worcester. 1. [545.]

His Grace succeeded to the honours, as 6th Duke, at the decease of his patriarchal and deeply lamented brother, Francis, unmarried, 2 March, 1802.

XINNAG.

Amongst the British nobility there is not a more illustrious house than that of Russell; the name is interwoven with the brightest achievements in the records of England, and it has been borne, at different periods, by statesmen, warriors, and patriots, as sage, as gallant, and as disinterested, as ever guided her councils, unfurled her banners, or bled for her freedom.

Sir RALPH RUSSELL, Knt.,* son and heir of John Russell, Constable of Curfe Castle, anno 1221, m. Isabel, one of the daws. and co-heirs of James Newmarsh, feudal Baron of Newmarsh and Derham, Co. Dorset, and left, with other issue,

Sir William Russell, of Kingston-Russell, Dorsetshire, M.P., in the 1st of Edward II., for the Co. of Southampton, who m. 1st, Eleanor, only dau. and heirress of Thomas de Ault, Lord of Yaverland, and 2ndly, Jane, dau. and co-heir of Robert Peverel. He d. in 1311, and was 2dly by his 2nd wife,

Sir Theobald Russell, who m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of Ralph de Gorges, Baron Gorges, and heir of her brother, Ralph Gorges, by whom he had a son, Ralph, who assumed his maternal surname and arms of Gorges (see RUSKIN'S RUSTIC PEOPLES). Sir Theobald espoused, 2ndly, Eleanor, dau. of John de la Tour, of Berwick, Co. Dorset, by whom he was father of William Russell, whose great-grandson, John Russell, of Kingston-Russell, m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heirs of John Herings, and was father of

Sir John Russell, Knt. Speaker of the House of Commons, in the 2nd and 3rd of Henry VI. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heirress of John Frercke, and was 1stly by his eldest son, James Russell, who m. Alice, dau. and heirress of John Wyse, Esq., and, dying in the 1st year of Henry VIII., left 1stly, the elder of whom,

John Russell, and to be one of the most accomplished gentlemen of his time, resided at Berwick, about four miles from Bridport, Co. Dorset, and obtained a favourable introduction to Court through one of those unexpected incidents which may be attributed solely to good fortune. In the 25th of Henry VII. (1562), the Archduke Philip of Austria, only son of the Emperor Maximilian I., and husband of Joanna, dau. of Ferdinand and Isabella, King and Queen of Castile and Aragon, having encountered a violent hurricane in his passage from Flanders to Spain, was driven into Weymouth, where he landed, and was hospitably received by Sir Thomas Trenchard, Knt., a gentleman of rank in the neighbourhood. Sir Thomas immediately apprised the Court of the circumstance, and in the interim, while waiting for instructions what course to adopt, invited his first cousin, Mr. Russell, then recently returned from his travels, to wait upon the Prince. His Imperial Highness, fascinated by Mr. Russell's companionable qualities, desired that he should accompany him to Windsor, whither the King had invited His Highness to repair; on the journey we are informed that the Archduke became still more pleased with his attendant's "learned discourse and generous deportment," and recommended him strongly to the King. Mr. Russell was, in consequence, taken immediately into

BELHAVEN.

Belhaven and Stenton, Baron (Robert Montgomery-Hamilton), in the Peerage of Scotland, and Baron Hamilton, of Wishaw, in that of the United Kingdom, b. 1793; s. to the Scottish dignity, as 8th Baron, upon the demise of his father, 29 Oct., 1814; and upon the Peerage of the United Kingdom, by letters patent, dated Sept. 1, 1831. He succeeded his uncle, m. Dec., 1815, Hamilton, dau. of Walter Campbell, Esq. of Shawfield.
BEL

Lineage.

John Hamilton, of Broomhill, natural brother of James Hamilton of Arran, had a letter of legitimation under the Great Seal of Scotland, 20 Jan., 1613; and, dying about 1630, was s. by his elder son.

John Hamilton, of Broomhill, whose grandson, Sir John Hamilton, of Broomhill, afterwards of Beli, was created 15 Dec., 1647, for his loyalty to Charles I., Baron Belhaven and Stenton to Haddington. His Lordship, having no male heirs, surrendered his Baronry to the Crown, and obtained a new patent, 10 Feb., 1675, in favour, after his own death, of the husband of one of his granddaughters, John Hamilton, and the heirs male of that gentleman. Lord Belhaven, m. Margaret, natural dau. of James, Marquesa of Hamilton, and had issue,

1. Margaret, m. to Sir Samuel Ballif, of Lamington.
2. Anne, m. Sir Robert Hamilton, Bart., of Silvertown Hill, and had, with two sons and three other daus.,

Margaret, m. to Sir John Hamilton, of whom presently, as Lord Belhaven and Stenton.

III. Elizabeth, m. Alexander, 1st Viscount Kingston. Lord Belhaven and Stenton, 6. 1670, when the barony devolved, according to the letter, upon the eldest son of Sir Robert Hamilton, of Pressmenan, one of the senators of the College of Justice (who was husband, as stated above, of the deceased Lord's grand-dau., Margaret),

Sir John Hamilton, of Bcl, as 2nd Baron. This nobleman was a Lord of the Treasury, 1794, and was a zealous and eloquent opponent of the Union, 1706. He had two sons,

John, his successor.

James, a member of the faculty of Advocates, and Solicitor of the Board of Customs and Excise in Scotland, d. p. 28 June, 1732.

His Lordship was committed to the Tower of London, as an ally of the Chevalier St. George, in 1706, and died of an inflammation of the brain, almost immediately after his release, 21 June, 1732. He was s. by his elder son,

John, 3rd Baron, one of the representative Peers, who, having been appointed Governor of Barbadoes, 1721, was drowned in his passage to that island. He m. Anne, dau. of Andrew Bruce, merchant in Edinburgh, and had issue,

John, his successor.

Andrew, an Officer in the Army, d. unm.

James, who s. as 5th Lord.

Robert, a Major in the Army, d. unm.

Margaret, m. to Sir Alexander Baird.

His Lordship was s. by his elder son,

John, 4th Baron, who d. unm., 1704, and was s. by his brother,

James, 5th Baron, who also d. unm., 23 Jan., 1777, and the Peerage remained some years successively dormant.

By virtue of an entail of the 2nd Lord Belhaven, 1701, confirmed in the last, 1703, the husbands of the heirs female being excluded from inheriting the property, and the whole male descendants of the 2nd Lord's father, Lord Pressmenan, having entirely failed, the family estates, of great value, devolved upon Mrs. Mary Hamilton Nisbet of Paiscaitlean, and she accordingly served her heir to James, 5th Lord Belhaven, 3 Dec., 1708. The whole male descendants of James Hamilton, of Barnieuth, from which the 2nd Lord sprang, having likewise failed, the Barony of Belhaven and Stenton devolved on Robert Hamilton, of Wishaw, being the heir male whatever, that is, the nearest male heir existing to the collateral line of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, according to the usual course of descent established by the law of Scotland. By this course of descent, it is settled, that in the case of three brothers, should the middle brother fail, the younger, and if the elder, is entitled to succeed as heir male. The founder of the family, John Hamilton, of Udson, had three sons, viz. —

BEL

John Hamilton, of Coltness.

James Hamilton, of Barncleuch, whose descendant inherited as 2nd Lord Belhaven.

William Hamilton, of Wishaw.*

The title of Lord Belhaven was assumed by William Hamilton, Capt. of the 44th regiment of Foot, lineal descendent and heir male of John Hamilton, of Coltness, the elder of the three brothers; and he voted, at the general election, in 1790, as Lord Belhaven. An objection was taken however to his right; and evidence was given that there were male descendants of the body of William Hamilton, of Wishaw, the youngest of the three brothers; consequently the character of heir male whatever of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, the patentee of 1768, could not belong to the gentleman who had assumed the dignity. This argument was supported by the Attorney-Gen. attending on behalf of the Crown; and the Lords' Committee of Privileges unanimously decided, 3 Jan., 1793, that the votes given at the election, by the assumed Lord Belhaven, were not good, and that resolution was confirmed by the House of Peers. Soon after the settlement of this point, William Hamilton, of Wishaw, eldest son and heir of Robert Hamilton, presented to the King a petition, claiming the dignity and title of Lord Belhaven and Stenton; and this petition, although referred to the House of Peers, the claim was determined in his favor, 25 April, 1790, and he became

William, 7th Baron of Belhaven and Stenton (his father, Robert Hamilton, being counted the 6th Lord, although he had ever assumed the dignity). His Lordship was b. 13 Jan., 1768, and m. 3 March, 1780, Penelope, youngest dau. of Ronald MacDonald, of Clandonald, by whom (who d. 1815) he had issue,

William, who inherited Wishaw.

Mr. Hamilton, m. 2ndly, 1675, Mary, eldest dau. of the Hon. Sir Charles Erskine, Bart., and grand-dau. of John, 7th Earl of Mars, by whom he had five sons and six daus.

The 3rd son,

William, of the English bar, m. Helen, dau. of David Hay, of Woodcockle, Co. Lintilthgow, and had an only son,

The Right Hon. William-Gerard Hamilton, Secretary of State, for Ireland, and afterwards Chancellor of the Exchequer in that kingdom. This gentleman, so well known as "Hamble," was the reputed author of "Speeches." He d. unm., 1790.

William Hamilton, of Wishaw, d. 1724, and was s. by his grandson,

William Hamilton, of Wishaw, m. Bertha, dau. of his uncle, Charles Hamilton, of Wetherby; and being killed by a fall from his horse, 16 April, 1726, was s. by his eldest surviving son, Robert Hamilton, of Wishaw, who, upon the demise of James, 5th Lord Belhaven and Stenton, in 1777, should have succeeded as 6th Lord; but he never assumed the honor. He m. 1764, Susan, 2nd dau. of Sir James Balfour, Bart., of Denmill, in Fife, and dyedg, 27 March, 1784, left issue,

William, who had his claim confirmed, as 7th Lord Belhaven.

Bellew, Sir Patrick, of Barmeath, or Bellew Mount, Co. Louth; b. 29 Jan., 1798; m. 19 Jan., 1829, Anna-Fernina, only surviving dau. of the late Don Jose de Mendozas y Rios, of Seville, by whom he has a son and heir, Edward-Joseph, b. 3 June, 1830.

Sir Patrick, who is M.P. and Lord-Lieut. for the Co. of Louth, is to the title as 7th Bart., at the decease of his father, 15 March, 1827.

Lineage.

This very ancient family is of Norman descent, and its founder in England is supposed to have been a Marshal in the army of the Conqueror. It was amongst the first Anglo-Norman settlers in Ireland, and it has always enjoyed, in that quarter of the empire, distinction and opulence.

I. Patrick Bellew, Esq. of Barmeath, or Bellew Mount (son of Sir John Bellew, of Wiltshire, Knt., M.P. for the Co. Louth, 1628, by Mary, dau. of Robert Dillon, Esq. of Connrock) was created a Bart. of Ireland, 11 Dec., 1688. Patrick m. BELLINGHAM.

Bellingham, Sir Alan Edward, of Castle Bellingham, Co. Louth; b. 8 Oct., 1800; s. his father, 27 Aug., 1827.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the town of Bellingham, in Northumberland, and it deduces its pedigree in a direct line from

Alan de Bellingham, living in time of the Conques, whose descendant,

Alan Bellingham, purchased Levens, near Kendal, in Henry VII.'s reign, and erected a mansion there, which subsequently became the chief residence of his successors.

The great-grandson of this Alan,

Sir James Bellingham, Knt., m. Agnes, dau. of Sir Henry Curwen, Knt. of Worthington, in Cumberland, and had, with other issue,

Thomas,

Henry, of Halsington, Co. Westmorland, who was created a Bart. 1829, and the title became extinct 1850.

Sir James d. 1641, and the male line of the family was eventually carried on by his 3rd son,

Alan Bellingham, Esq. of Levens, b. 1596, who m. Susan, dau. of Marmaduke Constable, Esq. of Mahaun, Co. York, and had a large family, of which the 2nd son,

Henry Bellingham, Esq., went over to Ireland during the civil war, and had a grant of the estate now called Castle Bellingham, which was confirmed to him in the 18th year of Charles II. This gentleman represented the Co. Louth in parliament. He m. Miss Suburb, and was s. by his only son,

Thomas Bellingham, Esq. of Castle Bellingham, who was Col. in the army of William, and acted as his Majesty's guide, during the march of the army from Dundalk to the Boyne. Col. Bellingham m. 1717, Abigail, dau. of — Handcock, and, dying 13 Sept., 1721, was s. by his only son, BERKELEY.

BERKELEY, EARL OF (Thomas—Morton—Fitz-Hardingke Berkerley), Viscount Dursley, and Baron Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle, Co. Gloucester, one of the heirs to the Barones of Mowhray, Segrave, and Broase of Gower; b. 19 Oct., 1796; r. to the honors, as 6th Earl, at the decease of his father, 8 Aug., 1810.

Lincage.

Robert Fitzhardinge (whose father was one of the companions of William the Conqueror) obtained for his family, the Lordship of Berkeley, and Berkeley-Herne, of which

Roger de Berkeley,* owner of Dursley, was then divested, for taking part with Stephen. This Robert Fitzhardinge entertained at Bristol, in 1180, Dermot Mac Murrough, King of Leinster, with sixty of his retainers, at the time the Irish patriot was engaged in his successful expeditions from Henry II. He d. 1170-71, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

Maurice de Berks, who m. Alice, dau. of Roger de Berkeley, the former and ousted possessor of Berkeley and Dursley, and had six sons. His d. 1190, and was s. by the eldest,

Roger de Berkeley, who espoused the Baronial cause, and thus concurred to the displeasure of John, but was restored to Royal favour; falling again from his allegiance, the Castle and Lands of Berkeley were seized by the Crown, and their profits assigned for the maintenance of the Castle of Bristol. He was subsequently, however, put into possession of all his lands, except Berkeley Castle, and, dying 13 May, 1219, without issue, was s. by his brother,

Thomas de Berkeley, to whom Berkeley Castle was granted 1223. This feudal Lord m. Joan, dau. of Ralph de Somery, Lord of Campden, Co. Gloucester, and, dying 1243, was s. by his eldest son,

Maurice de Berks, this eminent person had military sumptuosis to march against the Welsh, in the 3rd, 4th and 44th Henry III., and the next year he had command to attend the King in London, well appointed with horse and arms, to take part against the Barons, then to open hostility, but he appears to have adopted an opposite course, and to have joined the insurgent lord's, for which his lands were seized by the Crown. This Maurice m. Isabel, dau. of Maurice de Core, a great Baron in Lincolnshire, by Isabel his wife, sister to William de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, juterine sister and brother of Henry III., and dying 4 April, 1291, was s. by his eldest son,

Thomas de Berkeley, who was with the King at the siege of Kenilworth Castle, Oct., 1295, and afterwards in the Welsh wars, for which eminent services, he had a special grant, temp. Edward I. of liberty to hunt the fox, hare, badger and wild cat, with his own dogs, within the King's forests of Mendip and Chase of kingswood; after thus we find him engaged in Scotland, and participating in the victory of Falkirk, gained 22 July, 1296. He was subsequently at the celebrated siege of Kneavencock, and was summoned to Parliament as a Baron from 23 June, 1295, to 15 May, 1321. His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and was s. 1321, by his eldest son, Maurice de Berkeley, 2nd Lord, who had summons to Parliament as Lord Berkeley, of Berkeley, on 6 Aug., 1308, in 15 May, 1321. In 1312, his Lordship was nominated Governor of Gloucester, and in 1414, Governor of the town and castle of Hereford—Tweed. In 1315, he was constituted Justice of South Wales, and had the custody of all the castles there. In 1319, by the title of the King's beloved kinman, he was made Steward of the duchy of Aquitaine; but in 1321, joining Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, he was committed prisoner to Wallingford Castle, where he d. 31 May, 1326, leaving, with other issue, by his wife Eva, dau. of Eudo le Zouche.

Thomas, his successor, Maurice, 1st from whom descended the Lord Bорт- tourt, and the Lords Berkeley of Stratatto.

His Lordship's eldest son,

Thomas, succeeded as 3rd Lord, and was summoned to Parliament from 14 June. 1329, to 20 Nov., 1339. To this nobleman the custody of the unhappy Edward II. was committed at Berkeley Castle: but, owing to the humanity with which his Lordship treated the captive monarch, he was soon after obliged to deliver the castle and his prisoner to Lord Maltravers and Sir Thomas Tournay. After the murder of the unfortunate Prince, Lord Berkeley was arraigned as a participator in the foul deed, but honorably acquainted. His Lordship d. 27 Oct., 1361, and was s. by his eldest son by his first wife, Margaret, dau. of Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March, and widow of Robert Vere, Earl of Oxford.

Maurice, 4th Lord, summoned to parliament, 28 Feb., 1483, and succeeded his father. He was slain at the battle of Barnet in April 1485, and was succeeded by his eldest son.

Thomas, his successor. He was succeeded by his eldest son, and heir of Sir John Bluet, Knt., with whom he had the manor of Ragland, and a fair estate in Gloucestershire. He d. 1464, leaving a son, James, who s. his uncle as 6th Lord.

His Lordship was s. at his decease by his eldest son, Thomas, 5th Lord, who s. Margaret, dau. and heir of Gerard Warren, Lord L'isle, and left an only child, Elizabeth, m. to Richard Beauchamp, 12th Earl of Warwick. * Upon this Lady," says Nicolas, according to the usual descent of Barones in fee, the Baronies of the Berkeley, created by the writ of summons of 1250, should have devolved; but whether this ascent be derived from an idea, that upon the tenure of the Court of Berkeley conferred the barony, or that the heir male had the greatest political influence, cannot now perhaps be ascertained; the inference which may be drawn from the relative situation of the husband of the said Elizabeth, who was one of the most powerful noblemen of the time, and that of James Berkeley, who succeeded to the barony, is that the tenure of Berkeley Castle was then considered to confer the dignity of Baron upon its possessor, and, consequently, that the said James was allowed that dignity as his right rather than by the favor of the Court."

Thomas, 5th Lord Berkeley, thus dying without male issue, was succeeded by his eldest son,

James Berkeley, 6th Lord. This nobleman m. 1st, a dau. of Humphrey Stafford, of Hooke, Co. Dorset, but by her had no issue. He espoused, 2ndly, Isabel, widow of Henry, son and heir of William, Lord Ferrers, of Groby, and 2nd dau. of Thomas Newby, 1st Duke of Norfolk, and Earl Marshal of England, and had four sons and three dau.s. His Lordship d. 1453, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 7th Lord, who was created, 21 April, 1481, Peerage of England, and was created first Duke of Nottingham, 1483; and created Marquess of Berkeley, 28 Jan., 1482-93. This great nobleman had a dispute with Thomas Taibot, Viscount Lisle, concerning some lands claimed by the latter in the right of his grandmother, Margaret, Countess of Pembroke; and the quarrel rose to such a height, that the disputants encountered each other with their respective followers, at Wotton-under-Edge, 1483, when the Viscount L'Isle was mortally wounded by an arrow shot through his mouth. The Marquess d. 14 Feb., 1493-4, and, leaving no issue, his own honors ceased, but the barony of Berkeley should have passed to his brother Maurice, had not the Marquess, in anger with his kinsman, settled the castle of Berkeley, and those lands and lordships which composed the ancient barony upon Henry VII. and his majesty's heirs male, in failure of which to descend to his own right heirs: in consequence of this conveyance,

Maurice (8th Baron by right) enjoyed none of the estates, and was entirely deprived of the Peerage. His brother's displeasure was attributed to his having married a person of mean blood, namely, Isabel, dau. of Philip Meade, Esq., an alderman of Bristol. This Maurice, obtained, however, his share of an estate which devolved upon him in right of his mother, Isabel. He d. 1506, and was s. by his son,

Maurice (by right, 9th Lord), who was made a Knight of the Bath, at the coronation of Henry VIII. He m.

BIDDULPH.

Biddulph, Sir Theophrastus, of Westcombe, Co. Kent: z. to the title as 5th Bart., upon the decease of his father, 1801, m. Hannah, dau. of Edward Prestridge, Esq., and has issue.

Lineage.

The Saxon words — "Bidd," or—" Bida," prayer, entreaty, &c., and " Ulph," assistance, protection, &c., of which the surname Biddulph is said to be composed, would indicate that he who first adopted it had been employed in some embassy, or mission, to seek aid, and thence acquired the designation. The family is certainly of remote antiquity; and Erdewick, in his Survey of Staffordshire, says, " the Biddulphs derive themselves from one Cornus Le Galon, Lord of Darlevecon, Buckingham, Biddulph, &c., in Staffordshire, who lived in the time of Domnada" (For a more detailed account of the Biddulph family, in all its branches, the Biddulphs of Burton, Chirk, Castle, Leibury and Amronth Castle, (see Birke's History of the Commons.) A pedigree extant deduces the line from Oermus, to

Richard Biddulph, of Biddulph, living in 1356, from whom descended,

Simon Biddulph, Esq. of Elmhurst, Co. Stafford, whose great-great-grandson,

i. Sir Theophrastus Biddulph, Knt. of Westcombe, Co. Kent, 3rd son of Michael Biddulph, Esq., by Elizabeth, m. her brother Sir William Shaffington, Bart. of Fulleverick, Co. Stafford, was created a Bart., 2 Nov. 1694. Sir Theophrastus, m. Susannah, dau. of Zachary Higheld, Esq., an Alderman of the city of London, and had, with other issue, BLANTYRE.

BLANTYRE, Baron (Charles Stewart), Co. Lanark, in the Peerage of Scotland, 5. 21 Dec., 1818; succeeded to the dignity as 12th Baron, on the demise of his father, 22 Sept., 1830.

Lineage.

This noble family deduces its descent from a common ancestor with the Earls of Galloway,

SIR WILLIAM STEWART, of Dalwinton and Galrues, who obtained possession of the estate of Minto, 1443, after great opposition from the Turnbolls its former Proprietors. He died some time subsequently to the year 1474, leaving three surviving sons, ALEXANDER, (Sir) from whom the Earls of Galloway derive.

Thomas, (Sir) of Minto, of whom presently, Walter, of Todgberrie.

The 2nd son,

SIR THOMAS STEWART, got from his father the lands of Minto, Sinlaw, and Meribotell, in the county of Roxburgh, of which he had two charters under the Great Seal, 2 Nov., 1474. He d. 1506, and was s. by his eldest son, SIR JOHN STEWART OF MINTO, who was s. by his son, SIR ROBERT STEWART OF MINTO, whose eldest son's successor,

SIR JOHN STEWART OF MINTO, m. and left by his first wife, a son,

MATTHEW, (Sir) of Minto, whose male line became extinct in the person of

SIR JOHN STEWART, who d. in the expedition to Darien, 1897.

Sir John Stewart left by his 2nd wife, Margaret, dau. of James Stewart, of Cardonald, an only son,

WALTER STEWART, who, having been brought up with JAMES VI, under George Buchanan, had the priory of Clanty conferred on him by that monarch, and is designated Commissioner of Blantyre, in 1580, when he was appointed one of the Gentlemen of the Bedchamber. He was sworn of the Privy Council, and constituted Keeper of the Privy Seal, 14 Nov., 1582; appointed one of the Extraordinary Lords of Session, 1593; made Lord High Treasurer of Scotland, 1596; and elevated to the Peerage of that kingdom 10 July, 1606, as Baron of Blantyre. His Lordship m. Nicholas, dau. of Sir James Somerville, of Cambusnethan, and had, with other issue,

James, (Sir) K.B. This gentleman, being involved in a quarrel with Sir Geo. Wharton, son of Lord Wharton, a duel resulted at Islington, 5 Nov., 1609, wherein both the combatants fell. Sir James left a widow, Lady Dorothy Hastings, dau. of George, 4th Earl of Huntington, but had no issue. The Lady subsequently m. Robert, 2nd Earl of Roscomman.

WILLIAM, of whom presently.

His Lordship d. 8 March, 1617, and was s. by his elder surviving son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Baron, who m. Helen, dau. of Sir William Scott, of Adross, and was s. at his decease, in 1638, by his son,

WALTER, 3rd Baron. This nobleman m. Mrs. Mary, dau. of Sir William Mure, of Rowallan, but having no issue by that Lady (who m. 2ndly, John Brisbane, Esq.), m. s. at his decease in 1661, by his brother,

ALEXANDER, 4th Baron, who m. Margaret, dau. of John Shaw, of Greenock, and grand-dau. maternally of Sir John Houston, of Houston, by whom he had a son and dau. He was s. by the former,

ALEXANDER, 5th Baron. This nobleman, being one of those who protested against the legality of the convention of 1702, on taking the oaths and his seat in parliament, the following year, presented a petition, entreat the Commissioner and the Estates to accept of his submission, and most humbly acknowledged of the indecent and undutiful expressions uttered by him in presence of Her Majesty's Advocate, against the High Commissioner. On reading the petition, his Lordship was ordered to be brought in custody to the bar, to the end that he might there, kneeling, beg pardon of the Commissioner and the
BLAYNEY

BLAYNEY, Baron (Cadwallader-Davis Blyney), of Monaghan, in the Co. Monaghan, in the Peerage of Ireland, b. 21 Feb., 1803; s. to the title as 12th Baron, at the decease of his father, in 1834.

Lineage.

This family claims descent from the Kings of the ancient Britons, in a direct line from Cadwallader, a younger son of the Prince of Wales. It was established in Ireland by Sir Edward Blayney, Knt., a soldier from his youth, in the service of Elizabeth, who accompanied the Earl of Essex, 1598, into that kingdom, being then a Col. in the Army. In the subsequent wars, acquiring fame and fortune, he was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 22 July, 1663, as Lord Blayney, Baron of Monaghan, Co. Monaghan.

His Lordship's marriage was 11 Feb., 1689, and was s. by his eldest son, Henry, 2nd Baron, who m. Jane, dau. of Gerald, Viscount Drogheda, by whom he had two surviving sons and five daughters. His Lordship, who was a military man, fell at the battle of Bensbur, Co. Tyrone, 5 June, 1646, and was s. by his eldest son, Edward, 3rd Baron, who, dying unm., 1669, was s. by his brother.

Richard, 4th Baron. This nobleman was high in favor with Cromwell, and had been appointed, in 1656, the Usurper's Custos Rotulorum of the Co. Monaghan, and Escheator of the Co. Tyrone. His Lordship m. 9 March, 1651, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Mr. Alderman Vincent, of Dublin, M.P., by whom he had several children. He m. 2ndly, Jane, dau. of John Malloch, Esq. He d. 5 Nov., 1760, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, Henry-Vincent, 5th Baron. This nobleman m. Margaret Mon, eldest daughter of John, 1st Lord Tullia- monar, by whom he had an only surviving child, Edward, m. to Nicholas Mahon, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. His Lordship d. 1809, and was s. by his brother.

William, 6th Baron. His Lordship m. 1666, Mary, eldest dau. of William, first Viscount Charlemont, widow of Arthur Dillon, Esq., of Lismullen, Co. Meath, and dying 3 Jan., 1705, was s. by his only surviving son, Cadwallader, 7th Baron, who m. Mary, dau. of the Hon. James Touchet (second son of the Earl of Castlehaven), and niece of Charles Talbot, Duke of Shrewsbury, then Lord-Lieut. of Ireland; by whom he had several children. His Lordship m. 2dly, Mary, dau. and heiress of Sir Alexander Cairnes, Bart., of Monaghan, which lady m. 2ndly, Col. Charles Murray. He d. 19 March, 1772, and was s. by his eldest son, Charles-Talbot, 8th Baron, Dean of Killalo; at whose decease, without surviving issue, the title devolved upon his brother.

Cadwallader, 9th Baron, b. 2 May, 1791; m. 20 Dec., 1807, Sophia, dau. of Thomas Tipping, Esq., of Bealbe, and had issue, BLENNERHASSET.

BLENNERHASSET, SIR ARTHUR, of Blennerville, Co. Kilkenny; b. 30 July, 1794; s. to the title, as 3rd Bart., at the decease of his father, Sept. 1831.

Lineage.

This family is of English origin, and has either received its surname from, or conferred it upon, Blennerville, Co. Cumberland, where it appears to have been stationary for several centuries. The Blennervesettled in Ireland during the reign of ELIZABETH, and have, since that period, maintained the highest rank amongst the gentry of the Co. Kerry, where the first settlers, Thomas Blennervasett, and his son Robert, obtained a part of the Earl of Desmond’s large possessions. From this Robert descended,

I. ROWLAND BLENNERHASSET, Esq. of Blennerville, b. 1741: created a Bart. 22 Sept., 1769; m. Mill集成电路-Agnes, dau. of Richard Yielding, Esq. of Belvel, Co. Limerick, by whom he had issue,

ROBERT, his successor,

Richard Francis, b. 25 May, 1772, m. Agnes, dau. of Sir Barry Denny, Bart., and d. issueless, 1827.

Arthur, b. 27 Oct., 1776, m. Sept., 1790, Helena Jane, dau. of Thomas, Lord Ventry, and has issue.

Rowland, b. 26 Dec., 1780, m. Letitia, eldest dau. of Sir John Hartley, Esq. of Trulee, and has issue.

William, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Blennerve, Esq. of Ballymacqurier, and has issue.

Catherine, m. to the Rev. Edward Conyers, of Knockman.

Sir Rowland d. 14 March, 1821, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR ROBERT, b. 26 Jan. 1790, m. 1 June, 1790, his cousin, Rosanna, only dau. of the late Arthur Blennervaset, Esq. of Fortfield, Co. Kerry; by whom (who d. 1828) he had issue, ARTHUR, present Bart. Robert, b. 27 July, 1797.

William, b. 2 Feb., 1802.

Catherine, m. 16 May, 1822, to the Rev. Edward Fitzgerald Conners, 2nd son of Charles Conners, Esq. of Castletown Conners, Co. Limerick, and has issue.

V. Sir John. This gentleman m. 1st, Sarah, youngest dau. of George Thornhill, Esq., of Diddington, Co. Huntingdon, and had Charles, the present Bart., with a dau. Sarah. He m. 2ndly, Miss Ottley, of the Island of St. Christopher, and by that lady (who d. 11 July, 1803), left Ralph-John, d. 1816. (Dec. 1826.)

Lord Bloomfield, who is descended from an ancient family in Ireland, (maternally from that of Jocelyn, his grandmother Waller, being sister to the Lord Chancellor Jocelyn,) entered early into the Corps of Artillery, of which he is now Colonel. In 1808, he was appointed Gentleman Attendant upon His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and, during the subsequent regency, filled the offices of Marshal and Chief Equerry to the Regent. In 1815, he received the honor of Knighthood; and, in 1817, on the resignation of Sir John McMahon, succeeded that gentleman as Receiver-Gen. of the Duchy of Cornwall, and Private Secretary and Keeper of the Privy-Purse to the Prince. In Sept., 1824, he was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Sweden, (which diplomatic situation his Lordship continues to fill,) and was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 14 May, 1825.

BLA\(U\)NT.

Blount, Sir Edward, Baronet, of Sodington, Co. Wor-

ter, L.D.D.; b. 3 March, 1795;

\( J \) to the title, as 6th Baronet, at the decease of his father,
31 Oct. 1803; m. 1st Sept., 1833, Mary — Frances, eldest daughter of Edward Blount, Esq., and has a son,

WALTER-OF-SODINGTON, b. 19 Dec., 1833.

Lineage.

This very ancient family has given birth to three distinct tales of Peers, viz.:—the Lords of Guisnes, in France; the Baron of Ixworth, in Suffolk (which barony ceased with Sir William Blount, Baron of Ixworth, who was slain fighting under the banner of Mountford, Earl of Leicester, at the battle of Lewes, and subsequently attained, by parliament, in the reign of Henry III.) and the Barons of Montjoy, of Thurverston, Co. Derby, which barony expired in 1681.
(See Burke's Extinct Peerage.) Its settlement, in England, is traced to the Conquest, and its genealogy deduced from the Blounts, or Bluni, of Italy.

Roldoph, 3rd Count of Guisnes, had three sons by his wife, Rosetta, dau. of the Count of St. Pol, all of whom accompanied the Norman, in his expedition against England in 1066, and, contributing to the triumph of their chief, shared amply in the spoils of conquest. One of the brothers returned to his native country; the other two adopted that which they had so gallantly helped to win, and abided there:—of these,

Sir Robert Blount was the 1st feudal Baron of Ixworth, but of him presently.

Sir William Blount was a General of Foot at Hastings, and had grants of seven Lordships in Lin-colnsire. His son was seated at Sazlingham, in Norfolk, and his great-grandson of that gentleman, a Maria Blount, sole heiress of her line, marrying in the next century Sir Stephen Blount, united the families of the two brothers.

The elder son,

Sir Robert Blount, had the command of the Conqueror's ships of war, and is styled "Des Nation Military." His portion of the Spolia Opima embraced thirteen manors in Suffolk, in which county he was the first feudal Baron of Ixworth (the place of his residence) and Lord of Oxford Castle: he m. Gudrida, youngest daug. of Henry Earl Ferrers, and had a son and heir, Gilbert Blount, 2nd Baron of Ixworth, from whom we pass to

William Blount, 6th Baron of Ixworth, who was Standard Bearer to Simon de Montford, and fell at the battle of Lewes, May 14, 1264. He was attained and the Barony of Ixworth forfeited—he left no issue—so that the representation of the family devolved upon his uncle, Sir Stephen Blount, who m. as stated, Maria Blount, heiress of Sazlingham, and had two sons,
Sir Robert, his heir, Sir John, who m. Constance, one of the sisters and heirs of Sir Richard de Wrotham, Justice of the Common Pleas.

The elder son,

Sir Robert Blount, m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of the feudal Lord of Okenwells, by whom he acquired the Manor of Belton in Rutlandshire, and had two sons, Sir Ralph, from whom the extinct Lords Blount of Belton, and Nicholas de Blount, who took the name of Croke, ancestor of the Crokes of Studley Priory, and Sir William Blount, who m. Lady Isabel de Beauchamp, dau. of William, first Earl of Warwick, and widow of Henry Lovet, of Elmhay Lovet, Co. Worcester, and dying in the 9th or 10th of Edward III., left a son, Sir Walter Blount, Knt. of Ockha, otherwise Rock, in the Co. of Warwick, who m. Johanna, 3rd sister and co-heir of Sir William de Sodington, and acquired the Estate of Sodington, which, to this day, continues one of the principal seats of the family. Sir Walter d. 1324, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William Blount. This gentleman m. Margarett, daughter and co-heir of Theobald de Verdon, second Baron de Verdon, but, dying issueless, left his property to his brother,

Sir John Blount, who m. Isolda, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Montjoy, whence the title of Montjoy was afterwards assumed as a Barony by a member of the family. From this Sir John we pass to his lineal descendant,

Sir George Blount, Knt. of Sodington, who m.
Eleanor, dau. of William Norwood, Esq. of Leekhampston, Gloucestershire, and was s. by his eldest son,
I. Sir Walter Blount, Knt., who was created a Baronet 5 Oct., 1642. This gentleman suffered severely in the cause of Charles I., and was imprisoned at Oxford, and in the Tower of London. He m. Elizabeth, dau.
of George Wylde, Esq. of Driwich, Co. Worcester, Seynezt-at-Law, by whom he had four surviving sons (all of whom, like their father, bore arms under the royal banner), and four daughters. He was s. at his decease, by his eldest son,
II. Sir George, who m. Mary, dau. and heiress of Richard Kirkham, Esq. of Blagdon, Co. Devon, and had with other issue,
Walter Kirkham, his successor,

George, who m. Mary, dau. of Henry, 5th Earl of Thompson, and widow of Charles, Vicount Cullen, BOILINGBROOK.

BOILINGBROOK AND ST. JOHN, Viscount (Henry St. John), Baron St. John, of Lydiard Tregoze, Co. Wilts, Baron St. John of Battersca, Co. Surrey, and a Bart.; d. March, 1786; m. 3 June, 1812, Maria, 2nd dau. of Sir Henry Paulct St. John Mildmay, Bart., by whom he has issue, in

I. MARY, b. 1820. v. Isabella.
II. Thomas.
III. Anne-Jane.

This family, springing in the male line from the Ports, Lords of Banbury, Co. Southampon, at the Conquest, derives through the female line, from

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN, who came into England with the Conqueror, as Grand Master of the Artillery, and Supervisor of the Wagons and Carriages, where the horses' hames, or collar, was borne for his cognizance. He m. Oliva, dau. of Ralph de Fillers, of Normandy, and had by her, Thomas, who d. without issue, and

JOHN DE ST. JOHN, who inherited, on the demise of his brother, all the lands in England, and principally the lordship of Stantyn, Co. Essex (for distinction from the other towns of the same name, called STANTON ST. JOHN). This John was a person of great eminence in the reign of William Rufus, being one of the twelve Knights that accompanied Robert Fitz-Hamon, Earl of Gloucester, in a warlike expedition against the Welsh, and received, in reward for his great services and helps in many victories, the castle of Farnham, Co. Glenmorgan. He had issue, in a dau., Averis, and two sons, in

1. ROGER, of whom presently.
2. Thomas, Lord of Stanton St. John, living 13 Hen. II., whose son.

ROOAR, was assessed £133 6. 8. for trespassing in the King's forests, 22 Hans. II. The grandson of this Roger,

JOHN ST. JOHN, was killed at the battle of Eresham, 43 Edward III. He was in the Holy Wars with Richard I., who, at the siege of Acre, in Palestine, adopted the device of tying a leathern thong, or gafer, round the left leg of a certain number of Knights, one of whom was this John St. John, that they might be impelled to higher deeds of valour. John was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

Sir John St. John, Knt., of Battersea and Wandsorth, (by the bequest of his deceased uncle, Lord Grandison,) who was created a Bart., 28 May, 1611. This gentleman was seriously attached to the Royal cause, and had three sons slain fighting under the Royal Standard. He was succeeded, at his decease, by (the son of his eldest son, Oliver, by Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Horatio, Lord Vere, Baron of Tibusby, which lady espoused, after his decease,) John, Lord Poole, (his grandson)

Sir John, whose decease, when, the title reverted to his uncle,

Sir Walter, M.P. for the Co. Wilts. This gentleman, who resided principally at Battersea, m. Joanna, dau. of the Lord Chief-Justice St. John, and dying, 3 July, 1740, was s. by his only son,

Sir Henry, who was elevated to the Peerage, as Barron St. John of Battersea, and Viscount St. John, 2 July, 1716, with remainder to his 3rd and 4th sons, John, and Hollins his eldest son, Henry, the celebrated Secretary of State to Queen Anne, having been previously created, 7 July, 1712, Baron St. John of Lysted Tregose, and Viscount Bolingbroke, Co. Lincoln, with remainder to the issue of his father. This latter nobleman was attainted in 1714, but restored in 1725, to his estates, without his honors. He m. twice, (his second wife was the Marchioness de Villetoe, niece to the celebrated Madame de Maintenon,) but d. childless in 1751. Viscount St. John was s. by his eldest son (by his 2nd wife, Angelica-Magdalene, dau. of George Pilkley, Treasurer-General of the Marins, in France, under Lewis XIV.)

John, 2nd Viscount St. John, who m. 1st, Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Furnese, Bart., and had three sons and three daughters. He m. 2ndly, Hester, eldest dau. of John Clarke, Esq., but by her had no issue. His Lordship d. in Feb. 1740, and was s. by his eldest son,

Frederick, 3rd Viscount St. John, who also succeeded to the honors of his uncle, Henry, who had been attainted as stated above, and became Viscount Bolingbroke, (having in the patent of that creation bearing the attainder affecting the interest of the successor,) His Lordship, m. 1727, Lady Diana Spencer, eldest dau. of Charles, 2nd Duke of Marlborough, by whom he had two surviving sons,

1. George, his successor,

2. Richard, his successor,

Sir John, whose son and heir,

Nicholas St. John, of Lysted Tregose, Esq., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Richard Blount, of Maple Dunham, Co. Oxford, and had issue,

John, (Sir) who inherited Lysted,

Olive, of whom presently.

Richard.

The second son,

Olive St. John, having the misfortune to kill, in a duel, one Best, captain of the guard to Queen Elizabeth, was obliged to relinquish the study of the law, and fly the kingdom. Adopting a military life, he attained considerable renown in the wars of Elizabeth and James in Ireland, and was eventually advanced to the Peerage of that Kingdom, as Viscount Grandison, with limitation to the issue of his nephew, Sir Edward Villiers, (which viscountcy now merges in the earldom of Jersey,) and to the Peerage of England by the title of Baron Tregose. In the next year his Lordship obtained a grant of the manors of Battersea and Wandsorth; but dying without issue, 30 Dec., 1530, the English Baronry expired.

The manors of Battersea and Wandsworth he bequeathed to John, the only surviving son of his brother: and upon that brother himself,

Sir William, s. to the title, as 9th Bart., at the decease of his father, 17 March, 1824. He is Receiver-Gen. of Customs at the Port of London, and Paymaster to the Corps of Gentlemen at Arms.

Lineage.

The Boothbys claim Saxon origin, and the assumption is sustained by Dugdale and Camden. The former elaborate antiquity fixes the division of counties (Origines Juridiciae, c.) in the year 800 by EUREK, and the latter, speaking of Lincolnshire, says, "the hundred or wapentake of Boothby, Boothby-Paynell, a market-town, and a gentleman's old seat called Boothby, were denominated from one Boothby, who thence inhabited."

THEOPHANUS DE BOUTHBY was Governor of Patefet Castle, which he defended with great gallantry for the Lancastrians, during the war of the Roses. From this Theobald we pass to CASTLE, which has descended through the heiresses of the Duke of Bolton, as stated above, to the present nobleman.

BOSWELL.

BOSWELL, Sir James, Bart., of Auchinleck, Co. Ay.; b. in Dec., 1806; s. to the title, as 2nd l. Bart., at the decease of his father, 26 March, 1822; m. 1830, Jessy-June, dau. of Sir James-Montgomery Cunningham, Bart.

_Linage._

The family of _Boswell_ is supposed to have established itself in Scotland in the reign of _David I._, and it obtained the Barony of _Balmuto_ in the beginning of the 15th century, by the marriage of _Sir John Boswell_, with Mariota, dau. and co-heir of _Sir John Glen_. The grandson of this marriage, _David Boswell_, of Balmuto, m. _Jane_, and had _Alexanders_, (Sir) who s. at Balmuto, and carried on that line. He m., 2ndly, in 1480, Lady Margaret Sinclair, dau. of William, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, and left at his decease, in 1543, _Thomas Boswell_, who obtained from _James IV._, with whom he was in high estimation, the lands and Barony of Auchinleck. He fell at Flodden, and was s. by his only son, _David Boswell_, of Auchinleck, who m. _Lady Janet Hamilton_, dau. of James, 1st Earl of Arran, and was s. by his son, _John Boswell_, of Auchinleck, who m. _James_, of Auchinleck, who m. _Marian Crawford_, and had issue, _David_, his successor. James, m. _Miss Cunningham_, and had a son, _David_, his uncle. James Boswell was s. by his elder son, _David Boswell_, of Auchinleck, who, dying without male issue, was s. by his nephew, _David Boswell_, of Auchinleck, who was s. by his eldest son, _James Boswell_, of Auchinleck, a Lawyer of great eminence, who m. 1704, Lady Elizabeth Bruce, dau. of Alexander, 2nd Earl of Kincardine, and had issue, _Alexanders_, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and a Lord of Session, under the title of _Lord Auchinleck_.

John, M.D. Censor of the College of Physicians in Edinburgh, m. Anne, dau. of Robert Cramond, Esq. Veroucka, m. to David Montgomery, Esq. of Linahaw. He d. 1748, and was s. by his elder son, _Alexanders Boswell_, Lord Auchinleck. His Lordship m. Euphame, dau. of Colonel John Erskine, of Alva, son of Sir Charles Erskine, and had, with other issue, _James_, his successor.

Upon the authority of Sir Walter Scott, Mr. Cranker gives the following characteristic sketch of this eminent lawyer, who appears to have looked up Dr. Johnson, and some of the other companions of his son, with unmeasured contempt; — "_Old Lord Auchinleck_ was an able lawyer and good scholar, after the manner of Scotland, and highly valued on his own advantages, as a man of good estate and ancient family; and, moreover, as he was a strict Presbyterian, and a Whig of the old Scottish cast. This did not prevent his being a terribly proud aristocrat; and great was the contempt he entertained and expressed for his son James, for the nature of his friendships, and the character of the personages of whom he was _engaged_ one after another. 'There's nae hope for Jamie, man,' he said in a friend; 'Jamie is gane clean gyte. What do you think, man, he's done wi' Paoli? He's off wi' R._ the land hanging scoundrel of a Corsican; and whose tail do you think he has pinned himself to now, man?" Here the old judge summed up, with a sneer of most sovereign contempt: — " _a dominie, man—an auld dominie_; he keeped a school and called it an academy," Lord Auchinleck d. 1782, and was s. by his eldest son, _James Boswell_, the friend and well known biographer of Johnson. This remarkable person was born at Edinburgh, 29 Oct., 1740. He studied Civil Law in the Uni-

BOUGHEY.

BOUGHEY-FLETCHER, Sir THOMAS-FENTON, Bart., of Betley-Court, Co. Stafford: b. 22 Jan., 1809; succeeded to the title, as 3rd Bart., upon the demise of his father in Sept., 1828, m. 27 Dec., 1832, Louisa-Paulina, youngest dau. of Thomas Gifford, Esq., of Chillington, and has a dau.

HENRIETTA-CHARLOTTE.

Lineage.

The family of Boughey, one of antiquity in the Co. of Stafford, became extinct, upon the demise of George Boughey, Esq., 15 Feb., 1788; who bequeathed his estates to his cousin, John Fenton Fletcher, Esq., son of

1. SIR THOMAS FLETCHER, of Betley-Court, Co. Stafford, Bart., (so created 21 Aug., 1786,) by Anne, dau. and heirress of John Fenton, Esq. * of Newcastle, and had, with his successor already mentioned, two dau., viz.,

Anastasia, ann. Elizabeth, m. 21 June, 1814, to Francis Twemlow, Esq. of the Hill, Co. Chester.

Sir Thomas d. 1812, and was by his only son,

II. SIR JOHN-FENTON FLETCHER-BOUGHEY, M.P. for the Co. Stafford, who had assumed by sign manual the latter surname on inheriting his cousin's estates,† Sir John m. 9 Feb., Henrietta Dorothy, eldest dau. of Sir John Chetwode of Oakley, Staffordshire; by whom he had

THOMAS FENTON, present Bart. John Fenton, b. 6 June, 1811. George-Fenton, b. 9 Sept., 1813. William-Fenton, b. 8 Nov., 1814.

* John Fenton, Esq. of Fenton Park, in Staffordshire, brother of Elizab Fenton, the poet, was father of Thomason Fenton, Esq., Barrister-at-Law and Recorder of Newcastle, whose dau. and co-heir (by his wife, Anastasia, ann. of John Crackd, Esq. of Betley.)

† George Boughey, Esq. of Audley, Co. Stafford, who d. 1808, son of George Boughey of the same place, by Elisabeth Crackd.
Bamber, as Charles-William Boughton-House, Esq. Mr. Boughton-House was Chief Secretary, 1794, to the Board of Control. On retirement from office, he created a Bart., 28 June, 1781; but very soon afterwards he unbarred the baronetage of his own family, the Boughtons, to which we must now revert.

William Boughton, Esq. of Lawford, was created a Bart., 4 Aug., 1641. He m. Abagail, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry Baker, Esq., and was a. at his decease by his eldest son.

Sir Edward, who m. twice (his wives were, Mary, dau. of Thomas Pope, Earl of Down; and Anne, dau. of Sir John Heyrond, Knt., Governor of the Bermudas); but having no issue, was a. at his decease, 1641, by his brother.

Sir William. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Hastings Ingrain, Esq. of Little Woufford, Co. Warwick, and, dying 12 Aug., 1663, was a. by his only son.

Sir William, M.P. for the Co. Warwick, in the reign of Anne. Sir Edward, who m. Grace, eldest dau. of Sir John Shuckburgh, Bart., and was a. Feb., 1727-8, by his only child.

Sir Thomas, E. of the Co. Warwick. The sudden death of this gentleman, during his minority, caused an extraordinary sensation at the period it occurred. Sir Thomas was confined to his bed by severe indisposition, at the family mansion of Lawford Hall, wherein his mother, and Captain and Mrs. Donellan, (his sister and brother-in-law,) were at the time residing. Having taken a draught from the hands of Lady Boughton, the unfortunate gentleman almost immediately expired, 21 Aug., 1726. Suspicions of poison subsequently arising, the body, after being deposited in the family vault, was disinterred, when a coroner’s inquest returned a verdict of murder against Capt. Donellan, who was tried, condemned, and executed for the crime, at the Spring Assizes for the Co. Warwick, 1727. It must be remarked, however, in justice to the memory of Mr. Donellan, that the evidence against him was solely circumstantial, and not of the strongest nature; and that he died solely protesting his innocence. The widow of Capt. Donellan m. Sir Egerton Leigh, Bart.; and, after his decease, Harry E. O'Meara, Esq. the medical attendant at N. Helena, of the Ex-Kaiser Napoleon, and d. 30 Jan., 1840. Upon the melancholy death of Sir Thomas, the title devolved on his cousin,

Sir Edward, grandson to the 4th Bart., as particularized above. This gentleman, who pulled down the mansion of Lawford Hall, and sold the estates in the Co. Warwick and Leicester, dying 15 July, 1754, the title devolved upon his only brother, the before-mentioned (as legatee of Thomas (Phillips) Roose, Esq. of Roose Lench). At his decease, 1754, his eldest son, James, who m. Eliza, dau. of Thomas (Phillips) Roose, Esq. of Roose Lench.

William, his Bros., m. twice, as follows:

1. His wife m. Thomas (Phillips) Roose, Esq. of Roose Lench.
2. His wife m. Sir John Pickard, Knt., of Lichfield, and a. by his grandson.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the illustrious house of Neville, Earls of Abergavenny.

Sir Edward Neville, of Addington Park in Kent; and Sir Henry Neville of Billinge, co. Berks, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir John Gresham, and was a. by his son,

Sir Henry Neville of Billinge, a distinguished person in the reign of Elizabeth and James I, of whom Lodg gives the following account: "He owed his introduction to Court to a family connexion with Secretary Cecil, and his promotion there, perhaps, yet more to his own merit, for he was a person of great wisdom, and integrity. He was at first Envoy to France, in 1598, and, in the summer of the following year, acted as First Commissioner at the treaty of Boulogne. Unfortunately for him, the negotiation was concluded a few months before the discovery of Essex's conspiracy; and at his return he unwarily listened to some hints of that wild design, which his excessive attachment to the Earl induced him to conceal. Essex, on his arraignment, named him as a party; he was committed to the Tower for a misapplication of treason, in the midst of his preparations for returning to his charge in France, and sentenced to pay a heavy fine, which was mitigated to £2,000. The alteration caused in his pecuniary circumstances, by the rigid execution of this penalty, compelled him, in the next reign, to accept of offices beneath his deserts; and, contrary to his spirited disposition, we find him projecting and executing various little schemes for the relief of James's necessities; and, in spite of the efforts made by his friends to get him appointed Secretary in 1612, he was never advanced to any higher employment, owing, as it is said, to the King's having conceived a personal dislike to him." Sir Henry m. Anne, dau. of Sir Henry Killigrew, of Cornwall, and, dying in 1615, was a. by his eldest son,

Sir Henry Neville, of Billinge, who m. Elizabeth dau. of Sir John Smith, Knt. of Ostenhanger, Kent, and was a. at his decease, in 1629, by his eldest son, Richard Neville, Esq. of Billinge, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir John Heydon, Knt. of Bacomthorpe, co. Norfolk, and had 3d with other issue.

1. Henry, who assumed the name of Grey, m. his cousin Elizabeth, sister and co-heir of Edward, third Lord Griffin, and had issue (d. 1780, s. p. His widow m. 2ndly, John, Earl of Portsmouth, and d. 1792).

2. Catherine, m. Richard Awdith, Esq. of Stanbrook.

Anne, m. Richard Raisford, Esq. of Dallington, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, and left an only dau. and heiress, Ann Raisford, who espoused James Griffin, 2nd Lord Griffin, of Braybrooke Castle, co. Northampton, and had issue, Edward, 3rd Lord Griffin, who d. c. p. 1742, when the dignity expired, and his property devolved upon his elisters as co-heirs, viz.:

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to her cousin, Henry Nevill, who assumed the surname of Grey, as already stated, and, 2ndly, John, Earl of Portsmouth, but d. issueless in 1702.

Anne, m. to William Whitwell, Esq. of Oundle, co. Northampton, and eventually became sole heiress of the Lords Griffin.

The eldest son of the above Anne Griffin, by the said William Whitwell,

John Griffin-Whitwell, having obtained from his aunt, the Countess of Portsmouth, her share in the estate of Saffron Walden, co. Essex, assumed by act of parliament (32 Geo. II) the surname and arms of Griffin, and having his claim admitted to the ancient Baronetage of Howard de Walden, (as the great-grandson and sole heir of Lady Essex Howard, wife of the 1st Lord Griffin, and only child of James, 3rd Lord Howard of Walden,) was summoned to parliament, 3 Oct., 1764, as 4th Baron Howard of Walden. His Lordship was created, 5 Sept., 1786, Baron of Braybrooke, in the co. Northampton, with remainder, in default of male issue, to Richard-Awdith Neville, Esq. of Billinge, only son of Richard-Nevill Aldworth, Esq. of Stannake, in the co. of Oxford, who assumed the surname and arms of Neville (refer to issue of the last Richard Neville, of Billinge). The Baron d. 25 May, 1797, s. p., when the former Baron (Howard of Walden) fell into the same estate, and the latter issueless, according to the limitation in the patent, upon the said

Richard Aldworth Neville, Esq. of Billinge, as 3rd Baron of Braybrooke, 3 July, 1750. His Lordship assumed, 1786, the surname and arms of Griffin, in addition to, and after, those of Awdith-Neville. He m. 1780, Catherine, youngest dau. of the Rt. Hon. George Grenville, and eldest sister of George, 1st Marquess of Buckingham, by whom he had issue, BREADALBANE.

Breadalbane, Marquessor (John Campbell), Earl of Ornellie, and Baron Breadalbane, of Taymouth Castle, Co. Perth., in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, Viscount Campbell, of Tay and Pintoiland; Viscount Glenorchy and Taymouth; Baron Beinderaliev, Orneltie, and Weik, in the Peerage of Scotland; a Bart. of Nova Scotia; & 26 Oct., 1796, m. 23 Nov., 1821, Eliza, eldest dau. of George Baillie, Esq. of Jervis Wood. His Lordship's father, 29 March, 1854.

Lineage.

This ancient family claims a common ancestor with the ducal house of Argyll, namely,

Sir Duncan Campbell, of Lochow, who was created Lord Campbell, of Argyll, by James II. of Scotland. His Lordship's half brother, Duncan, was designated the heir apparent, and Sir Colin Campbell, upon whom his father settled the estate of Glenorchy, which had come into the Campbell family, temp. David II., by the marriage of Margaret Glenorchy with John Campbell. "Sir Coln," says Douglas, "was a man of high renown for military prowess, and for the virtues of social and domestic life. He was a stream of many rades against the foes of his people, but like the gale that moves the heath to those who sought his aid." He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of the Earl of Lennox, but by her he had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, 2nd dau. and co-heir of John Lord Lorn, with whom he got a third of that lordship which still remains in the family, and Sir Colin quartered henceforth the Galley of Lorn with his paternal achievement; by this lady he had an only son, Duncan, his successor. He m. 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of Robert Robertson, of Stawell, and sibby, Margaret, dau. of Lake Stirling, of Keir, and had by the latter a son, John, ancestor of the Earls of Loudoun. He s. by his eldest son, Sir Duncan Campbell, who, in his father's lifetime, was designated of Glenorchy, by charter dated 22 Feb., 1480. The great-grandson of this gentleman,

Sir Duncan Campbell, of Glenorchy, being in high favor with James VI., was made by that monarch, in 1617, Heritable Keeper of the forests of Maudorn, Ben-Daskerlie, &c., with many valuable privileges, and created, in 1638, a Bart. of Nova Scotia, and High-Sheriff of the Co. Perth, for life. Sir Duncan m. twice, and was a. at his decease, 1631, by the eldest son of his first wife, Jean, dau. of John, Earl of Atholl, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland,

SIR Colin Campbell, who d. without issue, in 1640, and was a. by his brother,

Sir Robert Campbell. This gentleman m. Isabel, dau. of Sir Lauchlan Macintosh, of Torescault, by whom he left, with other children,

1. John, his successor.
2. Colin, of Lochow, who had a charter of Torrie, Easter, in Perthshire, in 1642. He m. Margaret, 3rd dau. of Sir Alexander Menseis, of Castle Menseis, and, dying in 1668, left, with other issue,

1. Duncan, of Mochastor, who d. r. b. and was a. by his brother,
2. John, who s. his elder brother and dying without issue, in 1675, was a. by his brother,
3. Colin Campbell, of Carwain, who d. without issue, and was a. by his nephew, Colin Campbell (son of Robert Campbell of Boreland, by Janet, dau. of Robert Camp. bell of Glenlyon). This gentleman m. Elia-beth, dau. of Archibald Campbell, of Stone-field, and had, with other issue, John Campbell, who s. as 4th Earl of Breadalbane.

Sir Robert was a. by his eldest son,

Sir John Campbell, who m. 1st, Mary Graham, dau. of William, Earl of Strathern, Menteith and Arth, by whom he had a son, John, his successor; and 2ndly, Christian, dau. of John Muouchet, Esq. of Craighead, and had several daughters. Sir John was a. by his only son,

Sir John Campbell, of Glenorchy. This gentleman being the chief creditor of George, 6th Earl of Caithness, obtained a disposition from that nobleman of his whole estate and estate, with the hereditary jurisdictions and titles; and, upon the demise of his Lordship, in 1762, was created, by patent, dated 26 June, 1767, Earl of Caithness: but in a few years afterwards (1761) that dignity being allowed by parliament to be vested in George Sinclair, of Keir, (who became in consequence 7th Earl of Caithness,) Sir John Campbell obtained a new patent of nobility, dated 13 Aug., 1801, creating him Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, and the minor titles already enumerated, with the precedence of the former patent; and in remainder to whichever of his sons, by his first wife, he should think proper, in writing, to designate, and ultimately to his heirs male whatsoever.

His Lordship's dau. 1st, Mary, dau. of Henry Rich, 1st Earl of Holland, (which Earl was beheaded in 1669) by whom he had two sons. He m. 2ndly, Mary, Countess Dowager of Caithness, 3rd dau. of Archibald Marquess of Argyll, but by her had no surviving issue. The Earl m. a third time, and had a dau., Mary, who m. Archibald Cockburn, Esq. of Langton. This nobleman is described, by Mackay, as having the gravity of a Spaniard, the cunning of a fox, the wisdom of a serpent, and the magnificence of an eagle. His Lordship's dau., 1746, and, passing over his eldest son, Duncan, Lord Orneltie, was a. by his 2nd son, John, 2nd Earl, b. 19 Nov., 1622, who was elected one of the Representatives of his Lordship's 1st, Frances, dau. of Henry, 2nd Duke of Newcastle, but by her had no issue; and 2ndly, Henrietta, 2nd dau. of Sir Edward Villiers, Knt., by whom he had two daus., and his successor, in 1722.

John, 3rd Earl, K.B. His Lordship's 1st, Lady Amabel de Grey, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry, Duke of Kent, by whom he had an only surviving dau.,

Jemima, who m. May, 1740, Viscount Boyston, eldest son of Philip, Earl of Hardwicke, Lord High Chan-celloor of Great Britain, and in a month afterwards, succeeding her grandfather, became Marchioness de Grey.

He m. 2ndly, Arabella, dau. and co-heir of John Penhall, Esq., and had issue,

John, Lord Gernochy, who m. Willieien, dau. and co-heir of William Maxwell, Esq. of Preston, but d. without surviving issue, in 1717.

The Earl d. 1729, when the male line of the first Peer became extinct; but the clause in the patent in favor of heirs general transferred the Peerage to his kinman, (refer to issue of Colin Campbell of Mocharster, uncle of the 1st Peer, and 2nd son of Sir Robert Campbell, 3rd Bart.),

John, 4th Earl, who was created Baron Breadalbane of Taymouth Castle, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom,
Mary, dau. of Sir Justian Lewen, Knt. He purchased the estate of Goodneston from Sir Thomas Engham, Knt., where he erected a Mansion House; and was z. by his eldest son, 1. BROOK BRIDGES, Esq., of Goodneston, one of the Auditors of the Treasury, who was created a Bart. 19 April, 1728. Sir Brook m. 1st, 1707, Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Marsham, Bart. (subsequently Lord Romney), and had Brooke, his successor, and Margaret. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Hales, Bart. He d. 16 March, 1774, and was by his only surviving son,

11. SIR BROOK, this gentleman m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Palmer, Bart. (she m., after his decease, the Hon. Charles Fielding, son of William, 2nd Earl of Denbigh) and died during his Sheriffalty (for the Co. Kent, 23 May, 1754; after his decease, his only child and successor,

Lineage.

The surname of Hervey, or Harvey, written with Fts (i.e. son of Harvey), is derived from Robert Fts Harvey (a younger son of Harvey, Duke of Orleans), one of the Commanders in the invading army of William the Conqueror: from that Robert descended

John Harvey, who, marrying Joan, dau. of John Harman of Thruthe, Co. Bedford, acquired that lordship. He d. 21st Edward I.; and from him we pass to his linear descendant,

John Hervey, Esq. of Thruthe, who m. Alice, dau. of Nicholas Mortley, of Gild, Co. Sussex, and had (with one daughter) two sons, viz.

1. George, (Sir) a distinguished Captain in the reign of Hen. VIII. who, dying without issue, bequeathed his estates to Margaret Smart for her life, remainder to her son, Gerard, which Gerard assumed the name of Hervey, and from him descended the Herveys of Thruthe, where they continued till the death of John Hervey in 1715.

2. Thomas.

The younger son,

Thomas Hervey, Esq., m. Jane, dau. and heir of Henry Drury, Esq. of Ickworth,* Hawsted, &c.; and with her acquired those estates. He was s. at his decease by his son,

William Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth, who m. Joan, dau. of John Cochet, Esq. of Ampth, Co. Suffolk, and, dying in 1530, left, with other issue,

1. John, his successor, of whom presently.

2. Nicholas. This eminent person was of the Privy Chamber of Harvy VIII., and so much in that monarch’s favour that, in 1526, he was one of the gentlemen appointed to furnish the days of justice, when the celebrated feats of arms were performed at a camp between Guines and Ardevs. He was afterwards Knighted, and was Ambassador from England to the Emperor’s Court at Ghent. Sir Nicholas m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Pittwilliams, Knt., and widow of Sir Thomas Mavorway, whom he had a son, Sir Thomas Knight-Marshal to Queen Mary. He espoused 2ndly, Bridget, dau. and heiress of Sir John Wiltshire, of Stone Castle, in Kent, and relict of Sir Richard Wingfield, K.G., by whom he had George, Sir of Markshall, in Essex, Lieut. of the Tower, from whom the Herveys of Essex, descend, and an elder son,

Henry, who m. Jane, dau. of James Thomas, Esq., and left son,

William, who distinguished himself, in 1554, in the memorable conflict with the Spanish Armada, boarding one of the galions and killing the Capt., Hugh de la Serre, with his own hand. He was afterwards Knighted; and, being engaged with great success in Ireland, was created a Bart., 31 May, 1615, and afterwards to the Peerage of England. In the following year, in the dignity of Baron Hervey of Roos, Co. Westrfd. His Lordship, pursuing his eminent public course, was created a Peer of Eng. land, 7 Feb., 1627, as Lord Hervey, of Kidbrooke, Co. Kent. He m. twice, and had several children by his dau. and heiress, and by his dau. of the Analow, Esq. of Lewisham; but he outlived them all, except one, Elizabeth, who m. John Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth and succeeded, at the decease of his Lordingship, in June, 1642, to his estate, when his honors became extinct.

Mr. Hervey of Ickworth was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

John Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth, who d. 11 June, 1567, and was s. by his eldest son,

John Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Edmund Bocking, Esq. of Bocking, in Essex, and, dying in 1569, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William Hervey, Knt., who m. 1566, Susan, dau. of Sir Robert, Knt., of Rushbrooke, Co. Suffolk, and, dying in 1600, was s. by his eldest son, John Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth. This gentleman enjoyed the friendship of Robert Sidney, 2nd Earl of Leicester, and sojourned with that accomplished nobleman during his emploiment at the French Court. Concurring heartily in the restoration of Charles II., he was appointed Treasurer of the Household to the Queen-Consort Catherine. In parliament he was one of the leading members; and Burnet, speaking of him, says, "He was one whom the King loved personally, and yet, upon a great occasion, he voted against that which the King desired; so the King chid him severely for it. Next day, another important question falling in, he voted as the King would have him. So the King took notice of it at night, and said, 'You were not against me to-day.' He answered, ‘No, sir, I was against my conscience to-day.'" Mr. Hervey was a great encourager of literature, and the patron of men of letters. He m. the Hon. Elizabeth Hervey, only surviving child and sole heiress of William Lord Hervey of Kidbrooke (see above), but dying without issue, 18 Jan., 1679, his estates devolved upon his only surviving brother.

Sir Thomas Hervey, Knt., M.P., who m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Humphrey May, Vice-Chamberlain of the Household to the Irish King, and, dying in 1694, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

John Hervey, Esq. a distinguished member of the House of Commons, who was elevated to the Peerage, 93 March, 1708, as Baron Hervey of Ickworth, Co. Suffolk; and created Earl of Bristol, 1714.

The Lordship m. 1st, 1685, Isabella, dau. and sole heiress of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Carr, Bart., of Sleeford, Co. Lancaster, and granddaughter, of James Howard, 3rd Earl of Suffolk, by whom he had a son, Carr, Lord Hervey, who pre-deceased his father); and two daus. The Earl m. 2ndly, 1695, Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Felton, Bart., of Playford, Co. Suffolk, by whom he had eleven sons and six daus. Of whom,

John, Lord Hervey (the eldest son), b. 15 Oct., 1685, was called up to the House of Lords, to his father's Baronetcy, in 1720. His Lordship was appointed Keeper of the Privy-Secre 1740, and in the same year constituted one of the Lords Justices, during his Majesty's absence from the kingdom. This nobleman fell under the lash of Pope, who in some extraordinarily severe lines, thus speaks of him,

"Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way,
Whether to flabby impotence he speakes,
And, as the Prompter breathes, the puppet squeakes.
Keep'Thence, thus the Racoon's have exprest
A cerous face, a face to requite all the rest.
Beauty, that shocks you, parties that once can trust,
Wit that can creep, and pride that lack the dust."

By Middleton in his Dedication of the History of the Lords Justices. His Lordship is, however, very differently depicted; in that he is praised for his good sense, politeness, patriotism, temperance, and information. Lord Hervey, having felt some attacks of epilepsy, entered again, and persevered to a very strict regimen; and thus stopped the progress of that dreadful disease. His daily food was a small quantity of asses' milk, and a flour biscuit; once a week he indulged himself in eating an apple; he used emetics daily. His Lordship was distinguished as a political writer, and the list of his works is given in Horace Walpole's Catalogue of Royal and Noble Authors. He m. 1729, Mary, dau. of Brigadier-General Nicholaus Lepell, and left four sons (three of whom became successively Earls of Bristol), and four daus., who after his decease, were granted the precedence of those of an Earl. Lord Hervey, d. 5 Aug., 1745.

Henry, (4th son), m. Catherine, eldest sister and heir of Sir Thomas Ashton, Bart., and assumed the surname of Ashton. He subsequently took Holy Orders, and was a Doctor in Divinity. His grandson, Col. Henry Hervey-Aston, m. Harriet, 4th dau. and co-heir of Charles, 9th and last Viscount Irvine of Sneezy, dying in 1726, left a son, Henry Charles Hervey-Aston, Esq. of Ashton-Hall, Chesire.

Felon (the youngest son). The descendants of this gentleman were raised to the Barony of Aston (See Sir Frederick Bathurst Hervey).

The Earl of Bristol d. 90 Jan., 1751-0, and was s. by his grandson (Lord Hervey's eldest son),

George-William, 2nd Earl, who, in right of his grandfather, mother, upon the demise of Henry, 10th Earl of Suffolk, became joint heir (with Elizabeth, 2nd wife of John, 1st Earl of Portsmouth) to that manor's estates, and to the Barony of Howard of Waldeni but dying unmarried, 18 March, 1775, all devolved upon his brother,

Augustus John, 3rd Earl, b. 19 May, 1774. This nobleman, who had adopted the naval profession, attained the rank of Vice-Admiral of the Blue. His Lordship m. privately, 4 Aug., 1744, the celebrated Miss Chudleigh, who, in twenty-five years afterwards, 8 March, 1769, publicly espoused Evelyn Pierrepont, Duke of Kingston; for which offence her Ladyship was imprisoned before the House of Peers, and the marriage declared illegal. Jane, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpeden, Co. Oxford, and was a. by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote, a distinguished military character in the reign of HENRY VIII., particularly at the battle of Spurs. In the 13th of the same king, Sir Edward Greville obtained the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus. and at length sole heiress, of Edward Willoughby, only son of Robert, Lord Brooke, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the Lord Beauchamp, of Powyk, which wardship tended in a great degree to the subsequent elevation of the family. Sir Edward m. Aone, dau. of John Denton, Esq., of Amerden, Co. Bucks, and had issues, (his d. 20th HENRY VII.)

JOHN, (Sir) of Milcote and Drayton, M.P.† for the Co. Warwick, whose great-grandson,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote and Drayton, m. Joan, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord-Chancellor of England, and left several dau. Sir Edward, being in debt, sold his whole estate to Lionel Cranfeld, Earl of Middlesex, and thus the elder branch of the Grevilles became extinct.

FUBER, Thomas,

Edward,

The second son,

SIR FULUR GREVILLE, Knt., m. Elizabeth Willoughby, the ward of his father, and the greatest heiress then in England. (See BURR'S Kabinet Peerage.) The account of this marriage is in a manuscript, entitled "The Genealogy, Life, and Death of Robert, Lord Brooke," written in 1644, and in possession of Earl Brooke. "In the days of HENRY VIII., (says the author of the manuscript,) I read of Sir Edward Greville, of Milcote, who had the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus. of the Lord Brooke's son. The Knt. made a motion to his ward, to be married to John, his eldest son; but she refused, saying that she did like better of Fulke, his second son. She told her that he had no estate of land to maintain her: and that he was in the King's service of warre beyond the seas, and therefore her return was very doubtful. She replied and said that she had an estate sufficient both for him and for herself; and that she would pray for his safety and wait for his coming. Upon his returne home, for the worthy services he had performed, he was, by King HENRY, honored with Knighthood: and then married Elizabeth, youngest dau. of the Lord Brooke's son." By this marriage the manor of Alcester, and many other tait lordships and lands came to Sir Fulke in right of his wife: who seating himself at Beauchamp's Court, and augmenting his large estate by the purchase of nuetry lands in the neighbour-hood, raised his family to high distinction in the Co. Warwick. Of this marriage there were, with other issue, 1. Fulke, his successor.

2. Robert, of Thorp.- Latymser, Co. Lincoln, whose eldest son,

FULUR GREVILLE, left issue,

* Lord Beauchamp of Povyk, was descended from Walter de Beauchamp, of Alcester, brother of William, 1st Earl of Warwick, of the Beauchamp family. The male line of which family expired with HENRY DE BEAUC- CHAMP, EARL DE WARRICK, in 1445, when the dukedom became extinct, and the Earldom devolved upon his Grace's only dau. and heiress, Anne de Beauchamp, as Countess of Warwick, but her Ladyship d. unm., in four years afterwards; when her aunt, Anne Beauchamp, wife of Richard Nevile, son of the Earl of Salisbury, became heiress of the family.

Lineage.

This surname was anciently written Graville, or Greville, and sometimes Grevill; and the present noble house of Warwick deduces from

William Greville, a citizen of London, "the flower of woodstaplers" (as his epitaph declares), who lies interred at Campden, where he had been recently seated. This William was living in the 21st of RICHARD II., as that monarch acknowledges receiving a loan from him and his father of the enormous sum, in those days, 300 marks, 10 Aug., 1397. He purchased, in the following year, the manor of Milcote, Co. Warwick, from Sir Walter Beauchamp, Knt., and entailed it upon his heir male. He d. in the 3rd of HENRY IV., and was s. by his son,

John Greville, of Campden, who served the office of Sheriff of Gloucestershire, in the 6th of HENRY IV. He m. 1st, Sibyl, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Corbet; and 2ndly, Joyce, dau. of Sir Walter Cocksay, Knt. sister and heiress of Hugh Cocksay, and widow of the Earl Beauchamp. The grandson of this John,

Sir Thomas Greville, of Milcote, assumed the name of Cocksey, upon inheriting the estates of his great-grandfather's family. He d. in the 14th of HENRY VII. without issue, when the lands of the Cocksays passed to the heirs of that family; and Milcote, with the other estates of the Grevilles, devolved, according to the entail of William Greville, upon

John Greville, of Drayton (great-grandson of Lewis, or Lodowick Greville, and his wife, Margaret, sole dau. and heir of Sir Giles Arden, of Drayton, Co. Oxford.) This John Greville was one of the Justices for the Goal Delivery of Warwick, in the 15th of HENRY VII. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpeden, Co. BROKE.

BROKE-DE-CAPPELL, Sir Arthur, of Oakley, Co. Northampton; an Officer in the Army, 6. 22 Oct., 1791, s. to the title, as 2nd Bart., at the decease of his father, 27 Nov., 1829.

Lineage.

Philip de Capell, from whom Sir Arthur de Capell-Brooke lineally descends, accompanied Fitz-Stephen into Ireland, and had large grants of lands for his services there; those lands, comprising the estate of Ahadore, in the Co. Cork, with the mansion-house, the remains of an ancient castle, have remained ever since (a period of nearly 700 years) in his descendants, and are still held by the original tenure of Knight's service, viz., the annual presentation of a pair of spurs at Easter.

The family of Brookes issued originally from the house of Lathem, in Cheshire, from which, in the time of Stephen, three eminent branches sprang, viz., the Brookes of Cheshire; the Brookes, Lords Cobham; and the Brookes of Oakley.

William Brooke, of Astwell, in the Co. Northampton, exchanged, sometime in the 14th century, the manor of Astwell and other lands, with Thomas Lovett, for the manor of the Newburghs, the first Earl of Warwick after the Conquest.

* The bear and ragged staff belonged to the Saxon Earl of Warwick, derived from the chivalrous Gyr. It was assumed by the Newburghs, the first Earl of Warwick after the Conquest.

BROUGHAM.

BROUGHAM and VAUX, BARON (Henry Brougham), of Brougham, Co. Westmorland, b. 19 Sept., 1775; m. 1819, Mary Anne, eldest dau. of Thomas, 4th son of Sir John Eden, Bart. of Windleston, Co. Durham; niece of the Lords Auckland and Heuley, and widow of John Spalding, Esq., by whom he has one surviving dau., ELENAo-LOUISA.

This eminent person, after a long series of great and gratuitous public services, was constituted Lord Chancellor, and created a Peer of the realm, on the accession of the Grey Administration, in 1830. He retired with his party, in 1834.

Lord Brougham is heir-general and representative of a branch of the ancient and princely house of Vaux.

Lineage.

The family of Brougham claims Saxon descent, and derives its surname from Brougham, afterwards called Brougham, a parish in the Co. Westmorland, the ancient Brovacum, or Brotoniacum, of the Romans. The learned Camden says: "Eden runs along not far from Howgill, a Castle of the Sandfordos; but the Roman military way passes directly through Whinfell, a large park thick set with trees, to Brovoniacum, twenty Italian miles, but seventeen English, from Vercræ, as Antoninus has fixed it; he calls it also Brovonius, as the Notitia Broconiarum, from which we understand the company of Defensores had their abode here. Though age has consumed both its buildings and splendour, the name is preserved almost entire in the present one of Brougham; the antiquity whatsoever has been further confirmed of late years, by the discovery of Roman coins, altars, and other testimonies."

The ancient line of the Broughams is likewise alluded to by Hutchinson, in his History of Cumberland. "This family," he observes, "may be said to stand unusually eminent in point of antiquity; from having originally assumed the name of the Roman station—an area to the south of Brougham Castle, the vallum and outward ditch of which are yet very distinguishable."

Walter de Brougham was Lord of the Manor and estate of Brougham, in the time of Edward the Confessor, and he retained possession after the Conquest, as tenant in chief, by the tenure of Dirneage.*

From him descended

Sir Osardo de Brougham, Knt., Lord of Brougham, in the time of Henry II, and third in command of the King's forces in the north. In the 22nd of the same reign, Sir Osard paid a fine of 20 marks into the Exchequer for delivering up Appleby Castle to the King of Scots. He was s. by his son.

Gilbert de Brougham, who, in the reign of John, alienated a moiety of the village of Brougham, a large portion of the estates, and the advowson of the rectory of Brougham, to Robert de Veteripont, upon condition that the remainder might be held by him and his heirs, free from the service of Dirneage. This Gilbert was s. by his son.

Henry de Brougham, Lord of the Manor of Brougham in the reign of Edward I. In 1303, his dau., Dorothy, m. John de Carlston, ancestor of the Barons Dorchester. In the time of Edward III.,

John de Brougham possessed the manor, and was Sheriff of Westmorland, in 1303, under Lord Clifford. He was s. by his son.

John de Brougham, Knt., who, having some dispute with Lord Clifford, respecting the extent of the manor, a solemn deed was entered into between them, for the purpose of defining and fixing for ever the boundaries of the manor of Brougham. This instrument bears date the 2nd

* Dirneage. The Dirneage, according to Spelman, was a military tenure, and those who retained their estates after the Conquest by such service were of knightly degree. They were permitted by the Conqueror to hold their estates, upon showing their original right to the lands, and that they were use de avizido, non in consilio, against the new monarch.

The same authority, after giving examples of the tenure from ancient grants and documents, in which it appears that the Drenches were Lords of manors and had rights of bariship and wardship, proceeds—"Sunt igniur Drenches eassai caldum suum, vel ei nostro foressei loquentur, tenentes per servicium militare."
Lamplugh, of Lamplugh, and had seven sons and two daughters. Of these

1. John, succeeded to the estate of Scalees.

2. Peter, Esq., of Highhead Castle, Co. Cumberland, who was grandson and heir of John Vaux, of Catter-leigh, through his mother, Mabel Vaux, that gentleman's daughter and sole heir, and left issue,

1 Henry Richmond, Sheriff of Cumberland. He d. p. in 1749.

2 John, who died before his brother, also issueless.

III. Samuel, m. Dorothy, only dau. of John Child, and had two sons:

1 John, one of the Society of Gray's Inn.

2 Henry.

Mr. Brougham was a son by his eldest son,

John Brougham, Esq., commonly called Commissioner Brougham, who purchased back, in 1726, from the grand-children of James Bird, the ancient seat of the family, Brougham Hall, and entailed it upon his four nephews, in succession, and their heirs male; by the eldest surviving of whom (the elder son of his younger brother Samuel) he was succeeded—namely,

John Brougham, Esq., the Bencher of Gray's Inn.

This gentleman d. s. p. in 1756, and was s. by his brother,

Harry Brougham, Esq., of Brougham and Scalees, who m. Mary, dau. of the Rev. William Freeman, D.D., and had two sons and three daughters, viz.,

Harry, John, Mary, m. to Richard Mux, Esq.

Anne. Rebecca, m. to Richard Lowndes, Esq. of Rose Hill, in the year 1763. Mr. Brougham suffered a recovery of the greater part of his property, including the estates and manor of Brougham, in Westmorland, Scalees Hall, the manor of Brathwaite Howes (brought into the family by marriage with the heiress of the Kirkbrides of the Howes), and the "Vauxes," in Cumberland. He devised Scalees Hall to his younger children, by whom it was sold to Peter Lampugh Brougham, Esq. of Dovemby (which Peter assumed the name of Lampugh by sign manual in 1726, in consequence of a proviso in the will of Elizabeth Ireton, only dau. and heir of Thomas Lamplugh). Mr. Brougham d. 1788, and was s. by his eldest son, Broughton, Sir John—Delve, of Broughton, Co. Stafford; a Gen. Officer in the Army; s. to the title, as 7th Bart., at the decease of his father, 22 July, 1813; m. Mary, sister of Sir John Egerton, Bart., of Upton Park, Co. Chester.

Lineage.

This family, according to a pedigree in the possession of the present Bart., is descended from the Deives, who were seated at Deives Hall, Co. Stafford, at the time of the Conquest; and, paternally, from Richard de Vernon, 4th son of Hugo de Vernon, Baron of Shipbrooke, at the same period. From this Richard lineally sprung

John, Lord of Broughton and Cherton, Co. Stafford, temp. Harvy VI: and from him,

Thomas Broughton, Esq., who m. Frances, dau. of Sir Harvey Bagot, Bart., of Bithfield, Co. Stafford, and was father of

Thomas, the eldest; his successor,

Charles, (the youngest) whose son, Charles, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Baron de Hertoghe, and had Charles, who left Charles, of the Audit Office, Somerset Place.

He d. July, 1765, and was s. by his eldest son,

2. Sir Thomas, who m. Rhoda, dau. of John Amcoate, Esq., of Astrop, Co. Lincoln, and was s. in 1719, by his eldest surviving son.

3. Sir Brian. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Sir Thomas Delve, Bart., of Doddington, Co. Chester, by whom he had a son and two daughters, Jane, wife of Sir Rowland Hill, Bart.; Elizabeth, who d. unm. 1725; and his successor,

4. Sir Brian Broughton-Delves, Bart., of Lichfield, Co. Stafford, who m. in May, 1738, Miss Forrester, dau. of William Forrester, Esq., M.P., by whom he had two sons. Sir Brian assumed the surname of Deives, in compliance with the will of his grandfather, Sir Thomas Deives, upon inheriting that gentleman's estate in Cheshire. Dying 11 Aug., 1744, he was s. by his eldest son,

5. Sir Brian Broughton-Delves, who m. Mary, dau. of Thomas Hall, Esq. of Town, in Salop, but, dying s. p. 16 Jan., 1798, was s. by his brother, BROWN.

BROWN, SIR JAMES, of Colstoun; m. 1798, Marion, dau. of the late Robert Henderson, Esq.
of Cleugh-Heads, a Magistrate and Lieut.-Depute of the Co. Dumfries, and has issue,
1. RICHARD, in Holy Orders.
3. William.
5. Sare.

Sir James s. to the title, as 6th Bart., after it had remained for several years dormant, as heir male of his cousin, Sir Alexander Broun, who d. in 1775.

Lineage.

According to family tradition, the House of Colstoun was founded soon after the Norman Conquest by a French warrior, who bore the arms of, and claimed alliance to, the royal family of France.

WALTER BROWN flourished at an early period of the 12th century, and was one of the Barons who witnessed an instrument of acquisition respecting the possessions of the church of Glasgow, made by Prince David, (cir. 1112), in the reign of his brother, Alexander I.

SIR DAVID BROWN, by a judicial transact, devised, to the Abbey of Hutyrood House, "lands and acres in territories of Colstoun," for prayers he said for "the soul of Alexander and the health of his son."

RALPH BROWN, one of the Scottish barons who swore fealty at Berwick, 28 Aug., 1296.

BRO

RICHARD LE BRUN, Keeper of the King's Peace in Westmorland and Cumberland, and one of the principal noblemen who headed the conspiracy occasioned by the demand of the charter of 1267. He was murdered in 1273, without issue, when the Baronetcy fell into abeyance, until revived in favor of the next male heir, JAMES, present Bart.

WILLIAM BROWN, of Colstoun, in the reign of JAMES I.
m. Margaret de Annand, co-heiress of the Barony of Sauchy, descended of the ancient Lords of Annandale, a family which gave Kings to Scotland, Robert de Bruce, having m. Agnes de Annand, heiress of that county, whence the Royal Line.

SIR WILLIAM BROWN, of Colstoun, Warden of the West Border, commanded the Scots, in a battle fought against the English, in the parish of Dornock Annandale, in which the latter were defeated, and their commanders, Sir Marmaduke Langdale and Lord Crathie, slain. So singular was the conflict that tradition says, a spring well upon the spot ran blood for three days.

WILLIAM BROWN, of Colstoun, who flourished in 1480, and downwards, was Director of the Chancery.

GROGER BROWN, of Colstoun, fl. cir. 1611, and m. Jean Mary, dau. of Lord Yester, ancestor of the Marquesses of Tweedale. The dowry of this lady consisted of the famous "Colstoun pear," which Hugh de Gifford, of Yester, who
m. in 1687, her remote ancestor, famed for his necromantic powers, was supposed to have invested with the extravatory virtue of securing, for the family who might possess it, unfailing prosperity. This PALLAION is preserved at Colstoun with the care due to so singular an heirloom, which, regardless of the superstition, must be esteemed a very wonderful vegetable curiosity, having existed more than five centuries. (See Chamber's Picture of Scotland.)

Various other notices occur of chiefs of the family in the parliamentary record and meetings of Estates, toge-gether with names long associated with the history of those times, down to George Broun, of Colstoun, who m.
Margaret, dau. of Sir D. Murray, of Stanhope, Bart., by his wife, the Lady Lelias Fleming. dau. of John Earl of Wigtoun, by a dau. of John, Earl of Montrose, and had a younger son, George, who m. a dau. of Spottiswood, of Spottiswoode; to whom he granted, by charter, the Barony of Thornydike, and

I. PATRICK BROWN, of Colstoun, who, in consequence of his eminent services, and the fidelity of the ancient family he represented, was created a Kt., and Baronet of North Scotch, 10 Feb., 1686, with reservation of the title to his heirs male for ever. Sir Patrick was s. by his son,

II. SIR GROGER BROWN, who m. the Lady Elizabeth M'Kenzie, dau. of George, 1st Earl of Cromarty, and d.
1718, without issue. It is reported of Lady Elizabeth, the first night after her marriage that she slept at Colstoun House, that she dreamed she had eaten the pear, which her father-in-law looked on as a bad omen, and expressed great fear that she would be an instrument in the destruction of the house of Colstoun. Whether owing to the lady's fault does not appear, but, shortly after, the family split between the heirs male and the heirs-off-line; the title devolving upon the Thornydike branch, and the estates upon an heiress, who married George Brown, of Eastfield, and from whom are descended the latter family, represented by George Brown, Lord Colston, of Session, who m. a dau. of D. Dalrymple, Lord Westhall; the late Charles Broun of Colstoun, who m. a dau. of M'Dowall, of Logan; and the present Countess of Dalhouse.

III. SIR GROGER BROWN, son of Alexander Broun, of Thornydike Castle and Bassendean, by Catherine, dau.
of Sir Alexander Swinton, of Swinton, Bart., s. his cousin, died without male issue, and was s. by his brother,

IV. SIR ALXANDER, who m. Beatrice, dau. of Alexander Swinton, Lord Mersington; and d. 1726, leaving

VI. SIR ALEXANDER BROWN, who m. a dau. of Colbycoon of Gilms, d. 1725, without issue, when the Barronetcy fell into abeyance, until revived in favor of the next male heir, JAMES, present Bart.

8. Jane-Crey, d. 5 July, 1833.

This gentleman, who was bred to the Bar, has distinguished himself in the literary world, particularly as a Genealogist, having edited, with great ability, the last impression of Colline's Peerage; he has also obtained celebrity as a Biographist and Poet. He was elected a Knight-Grand-Commander of the Equestrian, Secular, and Chapteral Order of St. Joachim, in 1807; chosen M.P. for Maidstone, at the general election in 1812; and created a Bart. 27 Dec., 1814.

Lineage.
The very ancient family of Brydges deduces its descent from SIR SIMON DE BURGOS, of Herefordshire, who flourished in the reign of HARRY III. and who seems to have been a branch of the old Counte de Bethel, in the province of Champagne, in France, Princes of the first distinction in that kingdom, sprung by various alliances from the House of Charlesmagne, and afterwards memorable in the Crusades. In the time of HARRY IV., THOMAS BURGES, m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Berkeley, Knt., of Cokesby, by Margaret, sister and heiress of Sir John Chandos, a family of nobles who had held Baronsal rank from the Conquest; and from this Thomas descended JOHN BURGES, who was elevated to the Peerage by PHILIP and MARY, at their coronation, 8 April, 1354, by the title of Baron Chandos, of Sudley Castle, Co. Gloucester. His Lordship d. 1757, and was s. by his eldest son, EDMUND, 2nd Lord; from whom descended, in succession, five more Lords Chandos; and at the demise of WILLIAM, 7th Lord, without issue, in 1776, the Barony passed to his cousin,
SIR JAMES BAVDERS, Bart. of Willton, as heir male of Charles, 2nd son of the 1st Baron. His Lordship d. 1714, and was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, who was created Vescout Wilton, and Earl of Carnarvon, in 1714; and Marquess of Carnarvon, and Duke of Chandos, in 1720, who honors expired with JAMES, the 3rd Duke, in 1791; but the ancient Barony of Chandos was claimed by The Rev. EDWARD-TYMSELL BAVDERS, as heir male of Anthony, 3rd son of John, 1st Baron Chandos, (the male line of the two elder sons having ceased with the 7th Baron and 2nd Duke). The claim was contested before the House of Lords, from 1729 to 1803; the opposition

At a very early period the family was divided into three branches, seated at Standon, at Cobberley, and at the Lee. The first-named terminated with an heiress Joanna, who m. Sir John Baskerville of Erelsey; the second was elevated to the Peerage; and the third was still living at the Lee in 1864.

position was strenuous; and the Lords came to a resolution, by which the right, so far as a committee could go, was suspended. Sir Egerton Brydges, as heir to his late brother, persevered, however, in his claim; and asserts himself to be legally entitled. He is the 2nd, but eldest surviving son of the late Edward Brydges, Esq. of Wootton Court, Co. Kent, by Jemima, dau. and co-heir of William Egerton, L.L.D.: grandson of John, 2nd Earl of Bridgewater, by Elizabeth, dau. of William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle. Sir Samuel Egerton Brydges has one surviving brother, Sir John WALTER HEAD BAYNOUNS, M.P. for Coleraine, who m. 1812, Lady Isabella Anne Beresford, eldest dau. of George, 1st Marques of Waterford, and has a son, John, b. 1814, and two daws. Sir Egerton had also five sisters—of whom Anoe, m. the Rev. George Lefroy, and d. Dec. 1844; Deborah m. Henry Maxwell, Esq. of Ewhurst House, Haats, and d. 1789, and Charlotte, 1st, the wife of Champion Brandifill, Esq. of Uptonminster Hall, in Essex, and 2ndly, of John Harrison, Esq. of Deno Hill, near Canterbury.

His Grace is 5th Duke of Buccleuch, and 7th Duke of Queenberry.

LINEAGE.

SIR RICHARD DE SCOT, the undoubted ancestor of this family, was a person of great distinction in the reign of Alexander III., of Scotland. He was the dau. and heiress of Murthockstone, of that ilk, by whom he obtained considerable estate in Lanarkshire, and, as feudal Lord thereof, swore fealty to Edward I., of England, anno 1296. Upon his marriage, Sir Richard assumed the cognizance of Murthockstone, which was a bend azure, into his armorial bearings, disposing thereon the crescents and stars, the arms of Scot, as since borne by the Dukes of Buccleuch. He d. 1339; and from him lineally descended SIR DAVID SCOT, of Branxholme, who sate in the Parliament held by James II. at Edinburgh, anno 1457, under the designation of "Robertus de Scoto," being the first of the family so designated. The grandson of this Sir David.

SIR WALTER SCOT, of Branxholme and Buccleuch, s. in 1492, this Laird, a brave and powerful Baron and Warden of the west marches of Scotland, is celebrated by historians for deeds of valour and magnanimity, during the minority of James V., and for an abortive attempt to rescue that Monarch from the control of the Earl of Angus; on which Sir Walter Scott has founded "THE LAST MINORITI" of 1535, which was after the King had assumed the management of his own affairs, he privately solicited the aid of Buccleuch, who, being apprised that James, accompanied by Angus and a considerable retinue, was coming to Melrose, raised about 1500 horse of his friends and followers, to relieve the King. The adherents of Buccleuch and Angus came in sight near Melrose, 18 July, 1535, and a sanguinary conflict ensued; but the Earl was successful, after a number of men of rank fell on both sides, Sir Walter Scott himself being wounded and barely escaping from the field. This was afterwards disgraced by the battle of Pinkie, anno 1547; and eventually lost his life in a encounter with Sir Walter Kerr, of Cessford, in the streets of Edinburgh, 1582. Sir Walter m. 1st, Elizabeth Carmichael, of the Hayndford family, by whom he had two sons. He m. 2ndly, Janet, dau. of John Beton, of Cricht, and had two sons and three daws. The last lady of Sir Walter was a woman of masculine spirit, as appeared from her riding at the head of her clan after her husband's murder. Sir Walter Scott was 2d. by his grandson, SIR WALTER SCOT, of Buccleuch. This was a person of rare qualities, wise, true, stout, and modest. He signed the association in support of James VI. in 1567, but subsequently turned to the party of the Queen, to whom he reserved faithful notwithstanding her exerted resignations of the Crown, and her captivity in England. He m. Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of David, 7th Earl

"I am not the first," says Sir Walter Scott, in a note to the "LAW OF THE LAST MINORITI," who has attempted to celebrate in verse the renown of this ancient Baroo, and his hazardous attempt to procure his Sovereign's freedom.

In consequence of the battle of Melrose," continues Sir Walter, "there ensued a deadly feud betwixt the names of Scott and Kerr, which, in spite of all means to bring about an agreement, raged for many years upon the borders. Buccleuch was imprisoned, and his estates forfeited in the year 1535, for levying war against the Kerrs, and restored by Act of Parliament dated 13 March, 1542, during the Reign of Mary of Lorraine. But the most signal act of violence, to which the quarrel gave rise, was the murder of Sir Walter himself, who was slain in the streets of Edinburgh by the Kerrs, in 1522.

NOTE.—Pennant, in his work on the History of Scotland, says that the first Buccleuch was entitled to use the arms of the Clan Douglas, with the motto "Dincit me, e piacere, " and the Tremitis helm. But a careful examination of the armory of Sir Robert, 1st Duke of Buccleuch, reveals no title to the arms of the Douglas. On the contrary, the arms of the Buccleuch are those of the direct progeny of William Scott, 1st Earl of Buccleuch.
of Angue, and, dying 17 April, 1874, was a by his only son,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Buccleuch. This powerful Chieftain, no way inferior to the bravest of his ancestors in courage and intrepidity, received the honor of Knighthood from King James, whom he had assistedward in the west marches in 1569. Having subsequently carried on a predatory warfare against the English, and boldly rescued one of his attendants, KINMONT WALT, from the castle of Carlisle, he was delivered up as a hostage upon an adjustment of the feuds between the English and Scots. During his sojourn in England, family tradition states that he was brought into the presence of Queen ELIZA- BATH, who demanded, in her usual arbitrary manner, how he dared to engage in deeds so desperate and presumptuous! "What is it," answered the undaunted chieftain, "what is it that a man dares not do?" Elizabet h, struck with this reply, said to a lord in waiting, "With ten thousand such men, our brother of Scotland might shake the finest throne in Europe." Sir Walter was elevated to the Peerage, 16 March, 1861, as Lord Scott, of Buccleuch. His Lordship afterwards, as a Military Commander, attained considerable renown in the Netherlands, under Maurice, Prince of Orange. His Mary, dau. of Sir William Ker, of Cessford, and sister of Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburghe, and, dying in 1611, was a by his only son,

WALTER, 2nd Baron, who was created, 16 March, 1619, Lord Winton and Eskdale, and Earl of Buccleuch, with remainder to his heirs whatsoever. This nobleman was also a military character, and had the command of a regiment under the States of Holland, against the Spaniards. His Lordship m. Lady Mary Hay, dau. of Francis, Earl of Errol, and, dying in 1633, was a by his only son,

FRANCIS, 2nd Earl, who m. Lady Margaret Leslie, only dau. of the 2nd Earl of Rothes, and widow of Lord Balgonie: by whom he left, at his decease in 1651, two dau., and was a by the elder,

MARTY, Countess of Buccleuch. Her Ladyship m. Walter Scott, of Highcoster, afterwards created Earl of Tarra for life; at the time of her marriage the Countess was but eleven years of age, and Mr. Scott fourteen. The affair made a considerable noise, and became matter of discussion before the provincial Synod of Fife, in 1659, upon an accusation against the prebendary for granting a warrant for the publication of the proclamations. To the prebendary was, however, absolved, because the order was grounded upon an act of the General Assembly, allowing such marriages in case of necessity, or fear of rape, and the lady's friends were apprehensive of her being carried off. The couple died in two years afterwards without issue, and was a by her sister,

ANNE, 2nd Countess, b. 1621. This lady, who was esteemed the greatest heiress and finest woman of her time, m. 1653, James, Duke of Monmouth, K.G., illegitimate son of CHARLES II. by Mrs. Lucy Walters, dau. of Richard Walters, Esq. of Haverton West, Co. Pembroke. His Grace, upon his marriage, assumed the name of Scott, and himself and his Duchess were created, 20 April, 1673, Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, Earl and Countess of Dalkeith, Baron and Baroness of Whitestable and Eskdale, in Scotland; with remainder to their heirs male, in default of which to the heir whatever descending from the Duke's body, succeeding in the estate and Earldom of Buccleuch. His Grace's honors, however, (Scottish and English,) were forfeited, upon the execution of the Duke, 13 July, 1681; whilst those enjoyed by the Duchess in her own right, (Dukedom of Buccleuch by creation, and Earldom of Buccleuch by inheritance,) remained unaffected by the attainer. The marriage of this union were JAMES, Earl of Dalkeith, and HARRIET, Countess of Dalkeith, 1676, which honors became extinct, with the 4th Earl, in 1897. The Duchess m. 2ndly, Charles, 3rd Lord Cornwallis, and, at her demise, 6 Feb., 1728, was a by her grandson,

FRANCIS, 2nd Duke (son of the Earl of Dalkeith, by Henrietta, 2nd dau. of Laurence Hyde, Earl of Rochester). His Grace obtained a restoration of the Earldom of Doncaster, and Baron of Scott, of Tynedale, the English honors of his grandfather, the Duke of Monmouth, by act of Parliament, in 1743. He m. 5 April, 1728, Lady Jane Douglas, eldest dau. of James, 2nd Duke of Queensberry, by whom he had issue, Francis, Earl of Dalkeith, who, pre-deceasing him, left, by his Countess Caroline, eldest dau. and co-heir of John, 2nd Duke of Argyll and Green- wich, a son HENRY, 4th Duke of Buccleuch, m. to Archibald Lord Douglas. The Duke of Buccleuch, m. 2ndly, Miss Powell; but by that lady had no issue. His Grace d. 29 April, 1751, and was a by his grandson,

Dumfries, agreeably to the limitation of the patent, creating those honors in 1706, and in virtue of an entail, executed by the 2nd Duke of Queensberry. He d. 11 Jan., 1712, and was a. by his elder son,

CHARLES-WILLIAM-HENRY, 4th Duke of Buccleuch, and 6th of Queensberry, K.T., b. 24 May, 1712; who had been summoned to Parliament in 1707, and in virtue of an entail, died in 1784, without issue.

BUCHAN.

BUCHAN, EARL OF (Henry-David Erkine), and

LORD CARRODOS, Co. Stirling, in the Peacage of Scotland; m. 1st, 28 Sept. 1809, Elisabeth, 3rd

dau. of the late Major-Gen. Sir Charles Shipley,* by whom (who d. 5 Oct., 1828,) he has issue,

1. HENRY, Lord Carrodos, b. Oct., 1812, m. June, 1829,

Jane, 2nd dau. of Archibald Torrie, Esq., and has issue.

11. Sir Hugh, 4th B. N. Y., 1815.

IV. John M Loughian-Fraser, b. March, 1825.

V. Mary-Margaret.

VI. Christian-Isabella.

VII. Alicia-Diana.

The Earl, aged 11, 26 June, 1830, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of the late John Harvey, Esq., by that Lady, is now another dau.

His Lordship inherited the honors, as 12th

Earl and 7th Baron, on the decease of his uncle, 19

April, 1829.

Lineage.

The Earl of Buchan, a dignity of great antiquity in Scotland, can be traced to the time of William the Lion, when

Fergus, Earl of Buchan, made a grant of a mark of silver annually to the Abbey of Aberbrothick. The only dau. and heiress of this feudal chief-tain,

MARGO, Countess of Buchan, espoused, in the beginning of the twelfth century,

William CUMM, who then became, in right of that last, Earl of Buchan, and the Earldom remained in his family until forfeited by

John CUMM, 3rd Earl of Buchan, in 1346. This nobleman m. Isabelle, dau. of Duncan, Earl of Fife, a lady celebrated for her patriotism and high spirit, in placing the crown on the head of Robert Bruce, at his Coronation at Scone, 20 March, 1306, her brother, Duncan, Earl of Fife, to whom, as the successor of Macduff, that privilege belonged, being then in the English interest. On this account she is dominated by the English writers the most impious of all traitoroses. Falling the same year into the hands of Edward I., the English avenged his unwise manners, which sufficiently indicated the importance of the service his Ladyship had rendered to Bruce. He issued immediate orders that the Chamberlai of Scotland do, in one of the turrets of the castle of Berwick—upon-Tweed, cause to be constructed, a cage, strongly latticed with wood, cross-barred, and secured with iron, in which he shall put the Countess of Buchan, and that he do cause her to be so strictly guarded that she may not speak with any one of the Scottish nation, nor with any one else, saving with the woman who shall be appointed to attend her, or with the guard who shall have the custody of her person; and that the cage be constructed so that the Countess may have therein the convenience of a decent chamber, &c. In this terrible state of incarceration, her Ladyship remained until released by Edward II., in 1313.

The Earl of Buchan was next granted (having reverted to the Crown by the forfeiture of the CUMM), by Robert II., to his third son, by his wife, Elisabeth, dau. of Sir Adair Mure, of Rowallan, to

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART, who had also a proportion of the lands of the Cumnys. On the demise of this nobleman without legitimate issue, in 1394, the Earldom of Buchan passed to (the eldest son of his brother, Robert,

Duke of Albany, by his second wife, Muriella, dau. of Sir William de Keich, Grand Marischal of Scotland,) his nephew,

JOHN STEWART. This nobleman, a great military character, attained high reputation, by the defeat of the English, under the Duke of Clarence, at Beaufay, &c in Anjou,

22 March, 1421. To this engagement the Duke of Clarence was slain, having been stunned and unhorsed by Buchanan himself, with a blow of his lance. For this exploit

CHARLES VII. conferred upon him the sword of Constable of France. The Earl fell at the battle of Verneuil,

17 Aug., 1449; leaving, by his wife, Lady Elisabeth

Douglas, an only dau., Margaret, who m. George, 2nd

Lord Seton. At his Lordship's decease the Earldom of Buchan devolved, according to the limitation, upon Murdœ, Duke of Albany, and reverted to the Crown, by the forfeiture of that nobleman the next year. The dignity was next conferred upon

JAMES STEWART, called Howey James, 2nd son of Sir

James Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn, by Jane, Queen of Scotland, mother (by James I.) of James II. and by his male descendants the Earldom of Buchan was enjoyed under the title of John, 3rd Earl, who was s. by (the dau. of his eldest son, John, master of Buchan, killed at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept., 1567,) his granddau.,

CHRISTIAN STEWART, Countess of Buchan, who, espousing Robert Douglas, 2nd son of Sir Robert Douglas, of Locheve, that gentleman became in her right.

ROBERT DOUGLAS, Earl of Buchan. His Lordship was

s. by his son.

JAMES DOUGLAS, who was served heir to his father, in 1623, under the designation of "James Douglas," and to his mother, in 1688, as James, now, "Earl of Buchan." His Lordship d. 1691, and left an only dau.,

MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan. This heiress

m. James Erkine, eldest son by his 2nd wife, of John,

Earl of Murr. Lord High Treasurer of Scotland, who thereupon assumed the Earldom of Buchan. On the resignation of the Countess with Mr. Erkine's consent, a royal charter of the Earldom was granted, 22 May, 1617,

to her Ladyship and her husband, the said James Erkine, and the longest liver of them, and the heirs male of their marriage; whom failing, to the nearest lawful heirs male and assigns whatever of the said

* The Marchals De-la-Fayete, ancestor of the late patriotic General of that name, commanded the French at the battle, which, however, was chiefly gained by the Scotch.

James Erskine, Earl of Buchan. His Lordship was one of the Lords of the Bedchamber to Charles I., and resided much in England. His 1st Countess died in 1628, leaving, with two daus., an only son, James. The Earl m. 1stly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Philip Knevet of Buckenham, in whose family the succession, if he had married so early, would, by failure of his own heirs male, to his cousin, Henry Erskine, third * Lord Cardross, (nephew of James, first Earl of Buchan, of the Erskine family,) and his brothers, William, John, and Charles, after these, to William Erskine, Cup-Bearer to Charles II., (brother to the said 1st Earl,) and finally to Sir Charles Erskine of Alva, and John Erskine, his brother, (nephews of the Earl before-mentioned,) and the heirs of their bodies respectively: which failing, to his nearest heirs male whatsoever; and after those to his heirs and assigns, whatsoever. At the revolution, the Earl of Buchan adhered to James, and took up arms in his cause, for which he was committed prisoner to the Castle of Stirling, where he died unmarried, in 1685. The succession to the Earldom of Buchan, which the Duke of Argyll was engaged in, under the Act of 1685, to Lord Cardross, appears to have been disputed by Fraser, of Innerachie, the heir-at-line. The Parliament of Scotland, however, passed an act in 1689, allowing the son and successor of the said Henry, 3rd Lord Cardross, David Erskine, 4th Lord Cardross, he called in the Rolls of Parliament, as 4th Earl of Buchan. This nobleman was constituted Lord-Lieut. of the Cos. Stirling and Clackmannan, upon the accession of George I., and he was chosen one of the Representative Peers in 1715, 1725, and 1727. He m. 1st, 1687, Frances, dau. and heir of the Hon. Henry Fairfax, of Hurst, Co. Berks, by Henry, his father, who had married a surviving sister, and his Lordship espoused 2ndly, Isabella, dau. of Sir William Blackett, Bart., of Wallington, Co. Northumberland, and co-heiress of her brother, Sir William, but by her he had no issue. He d. in Oct., 1745, and was s. by his eldest son, Henry-David, 5th Earl, b. 17 April, 1710, This nobleman m. 31 Jan., 1729, Agnes, 2nd dau. of Sir James Stewart of Goodtrees, Co. Edinburgh, Bart., by whom (w. d. 11 Dec., 1778) he had surviving issue,

1. David-Stewart, Lord Cardross, his successor.

ii. Henry, of Corndell, Co. Linn., d. 1746, O. S., who was called to the Scottish bar, in 1764, and soon attained that first rate practice so justly the seed of his transcendent talents. He was appointed King's Advocate, in 1783, but resigned the office in the same year, on the change of Administration. He was elected Dean of the Faculty of Advocates in 1785, and appointed by the Whigs, in 1806, King's Advocate, an office which he again relinquished on the retirement of his party from power. Mr. Erskine was distinguished by the amiability of his character, and the conciseness of his legal knowledge, and the brilliancy of his wit. He m. 1st, 30 March, 1772, Christian, only child and heiress of George Fullerton, Esq., of Broughton Hall, by whom (w. d. 1804) he had issue,

2. George Francis, an Officer of Dragoons.

3. Elizabeth-Rompton, m. 21 Oct., 1819, to Col. Mr. Erskine m. 2ndly, 7 Jan., 1805, Erskine, dau. of Alexander Monroe, Esq. of Glasgow, and widow of John Turnbull, Esq., but had no issue by that lady. He d. 5 Oct., 1817.

iii. Thomas, created Lord Erskine.

Kinsrake.

The surname originally of this family, as proved by existing records, was St. Pibb, and its founder in England, a Norman, attaching himself to the fortunes of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, the Conquers's nephew, obtained from his patron a portion of the Barony of Malpas, with other lands in the Palatine, of which the manor of Bunbury made a part. The name of St. Pierre became, however, extinct in the beginning of the 15th century, and the designation of Bunbury, having been previously adopted by the descendant of the 1st St. Pierre, has since been retained. The immediate progenitor of the present family, Alexander de Bunbury, feudal Lord of Bunbury, was living in the reign of Henry III., and from him descended,

Davido Bunbury, Lord of Bunbury, living temp. Edward II., who the only child and heiress of David de Stanish, or Stanny, and thus acquired the Lordsip of Stanny, near the city of Chester, which has remained ever since in the family. From this union lineage sprang,

Sir Francis z. to the title, as 5th bart., on the demise of his grandfather, 22 Feb., 1797.

Lineage.

Hugh a Burdett, one of the Norman Soldiers of the Conquest, was father of William Burdett, who became Lord Lousby, Co. Leicester, and founded the priory at Ancote, near Stockdon, Co. Warwick, temp. Hanwy II. His lineal descendant.

Sir Robert Burdett, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Gerald de Camville, with whom he obtained the manor of Arrow, in Warwickshire, where he settled. This gentleman represented the Co. Warwick in Parliament, in the 14th of Edward IV., and in three years afterwards was one of the Commissioners for the Gaol Delivery at Warwick. He subsequently represented Leicestershire, and afterwards the Co. Warwick again. He d. 1555, and we pass to his great great grandson,

Sir Nicholas Burdett, Knt., who fell at the battle of Pontoise, in 1440. This gentleman was chief Butler of Normandy, and Governor of Eureieux; by his wife, Joan, cousin and heiress of Henry Bruin, he obtained the manor of Brumote, in Warwickshire, and left a son and heir,

Thomas Burdett, Esq., of Arrow, who was a person of great note and figure in the Co. Warwick, incurred the displeasure of Edward IV. on account of his attachment to the Duke of Clarence; a strict espionage was placed over him, and an opportunity soon found to take away his life; having intemperately wished the horns of a white buck, which he had heard that the King had killed in his park of Arrow, in the belly of the Monarch's adviser, he was arraigned and convicted of High Treason, for these unguarded expressions, and was beheaded in 1477. After his death a great contest for his manor of Arrow and other estates arose between Richard Burdett, his son, by Agnes, dau. of John Welde, a former wife, that had been, from nearness of kindred, divorced from him in 1464, and John Burdett his son by Margaret, dau. of John Rodney; for the said Thomas (by license from the Crown) had alienated his lands to his younger son: of the injustice of which he became afterwards so sensible that, as he was drawn from the Tower to the place of execution, opeyng the elder son at Westcheap, over against Sir Thomas Backett's hospitalar, he caused himself to be staid, and there asked his said son's forgiveness, and, acknowledging the wrong he had done him, declared thereto be the cause of God's vengeance then against himself. But, in the subsequent lawsuit, John the younger son succeeded, for Margaret, his mother, held her estate therin for life, and became the wife of Thomas Woodhill; notwithstanding which, Richard Burdett pre-valled with the said John, and also with the said Margaret and her husband, to levy a fine of the manor of Arrow and other lands, and to give him possession thereof.
This matter finally terminated by certain of the estates, including Arrow, passing to the dau. and heiress of Richard-Ann Burdett; and the remainder to the son and heir of John, (himself, who had attained the honor of Knighthood, dying before the decision) namely,
Thomas Burdett, Esq., of Headcorn, who d. about the 28th of November 1688, and was s. by his eldest son (by Mary dau. of Sir Robert Throckmorton, Knt.), Robert Burdett, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Warwick,

BURDDETT.

Burdett, Sir Charles-

Wynham, of Burthwaite, Co.

York, & Lieut. - Col. in the Army: b. 19 July, 1771; s. in 5th Bart., on the demise of his father, 19 July, 1803.

Lineage.

From an ancient pedigree in the possession of the pre-rent Bart., it would appear that this family is descended from Hugo da Burdett, who came into England with William the Conqueror; but at this distance of time the connecting link cannot be distinctly traced. The Herald’s College deduces its origin from Almarchus de Burdett, who held lands at Skelmanthorpe, Co. York, temp. Henry III. His son Robert married Iddone, dau.
and heir of Sir Robert de Balliol, by Margaret, dau.
and heir of Sir Robert da Derby, who married Margaret, daughter, and heir of Sir Robert de Holland, the son of Sir Adam de Holland, by Maud, dau. of Gilbert de Norton.

By this marriage with the heiress of the three houses of Balliol, Derby, and Holland, Robert Burdett acquired the Lordships of Derby and High Holland, Co. York.
His son and heir,

Avymer Burdett, m. Isabel, dau. of John Langton, Lord of Nant and Watton, Co. Lancaster, and was s.
by his 2nd son,

Metcalfe. The eldest son and heir,

Francis Burdett, Esq., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Fer-dinandus Leigh, Knt., of Middleton, (now one of the seats of the Brandings of Gosforth,) and was s. by his only son,

Francis Burdett, Esq., who was created a Bart., 25
July, 1663. Sir Francis m. Frances, dau. of — Stephenson, of Lincolnshire, and, dying in 1717, was s. by his only
son,

Sir Francis, b. 2 Aug. 1725. This gentleman m.

Sir Thomas Wyndham, 3rd son of Sir Thomas Wyndham of Felbrigg, by Elizabeth his wife, dau. of Sir Thomas Bunney, and by her had fourteen children, of whom

* This Sir Robert de Balliol is supposed to be of the same family as the John de Balliol who was a competitor with Bruce for the Crown of Scotland.

* This Sir Robert de Holland married Joan, dau. of Sir Baldwin Tsyn, who, in her subsequent widowhood wedded John de Byron, of Clayton.

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the Burdets of Foremark, Co. Derby. Its founders in Ireland were Thomas and Samuel Burdett, sons of Alderman Burdett, of London. The former took up his abode in the old castle of Garrabill, the forfature of the O'Reyvanagh, Kings of Leinster; and the latter at Lismalpin, Co. Tipperary.

Thomas Burdett, (the elder) m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Kennedy, of Mount Kennedy, Co. Wicklow, and had, with other children,

1. Thomas Burdett, Esq., of Dunmore Co. Carlow, who was created a Bart. of Ireland, 11 July, 1723, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the heirs male of his sister Anne, wife of Walter Weldon, Esq. Sir Thomas m. Honoria, relict of Thomas (Cromwell), 1st Earl of Ardglass, and of Francis Cuffe, Esq., Co. Mayo, and dau. of His Grace, Michael (Boyle), Archbishop of Armagh, Lord-Chancellor of Ireland, (A.D. 1605,) by whom he had an only son, William his successor. The Bart., sat in the Irish Parliament, representing the Co., and the borough, of Carlow, alternately, from the year 1704 to the time of his decease in 1727, when he was 26, in his title and estates by his only son,

2. Sir William-Vigors. This gentleman m. 5 Oct, 1769, Lady Henrietta O'Loughlin, widow of Terence O'Loughlin, Esq., and dau. of William (O'Brien), 3rd Earl of Inchiquin, by whom he had two sons and one dau., and was s. at his decease by his elder son, William-Bagenal, the present Bart.

BURGOYNE.

BURGOYNE, Sir John-Montagu, of Sutton Park, Co. Bedford; b. 17 Oct, 1796; succeeded to the title, as 9th Bart., at the decease of his father, 16 Aug., 1817; m. 20 Dec., 1831, Mary Harriet, dau. of William Gore-Langton, Esq., M.P. (See Burke's History of the Comoners), and has a son, John-Montagu, b. 23 Oct, 1832.

Lineage.

According to ancient records, the Burgoynes were settled in Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire, at a very early period. There is an old tradition that they held Sutton and Potton, under a rhyming grant from John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster:

"I, John of Gaunt

Do give and do grant

To Johny Burgoine,

And the heirs of his loyn,

Sutton and Potton,

Until the world's rotten."

The rhyme is of great antiquity, and the site of the former manor house in Sutton Park is still called "John of Gaunt's Mount;" but it has been stated that the tradition is so the grant is without foundation: and it appears that the Duke of Lancaster's right to the manors in Potton and Sutton was contested by the Nevilles and the Latimers: it is, however, certain that all those manors eventually became vested in the Burgoynes.

Robert Burgoynes, Esq., younger son of John Burgoyne of Sutton, was one of the auditors of the Exchequer in the reign of Henry VIII., and one of the Commissioners appointed to take the surrender of the monasteries, and had grants of the rectory, tithes, and all the lands of Wroxall, with other estates in the Co. of Warwick. The great grandson of this gentleman,

I. John Burgoyne, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Warwick, possessed Sutton and Potton, and Wroxall and Homley, and was created a Bart., 15 July, 1641. Sir John m. Jane, dau. of William Kempe, Esq., of Spain's Hall, Essex, by whom (with four dau.) he had three sons, viz.

Lineage.

The family of De Burgh of Burgh has, since the reigns of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., been esteemed one of the most opulent and powerful of the Anglo-Norman settlers in Ireland, under STRONGBOW. It held, by conquest and regal grant, whole territories in the Co. Galway, Mayo, Roscommon, Tipperary, and Limerick; and so extended were its possessions that its very cadetates became persons of wealth, and were the founders of distinguished houses.

Lineage.

This branch of the Burke's claims to be a scion from the house of Clarencet, but more immediately connected with the Lords Brittain.

THOMAS BURKE of Gortencapagus (now Marble Hill), died at an advanced age, in 1714. During the Civil Wars, in the time of Charles II., and subsequently in the Revolution of 1688, his predecessors and himself lost a considerable portion of their lands; but he still preserved the estate upon which he resided, and it is now the seat of the Bart. He married into the family of Tully, great landed proprietors in the Co. of Galway, and owners of the Garbally estates, at present in the possession of the Earl of Clanarty. The son of this Thomas,

John Burke, married the dau. of Carroll of Kilronan, who was nearly allied to the Donegalns, Co. Galway, and to the Carrolls of the King's Co. by this Lady the Burkes acquired the estate of Kilronan. Mr. Burke d. 1793, at the age of eighty, and was † by his son, BURNETT, Sir Robert, of Leys, Co. Aberdeen; b. 20 Dec., 1755; inherited the title as 7th Bart., at the decease of his father, May, 1783; m. 16 Sept., 1785, Margaret-Dalrymple, 4th dau. of Gen. Elphinstone, of Logie - Elphinstone, in the Co. Aberdeen, by whom he has issue.

1. Thomas, formerly a Capt. in the Forfarshire Militia, b. 22 Aug., 1785.

4. James-Horn, Clerk to the Signet, b. 21 June, 1801, m. 3 Feb., 1831, Caroline-Margaret, dau. of the late Charles Spearman, Esq. of Thornley-Hall, in Durham, (see BURKE’S History of the Commons) and has issue.

5. Mary.

6. Margaret, m. 28 April, 1836, to Capt. Thomas Ramsay, 2nd son of the late Sir Alexander Ramsay, Bart. of Balmain, Co. Kincardine.

Lineage.

This family, originally of Saxon descent, has flourished for more than five centuries in the north of Scotland. There is another house of the same name in the south,—BURNETT of BURNS, in the shire of Peebles,—which has long disputed the chiefship with its northern kin; and we believe the question is as yet undecided.

According to Sir George Mackenzie, the Burnettts of Leys, carry the hunting horn, in base, with a Highlander in a hunting garb, and a greyhound, for supporters, to shew that they are the King’s Foresters to the north.

ALEXANDER BURNARD (as the name was originally written) obtained a charter, now in the possession of the family, from ROBERT BAUC, of the lands of Killenach, Clerach, and the six merk land of the two Cardneys, in the shire of Aberdeen, dated 1294, the 18th of that King’s reign. The grandson of this Alexander,

JOHN BURNARD, held the office of King’s Mace, for which he had a salary of ten marks sterling per annum, a very considerable sum at that period. His eldest son,

ROBERT BURNATT, is the first who bore the designation “of Leys” from whom lineally descended

ALEXANDRA BURNATT of Leys, who m. Catherine, dau. of Alexander Gordon, Esq. of Lismore, and had six sons and seven daughters. The 4th son, Robert Burnatt of Crimond, was constituted, by CHARLES II. one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and assumed the title of Lord Crimond. His Lordship m. Rachel, dau. of — Johnstone, Esq., a cadet of the noble family of Annandale, by whom he had two sons; the eldest of whom was Dr. Gilbert Burnatt, Bishop of Salisbury, the celebrated historian of “His Own Times.” Alexander Burnett of Leys, was s., at his decease, by his eldest son,

1. Sir Thomas Burnett, Knt. of Leys, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male, whatever, 21 April, 1805. This gentleman was, consequently, a strenuous opponent of the measures of the Court, and, in conjunction with the great Marquess of Montrose, an active Covenanter. He retired eventually, however, into private life, and seems to have remained unmolested by both parties. Sir Thomas was s., at his decease by his grandson,

2. Sir Alexander, who was s. by his only son,

3. Sir Thomas. This gentleman was Member of the Scottish Parliament for the Co. Kincardine, from 1793 until the final dissolution of that Assembly, and distin-Burrard.

Burrard, Sir Charles, of Olden, Co. Hants: Capt., R.N.; b. 2 March, 1793; to the title, as 2nd Bart., at the death of his father, 18 Oct., 1813; m. 8 April, 1826, Louisa, 2nd dau. of Sir Henry Lushington, Bart., and has issue, 3. Maria. 3. Louisa-Fanny. 4. Emily.

Burrell.

Lineage.

Randolph Burrell, m. in 1725, Sermonia, dau. and co-heir of Sir Walter Woodland, Standard-Bearer at Poictiers, and obtained thereby a considerable estate in the Co. Devon, upon which he seated himself. From this Randolphus descended John Burrell, of Woodland, who furnished at his own expense, in 1414, a ship, twenty men at arms, and forty archers, for the war in France. He was direct ancestor of Peter Burrell, Esq., 9th son of Walter Burrell, of Cuckfield, who settled at Beckham, in Kent, in 1684, and m. Isabella, 2nd dau. of John Merrick, Esq. of Stubb- ers, in Essex, by whom he had

Peter, his successor. Merrick, Governor of the Bank of England, and M.P., was created a Bart. 13 July, 1768, with remainder in default of his own male issue, to Peter Burrell, of Beckham. Sir Merrick d. issueless in 1787. Frances, m. to Richard Wyatt, Esq. of Egham. Isabella, m. to Thomas Dalpyn, Esq. of Hampstons. He m. his cousin, Lady Elizabeth Campbell, 4th dau. of John, 2nd Duke of Argyll, and Greenich, but had no surviving issue. Her Ladyship d. 1759, and Mr. Stuart Mackenzie d. within nine months afterward of grief. Leaving no male issue, the succession passed to the estate of the Rt. Hon. gentleman in Scotland fell to be regulated by an entail executed by Sir George Mackenzie, 1669. Notwithstanding the entail, the present title was the first Lawful Succession. Sir George’s settlements were so ambiguously worded that his estates were claimed by the Hon. James Archibald Stewart Wortley, next brother of the Marquess of Bute, and Lord Herbert-Windward Stewart, second son of the Marquess. The judgment of the Court of Session, in Scotland, in favor of Mr. Wortley, was appealed to, and affirmed by the House of Lords, 4 March, 1803.

12 son of the Earl of Harrowby.

His Lordship d. at Geneva, 16 Nov., 1814, and the honors 13 descended to his grandson, John, the present peer.

EARL OF DUMFRIES

(Now united with the Marquessate of Bute).

Sir Robert Crichton, of Sanquhar, signified himself to 14 Lochabern, against the Duke of Albany, and the 15 Earl of Douglas, when they made an incursion into Scot-16 land, in 1484, and was created a Peer of Parliament, by 17 the title of Lord Crichton of Sanquhar, 20 Jan., 1487.

His Lordship m. Lady Marion Stewart, 2nd dau. of John, 18 Earl of Lennox, and dying, in 1592, was s. by his only 19 son,

Robert, 2nd Lord, who was s. by his eldest son, 20 William, 3rd Lord. This nobleman m. Elizabeth, dau.
21 of Malcolm, 3rd Lord Fleming, and had three sons. He 22 was killed in the house of the Duke of Chateletaurt, at 23 Edinburgh, about the year 1567, by Robert, 3rd Lord 24 Sernple, and was s. by his eldest son,

Robert, 4th Lord, who, dying a. p., was s. by his 25 brother,

Edward, 5th Lord, who was s. by his son, 26 Robert, 6th Lord. This nobleman, when on a visit at 27 Lord Norris's seat, in Oxfordshire, about 1600, lost his 28 eye, in fencing with one John Turner, a master of the 29 science of defence, which so enraged his Lordship against 30 Turner, that, after laying several plans for that person's 31 destruction, he had him assassinated in seven years after-32 wards, by one Carlyle, who killed him by a pistol shot for 33 which foul deed, the assassin and his accomplice were con-
34 victed and executed, and Lord Sanquhar, afterwards sur-35 rendering, met a similar fate, being hanged upon a gibbet
36 erected in Great Palace Yard, before the gata of Wilson-37 ster Hall, 29 June, 1613. Dying without issue, the title 38 reverted to his kinsman,

William (son of John Crichton, of Ryhill, 2nd son of 39 Robert, 2nd Lord,) as 7th Lord Crichton of Sanquhar.
This nobleman was advanced to the dignity of 40 Viscount of Air, 2 Feb., 1622, and created Earl of Dum-41 fies, 12 June, 1622. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

William, 2nd Earl, who made a resignation of his 42 honors, and had a new grant, 3 Nov., 1690, with an exten-
43 sion of the remaindership to his grandson, William, Lord 44 Crichton, and the heirs male of his body in failure of 45 which to Penelope, eldest dau. of his son, Charles, Lord 46 Crichton, and the heirs male of her body, &c. His Lordship 47 m. Penelope, dau. of Sir Robert Swift, and had one son 48 live to maturity, viz.,

Charles, Lord Crichton, who m. the Hon. Sarah Dal-49 rymples, 3rd dau. of James, 1st Viscount of Stair, and 50 had

William, who s. his grandfather.

The Earl d. 1631, and was s. by his grandson, 52 William, 3rd Earl, who d. unm., 1694, and was s. by 53 his sister,

Penelope, as Countess of Dumfries. This lady m. in 54 1688, her cousin, Hon. William Dalrymple, of Glenmure, 55 2nd son of John, 1st Earl of Stair, and was s. 1742, by her 56 eldest son,

William, 4th Earl of Dumfries; and (succeeding his 57 brother James, who inherited the Earldom of Stair) 4th
58 Earl of Stair, was subsequently styled Earl of Dumfries 59 and Stair. Dying, however, without issue, 1760, he was 60 s. in the Earldom of Stair by his cousin, John Dalrymple, 61 and in that of Dumfries by his nephew, (the son of his 62 sister Elizabeth).

Patrick Macdowall, of Freugh, as 5th Earl. His 63 Lordship m. 1771, Margaret, dau. of Ronald Crauford, of 64 Restalrig, Co. Edinburgh, and had a dau.,

Elizabeth, Penelope, who m. John, Viscount Mount-65 Stuart, eldest son of John, 4th Earl and 1st Marquess of 66 Bute, and, dying in the lifetime of her father, left 67 two sons, the elder of whom,

John, inherited the Earldom of Dumfries, at the 68 decease of his maternal grandfather, 7 April, 69 1843, as 6th Earl, and the Marquessate of 70 Bute, on the death of his paternal grandfather,

BYR

BYRON, Baron (George-ANSON Byron), of Rochdale, Co. Lancaster, & 8 March, 1789; m. 18 March, 1816, Elizabeth-Mary, dau. of the late, and sister of the present, Sacheverell Chandos POLE, Esq. of Radborne, Co. Derby, by whom he has issue,

1. GEORGE-ANSON, b. 30 June, 1816.
2. Frederick, b. 3 Feb., 1822.
3. Augustus, b. 8 June, 1829.
5. Mary-Anne, m. 1854, to John-Blenkinsopp Coulson, Esq., Jun., of Blenkinsopp Castle. (See Byron's Commoners.)

His Lordship, who is a Capt. R.N., inherited the honors of his family, as 7th Baron, at the decease of his cousin, 19 April, 1824.

Lineage.

The BRYONS derive from the Conquest, when they appear to have been extensive proprietors to the Co. York.

RALPH de BURON, at the time of the Survey, held divers manors in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. Amongst those in the latter Co. was HorkSTAN, in the park of which stood a castle, called HorkSTAN CASTLE, which became the chief seat of the early Byrons. The grandson of Ralph,

HUGO de BURON, feudal Baron of HorkSTAN, retiring, temp. HENRY III, from secular affairs, professed himself a monk, and held the hermitage of Kersale, belonging to the priory of Lenton. He left a son.

SIR ROGER de BURON, from whom we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR RICHARD BYRON, Knt., who m. Joan, 2nd dau. of William de Colewic, of Colecwic, Co. Nottingham, by which alliance considerable estates came into the family. The grandson of this marriage, SIR NICHOLAS BYRON, Knt. of the Shire, Co. Lancaster, was s. by his eldest son.

SIR JOHN BYRON, who received the honor of Knighthood from HENRY VII, for the good services he had rendered that Prince at Bosworth Field. This gentleman, dying without issue, was s. by his brother, Sir Nicholas Byron, who was made one of the Knights of the Bath, as he married Sir Thomas, eldest son of Henry VI. 11 Nov, 1481. He d. 1503-4, and was s. by his eldest son.

Sir John Byron, Knt. This gentleman had a grant, 28 May, 1346, of the Priory of Newstead, with the Manor of Pawiwick, and Hectery of the same, to all the closes about the priory, s.c. His grandson,
Sir John Byron, K.B., m. Anne, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Molineux, Bart., and had,
John, his successor,
Richard, of whom hereafter.

Robert, (Sir) Col. of Foot, on the Royal side during the Civil Wars.

Philip, (Sir), who, after many signal services in Yorkshire, and in the general storm of York, by the Parliament Army, in 1644.

Thomas, (Sir) who commanded the Prince of Wales's regiments, under the Earl of Northampton, at the battle of Hopton Heath, 19 March, 1642-3, and recieved a wound in the thigh, by which he was put out of service.

There were five other sons, and a dau., Mary, m. to Sir Thomas Lucas. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Byron, K.B., M.P. for the town of Nottingham, in the reign of James I, and for the Co. Nottingham in that of Charles I, a faithful adherent of, and gallant officer under, the latter unfortunate Prince. Sir John commanded the corps of reserve at the battle of Edgehill:
and the victory of Roundway Down, 5 July, 1643, wherein Sir William Waller was routed, was chiefly owing to his skill and valour, having, at the head of his regiment, charged Sir Arthur Hasling's cuirassiers, and, after a sharp contest, in which Sir Arthur received many wounds, compelled that insuperable regiment (as Lord Clarendon writes) to fly. Sir John Byron, having given such proofs of his courage, and his six valiant brothers at that time following his laudable example, he was, in consideration thereof, advanced, 24 Oct., 1643, to the dignity of a Baron of the realm, by the title of Lord Byron, of Rochdale, in the Co. palatine of Lancaster, with limitation, in default of his own male issue, to each of his brothers. His Lordship
m. twice, but, dying 1653, issueless, the Barony devolved upon

Richard, 2nd Baron. This nobleman received the honor of Knighthood from Charles I. He was one of the valiant Colonels at the battle of Edgehill, and subsequently Governor of Apsley Castle, Co. Westminster.
Lord Byron, whose career is briefly noticed as above, says he deserves to be chronicled for his government of Newark and many surprises of the enemy. His Lordship

m. Elizabeth, dau. of George Russell, Esq., of Ratchiffe in Nottinghamshire, and, dying in 1729, was s. by his only surviving son.

William, 3rd Baron. This nobleman m. Elizabeth,
dau. of John Viscount Chaworth. He d. 12 Nov, 1685, and was s. by his son,

William, 4th Baron, m. 1st, Mary, dau. of John, 2nd Earl of Bridgewater, but by that lady (who d. 11 April, 1704) had no issue. He m. 2ndly, (in 1706) Frances Williams, dau. of William, 1st Earl of Portland, by whom he had three sons and one dau., all of whom died unmarried: and 3rdly, Frances, 2nd dau. of William, Lord Berkeley, of Stratton, and by her (who m. 2ndly 1740, Thomas Hay, Bart.) had (with three younger sons),

i. William, his successor.

ii. John, Admiral, R.N. This gentleman, when a mid-shipman on board the Wager, one of Lord Anson's cir-tumnets, in the West Indies, was cast away on a desolate island in the South Seas, and, after enduring five years of great hardships there, returned at length to England, and attainted the highest rank in his gallant profession.

He m. Sophia, dau. of John Trevannion, Esq. of Car-hays, Co. Cornwall, and dying in 1768, left with three dau.,

1. John, Office in the Army, who m. 1st, 1779,

Amelia D'Arcy, Haroess

Conyngham, dau. and heir of Robert, 4th Earl of Holderness (whose previous marriage with the Duke of Ancaster had been dissolved by Act of Parliament, and by her lady-ship, who d. 1781, had

issue,

Augusta, m. in 1807, to

George Leigh, Esq.,

Lent.-Col. 10th Dragoons, and has issue.

Capt. Byron m. 2ndly,

Catherine Gordon, (line-

ly descended from the Earl of Huntley,

and the Princess Jane,

dau. of James II. of Scotland), and by her left an only son,

George-Gordon, who

m. 3rdly.

iii. Richard, in Holy Orders, M.A., m. 1789, Mary, dau.

of Richard Farmer, Esq., and d. Nov., 1811, having his issue, (his wid. d. 9 May, 1852.)

Richard, C.B., Post Capt.

R.N., m. 1801, Sarah,

dau. of Henry, Esq. of

Wyke, Esq. and has issue,

Richard, Lieut. R.N.

James, in the Army.

iv. George, m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Elton Lerett,

Esq. of Nottingham, and had issue,

Isabella, m. to Count Pararcini.

v. Isabella, m. 1st, to Henry, 4th Earl of Carlisle, and 2ndly, to Sir Richard Magrare, Bart. of Hazon castle.

His Lordship d. 8 Aug, 1736, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 5th Baron, 6 S. Nov. 1792. This nobleman having killed William Chaworth, Esq., in a duel, 26 Jan., 1765, was arraigned before his peers. In Westminster Hall, 13

Feb. following, and found guilty of manslaughter; but, claiming the benefit of the statute of Edward VI, he was discharged upon simply paying his fees. He m. 28 March,

1742, Elizabeth, dau. of Charles Shaw, Esq. of Beochurpe

Hall, Norfolk, by whom (who d. 5 Nov., 1798) he had

i. William, m. Juliana Elizabeth, dau. of his uncle,

Admiral Byron, and d. 22 June, 1776, leaving a son,

ii. William, who was killed in Corsica, in 1796,

iii. Henrietta Diana, d. 13 May, 1798.

iv. Caroline, m. 2dly.

v. His Lordship d. 19 May, 1798, and was s. by his great nephew (refer to descendants of Admiral, the Hon. John Byron, 2nd son of 4th Lord),

George-Gordon, 6th Baron; 8 Feb. 1798, who, through his mother, claimed descent from the royal house of Stuart. Illustrous, however, as the ancestry of this distinguished nobleman were, his own transcendent genius flung his hereditary honors into immeasurable shade.

The greatest poet his country had ever produced, a disinterested patriot, an ardent lover of freedom, his Lordship, it might be presumed, had a long and splendid career before him;
but the mud of man penetrates not the vast of futurity, and this nobleman is a remarkable instance of the insufficiency of wealth—honors—genius—to secure human happiness. Untoward circumstances entirely marred the tranquility of his private life; while his public actions were cavessed with a malignancy which nothing he had ever done, said, or written, could have warranted,—even-payment he felt a victim in the public cause:—Having enthusiastically enrolled in the affairs of Greece, and engaged personally in the great struggle, died from scurvy and bodily exertion, at Misolingen, 19 April, 1824, in the 71th year of his age. Lord Byron m. 2 Jan., 1815,

Anne-Isabella, only child of Sir Ralph-Milbank Noel,
C A D
Bart, and co-heir of the BARONY OF WENTWORTH, (through her late mother, the Hon. Judith Noel, eldest dau. of Edward, 1st Viscount Wentworth, and co-heir of her brother, Thomas, 2nd Viscount and 9th Baron Wentworth, a Baron created by Writ in 1529), by whom he had one dau., AOA-AUGUSTA, b. 10 Dec., 1813, m. 1835, to William Lord King. A separation from her lady took place soon after the birth of his child, and Lord Byron almost immediately afterwards departed from his native country, to which he never returned. His Lordship assumed on his marriage the additional surname of Nort, before that of Byron. At his decease, the Baron devolved upon his first cousin, GROON-ANSON, present Baron. (Revert to Adm. Byron, 2nd son of 4th Lord.)

   ii. A son, b. 28 May, 1827.

The Earl a. to the honors, at the decease of his father in Oct., 1828, and is the 13th in succession.

Lineage.
The name of Sinclair, the Saint Clare of France, has for several centuries been distinguished in Scotland.

William or Sasset Claid acquired the manor of Rosslyn, in the reign of David I., and had a confirmation thereof from that monarch. His great-great-grandson, Sir William Sinclair, of Roslin, was appointed Sheriff of the Co. of Edinburg fur life, in 1271, and had a confirmation from Alexander III. of the lands and Barony of Roslin, &c., for half a knight's service. He died at Stenton on 5 Feb., 1293-4, when the succession to the Crown of Scotland was settled in the event of the demise of Alexander III. Sir William was one of the noblesse on the part of Baliol, in the competition for the Crown of Scotland, 1292. He swore fealty to Baliol at the same day, and was present when Belni did homage to the English monarch a few months after. He d. about the year 1304, leaving three sons.

Henry, his successor.
William, Bishop of Dunkeld. The English landing at Fife, in 1317, the Earl of Fife retreated, when the Bishop, who was residing at his seat of Auchtertool, flew to the spot, and throwing, aside his ecclesiastical vestments, seized a spear, and led the Scots to charge the enemy, who was driven back to his ships, with considerable loss.

Gregory, ancestor of the Sinclairs of Longformacus, Barra.

The eldest son,
Sir Henry Sinclair, of Roslin, sworn fealty to Edward 1., in 1292. His grandson, Sir William Sinclair, of Roslin, m. Isabel, one of the daws. and co-heirs of Malsie, Earl of Strathmore, Caithness, and Orkney, by Mathilda, only dau. and heiress of Magnus, Earl of Orkney and Zetland, and was a. by his eldest son,

Sir Henry Sinclair, of Roslin, who had his claim to the Earldom of Orkney admitted by Haakon, the 6th King of Norway, in 1379, but, burdened with severe conditions—that of serving the king in all emergencies, with a bounted men, &c., &c., of paying the king 1000 gold nobles, &c. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Haleburton, of Dirlotoune, and, dying in 1409, was a. by his eldest son,

Henry, 2nd Earl of Orkney, Admiral of Scotland. His Lordship, who was appointed chief attendant on Prince James, in his voyage to France, in 1405, was captured with the Prince to their passage by the English, and sent to the Tower of London. He m. Lady Egidia Douglas, dau. and sole heiress of William, Lord of Niddesdale, by Lady Egidia Stuart, dau. of Robert II., and, dying before 1418, was a. by his only son, William, 3rd Earl of Orkney. This nobleman, who was Lord-High-Chancellor of Scotland, obtained a grant from James II., dated 28 Aug., 1455, of the Earldom of Caithness, which title he assumed, in addition to that of Orkney, and was styled Earl of Orkney and Caithness, until the year 1471, when James III., having acquired the islands of Orkney to marriage with Margaret of Denmark, 1469, his Lordship surrendered to that monarch the Earldom of Orkney, and it was anexeced to the Crown by Act of Parliament. In part recompense for which the king granted to him the castle of Ravenscraig, in Fife. Caldwell.

Caldwell, Sir John, of Castle Caldwell, Co. Fermanagh, and a Count of Milan, in the Holy Roman Empire; s. to the honors, as 5th Bart., 1830; at present Member of the Legislative Council of Lower Canada.

Lineage.

The founder of this family in Ireland, John Caldwell, a Merchant at Enniskillen, was b. at Preston, in Ayrshire, and d. 1628. He was s. by his eldest son,

1. James Caldwell, Esq., who settled at Rossebeg, afterwards called Castle Caldwell, Co. Fermanagh, and was created a. Bart. of Ireland, 25 June, 1683. Sir James m. a. dau. of Sir John Acheson, of Castle Humie, Co. Fermanagh, Bart., and, dying 1717, was s. by his grandson.

2. Sir John. This gentleman m. 1719, Anne, dau. of the Very Rev. John French, Dean of Raphoe, by whom he had five sons, and two daus. The 3rd son, Humie, was a very distinguished Officer in the Austrian Service, and attained the rank of Colonel. He was killed in a sally from the fortress of Schwedt, in 1720.

The following anecdote of this gentleman is worthy of attention, as elucidating the state of barbarous vasalage under which the Roman Catholic population of Ireland groaned in the beginning of the last century: — "During Lieut. Caldwell's residence with the company to which he belonged, at Prague, an unlucky circumstance occurred, which placed him in much pecuniary embarrassment. By the accidental falling of a taper from his hand, the furniture of his lodgings was entirely consumed, and, to make good the damage, his landlord applied to have his pay sequestered. His distress, in consequence, was very great; but the affair relating the Irish Franciscan convent of that city, the holy brothers contrived to have the debt discharged, and the sequestration removed, without the knowledge of Sir John Caldwell; as they were induced to do so by one of the brethren who had known Sir John Caldwell, in Ireland, and who thus reported his character: 'Sir John,' said he, 'although a staunch Protestant, always treated the Roman Catholics with humanity and tenderness; in particular, one stormy day, when it rained very hard, he discovered a priest, with his congregation, at mass, under a hedge; and, instead of taking that opportunity of blaming them for that meeting so near his house, and having the priest hung, as he might have done, he ordered his cows to be driven out of a neighbouring cow-house, and signified to the priest and people, that they might there take shelter from the weather, and there finish their devotion in peace."

Sir John Caldwell d. in 1744, and was s. by his eldest son,

3. Sir James, who, being in the service of the Empress Maria Theresa, was created, by that Princess, Count of Milan, in the Holy Roman Empire. In 1764, Sir James, in passing through Vienna, having had an audience of leave of the Empress Queen, her Imperial Majesty, in a very gracious manner, charged him with a magnificent enamelled gold box, to present to Lady Dowager Caldwell, mother of Col. Caldwell, as a testimony of her Majesty's gratitude for the signal services performed by that gallant Officer. Sir James Caldwell raised, 1769, at his own expense, a body of light horse, comprising 250 men, which he commanded for some years. He m. 1753, Elizabeth, dau. of the Most Rev. ii. Frances, b. 1787; d. 1822.

iii. Georgiana-Elizabeth.

His Lordship s. to the Earldom of Camden, &c., in April, 1794, and was created Marquess Camden and Earl of Brecknock, 7 Sept., 1812.

Lineage.

The Pratts have been of consideration to different parts of England, as well as in Ireland, from a very remote period; some of them of Knightly degree; and those of Berkshire were Barons. The family of which we are now treating was settled at Carewes Priory, Co. Devon, about the middle of Elizabeth's reign, but the estate was lost by RICHARD PRATT, during the Civil Wars, who was compelled, by the difficulties to which those disastrous times had involved him, to dispose of his paternal inheritance. This Richard Pratt was grandfather of LOND-CHEP-JUSTICE SIR JOHN PRATT, Knt., who represented the borough of Midhurst in Parliament, from 1700 until his elevation to the Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench, 20 Oct., 1714. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of the Rev. Henry Gregory, Rector of Middleton Stoney, Co. Stafford, by whom he had two surviving sons and four dauts. He wedded 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of the Rev. Hugh Wilson, and had four sons and three dauts. His Lordship d. 24 Feb., 1724, and was by the eldest son of his first marriage.

JOHN PRATT, Esq. of the Wilderness, Co. Kent, M.P., who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Geooffrey Jeffreys, of Brecknock Priory, Co. Brecknock, Knt., by whom he had, with a dau., who d. 1807, a son, Jo. of Barrham Abbey, Co. Sussex, who d. s.p. 1787, bequeathing his estates to the present Marquess Camden.

Mr. Pratt m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of the Rev. Robert Tracy of Coscombe, Co. Gloucester, as Gryff, the Judges of the Court of Common-Pleas, and left a son, Robert, M.P., of Coscombe, a Master in Chancery, who d. s.p. 1775.

The 3rd son, by his 2nd marriage, of the Lord-Chief-Justice Pratt,

CHARLES PRATT, Esq., an Eminent Lawyer, was chosen in 1769, Recorder of Bath, and, the same year, appointed Attorney-General. In Dec., 1761, he was constituted Chief-Justice of the Court of Common-Pleas; and, 16 July, 1765, raised to the Peerage, by the title of Lord Camden, of Camden Place, Co. Kent; his Lordship was, subsequently, upon the resignation of the Earl of Northington, in 1766, appointed LORD-HIGH-MARCHLON of Great Britain; in 1784, he was constituted Lord-President of the Council; and, 13 May, 1786, advanced to a Viscountcy and Earldom, by the titles of Viscount Bayham and Earl Camden.

Lord Camden, while presiding at the Court of Common-Pleas, acquired high reputation for independence, legal knowledge, and impartiality, particularly in the memorable conflict between the celebrated John Wilkes and the Government of that period. Mr. Wilkes having been committed to the Tower upon a general warrant from the Secretary of State, his Lordship had the prisoner immediately brought up by heredito corpus to the Court of Common-Pleas, and, after laying down the law in a luminous speech, released him from confinement 6 May, 1763. The Chief-Justice's conduct upon this occasion, and during the subsequent proceedings to the same cause, procured him the freedom of the City of London, accompanied by a request that he would allow his picture to be painted for the Guildhall, where it was afterwards hung up. His Lordship was presented also with the freedom of Dublin, and of almost every other corporation in the kingdom. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heiress of Nicholas Jeffreys, Esq. of the Priory, Co. His Lordship has assumed the additional surname of Haldane, that of his maternal grandmother.

Lineage.

The family of Duncan of Lundie is of remote antiquity; it was originally designated of Seaside, and there is an authenticated heraldic tradition which accounts for the crest, a diemstalled ship, now borne over the arms of Camperdown. A member of the family, who lived some two hundred years ago, having been supercargo on board a vessel bound from Norway to his native place, Dundee, was overtaken by a tremendous storm, in which the ship became almost a complete wreck, and the crew were reduced to the utmost distress. Contrary, however, to all expectations, they were enabled to navigate their craft, crippled bark, into port, and the parents of the thus fortunately rescued son immediately adopted the crest alluded to, in commemoration of the dangers their heir had so providentially escaped from.

Alexander Duncan, Esq. of Lundie, Co. Angus, m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Peter Murray, Bart., of Aughtertyre, and had issue,

Alexander, his successor.
William, an eminent physician in London, who was created a Bart. 14 Aug., 1764, having been previously appointed Physician Extraordinary to the King. Sir William m. Lady Mary Tufton, eldest dau. of Buckville, Earl of Thanet, but d. s. p. when the Barony expired.

Mr. Duncan was s. by his elder son, Alexander Duncan, Esq. of Lundie, who m. Helana Haldaun of Glenegles, Co. Perth, and had issue, Alexander, a Lieut.-Col. in the Army, who inherited the estate of Lundie; Adam, of whom presently.

Catherine, m. to James Haldane, Esq. of Airthrey, Co. Stirling.
Margaret, m. to William Tait, Esq., and d. 27 Dec., 1818.

The younger son,
Adam Duncan, having adopted the naval profession, entered into that service about the year 1746, under Robert Haldane, then Capt. of the Shoreham frigate: in three years afterwards we find young Duncan, a midshipman, on board the Centurion, of 50 guns, a ship ordered to be equipped to receive the Broad Pendant of Commodore Keppel, who was appointed Commander-in-Chief on the Mediterranean stations. In 1745, Mr. Duncan obtained his Lieutenantcy, and was appointed to the Norwich, a fourth rate commanded by Capt. Barrington. On 21 Sept., 1759, he was advanced to the rank of Commander, and in the year 1761, made Post Captain, and appointed to the Valiant of 74 guns, to which ship, under the Broad Pendant of Admiral Keppel, he acquired considerable reputation at the capture of the Havannah. In 1785, Capt. Duncan was promoted to be Rear Admiral of the Blue, and, passing through the intermediate grades, was appointed, 14 Feb., 1790, Admiral of the White. During the greater part of this interval, however, (up to the year 1795,) singular as it may appear to posterity, the great merits of Admiral Duncan continued either unknown, or at least unregarded. Frequently did he solicit a command, and as frequently did he experience disappointment. It has even been reported that this brave man had it once in contemplation to retire altogether from the service, on a very honorable civil employment, connected with the Navy; at length, however, the cloud burst, and Admiral Duncan was constituted, in 1786, Commander-in-Chief in the North Seas. He accordingly hoisted his flag on board the Prince George of 98 guns, but afterwards removed to the Venerable of 74. In this command he had the honor of achieving a splendid victory off Camperdown, 11 Oct., 1797, over the Dutch fleet, under Admiral de Winter; and was elevated to the Peersage, 20 Oct., 1797, in the dignities of Baron Duncan of Lundie, and Viscount Duncan, of Camperdown. His Lordship had a grant at the same time of a pension of £300 per annum for the life of himself, and his two next successors in the Peerage. He m. Henrietta 2nd dau. of the Rt. Hon. Lineage.

This family is of remote antiquity and English descent, having removed from the Co. Lincoln into Ireland about the middle of the 17th century. The name is local, being derived from the township of Carwaden, Carwarden, or Carden, which lies about eleven miles S.S.E. from Chester, which manor was the original inheritance of the family; but the elder branch terminating in co-heiresses, the manor of Over-Carden was carried by marriage into the family of Felton, about the close of the 16th century. A branch of the family had been settled in Kent; where it appears that it was for several generations possessed of the manor of Hodford; but that estate was alienated temp. Elizabeth, by John Carden, to the family of Gahbes, when there is reason to believe that the Cardens of Kent removed into Lincolnshire; and that, from them, diverged the Irish branch springing from

Lineage.

The Carews are one of the few families now remaining who can trace their descent without intermission from the Anglo-Saxon period of English history.

Otho, a powerful English Baron, to the time of Ed ward the Confessor, was m. by his son,

Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor, who had two sons, William, from whom the Lords Windsor de scended; and

Geraldo, from whom sprang the Carews and Fitzgeralds, who was Castellan of Pembroke Castle, and in great favor with Henry II., from whom he received the Lordship of Milford, in Berks. By Nesta, his wife, dau. of Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of South Wales, whose dowar was the Castle of Carew, he had three sons, William, Maurice, and David: from Maurice, the 2nd, descended the noble family of Fitzgeralds. The eldest son,

William, Lord of Carew, had, with another son,

Raimond, ancestor of the Marquesses of Llandowm) Otho, from whom the 5th to usual descent was Sir Nicholas Carew, Baron of Carew and Milford, a person of eminence, temp. Edward I., who was s. by his son, Sir John Carew, father of Sir John Carew, who was constittuted Lord Deputy of Ireland, and served Edward III. at the battle of Crewe.
He m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Mohun of Dunster, and was s. by his son, Sir LeonarC Carew, Knt., whose son,
Sir John Carew, attained high distinction in the wars of Henry V., and was s. by his son,
Sir Nicholas Carew, Knt., Lord of Carew, who m. Joan, dau. of Sir Hugh Courtenay, of Harcombe, Co. Devon, by Philippa, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Ardecan, and had five sons and three daughters. Sir Thomas, the eldest son, supposing to dissolve his mother, that lady settled seventeen mansions upon her younger sons, which proved the foundation of three great families which have flourished ever since, namely, that before us, the Carew of Stodleigh, and the Carew of Anthony. (See Burre's Commentaries.)
Sir Nicholas Carew, the 2nd son, succeeded at Harcombe, and from him directly descended, in the 6th degree,
1. Thomas Carew, Esq. of Harcombe, who was created a Barl., 2 Aug., 1604. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Carew, of Breckleigh, Knt., and thus united two branches of the family. Sir Thomas was s. by his only surviving son,
2. Sir Henry, who m. third, but had issue only by his 3rd wife, Gratiana, dau. of Thomas Darrel, Esq. of Trewinorn, in Cornwall. He was s. by his elder son,
3. Sir Henry-Darrell, s. whose decese, m., the title devolved upon his brother,
4. Sir Thomas, who m. Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of Peter West, Esq. of Tiverton Castle, and was s. by his elder son,

1 James, b. 5 Aug., 1827.
2 John, b. in 1829.

Lineage.
The surname of Carnegie is local, and was assumed from the lands and Barony of Carnegie, in Forfar.

John Carnegie, who d. in 1290, was ancestor of Sir Robert Carnegie of Kinnaird, who, being a person of great abilities, and much political knowledge, was engaged in most of the public transactions, during the Regency of the Duke of Chartres, and subsequently. It is also recorded that he and his predecessors were cup-bearers to the Kings of Scotland, and were accustomed to bear a golden cup upon the breast of the eagle, as an armorial mark of their office. In 1547, he was appointed one of the Senators of the Court of Justice. In the next year he was accredited Ambassador Extraordinary to the Court of France, to treat for the redemption of the Earl of Huntly, the Lord-Chancellor, who had been taken prisoner at the battle of Pinkie; and received the honor of Knighthood on his return. In 1551, he was sent Ambassador to France; and, in 1553, was one of the Commissioners to arrange conditions for the peace of the Marches. Sir John d. in 1565, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Carnegie, of Kinnaird, a man of great talents and worth, and, to the last, faithfully and steadily attached to the unfortunate Mary of Scotland. He was s. by his eldest son,

Sir David Carnegie, of Coluth, which estate, with other lands, he acquired by marrying Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William Ramsay, Esq. This gentleman, who was of the Privy-Council of Scotland, was constituted, in 1566, one of the Eight Commissioners of the Treasury, called Octavians. He m. in 2nd time, and d. in 1566, leaving, by his 1st wife, two daus.; and by the 2nd, inter alia,

David, his successor.

John, created Earl of Northesk.

Sir David was s. by his eldest son,

David Carnegie, an eminent lawyer, who was appointed a senator of the College of Justice, and elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, by the title of Lord Carnegie of Kinnaird, 24 April, 1616; and created Earl Southesk, 22 June, 1633. His Lordship was constituted High Sheriff of the County of Forfar, and remained firm in his allegiance to Charles I., for which he was imprisoned by the Covenanters, and fined £300 by Crowwell, in 1654. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell, and had (with six daus.), David, Lord Carnegie, who d. male-issueless, in the lifetime of the Earl.

James, who s. to the title.

John, (Sir) of Craig-Alexander, of whom presently.

His Lordship d. 1668. The Earldom of Southesk was extinguished by the attainder of James, 3rd Earl, after the rebellion of 1651; and the representation of the family deceased, at the decease of his Lordship, in 1729, upon Sir James Carnegie, the 8th Bart. which dignity (a Baronetcy of Nova Scotia) was conferred, in 1653, on

1. The Honorable Alexander Carnegie of Pittarrow, 4th son of the 1st Earl. Sir Alexander m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Arbuthnot of Arbuthnot, and had two sons and a dau. He was s. by his eldest son,

11. Sir David. This gentleman m. Catharine, dau. of Sir Archibald Primose, Lord Register, and sister of the first Lord Rosbery, by whom he had two daus. and two sons, and was s. by the elder son.

111. Sir John, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Burnett of Leys; by whom he had five sons and five daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. Sir James, M.P. for the Co. Kincardine, who, on the demise of James, the 8th, and attained, Earl Southesk in 1729, became lineal male heir and representative of that branch of the family. He was a Capt. in the Army, and endowed with very superior abilities: through his exertions the fortunes of the house of Southesk were restored. By unremitting efforts, the 1st Earl brought about the sale of the forfeited estates, not only to the great advantage of his own family, but to the benefit of many others similarly situated. He had procured an assignation to a lease of Kinnaird many years before, made it his residence, and improved the lands, when agricultural pursuits were not yet common among gentlemen of his rank, and when his funds were limited in the extreme. Sir James was Christian, eldest dau. of David Doig, Esq. of Cookstoun, and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

V. Sir David of Southesk, M.P. for the Co. Angus. This gentleman re-purchased several of the forfeited pos-

CARNWATH.

CARNWATH, EARL OF (Robert-Alexander Dalzell), and Baron Dalzell in the Peerage of Scotland, a Bart of Nova Scotia, and a Lieut.
Gen. in the Army; b. 13 Feb., 1768; inherited the representation of the family, at the decease of his kinsman, John Dalzell, Esq., of the Royal Navy, 10 Oct., 1814, and was restored to its a cient honors by Act of Parliament, 26 May, 1826; m. 1st, 23 Sept., 1789, Jane, dau. of Samuel Parkes, Esq. of Cork, by whom (who d. 2 Sept., 1791) he has no surviving issue. His Lordship m. 2ndly, 26 April, 1791, Andalusia, dau. of Lieut.-Col. Arthur Browne, and has by that lady,
(who d. March, 1835),
1. THOMAS-HENRY, Lord Dalzell, b. 5 Sept., 1797; m. 9 Sept., 1834, Mary-Anne, eldest dau. of the Rt. Hon. Henry Grattan, and widow of John Bich-ford, Esq.
2. Arthur-Alexander, an Officer in the Army; b. 5 Sept., 1799.
3. Harry-Burrard, b. 11 Nov., 1804; m. 16 Nov., 1827, Miss Isabella Campbell, and has a son, b. 1829.
5. Kenna-Maria.
His Lordship is the 10th Earl in succession, and the 7th in the enjoyment of the dignity.
Litirage.
The family was originally of Clydesdale, whence it removed into Dumfriesshire, and there settled. Tradition details the origin of its surname and arms thus:
In the reign of Kenneth II, a kinsman and favorite of that monarch having been hung up by the Picts, it so exceedingly grieved the King, that he offered a considerable reward to any person who should rescue the corpse; but none were disposed to undertake so dangerous a duty, until a gentleman cried out 'Dalzel,' (Scottish, I dare say), and, performing his task to Kenneth's entire satisfaction, himself and his family bore ever afterwards the name of Dalzell.
SIR ROBERT DALZELL, Knt., a faithful adherent of King David Bruce during his captivity, obtained a grant of the Barony of Setkirk in 1365. From this Sir Robert, linearly descended,
ROBERT DALZELL, of that Ilk, who was killed by Lord
Maxwell in 1464. His grandson,
SIR ROBERT DALZELL of Dalzell, attached himself to the fortunes of the unhappy Mary of Scotland, and fought under her banner at Langside. He was s. by his son, ROBERT DALZELL of Dalzell, who was s. by his son, SIR ROBERT DALZELL of Dalzell, who was elevated to the Peergre of Scotland, 18 Sept., 1628, by the title of Baron Dalzell, to himself and his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Dalzell, and was created, in 1638, Earl of Carnwath, with limitation to the heirs male of his body. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Chrichton of Cluny, and had two sons,
Robert, his successor.
John of Glenca, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 11 April, 1699; m. 1st, Miss Sandelands, and had two dau. He espoused 2ndly, Lady Margaret Johnston, dau. of James, Earl of Hartfell, but by that lady had no issue. And, 3rdly, Violet, dau. of — Riddell of Haining, by whom he had three sons and daur. Sir John d. 1685, and was s. by his eldest sone.
SIR JOHN OF GLENCA, 2nd Bart., who m. Henriet, daughter of Sir William Murray, Bart. of Stanhope, and had, with other issue, his successor, in 1686,
his elder son,
SIR ROBERT OF GLENCA, 3rd Bart., of whom presently, as 6th Earl of Carnwath.
The Earl was s. by his elder son, Robert, 2nd Earl. This nobleman m. Christiana, dau. of Sir William Douglas, of Drumlanrig, by whom he had two sons,
Gavin, his successor.
William, d. unm., 1647.
His Lordship was at the battle of Naseby, 14 June, 1645, and to him Lord Clarendon imputes the loss of that action. "The King was upon the point of charging at the head of his guards, when the Earl of Carnwath, who rode next him (a man never suspected of treachery), suddenly laid his hand on the bridle of the King's horse, and swearing two or three full-mouthed Scottish oaths, said,
Will you go upon your death in an instant? and before His Majesty understood what he would have, turned his horse round, upon which, the word ran through the troops that they should march to the right, which led them both from charging the enemy, and assisting their own men, upon which they all turned their horses, and rode upon the spur, as if they were every man to shift for himself." His Lordship d. soon after, and was s. by his eldest son.
Gavin, 3rd Earl, who was made prisoner, fighting under the Royal Standard at Worcester, in 1651, and detained for several years in captivity. His Lordship m. 1st,

John, m. to Claude Muirhead, Esq. of Lachap.
He m. 2ndly, Mary, eldest dau. of Alexander, 3rd Earl of Kelle, but had no other issue. He d. in June, 1764, and was s. by his elder son,
James, 4th Earl. This nobleman m. Lady Mary Seton, daughter of George, 2nd Earl of Winton, and had an only daughter, Mary, who m. Lord John Hay, 2nd son of John, and Marquess of Tweedside. The Earl dying thus without male issue, in 1861, the honors devolved upon his brother,
John, 5th Earl, who d. unm. in 1710, when the estates and honors reverted to his kinsman (refer to descendants of John, 2nd son of the 1st Earl).
SIR ROBERT DALZELL, 3rd Bart. of GLENCA, as 6th Earl. This nobleman having been taken in 1725, in open rebellion against GEORGE I., was condemned, with six other Lords, for high treason, but was pardoned, so far

Lineage.

This family claims a common ancestor with the house of Ormonde, namely,

Theobald Walter, who accompanied Henry 11, into Ireland, and settled there, having acquired large possessions, and being appointed, 1177, Chief Butler of Ireland, the duty of which office consisted in the Butler for the time being attending the Kings of England at their coronation, and presenting them with the first cup of wine, for which service he was to receive certain pieces of the King's plate. From Theobald descended lineally, Edmund, who sat in Parliament, 1391, as a Baron, by the name of Edmund le Botiller, and was created, by Ed- ward II., for his services against the Scots, 1 Sept., 1315, Earl of Carrick Mac Griffith, Co. Tipperary, from the younger son of this nobleman, John Butland, of Clonamechon, finally descended Sir Pierce Butler, Knt. of Lismullion, who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 22 May, 1629, as Viscount Ikerrin. His Lordship m. Ellen, dau. of Walter, 11th Earl of Ormonde, and was a. by (the son of his deceased eldest son James, and his wife Ellen, eldest dau. of Ed- mond, Lord Dunboyne) his grandson,

Notes:

The ancient family of Lambert derives its immediate descent from Lambert, Count of Mons Louvain, who d. in the year 1064, leaving three sons, the eldest of whom inherited the principality; the 2nd, Baldwin, settled in Flanders, and was ancestor of the Lamberti family (which gave a successor to St. Peter, 27 Aug., 1470, in the person of Cardinal Lamberti, who assumed the title, as HANAUD XIV.), while the 3rd son took up his abode in Normandy; his son, Richard, esq., of Lambart, accompanied the Conqueror into England; and, having obtained a portion of the spoil, established himself in his Royal Master's new dominions. From this soldier of fortune lineally descended Ricardo Lambert, Knt., a distinguished warrior, who went with the Earl of Essex into Ireland, and was left by that Nobleman, on his departure from the kingdom in 1599, Provisional Master of the Camp, and Commander of 200 foot, at Kninsclority; after which, he made Serjeant-Major of the Army. Sir Oliver subsequently distinguished himself in the Irish wars, and, being sworn of the Privy Council, was elevated to the Peerage, 17 Feb., 1617, as Lord Lambert, Baron of Ossory; his Lordship m. Hester, dau. of Sir William Fleetwood, Knt. of Carrington Manor, Co. Bedford, and dying 9 July, 1618, was s. by his eldest son, Charles, 2nd Baron. This nobleman sat in the English House of Commons, in 1-35 and 1627, for the Borough of Rosinyie, in Cornwall, and was a leading Member and Principal Speaker in the Irish House of Lords. His Lordship was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Kilconiey, and Earl of Cavan, 12 April, 1647. He m. Jane, younger dau. of Richard Roberts, Lord Roberts, of Thurso, and sister of the 1st Earl of Rudloe of that family (an Earldom which expired in 1727) and, dying 10th Dec. 1661, was s. by his eldest son, Richard, 2nd Earl, who m. 1st, Rose, 2nd dau. of Sir James Ware, of Maccetown, Co. Sir Thomas, who had previously received the honor of Knighthood, as 2nd Bart. at the decease of his brother, in Aug., 1810.

Lineage.

The parent stock of this family flourished through several generations, in and near the town of Hinching, Co. Leicester. The branch rooted in Ireland, was planted there by John Chapman and his mother William, under the auspices of their cousin German, Sir Walter Raleigh, through whose influence, John obtained grants of land in the Co. Kerry, which, on the fall of his patron, he was obliged, from pecuniary difficulties, to dispose of to the 1st Earl of Cork, receiving the large sum, in those days, of £26,400 from his Lordship. He lived eight years after this transaction, leaving at his decease, his brother, William Chapman, surviving, who lived for several years afterwards, and left at his decease, an only son.

Benjamin Chapman, who entered as a Cornet into a regiment of Cavalry, raised by the Earl of Inchiquin: and obtained from Cromwell, when Capt. Chapman, a grant of a large estate at Killena, otherwise St. Lucy's, formerly a preceptory, or cell, of the Knights Hospitallers, Co. Westmeath, where he resided during the remainder of his life. CHARLEMONTE.

CHARLEMONTE, EARL OF (Francis—William Caulfeild, K. P.), Viscount Caulfeild, and Baron Caulfeild, of Charlemont, in the Peerage of Ireland; one of the Representative Lords; b. 2 Jan., 1775; s. to the honors. As 2nd Earl, at the decease of his father, 4 Aug., 1799; m. 9 Feb., 1802, Anne, youngest dau. of co-heir of William Bermingham, Esq. of Ross Hill, Co. Galway, but has no surviving issue.

Lineage.

The settlement of this noble family in Ireland took place in the reign of Elizabeth, when Sir Toby Caulfield, a distinguished and gallant soldier, was employed in that part of her Majesty's dominions, against the formidable O'Neile, Earl of Tyrone. In 1613, Sir Toby was appointed one of the Council for the province of Munster; and, the next year, joined in connexion with the Lord Deputy St. John, and others, for parcelling out the unchasted lands in Ulster to such British undertakers as were named in the several tables of assignation: in these employments, the King (James I.) found him so faithful, diligent and prudent, that his Majesty deemed him so reliable, he reserved the Peerage of Ireland, and accordingly created him, 22 Dec., 1630, Lord Caulfeild, Baron Charlemont, with limitation of the honor to his nephew, Sir William Caulfeild, Knt. His Lordship d. a bachelor, 17 Aug., 1627, and was x. by the said

Sir William Caulfeild, as 2nd Baron. This nobleman took his seat in Parliament, 4 Nov., 1634, after the Lord Chancellor had moved to know the pleasure of the house, whether he should be admitted to this place, having brought neither writ of summons nor patent; whereupon it was resolved that his Lordship should be admitted, inasmuch as they were all satisfied that he was a Lord of Parliament. His Lordship m. Mary, dau. of Sir John King, Knt. (ancestor of the Earls of Kingston), by whom he had seven sons and three daus. from the youngest son Thomas, descended the Caulfeilds of Donamon, of Roscommon. Caulfeild, Esq., of the Life Guards. His Lordship was 2. at his decease in 1660, by his eldest son,

Toby, 3rd Baron; who also succeeded the late Lord, as Governor of the Fort of Charlemont, and there resided, with his company of the 17th Foot, in garrison. This fort was a place of considerable strength and importance during the Rebellion of 1641; but his Lordship suffered himself to be surprised 22 Oct., in that year: and, being made prisoner with his whole family, was subsequite murdered, by the orders, it is said, of Sir Phelim O'Neill. This unfortunate nobleman dying was by his brother, Richard, 4th Baron, who d. a few months afterwards, from the effects of an over dose of opium, when the Baroness devolved upon his brother, William, 5th Baron. This nobleman apprehended Sir Phelim O'Neill, and had him executed for the murder of his brother. His Lordship having filled, after the Restoration, several high and confidential situations, was advanced to a Viscountcy, as Viscount Droghead, 8 Oct., 1665. He m. Sarah, 2nd dau. of Charles Viscount Droghead, by whom he had four sons and three daughters; and, dying in 1671, was s. by his 2nd, but eldest surviving, son, William, 2nd Viscount, who espoused with zeal the cause of William against James. His Lordship m. Anne, only dau. of Doctor James Margeston, Archibishop of Armagh, by whom he had seven sons and five daughters. His d. after enjoying the Peerage more than half a century, 31 July, 1728, and was s. by his eldest surviving son.

James, 3rd Viscount. This nobleman m. Elizabeth, only dau. of the Rt. Hon. Francis Bernard, of Castle Mahon, Co. Cork, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in Ireland, by whom he had two sons: the younger Francis, who m. Lineage.

All authorities agree in referring the descent of this family to a very remote period; some trace it antecedently to the Conquest. The earliest of its ancestors, whom we find upon record, is

Sir John Chetwode, Lord of the Manor of Chetwode, whose son Robert, who died in his lifetime, founded the Priory of Chetwode, and was grandfather of

Sir Robert Chetwode, Lord of Chetwode, living 5th Henry I.; who attended King Richard into Syria, and received the honor of Knighthood from that Prince in Palestine: passing over sixteen successive generations, we come to

Philip Chetwode, Esq. of Oakley, Co. Stafford, who m. Hester, dau. and heir of William Touchet, Esq. of Whitley, in Cheshire, and was s. by his son,

J. John Chetwode, Esq. of Oakley, (22d in lineal descent from Sir John Chetwode, Knt.) who was created a Bart., 6 April, 1785. He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Alderman 189

Sir Jonathan Raymond, Knt. of the City of London, by whom he had a son and three dau.; and, 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of John Taylor, Esq. of Rodington, Shropshire.

Sir John d. 22 April, 1735, and was s. by his son,

II. Sir Philip-Touchet, who m. in 1727, Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of George VENABLES, Esq. of Agdon, Co. Chester, by whom he had six surviving children, and dying 15 Nov., 1764, was s. by his eldest son,

III. Sir John. This gentleman m. Dorothy, 3rd dau. and co-heir of Thomas Brintland, Esq. of Thorncliffe, Cheshorn, by whom he had eight children, none of whom, however, survived himself but his successor, John, the present Bart. He d. 25 May, 1779.

Creation.—6 April, 1785.

Arms.—Quarterly, az. and gu., four crosses, patee countercharged.

Groat.—Out of a ducal coronet, or, a demi-lion rampant, issuant, gu.

Motto.—Corona mea Christus.

Lineage.

The Cetwynds, a family of great antiquity, assumed their surname from their place of abode, Co. Salop. In the 30th of Henry III.

Sir John Cetwynd, Knt., son of Adam de Cetwynd, by Agnes, dau. of John, Lord Lowel, Baron of Dokeinges, and Lord of Munster Lovel, Co. Oxford, had a charter of free warren, throughout all his demesne lands in the Co. of Stafford, Salop, and Warwick; and about the beginning of the reign of Edward I., the same Sir John received a grant of the manor of Baxterley, Co. Warwick, from John, son of his kinsman, William Lovel. He m. Isabel, dau. and heir of Philip de Mutton, by whom he acquired Ingester and other Lordships in the Co. of Stafford, and was s. by his son,

William or Cetwynd, of Oddesley, Co. Leicester, whose son and heir,

Sir Robert Cetwynd, m. Joan, eldest dau. of Sir Ralph de Grendon, and with her acquired the Lordship of Grendon, Co. Warwick. The great-grandson of this marriage,

Sir Philip Cetwynd, Knt., served the office of Sheriff of the Co. of Stafford, in the 7th and 12th of Henry IV., and in the reign of Henry VI. was Governor of of Bevin, in Normandy. He m. Elene, widow of Edward, Lord Ferrers, of Chartley, dau. and at length heir of Thomas de la Roche, and, dying 34th of Henry VI., was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM CHETWYND, of Ingestire, Gentleman Usher of the Chamber to Henry VII. Some cause of ill-will subsisting between this William and Sir Humphrey Stafford, Knit. of Pipe, Co. Stafford, who held likewise a place at Court, the latter inveigled Chetwynd by a forged letter to repair to Stafford at an early hour in the morning, when he was assailed by an armed body of men at Tixhall Hest, and put to death. Sir Humphrey at the instant passing by with at least 24 persons on horseback, under pretence of hunting a deer. He was s. by his son,

Stafford, by whom he had one son, Sir William Chetwynd, of Gresdon. He m. 2ndly, Margery, dau. of Robert Middlemore, Esq. of Eggesford, in Warwickshire, and by that lady he had a son

Sir Walter Chetwynd, of Ingestire, who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and heir of John Moisyn, Esq., but by her he had no issue. He espoused 2ndly, Lady Catharine Hastings, eldest dau. of George, 4th Earl of Huntingdon, and widow of Sir Edward Unton, by whom he had two sons,

1. Walter, his successor.
2. John, of Rigde, Co. Stafford, M.P., left, at his decease, with other issue.

1 Walter, of whom present, 2 Lucy, m. to Edward sufficiently, as heir to his child, of Arnos.

Sir Walter was s. by his eldest son,

Walter Chetwynd, Esq. of Ingestire, who m. Frances, dau. of Edward Hasker, Esq., and was s. by his only son,

Walter Chetwynd, Esq. who d. s.p., 21 March, 1632, when his estates devolved upon his cousin,

Walter Chetwynd, Esq. of Ridge, who, having resided as Ambassador at the Court of Turin, and subsequently filled the office of Master of the Stag Hounds, was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 29 June, 1717, as Baron Rathdowney, Co. Dublin, and Viscount Chetwynd, of Bärhaven. Co. Cork, with remainder, in case of failure to the heirs of issue, of the heirs of his father. His Lordship m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of John Berkeley, Viscount Fitzhardinge, and Baron of Rathdowne, Treasurer of the Chamber and Teller of the Exchequer to Queen Anna; but, dying s.p., 21 Feb., 1735, the honors devolved upon his brother,

John Chetwynd, who had been Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Madrid, in 1717, as 2nd Viscount. This nobleman had issue,

William Richard, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Wollaston, Esq. of Finsborough Hall, and d. in the lifetime of his father, in 1760, leaving an only dau., who m. John Parsons, Esq.,

Catherine, m. to the Hon. John Talbot, son of Lord Chancellor Talbot, and conveyed the Manor of Ingestire to the Talbot family.

French. m. s.

Viscount Chetwynd’s honors devolved, at his decease, 21 June, 1767, upon his brother, William Richard, 3rd Viscount, who m. Honora, dau. of William Baker, Esq., Consul at Algiers, and had issue, William, 4th Viscount.

John, in Holy Orders, m. Judith Pigott, and had, with two dau.s, one son, William, who m. Penelope Carleton, and had issue, John, Penelope, Lucy, and Emily, Mary, m. to the Hon. and Rev. Henry Borer.

His Lordship d. 3 April, 1770, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 4th Viscount. This nobleman m. Susannah, youngest dau. of Sir Jonathan cope, Bart., and had

1. Richard, his successor.
2. Granville-Anson, a Major-Gen. in the Army, b. 1758, m. 1783, Martha, only dau. of the late Henry Stalpyton, Esq. of Wignhill, and assumed the additional surname of Stalpyton. He had issue, CHICHESTER.

CHICHESTER, EARL OF (Henry-Thomas Pelham), Baron Pelham, of Stannier, Co. Sussex, and a Bart.; b. 25 Aug., 1804; inherited the honors, as 3rd Earl, at the decease of his father, 4 July, 1826; m. in Aug., 1828, Mary, dau. of Robert, present Earl of Cardigan, by whom he has issue,

1. Harriett-Mary.
2. Susan-Emma.

Lineage.

The surname of Pelham was assumed from a Lordship in Hertfordshire, where anciently stood a castle, the owner of which, in 1526, was accused in the then very large sum of forty pounds, for a contempt, in not coming to an inquest, to be taken concerning a trespass of the Mint. This Lordship of Pelham is recorded to be part of the possessions of Walter de Pelham, in the 21st of Edward I., and it is believed that his ancestors held it prior to the Conquest. From the earliest period it is certain that the family enjoyed very high consideration, and its members have, in different reigns, distinguished themselves as warriors and statesmen.

Sir John de Pelham, a gallant soldier, in the martial reign of Edward III., shared in the glory of Poictiers, and had the honor of participating personally in the capture of the French King, John, for which exploit he had as a badge of honor, the buckle of a belt, which was sometimes used by his descendants as a seal-manual, and at others on each side a cage, being an emblem of the captivity of the French monarch, and was therefore borne for a crest; as in those times customary. Sir John had certain lands and houses in Winchelsea, in marriage with Joan, dau. of Vincent Herbert, alias Finch, and was s. by his son,

Sir John Pelham, K.B., Constable of Pevensey Castle. This eminent person represented the Co. of Sussex, in Parliament, and enjoyed great influence at the Court of Henry IV. He was likewise a man of large fortune, his estates yielding according to a roll, bearing date in 1665, the annual income of £570, 5s. 3d. In the 6th of Hen. IV., 191 serving in Parliament, with Sir John Dalyngruge, as Knight for Sussex, he had his moiety of £10, 12s. for his expenses, in attaining 64 years. In two years afterwards, Sir John petitioned Parliament praying, “that certain auditors be appointed to take his accounts as Treasurer of War, and to make him due allowance; and that upon the same account, he, his heirs, and land tenants, might be clearly discharged:” which was agreed to, and Auditors assigned accordingly. In the 9th of Henry IV. he was constituted Chief Butler of the Port of Chichester, and the same year he was again returned by the House of Commons, where he continued several years afterwards to represent. From Sir John, we pass to his lineal descendant,

Sir William Pelham, who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir Richard Crew, of Bedlington, Co. Surrey, and by that lady had two sons and a dau. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Lord Sands of the Vine, Lord-Chamberlain to Henry VIII., and had further issue, William, (Sir) ancestor of the Lords Yarborough.

Edward, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, in Ire- land.
Sir William was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Nicholas Pelham, M.P. for the Co. Sussex. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of John Sackville, Esq., and had, with other issue,

John, his successor.
Thomas, who was his nephew in the estates and repre- sentation of the family.
Sir Nicholas d. in 1560, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Pelham, M.P. for the Co. Sussex, who m.
Judeth, dau. of Oliver, Lord St. John of Bletshoie, and, dying 13 Oct., 1590, was s. by his only child,

Oliver Pelham, who d. in four years afterwards, when the estates reverted to his uncle,

I. Thomas Pelham, Esq. who represented the Co. of Sussex, in the 39th year of Elizabeth; was Sheriff of that shire and Surrey in the 31st year of the same Sove- reign; and was amongst the first raised to the rank of Bart., on the institution of the Order by James I., 22 May, 1611.
Sir Thomas m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Wals- ingham, of Scadbury, Co. Kent, and niece to the cele- brated Secretary Walsingham; by her he had one dau., and one son, his successor at his decease, 2 Dec., 1624.

II. Sir Thomas, M.P. for the Co. Sussex, who m. 1st, Mary, 3rd dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Willbrahm, Knt., by whom he had John, his successor, and other issue. He m. 2ndly, Judeth, dau. of — Shirley, but by that lady had no surviving issue; and 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of Sir Henry Vane, Knt. of Fauslane, in Kent, by whom he had several children. Sir Thomas d. in 1654, and was s. by his eldest son,

Thomas, his successor.

He was an eminent statesman, who filled the office of Secretary at War, in 1725, and was then sworn of the Privy Council. In 1743 he was constituted First Commissioner of the Treasury, and the same year was appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was likewise constituted during the absence of the King beyond the sea, in 1748, 1754, 1766, and 1769, one of the Lords Justices. Mr. Pelham m. 1726, Catherine, dau. of His Grace, John Manners, Duke of Rutland, and d. 1754, leaving four surviving daus.: the eldest of whom, Catherine, m. Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln.

His Lordship d. 23 Feb., 1711-12, and was s. by his eldest son,

Thomas, 2nd Baron, who was created 26 Oct., 1714, Earl of Clare, Co. Suffolk, and Viscount Houghton, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his brother, the Hon. Henry Pelham; and advanced 2 Aug., 1715, with the same limitation to the Marquise of Clare, and Duke of Newcastle. In 1716, his Grace was elected a Knight of the Garter. Colonel Pelham having subsequently filled very high ministerial offices, (and his brother Henry, leaving daus. only at his decease,) he was created, 13 Nov., 1726, Duke of Newcastle-under-Lyne, with remainder to Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln. Earl of Lincoln, and the heirs male of the said Henry Clinton, by his wife Catherine, eldest dau. of the deceased Henry Pelham; and 4 May, 1726, his Grace obtained, also by creation, the Barony of Pelham of Stammer, with remainder to Thomas Pelham, Esq. of that place. The Duke d. 17 Nov., 1730: when the Baron he had inherited, and the honours first conferred upon himself, expired; the Duke of Newcastle-under-Lyne passed, as limited, to his nephew-in-law, the Earl of Lincoln; and the Barony of Pelham of Stammer, with the Baronetcy, devolved upon Thomas Pelham, Esq. of Stammer, Co. Sussex. (refer to issue of 3rd Bart., as 6th Bart. and 2nd Baron. He s. to the honors of his family, as 2nd Marquess, at the decease of his father, 10 April, 1827. He had been called by summons, in 1821, to the House of Lords, in his father's Baroney of Newburgh. His Lordship executes the office of Great Chamberlain of England for his mother, the Dowager Marchioness.

Linage.

The most extraordinary instance, probably, of a surname being differently spelt at different periods, occurs in that of the Cholmley (derived from the stewardship of Cholmondeley, in the hundred of Broxtow, Co. Cheshire), which has undergone no less than 25 variations. This family, and the other great Cheshire house of Egerton, are descended from a common ancestor, although they assumed, at a very early period, different surnames. At the time of the General Survey, the Lordship of Cholmondleay formed part of the possessions of Robert, son of Hicor, Baron of Malpas, which Robert dying without issue, the Lordship of Cholmondley, d.c., devolved on his only son and heir, Lettice, who married Richard or Belward, whose son, or grandson, William or Belward, m. Beatrice, dau. of Randolph de Machines, Earl of Chester. This William, who, in right of his mother, was Baron of Malpas, left three sons: namely,

David, who, from being Clerk, or Secretary, to the Earl of Chester, was sometimes written de Clerk, and sometimes de Malpas, having s. his father at Malpas; after the Earl of Chester was annexed to the Crown, he served the office of Sheriff for the Co. Chester 30th Henry III., bearing the name of David de Malpas. The 2nd son of this David, Philip, having seated himself at Egerton, left the surname of Egerton to his descendants, whence the numerous eminent families of Egerton, in Cheshire.

Robert, of whom presently, Richard.

The 2nd son,

Robert, having, by the gift of his father, the Lordship of Cholmondley, and fixing his residence there, assumed his surname therefrom. He m. Mabel, dau. of Robert Fitz-Nigel, Baron of Italiou, and was s. by his son,

Sir Hugh de Cholmolphilby, who lived in the reign of Henry III., and from him we pass to his linear descendant.

Richard or Cholmolphilby, who m. Eleanor, 5th dau. of Sir Thomas Dutton, of Dutton, and sister and co-heir of John Dutton, who d. in minority. The grandson of this feudal Lord.

Sir Hugh Cholmolphilby, was a military character of eminence in the reign of Henry VIII. He was five times Sheriff of Cheshire, as also Sheriff of Flintshire, for some years, and a long time one of the two Deputy-Lieut. of Cheshire. He m. twice, but had issue only by his 1st wife, Anne, dau. and co-heir of George Durnan of Malpas (by Agnes, his wife, dau. and co-heir of John Bird of Chorlton, by Catherine, his wife, aunt and heir of David de Malpas). Sir Hugh d. 6 Jan., 1506, and was s. by his son, Sir Hugh Cholmondeley of Cholmondeley, who m. Mary, only dau. and heir of Christopher Holford of Holford. This lady had a great contest with George Holford of Newchurch, about the lands which had descended to her by her father, which ended about 40 years ago, but was at length settled by the mediation of friends. Lady Cholmondeley, in her widowsid, resided at Holford, which she rebuilt and enlarged, and was styled by Jan., from the spirit she had evinced in the before-mentioned suit, "The bold Lady of Cholshire." By Sir Hugh Cholmondeley she had six sons and three dau.s, of which Robert, (the eldest son) inherited Cholmondeley.

Hugh m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Bodvil, of Bodville Castle, Co. Carlowjon, and, dying to 1655, left, with Mary, his issue; Mark.

Robert, who s. his uncle.

Thomas, of Vale Royal, ancestor of the present Lord Delamere.

The eldest son, Robert Cholmondeley, Esq., of Cholmondeley, was created a Bart., 29 June, 1611, and advanced in 1629, to the Peerage of Ireland, in the dignity of Viscount Cholmondeley, of Kells. His Lordship was enrolled amongst the Barons of England, in the 21st of Charles I., as Lord Cholmondeley, of Winchelsea Bank, commonly called Nantwich, and further advanced the next year to the Earldom of Leinster. He m. Catherine, dau. of John, Lord Standhope, of Harrington, but d. r.p., 2 Oct., 1609, when his honours became extinct, but his estates passed to his nephew.

Robert Cholmondeley, Esq., who was created Viscount Cholmondeley, of Kells, 29 March, 1611. He m. Lord Clancarty sits in the House of Lords as one of the Representative Peers of Ireland, although since his election, his Lordship has obtained an hereditary seat as a Peer of the realm.*

Lineage.

The Trenches are of ancient French extraction, and take their name from the Segnestone of La Trench, in Poutou, of which they are said to have been formerly Lords.

Frederick de La Trench came from France about the year 1525, and took up his abode in the Co. Northumberland. His grandson, Frederick Trench, removed into Ireland in 1651, and purchasing the lands and castle of Garbally, with a considerable estate in the Co. Galway, established his residence there. The great-grandson of this gentleman, Richard Trench, b. 1710, succeeded his father at Garbally, in 1732, and represented the Co. Galway in Parliament, in 1781. His m. Frances, only dau. and heir of David Power, Esq. of Corbett, Co. Galway, and of his wife, Elizabeth Keating (through which marriage he obtained the united fortunes of the families of Power and Keating), had issue, William-Power-Britain, John-Power, a Major in the Army.

Eyre-Power, Lieut.-Gen., m. 1797, Charlotte, dau. of Gen. Johnson, of Overstone, and widow of Sir John Burgoyne, Bart.

Mr. Trench was s. at his decease, by his eldest surviving son,

* Such an occurrence, which frequently takes place—that of a Representative Peer of Ireland, after he becomes a Peer of the Realm, continuing to sit in his elective character is an evident violation of the Spirit of the Union, and ought to be provided against, by a law that no English Peer should sit as a Representative Peer of Ireland, and that a Representative Peer, on being created a Peer of the Realm, should no longer be deemed as sitting in the former capacity.

Kinrags.
The family of De Burgh, De Burgo, Burke, or Bourke (as at different times written), Earls and Marquesses of Clanricarde, ranks amongst the most ancient in the kingdom, and deduces an uninterrupted line of powerful nobles from the Conquest.

John, Earl of Conyn, and Baron of Tomsburgh in Normandy, (descended from Charlemagne) being Gen. of the King's Forces, and Governor of his chief Towns, assumed thence the surname of "De Burgh." He had issue, Harlowen, of whom presently. Exstace, Baron of Tomsburgh, from whom the Viscount de Vesci derive. Millicent, m. Fulk, Earl of Anjou, who became King of Jerusalem, in 1131.

The elder son, Harlowen de Burgo, founded the Abbey of Gresteain, in Normandy, and d. before his father, leaving by his wife Arlotta, mother of William the Conqueror, Odo, Bishop of Bayeux, created Earl of Kent, and an elder son, Robert, Earl of Moreton, in Normandy, who, with his brother, having distinguished himself on the field of Hastings, was created by his victorious kinsman, (anno 1068), Earl of Cornwall, and further rewarded with grants of 700 Manors. He m. Maud, dau. of Roger de Montgomery, and was s. by his only son, William de Moreton, Earl of Cornwall, who, rebelling against Henry II., d. a prisoner, having his eyes put out by order of that monarch, and his Earldom of Cornwall taken from Stephen of Blois. This unfortunate nobleman left two sons, viz.

Aldeleme, or Aedlemb, of whom presently. John, whose son Henry of Burgo, was deemed the most powerful subject in Europe, in the reigns of John, Henry III., but he experienced the vicissitudes of those turbulent periods. After exercising sovereign authority during some part of the minority of his brother, John, Duke of Cornwelling (who had been created Earl of Kent), he suffered great persecution from that Monarch, and d. almost in obscurity, 4 March, 1243.

The elder son, Aedelmb de Burgo, m. Agnes, dau. of Lewin VII. of France, and was father of

William Fitz Aedelmb, who was sent by Henry II., with Hugh of Anjou, into Ireland, to receive the submission of Roderick O'Conner, King of Connaught, and of the King of Meath, and founded there, according to Sir Richard Cox, "one of the best and noblest families, which has yielded many brave and worthy men, that have proved eminently serviceable to their King and Country, whereby the name, estate, and family, are preserved, in great honour and reputation, to this day." This William, who was made Governor of Wexford, was entrusted on the King's return to England with the management of his affairs in Ireland. In 1173, in a synod of the bishops and clergy at Waterford, he published the bull, and the privileges granted by Pope Alexander III., in confirmation of the bull of Adrian the 4th, constituting the King Lord of Ireland. In 1179, he obtained, by grant, a great part of the province of Connaught. He m. Isabel, natural dau. of Richard II., and widow of Llewellyn, Prince of Wales, and, dying in 1204, was s. by his son, 198

Richard ed Burgo, surnamed the Great Lord of Connaught, who was Lord-Lieut. of Ireland, in 1297. This Richard built the Castle of Galway, in 1293, and that of Loughrea, in 1295. He was a man of high authority and power, and d. on his passage to France, in Jan., 1293, in proceeding to the court of the King of England, where he was attended "by his Barons and Knights." He m. Hodlerina, dau. of Robert de Geron, and granddau. maternally of Coballe Crowbery, of the Red Hand, King of Connaught, and had two sons, viz.—

Walder, Lord of Connought, who marrying Maud, dau. of Hugh de Lacy, was created Duke in her right EARL OF ULSTER, on the death of his father-in-law.

He d. by his eldest son, Richard, 2nd Earl of Ulster, usually called the Red Earl. This nobleman, who was educated at the court of Henry III., was esteemed, from his great possessions, the most powerful subject in Ireland. He d. in 1326, and was s. by his grandson,

William, 3rd Earl, who was murdered in the 21st year of his age (anno 1333), by Robert Fitz-Richard Mandeville, and his servants, near the Fords, in his way to Carrickfergus. His wife, the Lady Maud Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, grandson of Henry III., and his only dau. and heir, returned immediately to England; and so barabons an act as the assassination, causing a most prodigious outcry, the Lord Justice D'Arcey called a Parliament, by whose advice he sailed for Carrickfergus: but before his arrival, the country people had destroyed the murderers, with their abettors, killing, in one day, more than 500 persons. The great heiress of this Earl, The Lady Elizabeth de Burgo, espoused Lionel of Antwerp, Duke of Clarence, 3rd son of Edward III., who became in succession, 4th Earl of Ulster, and Lord of Connaught. This Prince repaired to Ireland, and was Lord-Lieut. in 1301. He left at his decease, an only dau. Philippa, who was given in marriage, at the age of thirteen, by her granddau. Edward III., to

Edward Mortimer, 3rd Earl of March, who, in right of his wife, at the decease of her father, became 5th Earl of Ulster, and was s. by his son and grandson, as 6th and 7th Earls of March and Ulster. The latter, Edmund, dying x g. p., in 1424, his elder sister, the Lady Anne Mortimer, became his heir, and marrying

Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge,

son of

Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York, became EARL OF ULSTER, in right of his mother, The Democrats, who was declared heir to the Crown, feit at Wakefield, in 1460, fighting under the colours of York, and was s. by his son, Edward Plantagenet, Earl of March and Ulster, who ascended the throne as EDW. IV., and his Earldom merged in the Crown.

William. The 2nd son of Richard de Burgo, Lord of Connaught, William ed Burgo, is known by the surname of Athanrig, from being put to death at that place by the King of Connaught. He was s. by his son, Sir William de Burgo, who, having m. a dau. of the family of Mac-Jordan, left, with other issues, at his decease, in 1294,

* This title, first enjoyed by Sir Edward Hyde, was derived from a spacious park, near Salthbury, formerly the site of a royal palace, but more noted, as the place where Henry II. summoned, in 1164, the Great Council of Peers and Prelates, from which emanated the celebrated regulations, so well known in history, as the "Constitutions of Clarendon." By those the clergy were declared amenable to the Civil Power, and hence arose the contest between that Munarch and Thomas a Becket.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the Town and Lordship of Massey, near Bayeux in Normandy; of which it is stated, that its Members had been Lords for many generations previous to the descent of Duke William upon England, and that they were of great power in the Province, from the time of its first Invasion and Conquest, in the 9th century, by Rollo, the celebrated Northern Freebooter.

At the Conquest, the Masseys acquired, with other grants, the Lordship of Dunham, in Cheshire, which then became Dunham-Massey, and from the Barons of Dunham-Massey descended Hyacinth Massey, who had a Military Command in Ireland, during the Rebellion of 1641, and settled there upon the restoration of tranquility. This successful soldier married no less than five wives, but had issue by his 1st (Margaret Percy), only. He was a, by his son,

Lineage.

This family derives from the Claytons of Northamptonshire.

Sir ROBERT CLAYTON, Knt., silled, in 1679, the Civic Chair of London, represented the metropolis for nearly 20 years in Parliament, and was Father of the City at his decease. During the reign of James II. Sir Robert, having previously acted a prominent part in public affairs, retired from public life to his estate at Marden, which he converted into the beautiful form it now wears, and enjoyed his solitude, with as much tranquillity as the convictions of the times would permit, till the arrival of the Prince of Orange, when he was judged a fit person to compliment his Royal Highness, in the name of the City of London. He was subsequently one of the Commissioners of the Customs, He d. at Marden, 16 July, 1747, s. p., and was buried in the parish church of Blechingley, under a stately monument of white marble, of the Corinthian order, with suitable decorations; the figures of himself and his lady, standing upon the projection of the base, with that of an infant lying between them. Under Sir Robert are inscribed the words "Non vultus instantis tyranni." Under the lady "Quando ullam invente parum." This distinguished person was s. by his nephew,

1. Sir WILLIAM CLAYTON, who was created a Bart., 13 Jan., 1781-2. Linage.

This family claims a common ancestor with the noble house of Fan explaining from Vane), Earls of Westmorland, namely,

SIR HENRY VANÉ, who was Knighted for his valiant achievement at the battle of Pesciera, 19 Sept., 1356. This gallant person m. Grace, dau. and heir of Sir Stephen de Lecke, and left son,

JOHN vané, who m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Martin St. Owen. The grandson of this marriage,

HARRY vané, of Hidley, in Kent, m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Humphrey Peshali, and dying about the 31st HenrY VI., was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN vané, Esq. of Hidley, who, in the reign of HenrY VI., had a grant of the manor of Hidley, in Kent. He s. Isabel, dau. of John Darell, Esq. and had, with Richard,

RICHARD, (the eldest surviving son) ancestor of the EARS OF WESTMORLAND.

John, of whom presently.

This John Vane, senior, appears the first to have changed the name to Fan, for so he writes himself (John Fané, Esq. of Tunbridge), in his will, bearing date, 16 April, 1466. His 2nd surviving son,

JOHN Fané, Esq. of Hadley, m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Edward Hauke, Esq., and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY Fané, Esq. of Hadley, who was involved in Sir Thomas Wyatt's insurrection, and committed to the Tower, but, owing to his youth, experienced the royal clemency. He subsequently represented Winchelsea in Parliament, and became an eloquent and distinguished senator. He s. in the 22nd of Elizabeth, and was s. by his sons,

HARRY Fané, Esq. of Hadley, who m. 1st, Mary, only dau. and heir of Thomas Fané, Esq. of Boston, but by her had no issue. He s. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Roger Twisted, Esq. of East Peckham, Co. Kent, and was s. by his son,

SIR HARRY (who resumed the original surname of his ancestors) VANÉ, of Raby Castle, Co. Durham, his chief place of abode. This gentleman was a distinguished politician, and high in the favour of James I. and Charles I., in the former reign he was appointed Coever to the Prince of Wales; and, in the latter, after enjoying many principal offices, was constituted principal Secretary of State for War, and sworn of the Privy Council. His subsequent dismissal from office was attributed to his having offended the King, by the active part he took in the prosecution of the Earl of Stratford—against whom it is said, he was influenced by private pique—arising from that nobleman's having, when elevated to the Peerage, taken the title of Baron Raby of Raby Castle, which Sir Henry Vane deemed more properly to belong to himself as owner of the castle. The removal of Sir Henry from power formed part of the justification of the late Parliament, for first levying an army. "It is only," saith their declaration, "for the defence of the King's person, and the religion, liberties, and laws of the kingdom, &c. That by the instigation of evil counsellors, the King had raised an army of Papists, by which he intended to awe and destroy the Parliament, &c., and the putting out the Earl of Northumberland, Sir HENRY VANÉ, and others, &c., were sufficient and ample evidence thereof." Sir Henry Vane m. Frances, dau. of Thomas Darcy, of the Castle, and had, besides dau., two surviving sons, viz.,

HARRY, his successor.

George, of Long Melton, Co. Durham, who received the honor of Knighthood in 1640. Sir George m. Frances, dau. of Anthony, Esq. of Cleveland, and had, besides dau., two surviving sons, viz.,

SIR HENRY, in right of his mother assumed the additional surname of Tempest. Sir Henry V. m. 1799, ANNE-CATHERINE, COUNTESS OF ANTRIM, and, dying in 1815, left an only dau. and heirress, FRANCES-ANNE-EMILY, who m. 1819, Charles, present Marquess of Londonderry.

Sir Henry Vane d. 1654, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY VanÉ, Knt., whom Clarendon characterizes as a person of "great natural parts, a quick conception, and very ready, sharp, and weighty expression." This gentleman was appointed Joint Treasurer of the Navy with Sir William Russell; and, outliving his associate, enjoyed the office in which he displayed a rare example of honor and integrity. The fees of office were, at that time, four-pence in the pound, which, by reason of the war, fairly amounted to little less than £30,000 per annum; but Sir Henry Vane looked upon it as too much for a subject, and nobly relinquished his patent, which had been granted by Charles I. for life, to the then Parliament, desiring but £1,000 pounds a year for an agent that he had brought up to the business, the remainder to go to the public. The part which Sir Henry took in the Civil Wars is so amply recounted by the historians of the period, that it would be presumption to attempt any detail in a work like this, even if our confined space did not present an insuperable barrier. He seemed in early life attached to the monarchy: "but when his father (further observer Clarendon) received the disobligation from the Lord Strafford, by his being created Baron of Raby, the house and land of Vane (which title had been promised himself, but it was unluckily cast upon the Earl, purely out of contempt to Vané), they sucked in all the thoughts of revenge imaginable; and thence, the son betook himself to the friendship of Mr. Pym, and all other discontented or sedition persons, and communicated all that intelligence that designed the ruin of the Earl, and which grated him in the entire confidence of those who promoted the same: so that nothing was concealed from him, though it is believed he communicated his own thoughts to very few." After the Restoration, he was looked upon as a dangerous character: and, being arranged for high treason, was found guilty, and, receiving sentence of death, was beheaded on Tower Hill, 11 June, 1882. Sir Henry had four sons and six daughters, by his wife Frances, daughter of Sir Christopher Wray, of Ashby, Bart., and was
s. by the youngest and only surviving son.

Sir Christopher Vane, Knt., who was elevated to the Peerage as Lord Barnard, of Barnard Castle, in the Bishop-rick of Durham, by letters patent dated 8 July, 1850. His Lordship was his kinsman, eldest dau. of Gilbert Holles, Earl of Clares, and sister and co-heir of John, Duke of Newcastle, by whom he had two surviving sons,

CLIFFTON.

Cliffton, Sir Robert, of Cliffton, Co. Nottingham; b. in June, 1767; inherited, as 7th Bart., on the demise of his father, 26 Sept., 1815.

Unionage.

The surname of this very ancient family is derived from Cliff-ten, or Cliffton, a small hamlet, upon an eminence, about two miles from the town of Nottingham; which hamlet, and the manor of Wilford, were purchased temp. Edward I. from John de Soleni, by Sir Edgare de Clifford, Knt., 1270, and continued for seven years; in 1386 he was constituted Sheriff of Yorkshire, and continued for six years. In his sheriffialty, the 13th year, he was committed to jail, upon complaint of John de Carleton, for making a false return to a writ. He m. Amicia, dau. of Sir William Sampson, of Eperston, Notts., and d. 1384. From Sir Gervase we pass to his descendant,

Sir John Clifford, M.P. for Nottingham, in 1460, who m. Catharine, dau. of Sir John de Cressey of Hodnack, and sister and co-heir of Sir Hugh de Cressey, and thus acquired a considerable augmentation of property. Sir John was slain at the battle of Shrewsbury, fighting on the King's side, against the Percys. His lineal successor, Robert Clifford, m. for his 2nd wife, Agea, dau. of Henry, Lord Clifford, and sister of Henry, 1st Earl of Cumberland, who, through the lines of Clifford, Percy, and Mortimer, was descended from Lionel Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, son of Edward III. Mr. Clifton d. 1616, and was s. by his son,

Sir Gervase Clifton, Knt., a very eminent person in the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI, and Mary and Elizabeth. He was a gentleman in great authority in peace and war, yet, notwithstanding his martial inclination, was so constant and affable a disposition that he was usually styled "Gentle Sir Gervase;" and ELIZABETH has given him that title in a dietrich, attributed to her Majesty, on four Nottingham Knights:—

"Gervase, the gentle: Stanhope, the stout; Marcham, the lion; and Satkon, the last."

He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir John Nevil, of Chest, in York, by his only surviving dau., Elizabeth. He espoused 2ndly, Winifred, dau. and heir of William Thwaites, Esq. of Owton, in Suffolk, and was s. by his grandson, COCKBURN.

COCKBURN, SIR JAMES, of Langton, Co. Berwick, LL.D., inherited as 5th Bart., at the decease of his father, 26 July, 1804; m. Mariana, eldest dau. of John, 15th Viscount Hereford, and has issue.

Lineage.

The patriarch of the very ancient house of Cockburn, of Langton, was

ALEXANDER DE COCKBURN, who obtained the Baronv of Carriden, Co. Lunlithgow, from David II., in 1356, which Barony had been forfeited to the Crown, by what, in the law of Scotland, is denominated recognition, or a vassal disposing of his property without consent of his superior; for, at that time being subject to feudal tenure, the superior could challenge any deed of the vassal which affected the territory of which he was over-lord. This Alexander m. Mary de Veteiri Ponte (from which period the family has been designated of Langton, or Langton), whose father fell at Bannockburn, in 1314. The eldest son of this marriage,

SIR ALEXANDER COCKBURN, Knt. of Langton, was Keeper of the Great Seal between 1330 and 1365; and from him descended

SIR WILLIAM COCKBURN, Knt. of Langton, who obtained a grant, in 1385, of the lands and Baronv of Langton, with the Office of Principal Usher, and its fees and casualties, to himself and his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the arms and surname of Cockburn. He m. Helen, 5th dau. of Alexander, 4th Lord Elphilkton, and was s. by his son,

L. WILLIAM COCKBURN, Esq., who was created a Baron of Nova Scotia, in 1627. It appears that, during the lifetime of this gentleman, some question concerning the Office of Usher, which he had inherited from his father, being raised, caused much public agitation. Principal Baillie, in his letters, relates "that while the question of Ushery was depending in Parliament, in 1641, Langton, too rashly takes a rod and puts himself in possession of the place." The King, who was present, offended at his presumption, ordered him into custody, which gave rise to a motion, on the part of the Marquess of Argyll, that, when any subject of debate occurred, two members of each estate should be deputed to acquaint the King. Accordingly, deputies having obtained an audience of his Majesty, in the course of the same day, they remonstrated on a member of the House being committed without advice of Parliament, and required the King to enact a law that neither himself nor his successors should do so hereafter, without consulting the legislative body. Sir William, subsequently, alienated a moiety of the Ushership, and became joint Usher with Colonel Cunningham. He was a. by his only son,

II. Sir Archibald, who, in 1657, was returned heir to his father in the office of Principal Usher, still held jointly with Col. Cunningham, and also in the Baronetcy of Langtown and other property. In 1674, Sir Archibald, having purchased Cunningham's life-rent, obtained another grant of the office, with a salary of £250, and other emoluments attached to it, for ever. Sir Archibald m. Lady Mary Campbell, dau. of the Earl of Breadalbane, and was a. at his decease, in 1768, by his eldest son,

III. Sir Archibald: at whose decease, without issue, the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. Sir Alexander, who was a. by his grandson,

V. Sir Alexander, at whose decease, the title devolved upon his cousin,

VI. Sir James, M.P. for Peebles, 1762. This gentleman m. 1st, 1773, Miss Douglas, dau. of Douglas, of Muth, by whom he had three surviving dau.; and Snitty, Miss Averough, dau. of the Dean of Bristol, and niece of George, Lord Lyttleton, by whom he had

James, the present Bart.; who, in 1806, was Under Secretary of State; in 1807, Governor and Commander-in-Chief at Curacao; and, in 1811, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Bermudas Islands. Sir George, M.P., Vice Admiral of the White, Major-General of Marines, m. his cousin, Miss Mary Cockburn.

William, in Holy Orders, Dean of York, m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of Sir Robert Peel, Bart., and became a widower in 1826. Alexander, Envoy-Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Columbia, Francia, an Officer in the Army; m. 1804, Allisa. dau. of the late Rev. 1. DEVREUX-PLANTAGNET, b. 9 June, 1829.
2. Edward-Cudsde, b. 10 June, 1834.

Lineage.

This family, which may be denominated noble, having ranked high among the old Barons of Scotland, can be traced to the earliest periods of Scottish history, and particularly to the time of the Bruces, when it attained great celebrity. Having stated so much regarding its antiquity, under the head of Cockburn of Langton, we proceed to the immediate ancestor of the present Bart.

Sir William Cockburn, Knt., Baron of Langton, fell at the battle of Flodden Field, in 1513; and left by his wife, Lady Anna Home, dau. of the Earl of Home, two sons, (his eldest son, Alexander, having been killed at his side,) namely,

John.

Christopher.

1. John Cockburn, Esq. of Ryslaw; who was created a Bart., of Nons Socia, in 1628. Sir John m. Mary, dau. of William Scott, Esq. of Harden, Co. Roxburgh, and was a. at his decease, by the eldest of three sons,

II. Sir James. This gentleman m. Joan, dau. of Alexander Swinton of that Ilk, in the shire of Berwick, and was a. by his eldest son,

III. Sir William, who was a. at his decease, by his eldest son,

IV. Sir James. This gentleman, dying without issue, the title devolved upon his kinman,

V. Sir William (who was the great-grandson of William Cockburn, M. D., Physician-General to the Forces under the great Duke of Marlborough, the 2nd son of William, the 3rd Bart. Doctor Cockburn was a, by his 2nd son, Doctor James Cockburn, who had two sons, William Cockburn, D.D., Vicar-General and Archdeacon of Ossory, in Ireland, and James Cockburn, Esq., a Col. in the Army, and Quarter-Master-General, father of Sir William, the late Bart., by Letitia Little, heiress of the ancient house of Rossiter and Derveen, in Ireland). Sir William, who was a Liewel-Gen. in the Army, m. Elizabeth-Anne, a. dau. of F. G. Creutzer, Esq., of a noble and ancient family of Manchester, in Germany, an Officer in the Royal Horse Guards, and had issue, William-Sarisfield-Rossiter, present Bart.

Catherine Harriet, m. 6 May, 1829, to Edward Cludde, Esq., of Orletou. (See Burks's Commonwealth.)

Sir William d. March, 1833.

CODRINGTON.

Codrington, Sir Wil- liam-Raymond, of Dodington, Co. Gloucester; b. 25 Jan., 1806; z. as 4th Bart., at the decease of his father, Sept., 1816; m. Anne-Mary, dau. of Monsieur Joseph Le Fer Baron, of St. Maloos, and has a son and heir, b. 22 March, 1829.

Lineage.

The Codringtons are of ancient standing at Codrington (whence the surname is derived), in the Co. Gloucester, having been established there so early as the reign of Henry IV.; and we find one of them, John Codrington, 1754, filling the honorable post of Standard-Bearer to Henry V., in his French wars.

In the time of Charles I., a younger son, Christopher Codrington, removed, with the entire of his property, to the island of Barbadoes, and, dying there, left two sons, Christopher, who became Lieut.-Governor of Barba- does, and Captain-General of the Leeward islands. This gentleman had two sons, the elder of whom, Christopher, succeeded to the government of the Leeward islands, and, at his decease, bequeathed to the College of All Soul's Oxford, the munificent sum of £10,000, for the purpose of erecting a library, and furnishing it with books, besides his own very valua- ble collection. He devised also an estate of £2500 per annum, to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, for the building and endow- ment of a college at Barbadoes.

And John Codrington, Treasurer of Barbadoes, and Col. of the Life Guards, who was, m. Miss Bates, dau. of Col. Bates, and had two sons, the elder of whom,

1. William Codrington, Esq. of Dodington, Co. Gloucester, was created a Bart, 21 April, 1727. Sir William m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Bethell, Esq. of Swidond, Co. York, and had, with other issue, COFFIN.

COFFIN, Sir Isaac, of the Magdalen Islands, Lower Canada; b. at Boston; 16 May, 1759; entered the Royal Navy, and attained, after a long series of gallant and useful services, the rank of Admiral of the Red; m. March, 1811, Elizabeth-Brown, only child of William Greenly, Esq. of Tittley Court, Herefordshire. (See Burke's Commoners, Vol. I., page 292.) Admiral Coffin (who is 4th son of the late Nathaniel Coffin, Esq. of Boston, by Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Barnes, Esq. of the same place,) was created a Bart., 13 June, 1804.

Lineage.

Sir Isaac Coffin, Bart., is descended from an ancient family which came over with William the Conqueror, and settled at Portledge, in Devonshire, where a mansion of considerable extent and great antiquity, now in the possession of Pyne Coffin, Esq., still exists. The authorities who have written respecting the Co. Devon, make honorable mention of Sir Richard Coffin, of Elsa and Inagarby, Knt., in the days of King John, of Sir Richard Coffin, of Alwington, in that of Henry II., of Sir Jeffrey Coffin, of Coombe Coffin, in the reign of Henry III., and of other Knights deceased of these, during successive reigns, till the time of Henry VIII., when we find Sir William Coffin High Sheriff of Devonshire, and afterwards highly preferred at Court, being Master of the Horse at the Coronation of Anne Bolles, a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber, and afterwards one of the Eighteen Assistants of King Henry VIII. at the Tournament of Guineas, in France, A.D. 1519. This Sir William Coffin was also High Steward of the Manor and Liberties of Standon, Co. Hertford. At his death he humbly bequeathed to his great master, Henry VIII., with whom he was in especial grace and favor, all his hawks, his best horses, and a cart; and leaving no issue, he conveyed the Manor of East Higgington, in the parish of Berrygewich, with all his other estates in the Co. of Devon, to his eldest brother's son, Richard Coffin, of Portledge, Esq., His monument in Standon Church is mentioned in Waverley's 'Funeral Services, p. 534.

During the wars between Charles and the Parliament, the branch of the Coffin family from which Sir Isaac is descended having embraced the royal cause, was driven to take refuge in America, leaving their lands in Devonshire, &c., sequestered; but another branch remained in peaceable possession of Portledge, where the original Arms of the family are now to be seen on the walls, viz.: Amor, 3 bezants between 5 cross-crosslets, or.

Devon (by Louisa-Caroline, only dau. and eventually heir of Sir John Colleton, 4th Bart.; and his first wife, Anne, dau. of Sir Francis Fulford, of Great Fulford, Co. Devon, by Anna, 3rd dau. of Sir Arthur Chichester, Bart., 4th in lineal descent from Sir John Chichester, father of the 1st Lord Belfast, by whom (who d. in America, 14 Dec., 1831) he has issue,

1. Frederick-Nassar-William-Graves, b. 4 Aug., 1802; for whom his Royal Highness the late Duke of York, and the Earl of Rochford, stood sponsors.
3. Alwilda-Plantagenet.

Lineage.

By a very ancient grant, from Reginald de Villecore, to Thomas Colleton, of an estate, and, by subsequent deeds, in the beginning of the reign of Edward I, we find the Colletons style themselves gentlemen, and that they then bore the arms which they still continue to bear.

I. John Colleton, Esq., eldest son of Peter Colleton, Esq. of Exeter, was Capt. of Foot, and a most active partisan of the Revolution. In the beginning of the Civil Wars. Capt. Colleton had a Col.'s commission to raise a regiment, from Sir John Berkeley, afterwards Lord Berkeley, signed by the Prince of Wales; which regiment he raised within ten days, and expended for the King's service £60,000, beside losing considerably more than that sum by sequestration. He was obliged eventually to retire to Barbadoes; but, returning after the Restoration, Sir John Berkeley presented a memorial in his favor to the King, who, in consequence, conferred upon him the dignity of Bart., 19 Feb., 1661. Sir John, in conjunction with the Duke of Albermarle, and other distinguished personages, had a grant of large dominions in North America; he left at his decease, four sons, and was s. by the eldest.

II. Sir Peter, M.P., who m. Elisabeth, relict of William Johnson, Esq. and had, with a dau., Catherine, the wife of Robert Richardson, Esq., an only son, his successor, in 1695.

III. Sir John. This gentleman m. Elisabeth, dau. of John Snell, Esq., M.P., and had issue, John, who m. a dau. of the Rev. Mr. Smell, Canon of Exeter, and, dying before his father, left a son, John, who s. e. his grandfather.

Peter, d. unm., Robert, m. Miss Colleton, and left, with a dau., m. to Captain Hawley, a son.

James. Naceau, who s. as 6th Bart.

Sir John was s. by his grandson,

IV. Sir John, who m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Francis Fulford, Esq. by whom he had a dau., Louis-Caroline, who m. Admiral Richard Graves. Sir John's marriage with Miss Fulford being dissolved by Act of Parliament, he m. secondly, 21 April, 1774, Miss Mutter, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

V. Sir John Snell, who d. in 1801, s. p., when the title reverted to his cousin,

VI. Sir James Nasmyth (see issue of 3rd Bart.). This gentleman m. 1st, Dec., 1788, Susanna, dau. of William Nixon, Esq. of Lincoln, by whom he had issue, James-Roupell, the present Bart.

Thomas-William, in the Army, d. in minority.

He d. 16 Jan., 1815.

COLQUHOUN.

COLQUHOUN, Sir James, of Colquhoun and of Luss, Co. Dumbarton; m. in 1802, Janet, dau. of the Rt. Hon. Sir John Sinclair, Bart., of Ulbster, and has issue,

1. James.

II. John, m. 29 Jan., 1834, Frances-Sarah, 4th dau. of E. Fuller Maitland, Esq. of Henley-on-Thames, Co. Middlesex.

III. William.

IV. Sarah-Maitland.

V. Helen, m. 9 April, 1829, to John-Page Read, Esq. of Crow Hall, Suffolk.

Sir James inherited at the decease of his father, 22 April, 1805, two Baronetcies, one of Nova Scotia, as 6th in succession, the other of Great Britain, as 2nd in succession. He represented the Co. of Dumbarton in Parliament, in 1802; and is the 6th Bart. of Nova Scotia, and 2nd of Great Britain.

Lineage.

The very remote antiquity of this family precludes, if our space permitted, any accurate development of its origin.

Sir Robert da Colquhoun, Knt., living temp. David Bruce, m. the dau. and heiress of Umphridus de Luss, Chief of an ancient family of that name, which flourished in Dumbartonshire long antecedently, and had issue, Humphrey, his heir.

Robert, of Comstrodon, ancestor of the present James Colquhoun, Esq. of London, Colonial Agent for St. Vincent, &c.

Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Humphrey, the heir and representative of the families of Colquhoun and Luss; from which circumstance, himself and his posterity were ever after designated from those lands. His lineal descendant,

1. John Colquhoun, of that Ilk, and of Luss; whn, in his father's lifetime, was styled in a Charter—"eldest son of Alexander Colquhoun, Lord of Luss;" was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 12 Aug., 1828. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

II. Sir John, who d. without surviving male issue, in 1775, when the title devolved upon his brother.

III. Sir James. This gentleman was s. by an only son.

IV. and 1. Sir Humphrey, a member of the Union Parliament, and who strenuously opposed that measure. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Patrick Houston, Bart. of Houston, by whom he had an only dau. and heiress, Anne, whn m. in 1702, James Grant, Esq. of Fluscardine, 2nd son of Ludovic Grant, Esq. of Grant. Sir Humphrey, resigned, in 1704, his Baronetcry, for a new patent to himself and his son-in-law, with the express limitation that his said son-in-law, or his heirs, on succeeding to the title, should assume the surname and arms of "Colquhoun," and that the estates of Luss and Grant should not be conjointly. Sir Humphrey d. in 1716, when the original Baronetcry and the Chiefship of the family became vested in James Colquhoun, of Tillyquhoun, who became 6th Bart., while the new patent devolved, according to the limitation, upon the deceased Bart.'s son-in-law, who thereafter became 7th Bart.

11. Sir James Colquhoun, of Luss, 2nd Bart. of the new creation; which estate and title he enjoyed until the death of his elder brother, Brigadier Gen. Alexander Grant, of Grant, without issue, in 1719: when, succeeding to the estate of Grant, he resumed his paternal family name of Grant, retaining the Baronetcy only, it being vested in his person. Sir James d. in 1747, and was s. in the estate of Grant, by his 2d, but eldest surviving, son.

III. Sir Ludovick Grant, who retained the Baronetcy, which had evidently been intended for the inheritor of the estate of Luss. Prior to the decease of Sir Ludovic's elder brother, in 1739, he possessed that estate; but, then his younger brother, George Grant, assumed the name of Colquhoun, and became the owner of Luss. Sir Ludovick was s. at his decease, by his said brother,

IV. Sir James Colquhoun, in the estate of Grant.

Sir James m. Heien, dau. of William, Lord Strathnaver, and grandau. of John, 15th Earl of Sutherland, and had issue,

James, his successor,
William, Col. in the Army, m., and had issue.
Ludovic, Col. in the Army, left issue.
Catherine, m. to Sir Roderick McKenzie, Bart.
Mary, m. to Gen. John Campbell.
Margaret, m. to William Baillie, a Lord of Session, under the title of Lord Polkemmet, and was mother of Sir William Baillie, Bart.
Ellen, m. to William Colquhoun, Esq., and d. 27 May, 1784.
Janet m. to Ebenezer Marshall, Esq.

Sir James d. Nov., 1706, and was s. by his eldest son,
V. and 1. Sir James, who, to terminate all disputes about the title, was created a Bart. of Great Britain, 27 June, 1706. This gentleman was Sheriff-Depute of Dumbartonshire, and one of the Principal Clerks of session.
He m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of James Falconer, Esq. of Halkerton, and had issue,

James, his successor,
Patrick Ludovic,
John Campbell, Sheriff Depute of the Co. of Dumbarton.
Sutherland-Morison.
Roderick.

Colquhoun.

Colquhoun, Sir Robert, of Tillyquhoun, Co. Dumbarton; an officer in the Civil Service of the East India Company; s. as 10th Bart., at the decease of his brother.

Lineage.

The remote antiquity of this family precludes all accuracy in the development of its origin; indeed the traditional accounts are various; some authorities deducing the descent from a younger branch of the old Earls of Lennox, because of the similitude of the armorial bearings; while others assert that the family was founded by a younger son of Comock, one of the Provincial Monarchs of Ireland, who came into Scotland in the time of Gregory the Great, and obtained, from that Prince, some lands in Dumfriesshire, which he called Comock, and soon after corrupted to Colquhoun, a name which they have ever since retained.

Sir Robert de Colquhoun, Kel. temp. David Bruce, m. the heiress of Luss, and was s. by his eldest son.

Sir Humphrey, who, as a representative of both families, was denominated of Colquhoun and Luss; and his posterity ever afterwards bore the same designation. This gentleman was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Colquhoun, Governor of the Castle of Dumbarton, in the minority of James II. of Scotland.

He took place in 1640. From him lineally descended

1. Sir John Colquhoun, of Colquhoun and Luss, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 12 Aug., 1625. This gentleman was a staunch Royalist, and was plundered by Cromwell, in 1654, of £2000. He m. Lady Lillias Graham, dau. of John, 3d Earl of Montrose, and niece of the former Marquess of Montrose by whom he had issue, with two dau.

John, his successor.

James, Alexander, of Tillyquhoun, ancestor of the present Baronet.

Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

11. Sir John. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. and sole heir of Sir Gion Balie, of Lochend, Co. Haddington: but, dying without male issue, in 1676, the title devolved upon his brother,

III. Sir James, who was s. by his only son,

IV. Sir Humphrey. This gentleman was a Member of the Union Parliament, and strenuously opposed the measure. He d. without male issue, when the estates passed to his dau. (see Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, of Colquhoun and Luss, 4th Bart. in the genealogical detail of that dignity), and the title reverted to his cousin.

V. Sir John Colquhoun, eldest son of Alexander Colquhoun, youngest son of the 1st Bart.) This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Andrew Anderson, Esq., King's Printer for Scotland, and was s. by his only son, VI. Sir Humphrey; at whose decease, s. p., the title devolved upon his cousin.

VII. Sir George (2nd son of Alexander Colquhoun, Esq. of Tillyquhoun, the youngest son of the 1st Bart.) This gentleman m. 1st, Rebecca, only dau. of William Jones, Esq. Comptroller-General of the Customs in Scotland, by whom he had three dau. and 2dly, 1777, Charlotte, dau. of David Barclay, Esq., and had three sons and two dau.

Sir George d. 1785, when a Col. in the service of the States-General, and was s. by his eldest son,

VIII. who d. a.p. 1790, when the title devolved upon his brother,

IX. Sir George, who d. a.p. 1790, and was s. by his brother,

Robert, present Bart.

COLVILLE.

Colville, of Culross, Baron (John Colville), in the Peerage of Scotland, one of the Representative Lords; b. 1768; m. 14 Oct., 1790, Elizabeth, dau. of Francis Ford, Esq., and aunt of the present Sir Francis Ford, Bart., but has no surviving issue. His Lordship, who is Vice-Admiral of the Blue, inherited the Peerage, as 16th Baron, at the decease of his father, 8 March, 1810.

Lineage.

Of this ancient Scottish family, which deduces its descent from Philip de Colville, of Oxenham, in Roxburgh, who lived in the 12th century, we shall commence with

Robert Colville, Steward to Margaret, Queen of James III., who had a charter from that Monarch of the lands of Hilton, Co. Clackmannan, dated 10 Oct., 1463. This Robert appears to have actively espoused the cause of James IV. against his father; for, six days after the accession of that Monarch, he had the office of Director of the Chancery conferred upon him by Royal Charter (17 June, 1486). He subsequently had other considerable grants from the Crown, among which were the lands and barony of Uchitirle, whence he assumed his designation. He fell, with his Royal Master, at the battle of Flodden, 1513, and was s. by his son,

Sir James Colville, of Uchitirle, which Barony he exchanged with Sir James Hamilton, for the lands of Easter-Wemyss and Lochchrye. At the institution of the College of Justice, 1832, Sir James was appointed one of the Judges at the Temporal side of the Bench. He was s. at his decease by his only son,

Sir James Colville, who m. Janet, 2nd dau. of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochieven, and had issue,

James, (Sir) his successor. Alexander, who had a charter of the whole Abbey of Culross, 1567, and was thence styled Commander of Culross. He was appointed one of the Judges of Session in 1575, and, dying in 1597, was s. by his son,

John; of whom hereafter, as successor to the 2nd Lord Colville.
Sir James Colville d. 1590, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir James Colville, of Easter Wemyss, who had served in the wars of France, under Henry the Great, with high reputation. He had a Charter of Colross, Val- leyfield, acc. erected into the temporary Baronry of Colross, 30 June, 1589; and was created a Peer of Parliament, 20 Jan., 1609, by the title of Lord Colville, of Col- rose, with remainder to his heir male whatsoever. His Lordship m. 1st, Isabel, 2nd dau. of Patrick, Lord Ruth- ven, by whom he had an only surviving son, Robert, and a dau., Jean, who m. Sir James Campbell, of Lawers, and was mother of John, Earl of Loudoun, Lord High Chancel- lor of Scotland. Lord Colville m. 2ndly, Ellen Shaw, relict of Robert Murray, of Inarnsough, and, dying 1659, was s. by (the son of Robert, Master of Colville, who pre- deceased his father) his grandson, James, 2nd Lord Colville, who d. without issue, 1660, when the title devolved upon his cousin (refer to Alex- ander, Commendator of Culross.)

John Colville, of Westercumhie, as 3rd Baron, but this gentleman did not assume the title, neither did his son and successor, Andrew Colville, of Kincardine, 4th Baron, who was Professor of Divinity at Sedan, in France. He was s. by his eldest son, John, 5th Baron, who also declined assuming the title, He m. Mary, dau. of Sir George Preston, of Valleyfield, by whom he had two sons, and was s. by the eldest, Alexander, 6th Baron, who likewise declined to assume the Peerage. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Charles Erkine, Lord Lion King-at-Arms, by whom he had five sons, and six daus., and was s. by his eldest son, John, 7th Baron, an Officer in the Army. This gentle- man, claimed the Barony, but was refused, upon the ground that it was not upon the roll at the time of the Union. He appealed, however, to the House of Lords, which came to a determination in his favour, 27 May, 1723. He m. Miss Johnston, an Irish lady, by whom he had issue, Alexander, his successor, George, an Officer in the Army, d. unm. John, 9th Baron. Charles, d. unm. James, Capt. L.N., who perished, with all the crew, in the "Sunderland," at Poodicherry, in 1761, and d. unm. Margaret, m. to Paul Castlemain, Esq. of Horsey, Co. Gloucester. COOTE.

COOTE, SIR CHARLES-

HENRY, of Ballyfin, Queen's Co., inherited at the decease of his father; m. a dau.
of John Whaley, Esq. of Whaley Abbey, Co. Wicklow, and grandau., maternally, of John, Earl of Clanwilliam, and has issue. Sir Charles is Member of Parliament for the Queen's Co., and PREMIER BART. of Ireland.

Lineage.

This is the parent stock whence the noble houses of Coote, Earls of Mountrath, and Coote, Lords Castle Coote, both now extinct, emanated. The first settler in Ireland, and descended from a very ancient English family, was

1. SIR CHARLES COOTE, Knt. of Castle Cuffe, Queen's Co., who served in the wars against O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, at the head, as Capt. of 100 foot, with which corps he was at the siege of Kingsale, and was appointed by James I. (in consequence of the good and faithful service he had rendered to QUEEN ELIZABETH), Provost Marshal of the Province of Connaught, for life. In 1608, he was constituted Vice-President of the same Province;
and created 3 April, in the same year, a BART. of IRL.

Charles distinguished himself, subsequently, by many gallant exploits; but the most celebrated was the relief of Brr, in 1642. Being despatched, with Sir Thomas Lucas, and six troops of horse, to relieve that garrison, and some other fortresses, it was necessary, in order to effect the object, to pass the casseway, broken by the rebels, who had thrown up a ditch at the end of it;
Sir Charles, leading 30 dismounted dragoons, beat the enemy with the loss of their Captain and 30 men; relieved the castles of Brr, Burras, and Knockmenasse; and, having continued almost 40 hours on horseback, returned to the camp, with the loss of one man only. This is the surprising passage through Mountrath woods, which justly caused the title of Mountrath to be entailed upon his son.
Sir Charles m. Dorothea, youngest dau. and her of Hugh Cuffe, Esq. of Cuffe's wood, Co. Cork, and being alone in a sally, to protect the town of Trim, 7 May, 1642, was o. by his son.
11. SIR CHARLES, who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, by the title of Earl of Mountrath, 1603; and the Baronetcy merged in the superior dignity, until the demise of

VIII. CHARLES-HENRY, the 7th Earl and 8th Bart., without male issue, t March, 1792, when the Earlship expired; a new Baron, that of Castle Coote, which his Lordship obtained 20 July, 1780, with special remainder, passed accordingly, and ceased likewise in 1827; while the ancient Baronetc reverted to

IX. SIR CHARLES COOTE, of Ballyfin, great-grandson of the Rev. Chillyne Coote, D.D. (the linear descendant of Childlyne Coote, 2nd son of the 1st Bart.), and son of Childlyne Coote, Esq., by his 2nd wife, Elias-Anne, dau.

Lineage.

In very remote periods this family possessed considerable estates in Northamptonshire: whence the descendants of John Cope, the first upon record, extended themselves into Oxfordshire, Berkshire, Hampshire, Staffordshire, Gloucestershire, and Ireland. This John Cope was a very important person in the reign of RICHARD II. and HENRY IV. In the latter he represented the Co. of Northampton in Parliament, and was twice High-Sheriff. He d. in the 2nd HENRY V., and from him lineally descended

SIR ANTHONY POPE, Knt., Vice - Chamberlain to CATHARINE PARB, and one of the most learned men of the era in which he lived. He was made a Knt. of the Carpet in the 1st Eowarn VI., and served the office of Sheriff for Oxfordshire and Berks. the next year. He m.
Jane, dau. of Matthew Cuffe, of Pyne, and had, with a dau., Anne, m. to Sir Memel Digby, Knt., an only son,

II. Andrew-George, b. 26 July, 1824.
IV. Walter Robert, b. March, 1832.
V. Augusta-Rachel.
VI. Elizabeth Mary.

Lineage.

This family was founded in England by CORBET, a noble Norman, who accompanied the Conqueror, and with his two sons, Robert and Roger, was employed by Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury and Atundale.
Of the Earl and his servants, Ordorius Vitalis says, "That the Earl was a prudent and moderate man, a great lover of equity, and a lover of discreet and modest persons, and being freely assisted by the wisdom and courage of the said Corbete, and his two sons Roger and Robert, was as glorious amongst the greatest nobles, as any of them all, by keeping the Welsh in order, and that fair province in peace." At the general survey, Roger, the elder son, held twenty-four Lordships in Shropshire, and Robert the younger, fourteen in the same County. Robert had a son, another Robert, Lord of Aclester in Warwickshire, and two daws., Sarah, from whom the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke, and Finch, Earls of Winchelsea, descend; and Alice, from whom the Earl of Huntington.—(For a more detailed account of the Corbets, see Burke's Com-mercier.)

HUGH, the elder son of the 1st Corbet, left a son, WILLIAM DE CORBET, of Clee Castle and Wastes-borough, Co. Salop, who was father of SIR ROBERT DE CORBET, from a younger son of whom descended Peter Corbet, of Clee Castle, who was summoned to Parliament, as a Baron, temp. Edward I.
(See Burke's Extinct Peerage.)

His eldest son,
THOMAS CORBET, was great-grandfather of Richard Corbet, Esq., who settled at Morton Corbet, and his direct line continues still to reside there. Fourteenth in descent from this Richard, was SIR ANDREW CORBET, Knt. of Morton Corbet, who m.
Elizabeth, dau. of William Boothby, Esq., and left, at his decease, in 1637, two sons, namely, VINCENT, who inherited Morton Corbet, and was created a Bart., in 1641. He m. Sarah, dau. of Sir Robert Morton, of Carlton, Co. Lincoln, and by that Lady, who was created, in 1679, Viscountess Corbet for life, he left in 1682.
VINCENT, (Sir) 2nd Bart. of Morton Corbet, who d.
in 1689, leaving an only son,
VINCENT, (Sir) 3rd Bart., at whose decease in minority, 1688, and in 1689, the Baronetcy expired, and the estates reverted to his great uncle Richard Corbet, of Shrewsbury.

Richard.

The younger son,
RICHARD CORBET, Esq. was of Shrewsbury, but surviving his great nephew, Sir Vincent Corbet, 3rd Bart., who
d. in 1688, as stated above, s. p., inherited the family Estates, and became of Morton Corbet. This gentleman

Linage.
The ancestors of this noble family had, for many generations, their residence in the Co. Hereford, where Lodowick Boyle lived in the reign of Henry III.:

and from him descended

Lodowic Boyle, of Sidney, founder of the Friars, in the City of Hereford, who was living in the time of Henry VI., and had two sons,

1. John, who s. in Herefordshire.
2. Roger, dying young.

1 John, of Hereford.
2 Roger; of whose descendants we are about to treat.
3 Michael; of whose children, Michael was Bishop of Winchester, and d. in 1633. Richard was Bishop of Cork and Ross, and afterwards 1st Bishop of Tuam, and left a son Michael, who was Bishop of Armagh, and Lord-Chancellor of Ireland, and father of Merrough, created Viscount Blesington, a dignity which he was deprived of in 1728, with Charles, 2nd Viscount.

Richard Boyle, 2nd son of Roger, mentioned above, b. 1569, studied law at the Middle Temple; but, despairing from his scanty means of being able to pursue his studies, embarked for Ireland, as an adventurer, and having obtained, after suffering some persecutions from the local authorities, the favor and protection of Elizabeth, amassed considerable wealth, received the honor of Knighthood, was sworn of the Privy-Council, and elevated to the Peerage of that Kingdom, 16 Sept., 1616, as Baron Boyle, of Youghal, and, 16 Oct., 1620, created Viscount Dungarvan, and Earl of Cork. His Lordship m. 1st, Joan, dau. and co-heir of William Apsley, Esq., with whom he acquired an estate of £15,641 a year, but by whom, who d. in 1589, he had no issue. He espoused, in July, Catherine Rawson, dau. of Sir Geoffrey Fenton, Knt., Principal Secretary of State for Ireland, and had (with several daus.) five sons, viz.:

1 Richard, Lord Dungarvan.

This Richard Boyle, afterwards called the Great Earl of Cork, in an account of himself, which he wrote, says, "I was born in the City of Canterbury, 3 Oct., 1569. After the decease of my father and mother, I being the 2nd son of a younger brother, having been a scholar in Benet's College, Cambridge, and a student in the Middle Temple, finding my means unable to support me to study the laws in the Inns of Court, put myself into the service of Sir Richard Moorewood, Knt., Lord-Chief Baron of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer, where I served as one of his clerks; and perceiving that my employment would not raise a fortune, I resolved to travel into foreign kingdoms; and to gain learning, knowledge, on experience abroad in the world; and it pleased the Almighty, by his divine providence, to take me, I may say, just as it were by the hand, and lead me into Ireland, where I happily arrived at Dublin on Midsummer eve, 23 June, 1601, and all my wealth there was £27. Is. in money, and two tokens which my mother had formerly given me, viz., a diamond ring, which I have ever since, and in a death, a diamond of gold, worth about £10. a safty doublet cut with and upon safty, a pair of blacket velvet breeches laced; a new Milan fustian suit laced and cut up safty; two cloaks, competent linen and necessaries; with my rapier and dagger."

Lineage.

Michael Cox, Esq., the youngest son of a respectable Wilshire family (amongst whose progenitors was the learned Doctor Cox, one of the Compilers of the Liturgy, Tutor to Edward VI., and in the reign of Elizabeth, Bishop of Ely), seated at Kilworth, Co. Cork, some time within the first quarter of the 17th century; and left, with other children, at his decease.

Richard Cox, a person of great bodily strength and courage, who became a Capt. in Major-Gen. Jephson's Regt. of Dragoons, and fought successively under the Royal Banner of Charles I., and the Republican one of Cromwell. He m. Catharine, dau. of Walter Bird, Esq. of Cloghnaaктly, and d. 1651, (in consequence of a treacherous wound received from a brother Officer of his own Regt., a Capt. Narton), when his orphan son,

1. Richard Cox, then not quite three years of age, was taken under the care of his maternal grandfather, Mr. Walter Bird; but that relation dying in a few years afterwards, he was placed by his uncle, Mr. Bird, Esq., at an ordinary Latin school, in the town of Cloghaughter, where he soon evinced a strong disposition to learning. In 1671, he entered himself of Lincoln's Inn, and was, in the regular time, called to the Bar. Upon his return to Ireland Mr. Cox married, but consequent of some disappointment regarding the portion of his wife, retired, in a fit of despondency, very uncharacteristic of his active mind, to a farm near Cloghnaaктly, and there remained in obscurity for nearly seven years. The patronage of Sir Robert Southwell at length, however, re-called him into active life; and, in 1689, he was Recorder of Kinsale when he settled at Cork, and practised as a Barrister with considerable success. In 1697, he withdrew, in consequence of the religious disensions prevalent at that period in his native country, to Bristol, and there, at his leisure hours, compiled a "History of Ireland." At the period of the Revolution, he returned to Ireland, as Secretary to Sir Robert Southwell, who accompanied William in the capacity of Grand Secretary of State. Upon William's march to Dublin, after the battle of the Boyne, that Prince published his manifesto, called, "The King's Declaration to England," which emanated from the pen of Mr. Cox, and which so pleased his Master, he was heard to say, that "Mr. Cox has exactly hit his own mind." After the surrender of Waterford, Mr. Cox was made Recorder of that City, and thence, in 1696, removed to the second seat upon the Bench of the Court of Common Pleas. In 1698 he received the honor of Knighthood; in 1700, obtained the Chief Justicehip of his Court; and, in 1702, was appointed Lord High Chancellor of Ireland. In the absence of the Lord-Lieut., he was twice nominated one of the Lords-Justices, and created a Bart. of Ireland, 21 Nov., 1706. Upon the termination of the Duke of Ormond's Government, however, in 1707, Sir Richard Cox was removed from the Chancellorship, but he subsequently accepted the office of Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of Queen's-Bench, from which he was removed, with the other Judges, upon the accession of George II., and his conduct was subsequently censured by a vote of the House of Commons. He d. 3 May, 1723, and was s. by his grandson,

ii. Sir Richard, Collector of the Port of Cork, and M.P. for the Borough of Cloghnaaктly; b. 29 Nov., 1702; m. 1725, Catharine, youngest sister of George Evans, 1st Lord Carberry, and dau. of the Rt. Hon. George Evans, 1st Lady Mary, dau. of John Eyre, Esq. of Eyre-Court, Co. Cork.

CRAVEN.

CRAVEN, EARL OF (William Craven), Co. York, Viscount Uffington, and Baron Craven, of Hampsted-Marshall, Co. Berks; b. 18 July, 1800; s. as 2nd Earl, on the demise of his father, 30 July, 1825; m. 5 Sept., 1843, Lady Emily-Mary-Grimston, 2nd dau. of the Earl of Verulam.

Lineage.

William Craven, eldest son of Sir William Craven, Knt., an Alderman of London, and Lord Mayor, in 1121, having distinguished himself as a Military Officer, on foreign service, received, on his return to his native country, the honor of Knighthood, 4 March, 1296, and, in eight days afterwards (by letters patent, dated the 12th), was elevated to the Peerage, as Baron Craven, of Hampsted-Marshall, Co. Berks, with remainder, in case of failure of issue, to his brothers, John and Thomas, successively, and their male descendants; but those gentlemen having d. s.p., his Lordship, when advanced to the dignities of Viscount Craven, of Uffington, Co. Berks, and Earl of Craven, of Yorkshire, 13 March, 1863, has the reversion of those honors made, with that of the original Baronry renewed, to his cousins, Sir William Craven, of Leechwyke, Knt., and his brother, Sir Anthony Craven, Knt., successively, and their male descendants. Sir William, dying, however, without a son, the Earl obtained, by letters patent, dated 11 Dec., 1793, an extension of the limitation of the original Baronry of Craven to Sir Thomas Craven, Knt., the next brother of the deceased Sir William. His Lordship d. v.m., at the advanced age of eighty-eight years and ten months, 9 April, 1867, when (Sir Anthony Craven having died without issue, 1793) the Earldom and Viscountcy expired; but the Baronry of Craven of Hampsted-Marshall devolved, according to the limitation, that of 1665, upon the grandson of Sir Thomas Craven, namely, William Craven, Esq. of Combe Abbey, as 2nd Baron (eldest son of Sir William Craven, Knt., by Mary, dau. of Sir Christopher Lapham, of Beaulieu, Co. York). His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Humberston Skipworth, Esq., son and heir of Sir Fulwar Skipworth, Bart, of Newbold Hall, Co. Warwick, and, dying 1711, was s. by his eldest son

William, 3rd Baron, who d. without issue, 1729, when the Baronoly devolved upon his brother,

Fulwar, 4th Baron. This nobleman, dying v.m., 1764, the title reverted to his cousin,

William, 2nd Baron (nephew of William, the 2nd Lord, being the son of his brother, John Craven, Esq., by Maria-Rebecca, dau. of Henry Green, Esq. of Wykin, Co. Warwick). His Lordship d. without issue, March, 1769, and was s. by his nephew, William, 6th Baron (son of John Craven, Esq., by Mary, dau. of the Rev. Mr. Hicks). This nobleman m., 10 May, 1757, Elizabeth, dau. of Augustus, 4th Earl of Berkeley, by whom (who m. after his decease, Christian Frederick, Marquess of Brandenburg-Anspach and Bayreuth, and d. His Lordship d. 1667, and was s. by his brother,

The Right Hon. NATHANIEL CREWE, Lord Bishop of Durham, as 3rd Lord Crewe, of Stene. This prelate stood so high in the favor of James II, and so strenuously supported that prince’s measures, that he found it no easy task to make his peace after the Revolution. He did so, however; and the remainder of his life was spent in retirement, and devoted to the most unbounded acts of benevolence. He held the see of Durham forty-seven years, having previously filled that of Oxford for three. He d. 1721, and leaving no issue, the BARONY OF CREWE OF STENE became extinct.

CROFT.

CROFT, SIR ARCHER-DENMAN, of Croft Castle, Co. Hereford; b. 7 Dec. 1801; inherited the title as 8th Bart., at the decease of his brother, 29 Oct. 1835.

Lineage.

The family of Croft, which is of Saxon origin, settled in Herefordshire at a very remote period. Camden, in his description of that county, says, “Not far off from Richards Castle stands Croft Castle, belonging to the very ancient and Knightsly family of the Crofts,” and in Domesday Book, Bernard de Croft is mentioned as holding the lands of Croft, which his descendants inherited, until the close of the 18th century.
From an almost uninterrupted line of Knights, distinguished alike in council and in arms, descended

Sir Richard Croft, Knt. of Croft Castle, High Sheriff of the Co. Hereford; the captain of Prince Edward, son of Henry VII, at the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471. This gallant soldier was appointed Treasurer of the Household to Henry VII, and had the high honor of Knit-Banneret conferred upon him, at the battle of Stoke, in 1487. The direct descendant of Sir Richard,

Sir James Croft, Knt., was Lord-Deputy of Ireland in 1592; and subsequently, Privy-Councillor and Comptroller of the Household to Queen Elizabeth, and was a. at his decease by his grandson.

Sir Herbert Croft, Knt., M.P. for the Co. Hereford, temp. Elizabeth and James I. This gentleman, espousing the doctrines of the Church of Rome in 1607, became a lay-brother of the Benedictine Monastery at Douay, where he d. 10. April, 1622. He had previously m., and left four sons and two daughters. Sir William, the eldest son, fell, gallantly fighting under the Royal banner, at Stoke Castle, near Ludlow, 9 June, 1643. Sir James, the 2nd son, was also an officer of rank, in the Royal Army, as was Robert, the 4th son, and all d. without issue. The 3rd son,

Herbert Croft, succeeded his father. This gentleman, after Sir Herbert's adoption of the Roman Catholic faith, was removed from Oxford to Douay, and thence to the English College of Jesuits, at St. Omer, where he became reconciled to the Church of Rome. Immediately, however, after his father's death, he returned to England, and, being acquainted with Morton, Bishop of Durham, was induced by that prelate to return to the Church of England; and, at the desire of Doctor Land, re-entered the University of Oxford. He subsequently took Orders, and was advanced, in 1696, to the Bishopric of Hereford, and appointed, in 1677, Dean of the Chapel Royal. His Lordship d. 12 May, 1716, and was a. by his only son,

I. Sir Herbert Croft, who had been created a Bartz, 16 Nov., 1671. Sir Herbert m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Archer, Esq. of Umbrelade, Co. Warwick, by whom he had

1. John Frederik, son and heir, b. 31 Aug., 1828.

Sir John Croft was appointed Chargé d'Affaires at Lisbon, in 1815.

Lineage.

Henry Croft, of East Witten in Yorkshire, descended out of Lancaster, was father of Christopher Croft, of Cottescote Park, Co. York, in 1611, who m. Miss Clapham, of Beamdey, and had issue,

Sir Christopher Croft, of the city of York, Knt., Sheriff of that city in 1618, and Lord Mayor in 1629 and 1641, when he entertained, in his own house, Charles I., and upon that occasion was Knighted. He d. 5 July, 1648, leaving, by his wife, Elizabeth Harrison, besides other children, a son,

Thomas Croft, who was seated at Stillington, in Yorkshire, and who m. Olive, only dau. and heir of John Dunster, of Bramhope, Esq. He d. 1654, leaving several children of Thomas Croft, Esq., succeeded to the estate of Stillington, and d. 1711, having m. he had three children. Sir Thomas purchased Hawsteadplace, Co. Suffolk, in 1656. His lady d. in 1677; and her epitaph, written by Sir Thomas, is somewhat singular.

Her corpse inter'd lies here,
Which liv'd with a free spirit;
Who by God's mercie,
And her Saviour's merit,
Departed in assured hope,
And certain trust,
To reign eternall
Among the just.
To live and do well,
Was her whole induidence:
And in assurance dies,
To live for ever.

If that all women were but near as good as she,
Then all men surely might in silence right happe be.
Would all know how virtue rare in her did take;
I say no more; she was a Crisp, born of a Pale.

DACRE

Dacre, Baron (Thomas Brand), b. 15 March, 1774; s. to the title on the demise of his mother, a Peeress in her own right, 3 Oct., 1819; m. in the Nov. following, Barbara, reliet of Valentine Wilmot, Esq. of Farnborough, Co. Southampton, and dau. of the late Admiral Sir Chaloner Ogle, Bart. His Lordship, who is the 19th Baron Dacre, represents a branch of the eminent house of VAUX (see Bunke's Extinct Peerage), and is co-heir to the Baronetcy of Fitzhugh.
The Barony of Dacre was originally in the family of Vaux, whereas three brothers settled in England, at the period of the Norman conquest—Hubert, Ralph, and Robert; of these—

Hubert had the Baronies of Gilleland granted to him by his kinsman, Ralph de Meschines, a son whom the Conqueror had conferred the whole Co. of Cumberland. This Hubert was s. by his son,

Robert de Vallenec, who founded the Priory of Penrith, built a Abbey at Lancaster, in Cumberland, and was Sheriff of Cumberland and Governor of Carlisle, temp. Henry II. This Robert was not only a person of great value, but also well learned in the laws of the land, and went Justice itinerant into Cumberland, in the 24th year of the same monarch; dying without issue, the feudal Baronage devolved upon his brother,

Ranulf de Vallenec, of Vaux, whose great-grand-dau. and heiress,

Margaret de Montou, who married

Ralphus or Dacre, one of the most eminent persons in those parts, as well on account of his valor as a soldier, as in his illustrious birth, being descended from William de Dacre, Sheriff of Cumberland and Governor of Carlisle, in the reign of Henry III. He was summoned to Parliament in right of his wife, from 12 May, (14 Edward III.) 1321, to 15 Nov., (12 Edward III.) 1338, in which latter year he died, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 2nd Baron Dacre, who was s. by his brother,

Ranulph, 3rd Baron Dacre, who was likewise s. by his brother,

Henri, 4th Baron Dacre. This nobleman m. Eia, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, Lord of Carlcoverock, and dying in the 7th of Richard II., was s. by his son,

William, 5th Baron, who m. Joan, dau. of James, 1st Earl Douglas, and was s. by his son,

Thomas, 6th Baron, summoned to Parliament from 1 Dec., (14 Henry IV.) 1412, to 26 May, (23 Henry VI.) 1455, as Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gilleland. This nobleman, who was Chief Forester of Inglewood, in Cumberland, m. Philippa, dau. of Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmorland, and had issue, Thomas, Ranulph, Humphrey, and Joan. Thomas, the eldest son, of Humphrey, dau., and heir of Richard Bowes, and dying before his father, left an only dau. and heirress, Joan; who

Joan Dacre succeeded her grandfather in 1547; and marrying

Sir Richard Fines, carried the Barony into that family. Sir Richard was summoned to Parliament from 9 Oct., (38 Harry VI.) 1459, to 15 Nov., (23 Edward IV.) 1462. He was Constable of the Tower of London, Lord-Chamberlain to the Queen consort of Edward IV., and a Peer by creation. His Lordship and his Lady had great contests and disputes with Sir Humphrey Dacre, her Ladyship's uncle, and the male heir of the family, concerning the lordships, manors, &c. of the late Lord, which litigation was finally adjusted by the arbitration of Edward IV. That monarch, after hearing the cause, confirmed to Sir Richard and the Lady Joan the same place and precedence that her grandfather had and enjoyed; and also decreed to them certain lordships in Lancashire and Lincolnshire; but Gilleland, the ancient and most valued seat of the family, upon whose descendants, was adjudged, together with the best of the estates in Cumberland, to Sir Humphrey Dacre. It was provided, however, in case of failure of heirs male of Sir Humphrey, that the whole estate should go to Lady Joan and her heirs. At the same time Sir Humphrey Dacre was created Lord Dacre, of Gilleland, with place next beneath Sir Richard Fines, (who was simply styled Lord Dacre,) and his Lady. Sir Richard's descendants were distinguished by the title of Lord Dacre of the North, and those of Sir Humphrey, Lords Dacre of the North. (For particulars of whom, see Burke's Extinct Peerage.) Sir Richard Fines, Lord Dacre, d. in 1484, and was s. by his grandson,

Thomas, 8th Baron Dacre, (son of Sir Thomas Fines, and his wife Alice, elder dau. and co-heir of Henry, Lord Fitz Hugh.) This nobleman was made a Knt. of the Bath, at the creation of Henry, 2nd son of Henry VII., Duke of York. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir Humphrey Bourchier, son of John, Lord Bourchier, of Berners, a., dying in 1534, was s. by his grandson,

Thomas, 9th Baron (son of Sir Thomas Fines by Jane, dau. of Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley.) This nobleman was high in favor at the Court of Henry VIII.; but, going with other young persons one night from Herstmonceux, to steal a deer out of his neighbour, Sir Nicholas Pelham's park, (a frolic not unusual in those days,) a fray ensued between some of his party and the park-keepers, in which one of the latter received an unlucky blow, that caused his death in a few days afterwards; and, although Lord Dacre was not himself present on the spot, but in a distant part of the park, he was nevertheless tried, convicted, and executed for the murder, in 1541, when his honors became forfeited. In 1582, however, those honors were restored to his son and heir, by (Mary, dau. of Edward Nevill, Lord Arundel's grandson.)

Gregory Fines, esq. 10th Baron, who was summoned to Parliament in 1573. This nobleman d. 1594, without issue, when his sister,

Margaret, the wife of Sampson Lennard, Esq. claimed the Barony, and surrendered it in 1604. Her Ladyship d. 1611, and was s. by her eldest son,

Henry Lennard, as 12th Lord Dacre, who m. Christine, dau. of Sir Richard Baker, of Sissemhurst, in Kent, and, dying in 1616, was s. by his only son,

Richard Lennard, 13th Lord Dacre, who rebuilt his seat at Chevering after the plan of Inigo Jones. This nobleman m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Arthur Throckmorton, of Paulers Perry, Co. Northampton, by whom he had (with other issue), Francis, his successor.

His Lordship m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Dudley, Lord North, and by her had a son,

Richard, who had the manor of Horsford, in Norfolk, settled on him by his father, and be subsequently monopolized the same in his possession, inasmuch as he held the manor of Beighton and other lands in Essex, bequeathed to him by Sir Edward Barrett, Lord Newburgh. He was son, and heir of Sir Robert Lofts, Knt., and grand-dau. of Adam, Viscount Lofts, of Ely, Lord-Chancellor of Ireland, and was s. at his decease in 1646.

Dacre-Badnett-Lennard, who m. Lady Jane Chichester, dau. of Arthur, 2nd Earl of Donegal, and had an s., Richard, of whom hereafter as husband of his cousin, Lady Anne Leonard, Baroness Dacre.

Richard, 13th Lord Dacre, d. 18 Aug., 1630, and was s. by his eldest son,

Francis, 14th Baron. This nobleman, during the Civil Wars, took the side of the Parliament, but he opposed the proceedings against the King personally. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and eventually co-heir of Paul, 1st Viscount Beaumont, by whom he had three sons and three dau. Lord Dacre, upon the decease of Ralph Dacre, last heir male of the Lords Dacre of the North, without issue, in the reign of Charles I., laid claim to Gilleland, and the rest of the ancient estates in Cumberland, and though he at last consented to compromise matters with the Howard family, then in possession, yet he recovered Dacre, and divers other manors in Cumberland and Westmorland. He d. 1672, this widow, Elizabeth was subsequently created COUNTESS of SHERRY for life and was by his eldest son.
DAC

THOMAS, 18th Lord Dacre, who was created, 5 Oct., 1764, EARL OF SUSSEX. This nobleman, being of an extravagant disposition, was obliged to dispose of his seat at Herstmonceux, and his lands in Sussex. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Palmer, dau. of Barbara, Duchess of Cleveland, but dying in 1723, without male issue, the Earldom ceased, while the Barony of Dacre fell into abeyance, between the Earl's two daughters co-heirs, Barbara and Anne; the elder m. Lieut.-Gen. Charles Shelton, but dying without issue, in 1741, the younger, Thomas, became Baroness Dacre, 1st, Richard-Burret Leonard, Esq. (revert to Richard, 13th Baron), by whom she had an only son, THOMAS, 2ndly, Henry, 8th Lord Teynham, by whom she had, with other children, Charles, who m. DALHOUSIE.

DALHOUISIE, EARL OF (George Ramsay), and Lord Ramsay, in the Peerage of Scotland; Baron Dalhousie, of Dalhousie Castle, Co. Edinburgh, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; a Gen.-Officer in the Army, Col. of the 26th Regt. of Foot, and a Knt. Grand Cross of the Bath; b. 22 Oct., 1770; s. to the Scottish honours, as 9th Earl, on the demise of his father, 15 Nov., 1757; and was created a Peer of the Realm, as above, 11 Aug., 1815. His Lordship m. in May, 1805, Christian, only child and heir of Charles Brown, Esq. of Coulston, in Haddingtonshire, and has issue,

1. GEORGE, Lord Ramsay, b. 3 Aug., 1806; an Officer in the Army, m. 1835, to Lady Susan Hay, dau. of the Marquess of Tweedale.

2. James, b. 22 April, 1812.

Lord Dalhousie, who distinguished himself as a Military Commander in the late War, particularly at Waterloo, received repeatedly the thanks of Parliament.

LITERATURE.

This noble family, which is said to be of German descent, has been of note in North Britain, since the reign of David I. At that period (A.D. 1140) we find SIMON DE RAMSAY, of Dalhousie, in Lothian, a subscribing witness to a grant of the church of Livingston, in West Lothian. From this Simon descended SIR ALEXANDER RAMSAY, Knt. of Dalhousie, Warden of the Middle Marches, and, in 1328, Constable of the Castle of Roxburg, which he had taken by escaille. This gallant soldier acquired so high a reputation in his conflicts with the English, that to be of his hand was considered as a branch of military education, requisite for all young gentlemen who ambitioned to excel in arms. In reward of capturing the Fortress of Roxburg, DAVID II. bestowed upon Ramsay the office of sheriff of Tiviotdale, which William Douglas, the Knt. of Liddesdale, then held. From that moment, Douglas, once the friend and companion in arms of Ramsay, became his implacable foe. In performance of the duty of his office, Ramsay held a Court in the church of Hawick, 20 Jan. 1342, whither Douglas came with an armed retinue, and was courteously welcomed by the high-minded and unsuspecting Ramsay; but, regardless of every feeling save that of vengeance, he seized the Sheriff, and, dragging him from the Judgment-seat, had him conveyed to the Castle of Hermitage, in the dungeon of which he perished by famine. It is reported that above the place of Ramsay's confinement there lay a heap of corn; and that, with some grain which dropped down through crevices in the floor, he sustained a miserable existence for seventeen days. From Sir Alexander we pass to his lineal descendant, JAMES RAMSAY, who left at his decease, about the year 1239, two sons, viz.

GEORGE.

John, (Sir) who for his loyalty and valour in rescuing James VI. from the attempt made upon his life by the Earl of Gowrie and his brother, Alexander Ruthven,® at Perth, 5 Aug. 1606, was created Lord Ramooy of Barns, and Viscount Haddington. He was subsequently advanced to the dignity of Earl of Haddington, on the marriage of Elisabeth, his eldest daughter, with Sir John Ramsay, 5 1st, and leaving no issue at his decease, in 1633, his honours expired.

The eldest son.

Sir GEORGE RAMSAY, Knt., had the Baronies of Dalhousie, on his own designation, and the Lordship of Melrose, on the resignation of his brother, Lord Haddington, erected into a free barony, to himself and his heirs male of entail, to be called the barony of Melrose, with a grant to himself and his heirs male and successors in the said barony, of the dignity of a Peer of Parliament, under the title of Lord Ramooy of Melrose, by charter dated 25 Aug., 1618. But not being pleased with that dignity,® was induced by his wife, obtained a lease of it from James VI. to change it to Lord Ramooy of Dalhousie. Jane, dau. of Lord Ross, by whom he had George, Lord Ramsay, who d. in his (Lord Dalhousie's) lifetime, leaving issue, by Jane, 2nd dau. of the Hon. Harry Maule, of Kelly, and niece of James, 4th Earl of Panmure, Charles and George, and Malcolm. The Earl d. 8 Dec., 1729, and was a. by his grandson.

* When the voice of his Majesty, exclaiming "Treason and the windown of Gowrie's House, the royal attendants rushed up the principal staircase to his assistance, but found the doors locked. Sir John Ramsay formed an attempt to enter the house by a back stair, and finding Alexander Ruthven struggling with the King, drew his dagger, plunged it twice into Alexander's body, and threw him down a dark stair, where he was met by Sir Thomas Erskine and Hugh Herrises, who despatched him, and went up to the King. The Earl of Gowrie now rushed into the apartment, with a sword in his hand, followed by seven of his attendants, completely armed, and threatened them all with instant death. Notwithstanding the inequality of numbers, the three gentlemen attacked the Earl, and Sir John Ramsay, piercing Gowrie through the heart, fell dead without speaking a word. — Wood's "Duglais."

DALZIELL.

Dalziell, Sir James, of Binns, Co. Linlithgow; 6. 7 July, 1774; inherited the title at the decease of his father, 10 Oct., 1791. Sir James is the 5th Bart., and the 17th in lineal descent from Walter, Earl of Menteth.

Lineage.

This family being the heirs male and representatives of the ancient Earls of Menteth, it is necessary, in the first instance, to deduce that line of descent.

The name of Menteth is local, there being a considerable district, in North Britain, through which the river Teth runs, called the Stewartry of Menteth; it was written, at different periods, Memetth, Menteth, Monteth, and Moneth; the last mode is the most recently adopted.

The title of Earl of Menteth is said to have existed in the reign of Malcolm III., A.D. 1066; and there is no doubt of there having been such a nobleman in the reign of Malcolm’s son, David. In the 13th century, we have also upon record Gilchrist and Maurice, successive Earls of Menteth.

Walter Stewart, 3rd son of Walter, Lord-High-Steward of Scotland, m. the descendant and heiress of one of those Earls, and thus, it is supposed, obtained the Earldom. His Lordship took an active part in the war against Edward I., and is said to have been put to death by that Monarch, on the surrender of the castle of Dunbar, wherein, with other Scottish chiefs, he had sought safety, after a fierce conflict between the Scots and English, in which the former were totally routed. The Earl left two sons, who, with their posterity, ever afterwards assumed the surname of Menteth, but retained the paternal coat of Stewart, altering the feeze cheque to a bend, for difference. The elder son, Alexander, succeeded to the Earldom of Menteth, The younger son,

Sir John Menteth, having submitted to King Edward, was appointed Keeper of the Castle of Dunbarton. In two interpolated chapters of Fordun, there is a long account of this gallant person, who refused to give up the fortress so entrusted to him to Robert I., unless he should obtain, with a full pardon, the Earldom of Lennox; but, having been taken by stratagem, he was thrown into prison, whence, through the influence of his sons-in-law, Malice, Earl of Strathearn, Sir Archibald Campbell, of Lochow, and Maurice Buchanan, of Buchanan, he was released immediately before the battle of Bannockburn, where he departed himself valiantly on the part of the Scottish King, notwithstanding Edward’s (the 2d) causing his banner to be displayed in the English army. Sir John Menteth had, from King Robert I., a charter of the lands of Glenbecrinch and Aulnay, in Kintrye, paying a gallery of twenty-six oars to the King. He was also put in Comitatus de Menteth in 1220, when, under that designation, he signed the celebrated letter to the Pope, asserting the independence of Scotland. He d. 1333, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Walter Menteth, of Rusky. This gentleman had four sons, two of whom survived, and had issue, namely,

Alexander, his successor.

John, predecessor of the Menthefs of Carse, or Kerso.

Sir Walter was killed in one of those local feuds which, at that remote period, so barbarously characterized the country. He was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert, whose heirs-male failing with his grand-son, the male line of the family was carried on by the descendants of the 2d son.

John Menteth, who m. Marjory, dau. and heiress of John de Strivelving, Sheriff of Clackmannan, Lord of Carse, of Stirling and Athwyt, with whom he acquired those lands, and that heritable office. From this John, who died towards the close of the 14th century, lineally descended

James Menteth, of Auldecathy, who m. 1628, Magdalene, dau. of Sir Thomas Dalrymple, Bart. of Binns, and had seven sons and three daughters. The eldest of whom, James, assumed the additional surname of Dalrymple, or Dalziell, and succeeded his uncle, Thomas, the 2d Bart., of Binns, in that honor. The dignity was originally conferred, 7 Nov., 1633, upon

Lineage.

Sir Thomas Dancer, Knt., Alderman and Mayor of the City of Waterford, was created a Baronet of Ireland, 12 Aug., 1691; and, of this gentleman's family, SIR THOMAS DANCER, the Poet, is presumed to have been a member. This John Dancer attained considerable reputation in his own times. He published, in 1675, "Agrippa, King of Alba, or the False Tiberius," a play, translated from the French of Quinault into heroic verse, which was frequently performed before the Duke of Ormonde, and the Vice-Regal Court at Dublin. He published, in 1671, "Antimach," a tragi-comedy, translated from the French of Corneille; and also "Aminta," a pastoral, from the Italian of Tasso. He wrote, besides, a romance, called, "The English Lovers," together with (according to Winstanley, in his Lives of the Poets) a complete "History of the Times," and a "Chronicle of the Kingdom of Portugal." Sir Thomas d'ancer was in 1802, dau. of the Rt. Hon. Sir Adam Loftus, Knt. of Rathfarnham, Co. Dublin (Joint-Keeper of the Great Seal of Ireland, with the Lord Privy Seal and Sir William Parsons, during the absence of the Lord Chancellor Ely, in 1627, and Treasurer at War, and a Privy-Councillor in Ireland, in 1626), by his wife Jane, dau. of Walter Vaughan, Esq. of Golden Grove, King's County, Ireland. DARNLEY, Earl of (John Bligh), Viscount Darnley, of Athboy, and Baron Clifton, of Rathmore, Co. Meath, in the Peerage of Ireland; Baron Clifton, of Leighton-B Bromsoeld, in the Peerage of England: Hereditary High Steward of Gravesend and Milton; b. 16 April, 1827; a. to the honors, as 6th Earl, on the demise of his father, 12 Feb., 1835.

Lineage.

John Bligh, citizen and salter of the city of London, the founder of this noble family, was employed as agent of the adventurers for the forfeited estates by the Rebellion of 1641, and in that capacity arrived in Ireland during the usurpation of Cromwell, when he became an adventurer to a large extent. Mr. Bligh was returned for Athboy, in the first Parliament after the Restoration. He m. Catherine, sister of William Butler, Bishop of Lincoln, and, dying in 1666, was a. by his only son,

THOMAS BLIGH, Esq. of Rathmore, Co. Meath, M.P. for that share, and of the Privy Council to Queen Anne. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Col. James Naper, of Loughcrew, in the same county, and dying 28 Aug., 1710, was a. by his eldest son,

JOHN BLIGH, Esq. M.P., who m. 24 Aug., 1713, Lady Theodora Hyde, then only dau. and heir of Edward, 3rd Earl of Clarendon, by Catherine, BARONESS OF CLIFTON, a. to the Peers of Ireland, 14 Sept.,

BARONY OF CLIFTON.

Sir George Clifton, Knt. of Leighton Bromswoeld, Co. Huntingdon (a branch of the ancient Nottingham family, Clifton of Clifton,) was summoned to parliament, as BARNE CLIFTON, of Leighton Bromswold, from 9 July, 1634, to 5 April, 1614. This nobleman was committed to the Tower, in the 13th of James I., for having expressed regret that he had not stabbed the Lord Keeper, Sir Francis Bacon, who had decided a Chancery suit against him, and he soon afterwards killed himself Oct., 1615. His Lordship had married Catherine, only dau. and heir of Sir Henry Dave, of Brimham, Co. York, and left an only dau. and heir,

CATHERINE CLIFTON, who espoused EDMOND STEWART, 3rd Duke of Lennox, in Scotland, and had surviving issue (besides daughters)

JAMES, who inherited 4th Duke of LENNOX, and was created Duke of Richmond; m. Lady Mary Villiers, only dau. of George, 1st Duke of Buckingham, and relict of Charles, Lord Herbert, and had 1731, in the dignity of Baron Clifton of Rathmore. His Lordship was advanced, 7 March, 1722-3, to the Viscounty of Lismore, and created, 29 June, 1725, Earl of Darney. He d. 12 Sept., 1748, leaving issue, Edward, Lord Clifton.

John, 3rd Earl.
Mary, w. in March, 1736, to William Tigne, Esq. of Rosanna, Co. Wicklow, M.P. (See Burke's Counties, ed. 3, page 513.)
Anne, w. 1st, 17 Sept., 1742, to Robert-Hawkins Magell, Esq. of Gill Hall, Co. Down; and 2ndly, in Dec., to Bland, son of Bernard Ward, Viscount Hanover. Theodosia, m. to 1745, to William Crostie, 1st Earl of Glandore.

His Lordship was by, his eldest surviving son,

Edward, 2nd Earl, who had previously inherited the English Barony of Clifton, on the decease of his mother, Ludovick, who did homage for the Seigneurie of Aubigny, in France, 20 Nov., 1636. He was Canon of Notre Dame, in Paris, Abbe de Hautfontain, and Great Almoner to the Queen of England. He was a man of letters, and much connected with the illiterate of the age. St. Evremont frequently mentions him under the title of Monsieur d'Aubigny, and says, "Qu' il avait beaucoup d'esprit, et encore plus de franchise." He was created a Cardinal in 1655, and died at Paris, le 17 Nov. of that year, a few hours before the arrival of the courier who brought him the nat from Rome.

John, General of Horse, in the service of Charles I., fell at the battle of Aisnesford, in 1644, and d. a.p.
Bernard, created Earl of Lichfield, for his gallantry at the battle of Roundstone, in 1645.

Upon the decease of Esmé, Fifth Duke of Lennox, and 2nd Duke of Richmond refer to James, eldest son of the above, unmarried in 1659, the honour devolved upon that nobleman's cousin (refer to George, 2nd son of the above),

Charles Stewart, Lord Stewart of Newbury and Earl of Lichfield (so created in 1645), as Sixth Duke of Lennox, and Third Duke of Richmond. This nobleman did homage by proxy to Louis XIV, in 1670, for the Lordship of Aubigny. His Grace w. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Rogers, Esq. of Brianstone, Co. Dorset, widow of Charles, Lord Mansfield. The Duke w. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Lawrence Banaster, Esq., and widow of William Lawrence, Esq. of Yavel, Co. Glamorgan; and 3rdly, Frances Therese, eldest dau. of Walter Stewart, 3rd son of Walter, 1st Lord Blenkinsop, celebrated as the most beautiful woman in the Court of Charles II. His Grace died however without issue, at the Danish Court, to which he had been accredited as Ambassador Extraordinary, to 1672, when the Dukedom of Lennox devolved upon Charles II. as nearest heir, to whose male and heir, the Duke of Richmond, he was created a Peer in special, to Charles, Duke of Lennox, his cousin, 6 July, 1689. The male line of these Dukes thus terminating, we return to the last Duke's sister, Lady Catherine Stewart (refer to George, son of Esmé, 3rd Duke of Lennox, and Catherine Clifton). This lady espoused Henry O'Brien, Lord Berkeley, eldest son and heir apparent of Henry, 7th Earl of Thomond, and had an only daughter, Katherine, who m. Edward Hyde, 3rd Earl of Clarendon, and, dying in the lifetime of her mother, left issue,

Edward, who s. his grandson.

Catherine, d. issue, in 1780.

Mary, m. in June, 1822, to Charles Brownlow, Esq., M.P., and d. 1828.

Elizabeth, m. 1833, to the Rev. John Brownlow.

This nobleman, presented, in 1829, a petition to the King, claiming the Dukedom of Lennox, in the Peerage of Scotland, as heir of line of Charles, 6th Duke of Lennox, and 4th Duke of Richmond, at whose death in 1674, James II. was served his Grace's heir. As his Majesty's (legitimate) issue became extinct in 1877, with the Cardinal York, and as that personage was the last heir male of the Stuarts, the Earl of Darney put forward his claim as heir general, being descended from Catherine, sister of the 6th Duke. This petition was referred to the House of Lords, but their Lordships came to no decision upon it. The Earl d. 17 March, 1831, and was s. by his eldest son,

Lineage.

The founder of this noble family, Thomas Legge, of the Company of Skinners, served the office of Sheriff for the city of London in 1343, and was Lord-Mayor in the years 1346 and 1353. In 1336, this opulent citizen lent Edward III. £200 towards carrying on the war with France, which was a very considerable sum in those days, and more than any other citizen advanced, except the Lord-Mayor, and Simon of Francis, who lent each £100 in the ensuing year. Alderman Legge m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and was s. by his elder son, Simon Legge, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Blount, and his eldest surviving son, William Legge, going into Ireland, settled at Casisa, where he m. Anne, only dau. of John, son of Miles, Lord Birmingham. He d. at the advanced age of 90, and was s. by his son, Edward Legge, Vice-President of Munster, during the Lieutenancy of his kinsman, Sir Charles Blount, Lord Mountjoy. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Percy Walsh, Esq. of Moyvalley, and had six sons and seven daughters. The eldest son, William Legge, was brought out of Ireland by his godfather, Henry Danvers, Earl of Danby, and sent by him to serve as a Volunteer under Gustavus-Adolphus of Sweden; and he served afterwards under Prince Maurice of Orange, in the Low Countries. On his return to England, he was first constituted Keeper of the King's Wardrobe, during life; and made, soon after, Groom of the Bedchamber. Col. Legge, during the Civil Wars, became eminently distinguished by his faithful attachment to Charles L., and his persevering exertions in the Royal Cause, before and after the murder of the King. At the battle of Worcester, he was wounded and taken prisoner, and had been executed, if his wife had not contrived his escape from Coventry gaol, in her own clothes. He was high in favor after the Restoration, and enjoyed several lucrative and honorable offices. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir William Washington, of Packington, Co. Leicestcr, and grandaun, maternally, of Sir George Villiers, of Buckingham in the same County, and, dying in 1679, was s. by his eldest son, George Legge, Esq., a Naval and Military Officer of eminence. From 1677 to 1672, he commanded Line-of-Battle ships, and was appointed in the latter year Lieut.-Governor of Portsmouth; in 1673, advanced to the Governorship, and appointed Master of the Horse, and gentleman of the Bedchamber to James, Duke of York. In 1677, Governor Legge was constituted Col. of a Regt. of Foot, and nominated Lieut.-Gen. of the Ordnance, of which he was soon afterwards made Master. He was subsequently sworn of the Privy-Council, and elevated to the Peerage, 2 Dec., 1692, as Baron of Dartmouth, Co. Devon; with remainder, after his own male heirs, to his brother William, and his heirs male. His Lordship soon afterwards was sent as Admiral of the whole English fleet, to demolish Tangier, and, on his return, obtained a grant of £5000, in reward of his services. During the reign of James II., Lord Dartmouth enjoyed the confidence of that monarch, and filled some of the most important offices. In 1697, he was appointed Adm. of the Fleet, to intercept the Prince of Orange; but,

* It must be confessed, says Sir Egerton Brydges, in a note to Cato, that this match seems not very consonant to the alliances of the proud family of Beauchamp at that time: and requires strong proof.

DE BURGO.

DE BURGO, SIR JOHN-ALLEN, of Castle Connell, Co. Limerick, inherited as 3rd Bart. at the decease of his brother; m. Miss Waller, dau. of the late Richard Waller, Esq. of Castle Waller, Co. Tipperary.

Lineage.

This is one of the families which settled in Ireland, under the banner of Strongbow, Eari of Pembroke, and is supposed to have branched from the parent stock of the illustrious House of Clanricarde. It may not be irrelevant to observe that all the French families of the name continue to write it De Bourg, and in 1st. De Bourg; and that after the De Burghs removed from Normandy into England, they also wrote De Burgo, and sometimes DE Burgh, in order to accommodate the word to the English or Saxon accent; however, in process of time, they wrote Bourke, Bourke, and Burke; but the King, by letters, under the sign manual, dated 13 May, 1792, granted to the Earl of Clanricarde, to Ulick Bourke, of London, and to Thomas Bourke, of Ireland, and their descendants, full authority to resume the original surname of De Burgh.

RICHARD BURKE, Esq. of Drumally, Co. Limerick, d. 1764, and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD BURKE, Esq. of Drumally, who was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD BURKE, Esq. of Castle Connell, who assumed the original surname of De Burgh, and was created a Bart. of Ireland, 16 June, 1788. Sir Richard m. 1st, in 1735, Frances, eldest dau. of David Webb, Esq. of Moadóg, Co. Limerick, by whom he had two dauts, Frances, m. to John Blake, Esq. of Ross, Co. Clare. Maria-Theresa, m. to John Mac Namara, Esq. of Smithstown, Co. Clare.

Sir Richard m. 2ndly, in 1781, Elizabeth, dau. of Anthony Dwyer, Esq. of Singleton, Co. Limerick, by whom he left two sons; and, dying 1794, was s. by the elder.

SIR RICHARD, at whose decease, w., the title devolved upon his only brother, JOHN-ALLEN, the present Baronet.

DE C
DEC.

De Clifford, Baronesse (Sophia Coissmaker, by marriage, Russell), b. Nov., 1791, m. 21 Aug. 1822, to John Russell, Esq., Capt. R.N., son of Lord William Russell, and nephew of the Duke of Bedford; by whom her Ladyship has had issue,

1. Edward-Southwell, d. April, 1824.

2. John, b. 7 July, 1825, and d. 1827.

4. Catherine-Sarah-Georgia.

5. Mary.

6. Caroline.

The Barony of De Clifford, having fallen into abeyance on the decease of Edward Southwell Clifford, 18th Lord De Clifford, 30 Sept., 1832, without issue, the Crown, in 1833, was pleased to terminate the same in favor of Sophia, only surviving child of the late Col. George Coissmaker, by Catherine Southwell, eldest dau. of Edward, 17th Baron, and sister of the late Lord,—which Sophia is the present Baroness.

Lineage.

Richard, 4th Duke of Normandy, had six sons, viz.

Richard, the Good, 5th Duke of Normandy.

Robert, 6th Duke, father of William the Con, William, of whom presently.

Nicholas, Abbot of St. Andrews.

William, a Monk.

Mauger, Archbishop of Roven.

The third son,

William, surnamed Ponzi, or Poncius, was Earl of Arques and Thboucy, and came into England with his victorious nephew, Duke William. The youngest son of this nobleman entered Clifford.

Richard Fitz-Pontz, m. Maud, dau. of Ralph de Toney, of Clifford Castle, Co. Hereford, and their eldest son, William, assumed, upon inheriting Clifford Castle, the surname of Clifford; from this Walter descended a race of powerful feudal Barons, which we pass over to arrive at.

Robert de Clifford, commonly called 1st Lord de Clifford, being summoned as such to Parliament 25 Dec., 1269, and the first of the family so dignified. His Lordship was son of Roger de Clifford, a distinguished soldier in the reigns of Henry III. and Edward I., who fell in the Welsh war in Edward's 2nd Year. This Roger m. Isabella, eldest dau. and co-heir of Robert de Vipont, Lord of Westmorland, and, in her right, held Brougham Castle, in that Country, part of which he built, and past repaired, causing the words, "This made Roger," to be cut out, and was put over the portal of the inward gate. Robert, the 1st Baron aforesaid, was Earl Marshal of England in 1347. He fell at the Battle of Bannockburn, 23 June, 1314, and was by his eldest son (b. Maud, dau. and co-heir of Thomas de Clare),

Roger, 2nd Baron, summoned to Parliament in 1319. This nobleman was Sheriff of Westmorland, and was beheaded at York, in 1327, with Thomas, Earl of Lancaster: leaving no issue, his brother,

Robert, s. as 3rd Baron. This nobleman was Sheriff of Westmorland, Warden of the Marches of Cumberland and Westmorland, and heir to his great aunt, Isabella, one of the daughters and co-heirs of Robert de Vipont. He m. Isabella, only dau. of Maurice, Lord Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle, and, dying in 1349, was by his eldest son,

Robert, 4th Baron, who d. without issue in 1352, and was by his brother,

Roger, 5th Baron, who is recorded to have been "one of the wisest and gallantest of the Clifford." His Lordship was Sheriff of Westmorland, and John Guardian of the West Marches of Cumberland and Westmorland in 1370; Warden of the West Marches, Sheriff of Cumberland, and Governor of Carlisle Castle, 1376. He m. Maud, dau. of Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, by whom he had (with three daughters), Thomas, his successor. William, (Sir), s. p. Lewis, (Sir) ancestor of the Lords Clifford of Chudleigh.

His Lordship d. in 1396, and was by his eldest son,

Thomas, 6th Baron, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Thomas, Lord Ros, of Hanlakte, and, dying in 1391, was by his only son,

John, 7th Baron, K.G., Sheriff of Westmorland. This nobleman fell at the siege of Messu, 13 March, 1429; and was by his only son (b. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry, Lord Percy, the earl's posthumous),

Thomas, 8th Baron, who m. Joan, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gilsesfell, and fell at the Battle of St. Albans, 22 May, 1455. His Lordship was by his eldest son,

John, the 9th Baron, who m. Margaret Bromflete, dau. and heiress of Henry, Lord Bromflete, and Baron Vassy (subsequently to whom union the Clifforde were ge. styled Barons Vassy, in addition to Clifford), by whom he had three sons. His Lordship, a partisan of the House of Lancaster, was killed on the day preceding the Battle of Towton (just three months after he had stood to the heart the young Edmund Plantagenet, Earl of Rutland, son of Richard, Duke of York), and was attainted the following November.

"John, Lord Clifford," says Dr. Whitaker, "who was 5. April, 1436, held the titles and estates five years, eight months, and seven days. His hands were early dipped in blood; for he was engaged in the civil war of the Houses almost three years before his father's death. In the second Battle of St. Albans, the King was brought d. to meet the Queen in Clifford's tent. This nobleman, partly from the heat of youth, and partly in the spirit of revenge for his father's death, pursued the House of York with a rancour which rendered him odious even in that ferocious age. His supposed slaughter of the young Earl of Rutland left a deep stain on his memory, and his own untimely end is remembered without regret. On the day before the Battle of Towton, and after the encounter at Ferrybridge, having put off his gorget, he was struck in the throat by a headless arrow, discharged from behind a bush, and instantly expired." The eldest son of this nobleman,

Henry, 10th Baron, to protect him from the Yorkists, being but 7 years of age when his father fell, was disgraced as a son of a rebel, and thus by the slightest education, not so much as that of writing, lest it should discover his rank. He was eventually restored, however, to his paternal honours, in the 39th year of his age, by the first Parliament of Henry VII., as well as to his maternal Baronage of Vassy. His Lordship lived chiefly in rural retirement, until the year 1513, when he was appointed to a principal command in the army that fought at Flodden, and there displayed the military genius of the Clifforde. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir John St. John, of Bletsoe, by whom he had three sons and four daughters. He m. 2dly, Florence, dau. of Henry Pudsey, and widow of Sir Thomas Talbot, and had a dau., Dorothy. His Lordship d. in 1525, and was by his eldest son,

Henry, 11th Baron, b. 1463. This young nobleman had lived upon bad terms with his father for several years, in consequence of his youthful dissipation; to supply the means for which, up the spirit of the times, he turned outlawed, assumed a band of defective followers, harasmed the religious houses, beat his tenants, and forced the inhabitants of whole villages to take sanctuary in their churches. He is said, however, to have been reconciled in good time; and was created, 18 June, 1525, EARL OF CUMBERLAND, beside being made a Knt. of the Garter. His Lordship d. 29 April, 1542, and was by his eldest son, (by the Lady Margaret Percy, dau. of Henry, 5th Earl of Northumberland),

Henry, 2nd Earl of Cumberland and 12th Baron. This nobleman m. 1st, Lady Eleanor Brandon, dau. of Charles, Duke of Suffolk, and Mary, Queen Dowager of France, sister of Henry VIII., by whom he had an only dau., Margaret, b. to Henry Stanley, Earl of Derby. His Lordship espoused 2dly, Anne, dau. of William, Lord Dacre, and was by his eldest son, George, 3rd Earl and 12th Baron, who m. Lady Margaret Russell, youngest child of Frances, 2nd Earl of Bed ford, by whom he had an only dau.,

Anne, who m. 1st, 25 Feb., 1602-3, Richard Sackville, Lord Brooke, afterwards Earl of Dorset, and had surviving issue,

1 Margaret, m. to John Tufton, 5th Earl of Clifford.

Tufton, and left a son, 2 Isabella, m. 1614, to

3 Thomas, 6th Earl of James Compton, Earl of Tranet, of whom pre-

The Earl of Dorset d. 26 March, 1624, and his widow espoused, 1628, Philip Herbert, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, whom she also outlived. Of this celebrated lady, Dr. Whitaker says, "She was one of the most illustrious women of her own or any age. She had all the courage and liberality of the other sex, united to the devotion, order, and economy, of her own. She was the oldest, but must Independent courtier in the kingdom: had known and admired Queen Elisabeth: had refused what she deemed an iniquitous award of James I.; rebuilt her demolished castles, in defiance of Cromwell; and repelled with disdain the interposition of a predatory Magistrate under Charles II.

His Lordship d. 28 Oct., 1648, when the Earlom of Cumberland devolved upon his brother,

Francis, as 4th Earl, who d. 1649, and was by his only son,

Henry, 5th Earl of Cumberland, who m. Lady Frances Cecil, only dau. of Robert, Earl of Salisbury, and had an only dau. and heiress, Eliza beth, m. to Richard Boyle, Earl of Cork. Henry, Earl of Cumberland, d. 1674, when that dignity expired.
Upon the decease of her father, George, 3rd Earl of Cumberland, a great contest arose between the Countess of Dorset and her uncle, Francis, 8th Earl, regarding the Baronage of Skipton, which endured for no less a period than 30 years, and finally terminated in her favor, by her outliving him. In 1617, the Earl of Cumberland. In 1617, the King undertook to adjust this acrimonious family contest, and made an award, but her Ladyship, although urged by her then husband, the Earl of Dorset, refused to abide by it. Her Ladyship claimed the Baronage of Clifford, in 1628, but accomplished nothing therein; she died in 1675, and the Baron remained dormant from that period until 12 Dec., 1831, when the House of Lords allowed it to her Ladyship's grandson.

Thomas Tufton, 6th Earl of Thanet, as 15 Baron. His Lordship m. Lady Catherine Cavendish, dau. of Henry, Duke of Newcastle, by whom he had surviving issue.

Catherine, m. 1738, to Edward Watson, Viscount Sudeley, son of the Earl of Rockingham, by whom she had issue.

Lewis, m. Earl of Rockingham.

Thomas, m. to Edward Southwell, Esq., and left a son and heir.

Edward, m. to whom hitherafter as Lord Clifford.

Anne, m. to James, Earl of Salisburry.

Margaret, m. to Thomas Coke, Earl of Leicester.

Mary, m. to Anthony, Earl of Harold, and 2ndly, to John, Earl Fowler.

Isabella, m. to Lord Naseau Powlett, and afterwards to Sir Frances-Blake Delaval.

The Earl of Thanet d. 1724, when the Earlom devolved upon his nephew, while the Baronage of Clifford fell into abeyance between his daughters, and so continued until 13 Aug., 1744, when the Crown interfered in favor of the third.

Margaret, Countess of Leicester, at whose decease 2 Nov., 1756, the Baron was again placed in abeyance, but was again called out by the Crown the following year, in the person of—Edward Southwell, Esq. (referring to Catherine, eldest dau. of Thomas, Earl of Thanet), as 17th Baron Clifford. His Lordship espoused Sophia, 3rd dau. of Samuel Campbell, Esq. of Mount Campbell, Co. Leitrim (this lady was a former to the Prince of Wales), by whom (who d. in 1805), he had issue.

1. Edward, his successor.

2. Catherine, m. 1730, to Col. George Cusomaker, and d. 1745, leaving issue (see Viscount Sidney).

3. George, since deceased.

The Baroncy being called out.

5. Sophia, m. 1790, to the Hon. John-Thom-Hopkinson, now Viscount Sifbury, and d. 1795, leaving issue (see Viscount Sifbury).

6. Elizabeth, m. 1702, William Charles, Earl of Albemarle, and d. 1817, leaving issue (see Albemarle).

His Lordship d. 1 Nov., 1777, and was b. by his only son.

Edward, 8th Baron, who m. Feb., 1789, Lady Mary Bowes, dau. of Joseph, 3rd Earl of Mayo, but dying without issue, 30 Sept., 1833, the Baroncy of Clifford fell into abeyance between the issue of his Lordship's deceased sister, and was terminated in 1833, as already stated.

Creation.—Her Ladyship, it appears, enjoys three Bar.-rodes, viz. Westmorland, created in 1289. Veseey, in 1590. De Clifford, 29 Dec., 1299, although assumed in the latter only, 17 April, 1776.

His Lordship, on inheriting the Earlom, assumed the surname and arms of De Grey. He has previously changed his patronymic, Robinson, for Weddall.

Lineage.
The earldom of Kent (a dignity conferred upon the Lord-High-Treasurer Grey, 3 May, 1665), devolved, at the demise of Henry Grey, the 9th title, without issue, 21 Nov., 1638, upon his cousin, ROBERT HENRY ANTHONY GREY, 9th Earl (of Brooke's Extinct Peerage) whose grandson, ANTHONY GREY, 11th Earl of Kent, m. Mary, only dau. and heiress of John, Lord Lucas, of Shenefield, Co. Essex (a dignity created 3 Jan., 1664, and became extinct with the 3rd Baron in 1700), which lady was created to the Peerage, 7 May, 1663, as Baroness Lucas of Cranwell, Co. Wilt., with remainder to her issue, male and female, by the Earl of Kent. The only son of this marriage was HENRY GREY, who inherited, on the demise of his parents, the barony of both, as 12th Earl of Kent, and 1st Baron Lucas; and was created 14 Dec., 1786, Viscount Goodrich of Goodrich Castle, in Herefordshire; Earl Harold, Co. Bed ford; and Marquess of Kent. On 22nd April, 1776, his Lordship obtained a dukedom, as Duke of Kent; and, in 1783, was installed a Knt. of the Garter. His Grace m. twice, 1st. Lineage.

The founder of this family,

Sir Thomas West, Knt., lived in the reign of Edw. II., and was in high favor with that Monarch and his successor. He m. Alienor, dau. and heir of Sir John de Cantalupe, of Hempston Cantalupe, Co. Devon, and thus acquired the manor of Sutterfield, in Warwickshire. Sir Thomas was subsequently summoned to Parliament as Baron West, 25 Feb., 1342, and participated in the wars of Edward III.; in the 17th year of which Monarch he d. and was s. by his eldest son,

Thomas West, 2nd Baron, but never summoned to Parliament. This nobleman was in France in 1346, and shared in the glory of Carnoy. His Lordship m. Alice, dau. of Reginald Fiz-Piers, Baron of Wrothley, Co. Worcester, and was s. by his son,

Sir Thomas West, Knt., summoned to Parliament as 3rd Lord West, in 1402. This nobleman m. Joan, dau. of Roger de la Warre (by Eleanor, his 2nd wife, dau. of John, Lord Mowbray), and heir of her brothers, John and Thomas, Barons de la Warre, and, dying in 1405, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Thomas West, 4th Baron. This nobleman took a distinguished part in the French wars of Henry V. He m. Ida, dau. and co-heir of Almarie, Baron St. Amand, and, dying in 1415, without issue, was s. by his brother,

Reginald West, 5th Baron West, who, in the 3rd of Henry VI., on the death of Thomas, Lord da Warre, his uncle, had dower of the lands of his mother's inheritance, and was summoned to Parliament as Lord de la Warre, 5 July, 1427. This nobleman performed a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, in the 1st of Henry VI. His Lordship m. Eleanor, 2nd dau. of Henry, Earl of Northumberland, and, dying in 1431, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Richard West, who was summoned to Parliament as 7th Lord de la Warre, from 23 Jan., 1486, to 16 Jan., 1507, and in that dignity the Barony of West merged henceforward. This nobleman was a staunch supporter of the House of Lancaster, in the war of the Roses. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. of Robert Hungerford, Lord Hungerford, by whom he had five sons and two daughters.

Of which family, Richard, the youngest son, was a Franciscan Friar at Greenwich, and Margery, the younger dau., a Nun at Wyuan, in Middlesex. His Lordship d. 1497, and s. by his eldest son,

Thomas West, 8th Lord de la Warre. This nobleman having rendered good service as a Military Officer, was installed a Knight of the Garter in the 2nd of Henry VIII. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Hugh, sister and heir of Sir John Mortimer, of Mortimer's Hall, Co. Southampton, by whom he had Thomas, his successor; William, who d. s. p., and four daughters. He m. 2ndly, Eleanor, dau. of Sir Roger Copley, of Gatton, in Surrey, and by her had three sons, viz. Sir Owen West, whose dau. and eventual heir, Mary, m. 1st, Sir Adrian Poyninges, and 2ndly, Sir Richard Rogers. Sir George, whose son William was a Member of Parliament, m. Eleanor, lady de la Warre d. 1525, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Thomas West, 9th Baron, Knight-Banneret, and Knight of the Garter. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Bonville, Knt. It is recorded in the Rolls of Parliament, 2nd of Edward VI., that his Lordship, having no issue, adopted his nephew, William, son of his half-brother, Sir George West, and that the said William, impatient to inherit, had prepared poison to despatch his uncle, which so highly incensed his Lordship that he compelled William to return, and William was in consequence disabled to succeed to his uncle's honors or estate, but had an allowance of £300 per annum. His Lordship d. 1584, when the Baronies of DEL, WAR and WAR fell into abeyance between the daus. and co-heirs of his brother Sir Owen West, and finally amongst the descendants of Mary, the eventual sole heir. In a few years after the decease of this nobleman, his disinherited nephew, William West, having served in the English Army, at the siege of St. Quintin, in Picardy, was Knighted at Hampton Court, 5 Feb., 1588, and created, at the same time, Lord de la Warre. He had also, by Act of Parliament, in March following, a full restitution in blood. His Lordship m. twice. His last marriage, Esq. of Chesherton, Co. Gloucester, and, dying 30 Dec., 1605, was s. by his only son,*

House of La Warre.

The first of this family upon record, John la Warre, had a ratification in the 8th of John, of a grant which that King had made, prior to this coming to the throne, of the lordship of Bristol (a member of the honor of Gloucester), to hold by the service of half a knight's fee. He d. six years afterwards, and was s. by his son,

Jordan la Warre, who then paid two hundred pounds, for livery of his lands. This feudal lord was in arms against King John, but, upon paying a fine, with two paltry fees, was re-admitted into favour. Nevertheless we find him again fighting under the baronial standard, and again making his peace after the battle of Evesham. He was s. by,

John la Warre, who was Sheriff of Herefordshire in the 3rd Edward I., and was s. by,

Roger la Warre, who in the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II., having had military summonses to attend the King in the wars of France, and being actively engaged in those, as well as the Scottish wars, was summoned to Parliament, as a Baron, from 6 Feb., 1298, to 30 June, 1311. His Lordship m. Clarice, dau. and co-heir of John de Tregos, Baron Tregos, and, dying in 1325, was s. by his son,

John la Warre, 2nd Baron, summoned to Parliament from 26 Aug., 1307, to 30 Feb. 1347. This nobleman, in the 23rd Edward I., his father still living, was in the expedition then made into Flanders, and the next year he was in the Wars of Scotland. In the 25th of the same reign, upon the decease of his mother, Clarice, he inherited a moiety of the property of his grandfather, Lord Tregos (to which barony he was co-heir), viz., Ewyas-Harold, Co. Hereford; Alvington, Wilts; and other lands, in the Co. of Somerset, Salisbury, and Northampton. After this, during the remainder of the reign of Edward I., he was constantly engaged in the Wars of Scotland, and was made a Knave of the Bath. In the 4th Edward III., his Lordship was in the greatest part of his life in the field, he being in the expedition to France, assisting at the siege of Nantes; and in the 5th, he was in the van of the Black Prince, at the glorious battle of Crecy. His Lordship m. Joan, sister and heir of Thomas de GREELY, Baron GREELY, whose chief seat was at Manchester, Co. Lancaster; by which lady he acquired the great possessions of the Greleys and had ason,

John, who pre-deceased his father, leaving by his wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir John de Holand, 1 RoGER, who s. his grandfather, as 3rd Baron.

2 John, (Sir) of Bokamp- ton, in Berks, which he held by serjeantry, in keeping the King's dogs, called harrics, who he should serve into those parts. Sir John was in the wars of Brittany, and, dying in the EIII. 3. p. left his estates to his brother.

3 Catherine, m. to Sir William Laver, Lord Laver.

His Lordship d. 1347, and was s. by his grandson,

Sir RoGER la Warre, 3rd Baron, summoned to Parliament from 14 Aug., 1302, to 1 June, 1303. This nobleman in the 39th Edward III. shared in the glory of POITIERS, wherein the French King, with the Dauphin, were made prisoners. Touching the capture of this Prince of France, it is recorded that much commendation took place, as he defended himself with great valor; and the pressure upon him becoming great, such as knew him cried out, "Sir, surrender, or you are dead," whereupon he yielded, according to Froissard, to Sir Dennis Morbeck, a Knight of Artois, in the English service: but, being forced from that captain, more than ten Knights and Esquires claimed the honor of taking the Royal Prisoner. Amongst these, the pretensions of Sir Roger la Warre and Sir John Pelham (ancestor of the Pelhams, Dukes of Newcastle, and of the Lords Vavasour, and Pelham), having been acknowledged the strongest, Lord de la Warre had, in commemoration of so valiant an exploit, the crape or chape of the captive Prince's sword: and Sir John Pelham had the bundle of a belt out of the same. His Lordship continued for several years after Poitiers in the French wars, and acquired in every campaign an augmentation of renown. He was 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Adam, Lord Welleys, and had issue, John, Thomas, successively Barons Delwarpere.

His Lordship m. 2ndly, Allanore, dau. of John, Lord Wob- bray, and had an only daughter,

JOANNA, who m. Sir Thomas West, 3rd Baron West, and had issue,

THOMAS, Lord West, who d. 2. P.

BROWNE, (Sir) summoned to Parliament, jurat matris, as Baron de la Warre.

Lord de la Warre d. in 1370, and was s. by his eldest son,

John la Warre, 4th Baron, summoned to Parliament from 8 Jan., 1370, to 5 Nov., 1377. This nobleman, before and after his father's decease, was in the wars of Gascony with Prince Edward. In the 22nd of Richard II., his Lordship obtained a special dispensation exempting him from attending any future Parliaments, or serving the King in his wars, or otherwise, against his own good will. Shortly after which, he departed this life, anno 1376, and, dying unmarried, was s. by his brother,

Thomas la Warre, 5th Baron. This nobleman, being a Priest and Rector of the Church of Manchester,

1. Rodolph-William-Basil, Viscount Fielding, b. 9 April, 1823.
5. Mary-Frances-Katherine.
6. Augusta-Emily-Julia.

Lord Denbigh is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire.

Lineage.

This family, which claims descent from the Counts of Hapsburg, in Germany, settled in England in the reign of Henry III.; and the occasion of its so settling is explained in an ancient manuscript, written about King Edward IV.'s time; wherein it appears that Geoffery, Count of Hapsburg, being reduced to great poverty by the oppression of Rodolph, Emperor of Germany, one of his sons,

Sir Geoffry, served Henry III. in his wars in England, and assumed the surname of Fielden, or Fielding, from his father's pretensions to the dominions of Laufenburg and Wildein; and it also appears that the English Monarch, Compassionating the said Geoffery, gave him considerable support in rents and fees, lying in divers places. The son of this Geoffery,

Geoffrey Fielding, m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John de Napon, by whom he acquired the lordship of Munsteron, Co. Leicester and was father of William Fielding, who acquired, by marriage with Joan, dau. of William Prudhomme, and grandda. and heir of Robert de Newnham, the manor of Newnham Paddow, Co. Warwick, which has ever since continued the chief seat of the family. The grandson of this William,

Sir William Fielding, a stanch adherent of the House of Lancaster, fell at the battle of Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471. Sir William m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John de Napon, by whom he acquired the lordship of Martinhoe, Co. Rutland, and a descent in blood from the great families of Vaux, Longville, and Beliers. He was s by his eldest surviving son,

Sir Evelyn Fielding, K.B., who was Sheriff of the Co. Warwick and Leicester, in the 21st of Edward IV., and had a command in the King's army, at the battle of Stoke, in 1487. Sir Everard was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William Fielding, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Poulter, and dying in 1547, was s. by his son, Basil Fielding, Esq., who was s. by his son.

Sir William Fielding, who m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir Ralph Lane, Knt., of Magdalen, dau. and co-heir of William, Lord Parr of Horton, and was s. by his son,

Basil Fielding, Esq., Sheriff of Warwickshire, in the 9th of James I. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Walter Aston, of Tixall, Co. Stafford, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William Fielding, Knt., who was elevated to the Peerage, 30 Dec., 1624, in the dignities of Baron and Viscount Fielding of Newnham Paddow, Co. Warwick. He was afterwards made Master of the King's Great Wardrobe, and created 14 Sept., 1632, Earl of Denbigh. On

* In the year 1592, Radiboton, grandson of Gontran the Rich, Count of Bragaiu, founded the House of the Counts of Hapsburg, which derived its name from the Castle of Hapsburg, built by Werner, Bishop of Strasbourg, upon the river Aar, in the Canton of Berne. The princely line of Hapsburg became extinct in the person of Carlz II., after giving twenty-two sovereigns to Austria, sixteen emperors to Germany, eleven kings to Hungary and Bohemia, and six to Spain.
the breaking out of the Civil War, Lord Denbigh, adhering faithfully to Charles L, performed the part of a sould and valiant soldier in many engagements; but was at length mortally wounded in a sharp skirmish near Bir-ringham, 3 April, 1643, and died a few days afterwards.
His Lordship m. Mary, dau. of Sir George Villiers, of Brokeshay, Co. Leicester, by whom he had issue,

DENNY.

Denny, Sir Edward, of Tralee Castle, Co. Kerry; b. 2 Oct. 1796; d. as 4th Bart., at the decease of his father, in Aug., 1831.

Lineage.

Sir Edmond Denny, Knt., one of the Barons of the Court of Exchequer in England, in the beginning of the sixteenth century, was great-grandson of John Denny, Esq., who fell in the French wars of Henry V., and was seated at St. Denys. The Judge d. in 1520, and there is a monument to his memory in the church of St. Bennett’s, Paul’s Wharf, London. By his last will, he directed his body to be laid in that church, and that twenty tretatales of masses should be said for his soul, and for the souls of his wives deceased, and those of William and Agnes, his father and mother. The 4th son of this learned person,

Sir Anthony Denny, Knt., b. in 1500, was Groom of the Stole in 1518, and of the Privy-Council, to HR. VIII. This Sir Anthony was the only individual, amongst the courtiers, who dared to apprise his Royal Master of his approaching dissolution. Henry had, however, so high an esteem for Sir Anthony that he could perform that sad office with impunity, and the Monarch presented him with a plummed hat and pair of gloves, worked in pearls, which still remain in the possession of the family. The grandson of Sir Anthony,

Sir Edward Denny, Knt., was summoned to Parliament in 1664, as Baron Denny, and created, in 1689, Earl of Norwich. The latter dignity became extinct, at his decease, without male issue, in 1700, while the barony devolved upon his only dau. and heir, Honoria, wife of James, Earl of Carlisle, at the decease of whose son, James Hay, Earl of Carlisle, in 1699, without issue, it expired. Lord Norwich (Sir Edward Denny) was buried at Waltham, and the following epitaph was placed upon his tomb:

Learn, curious reader, ere you pass,
What Sir Edward Denny was;
A courtier in the chamber, a soldier in the field,
Whose tongue could never slumber,
Whose heart could never yield.

Sir Edward Denny, Knt. (uncle to the deceased Earl of Norwich, and youngest son of the Rt. Hon. Sir Anthony Denny, Henry VIIIth’s Privy Councillor), was father of

Sir Edward Denny, Knt., a Military person, who went over to Ireland, in the reign of Elizabeth, as an Undertaker in the plantation of Munster, and settled at Tralee, Co. Kerry. Sir Edward was b. by his only son,

Sir Edward Denny, Knt. of Tralee Castle, who represented the Co. of Kerry in Parliament, in 1630. He m. Ruth, eldest dau. of Sir Thomas Roper, Vicount Ballyglass, by whom he had six sons and four dau.s, and was b. by his eldest

Sir Arthur Denny, Knt., M.P. for the Co. of Kerry, in 1601; who d. in 1672, and was s. by his eldest son,

Edward Denny, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Kerry, in 1692 and 1703; who, dying in 1712, was s. by his only son,

Edward Denny, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Kerry, in 1740 and 1741; who was s. in 1727 by his eldest son,

Anthony Denny, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Kerry in 1727. At the decease of this gentleman, issueless, in 1742, the estates devolved upon his brother,

Sir Thomas Denny, Knt., who m. Agnes, dau. of John Bleanerhasset, Esq. of Ballyseedy, and was s., at his decease, by his eldest surviving son,

William Denny, Esq., who was succeeded by his brother, DEN

THOMAS DENNY, Esq., at whose decease the estates reverted to his uncle, the Rev. Barry Denny's, of Ballyvelly, eldest son.

ARTHUR DENNY, Esq., who dying unmarried, was s. by his brother, 1.

BARRY DENNY, Esq. This gentleman was created a BARONET OF IRELAND, 15 Jan., 1712. He was Jane, youngest dau. of his uncle, Sir Thomas Denny, Knt., by whom he had eight sons and as many daughters. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son.

2. SIR BARRY, who wedded Anne, dau. of Croshie Morgall, Esq. of Mount Morgall, Co. Limerick (but dying without issue, in Oct., 1794, the title devolved upon his brother, the widow married General Foyle).

3. SIR EDWARD, this gentleman m. 25 May, 1763, Elizabeth, only child of the Hon. Robert Day, late one of the Justicemen of his Majesty's Court of King's Bench in Ireland, by whom (who d. 27 April, 1831) he had issue, KNOX, present Baronet.

Note.—Tralee Castle, the ancient residence of the House of Desmond, came into the possession of the Denny family, as a reward to Edward Denny, the first settler in Ireland, for making prisoner the Earl of Desmond, who was accused of causing a dreadful massacre of the English, at a feast to which he had invited them. Mr. Denny, a Military Officer in the Army of the Earl of Essex, not only obtained the castle and possessions of Desmond, for this exploit, but was created a Knight-Banneteret, and presented with a rich scarf, embroidered with gold and pearls, and a pair of gloves taken off her own hands, by Queen Elizabeth. This scarf, and those gloves (with others, presented by HENRY VIII. and James I.), which were for many years out of the possession of the Denny family, were restored to it in the following manner.—In the year 1766, or 1767, the magnificent mansion of the Earl of Arran being to be sold by auction, in London, the management of the sale devolved upon Mr. Herbert (father of the late Rector of Ledbury), his Lordship's executor, and the particular friend of Sir Thomas Denny, who discovered, in making preliminary arrangements for the sale, the gloves and scarf, with an old parchment manuscript, in a purple satin bag, by which, upon perusal, he was directed to the family to which they really belonged; and, knowing how highly he should gratify his friend, by the restoration of such inestimable relics, he purchased them for him—the gloves given to Sir Anthony Denny, by HENRY VIII., for £28, 17s.; the gloves given by James I. to Sir Anthony's son, Sir Edward Denny, for £27, 11s. the mittens, presented by Elizabeth to Sir Edward Denny, Knt. Banneteret, for £25, 4s.

IV. CHARLOTTE-ELIZABETH, m. 16 Dec., 1823, to Edward Pennythony, Esq.

V. LOUISA-EMILY, m. 18 April, 1825, to Lient.-Col. SAMUEL LONG, of the Gren.-Guards, and d. 11 Dec., in the same year.

VI. ELIZABETH-MARY, m. 11 June, 1835, to the Rev. Frank-George Hoywood, M.A.

His Lordship inherited at the decease of his father, 21 Oct., 1834, as 13th Earl of Derby, and had been created by letters patent, dated 22 Oct., 1832, Baron Stanley of Bickerstaffe, Co. Lancaster. He is Col. of the Lancashire Militia, Vice-Admiral of the Coast of Lancashire, and President of the Linnean and Zoological Societies.

Linogr.

This is one of those families, whose early harum-scarum origin, though from a younger branch, necessitates, in defiance of change of name and arms, to stand upon a satisfactory foundation. From the time of Richard II. it makes a very considerable figure in history, and the prominent part taken by Lord Stanley at Roscommon renders the name familiar to every person at all versant in the annals of England. Camden, Dugdale, and all our antiquaries agree that the noble house of Derby is a branch of the old Barons Audeley, of Audleye, Co. Stafford. The immediate founder of the Stanleys was—WILLIAM DE AUDLEIGH, who lived in the reign of King John, had from his cousin, Sir Alan de Audleigh, the manor of Stanely, where fixing his abode, he av-assumed the surname of STANLEY, or STANLEY. The great-great-grandson of this William,
SIR WILLIAM DE STANLEY, m. Joan, eldest dau. of Sir Philip de Bamuville, Lord of Stonorton, in Cheshire, by which alliance he became possessed of the manor and castle of Stonorton, in which thereupon assumed the hereditary bearings, since used by his descendants, in place of those borne by his ancestors: Three stage's hants on a bend. His grandson, another
SIR WILLIAM STANLEY, b. Lord of Stanley, Great Stourton, in Yorkshire, in the 1st Richard II, leaving three sons and a dau., of whom,
William, (Sir) the eldest son, a. his father, and was also of Hooton, in Cheshire, by right of his wife Margaret, dau., and heir of William V. he was made a Knight of the Garter, and constituted Lord-Lieutenant of Cheshire for six years, in which government he d. 6 Jan., 1414, leaving two sons, the elder of whom,
John Stanley, Esq., Representative for Lancashire in Parliament, in the 2d of Henry V., m. Isabel, dau. of Sir Robert, and sister of Sir Robert, Harrington, Kn. of Hornby, and, dying in 1431, was s. by his only son.
Sir Thomas STANLEY, Kn., who was constituted Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and called a Parliament there in 1432. He was subsequently elected a member of the Commons to Parliament 29 Jan., 1455-6, as Lord STANLEY. His Lordship m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Gonshill, of Hoberingham, in Nottinghamshire, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau., and at length heir, of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, by whom he had, beside daughters,
Thomas, his successor,
William, (Sir) of Holt, who was beheaded as a participant in the conspiracy for placing Perkin Warbeck upon the throne. Sir William was the richest subject in the kingdom, having no less than 40,000 marks in ready money, and £20,000 a year, to which circumstances, considering the rapacious disposition of Henry VII, may be attributed his destruction, more than to his political principles.
John, m. m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Wvetter, Kn. of Weever, Co. Chester, and by her acquired that estate. From this Sir John Stanley descends the present Sir John-Thomastian Kn. of Alderley Park.
James, Archdeacon of Carlisle.
His Lordship d. 1458-9, and was s. by his eldest son, Thomas, 2d Lord Stanley, summoned to Parliament from 3d of Henry VI. to 1st Richard III. This no-

Edward, 3rd Earl, K. G., Lord-High-Steward at the coronation of Queen Mary, and Chamberlain of Chester, in the reign of Elizabeth. His Lordship, d. 24 Oct., 1574, was s. by his eldest son Dorothy, dau. of Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk.

Henry, 4th Earl, K. G. His Lordship m. Margaret, only child of Henry Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, (by his 1st wife, Cicely, dau. and co-heir of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and Mary Dowager Queen of France, the sister of Henry VIII.), and, dying in 1586, was s. by his eldest son, Ferdinando, 5th Earl. This nobleman having been tampered with by one Hesket, said to be agent of the Jesuits, to assume the title of King in right of his grand-mother, and rejecting the proposition indignantly, is supposed to have been poisoned in consequence by the conspirators. His Lordship m. Alice, dau. of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had three d., his co-heirs, viz., Anne, m. to Grey, 6th Lord Chandos.

Francis, m. to John, Earl of Bridgewater.

Elizabeth, m. to Henry, Earl of Huntington.

His death occurred in 1605, when the BaronetAGE OF STANLEY AND STRANGE fell into abeyance amongst his d., and the Earldom devolved upon his brother.

William, 6th Earl, K. G. This nobleman bought from his niece their claims on the Isle of Man. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Edward Vere, Earl of Oxford, and, dying in 1642, was s. by his son,

James, 7th Earl, K. G., who had been summoned to Parliament in 1627, as Baron Strange, under an impression that such a barony was enjoyed by his father; that, however, not being the case, the summons amounted to the creation of a new Peerage, which eventually devolved upon the Ducal House of Atholl. His Lordship was distinguished by his devoted attachment to the Royal Cause, during the Civil War, and, falling into the hands of the enemy, was imprisoned at Exeter, 15 Oct., 1645. He m. Charlotte, daughter of Claude de la Tremouille, Duke de Thouars (this lady became famous for her gallant defence of Latham House, in 1644, when it was besieged by 4,000 Parliamentary forces; and of the Isle of Man, in 1651); and left issue,

Charles, 8th Earl.

Charlotte, d. uxor.

Henrietta Maria, m. to William, 2nd Earl of Strafford.

Catherine, m. to Henry Pierrepont, Marquess of Dorchester.

Amelia Sophia, m. to John Murray, Marquess of Atholl.

The Earl was s. by his only son,

Charles, 9th Earl, who d. in 1672, and was s. by his son,

William-George-Richard, 10th Earl, who m. Lady Elizabeth Butler, dau. of Thomas, Earl of Ossory, and, dying in 1702 without male issue, the honors devolved upon his brother.

James, 11th Earl, who m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of Sir William Morley, K. B. of Hailmaker, but d. without issue, in 1735-6, when the barony of Strange, created in 1527, devolved upon the Duke of Atholl (all the other baronies fell into abeyance between the co-heirs of Ferdinando, the 5th Earl), and the Earldom of Derby reverted to

Sir Edward Stanley, Baronet, as 11th Earl (refer to George, Lord Strange, son of Thomas, 1st Earl of Derby). His death in 1780, and of Robert Hesketh, Esq. of Rufford, Co. Lancaster, by whom he had

The crest is derived from the family of Latham, of Latham, in Lancashire, now represented by the Stanleys.

In an old Visitation of the Co. of Lancaster, in the College of Arms, it is stated that a child was found in an engine near upon the estate, and adopted by one of the Lathams; and this, it is assumed, was the origin of the crest.

Lineage.

This is one of the very few houses, still existing in England, of undoubted Saxon origin: an origin confirmed, not only by tradition, but by authentic family documents. One of its remote ancestors, Dearing Miles, (from the Saxon word Dearing, signifying Terror,) appears as witness to a deed, by which King Ethelwyn granted certain lands in Cuculstone, to the church of Rochester, in 868, and this Dearing is said to be descended in a direct line from Ethelward, King of Hiera.

To pass, however, to more recent progenitors, we find

Sir Richard Dearing, Knt. of Heyton, Lieut. of Dover Castle, in the reign of Richard II. His grandson, Richard Dearing, Esq. of Surrenden, d. in 1401, and was z. by his son,

John Dearing, Esq. of Surrenden Dering. The 5th direct descendant from this gentleman,

1. Sir Edward Dearing, Knt. of Surrenden Dering, was created a Baronet on 1 Feb., 1686. This gentleman, who was Lieut. of Dover Castle, was a man of talents and learning: but he adopted, upon one occasion, a very eccentric mode of evincing his erudition, that of presenting a bill from the gallery of the House of Commons, "for the cultivation of bishops, deans, and chapters," and prefacing his motion with two verses of Ovid, the classical application of which was said to have been his sole motive for the proceeding.

"Cuncta prius tentanda; sed irremedica dilectus Eum remedium est, ne pars sine cura trahatur."

He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Nicholas Tufton, afterwards Earl of Thanet, but by her (who d. in 1622,) had no surviving issue; 2ndly, Anne, 3rd dau. of Sir John Ashburnham Knt., and by that lady (who d. in 1628,) he had Edward, his successor.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir John Darel, Knight.

He wedded 3rdly, Uncon, dau. of Sir Ralph Gibbes, Knt., and had Henry of Perivale, Co. Kent., who left issue.

Dorothea, m. to Thomas English, Esq. of Buckland, Kent.

Uitrage.

"That Peter, the ancestor of this great and noble family," says Dugdale, "did originally assume his surname in the time of Henry I., from that Lordship, in Holderness, called Ros, where he then had his residence, needeth not to be doubted."

This Peter m. Adeline, one of the sisters and co-heirs of the famous Walter Espe and was s. by his son, Robert de Ros, who was s. by his son, Eynhard de Ros. This feudal Lord m. Royala, dau. of William Trustut, of Warrte in Holderness, and at the decease of her brothers without issue, co-heir to her father's estate; which estate was eventually inherited by her descendants the Lords Ros, her sisters and co-heirs leaving no posterity. Everard de Ros died about the year 1320, and was s. by his son, Robert de Ros, surnamed Foerfan. This feudal Lord in the time of Richard I., was imprisoned to Normandy, and forced to pay a considerable sum for his deliverance. But under King John he regained the whole Baronry of his great-grandfather, Walter Espe; and was soon after employed by the 2nd of the Commissioners to conduct William, King of Scotland, into England. Robert de Ros was the founder of Hamblet Castle, in Yorkshire, and of Werke Castle, in Northumberland. During the tenure of this King John's reign, he espoused the Barontal interests, and was a leader in the barons' cause.

William, of Helmeley, of whom presently.

Robert, of Werke, whose lineal descendant, and the eventual heir of the family, Elizabeth de Ros, m. Sir William Paston, Knt., from whom sprang the Porte of Kendall.

William, of Aymanthorp, from whom descended the Ros's of that place.

Having assumed the habit of the Order of Knights Templars, Robert de Ros d. in 1277, and was buried at London, in the Temple Church. His eldest son's eldest son, Robert de Ros, taking an active part against the King, was one of the Chief Barons, who, after the battle of Lewes in 1264, where Henry III. and his son Prince Edward became prisoners, was summoned to the Parliament, which was called by the Barons in the King's name, as Barons de Ros, Dec. 1264. His Lordship espoused Lady Isabel, the great niece of William de Abnley, Lord of Belvoir, in Leicestershire, and, dying in 1285, was s. by his eldest son, William, 2nd Baron de Ros. This nobleman was an unsuccessful Competitor for the Crown of Scotland in 1292, and in 1295, he was obtained from Edward I., a grant of Werke Castle, upon its forfeiture by the treason of his kinsman, Robert de Ros. DESAUMAREZ.

DE SAUMAREZ, BARON (James Saumarez, L.L.D.), of Saumarez, in the Island of Guernsey; a Bart., a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath, an Admiral of the Red, General of the Royal Marine Forces, and Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Swedish Order of the Sword; b. 11 March, 1757; m. 27 Oct., 1788, Martha, dau. and heir of Thomas le Marchant, Exq. of Guernsey, and has issue,

1. James, to Holy Orders, Rector of Huggate, b. 9 Oct., 1787; m. 5 Oct., 1814, Mary, dau. of Vice-Admiral Lechmere, of Steeple Action, in Oxfordshire.

2. Thomas-le-Marchant, late of the 5th Regt. of Foot, who d. 4 July, 1834, having m. 1 Oct., 1789, Catharine-Spencer Le Beresford, dau. of the late Lieut.-Col. Spencer Vanassi, who gallantly fell at MonteVIDEO (for which family see BURKE'S HISTORY OF THE COMMONWEALTH).

3. John-St.-Vincent, Capt. in the Rifle Brigade.

5. Amelia, m. in Sept., 1822, to William Young-Herries, Esq. of Spout Hall, Edgbaston.

This eminent and gallant person, whose high professional reputation was established in the most brilliant epoch of our Naval history, and whose name is to be found in the same immortal roll with those of Rodney, Howe, Hood, Jervis, and Nelson, was created a Bart., in 1801, and elevated to the Peerage by letters patent dated Sept. 1831.

Within our confined limits, it is impossible to render any thing like justice to the exploits of this valiant seaman; but to pass them unheeded by, would ill accord with those sentiments of admiration in which we have ever held the constitutional bulwark of England's freedom, her glorious and impregnable wooden walls.

In the year 1779; at the early age of 13, we first find young Saumarez on board the Montreal frigate, sailing for the Mediterranean, upon which station he remained until 1775. Upon the breaking out of the American War, he embarked in the Bristol, bearing Commodore Sir Peter Parker's broad pendant, and was serving in that ship during the memorable action against Sullivan's Island, on which occasion he received his first promotion, having been appointed Acting Lieut. of the Bristol; and subsequently Lieut. by Lord Howe.

From that period to 1779, Lieut. Saumarez was employed in America upon most important and active services connected with the Army; having had the command of an armed vessel, which he was under the necessity of destroying, to prevent her capture by the enemy's fleet, commanded by Count d'Estaing, off Rhode Island. He was afterwards engaged on shore during the siege of that place, as Aid-de-Camp to Commodore Brins hane; and, finally, commanded a party of seamen and marines at one of the principal advanced posts.

After Mr. Saumarez's return to England, he was appointed Lieut. of the Victory, under Sir Charles Hardy, and he continued in that ship under different Flag Officers, until he followed Rear-Admiral Sir Hyde Parker, on board the Fortitude, and was the Admiral's 2nd Lieut. during the action on the Dogger Bank. When the squadron subsequently returned to port, Lieut. Saumarez was advanced to the rank of Master and Commander, and appointed to the command of the Tissiphene Fire-ship, then fitting out at Sheerness.

In the Dec. following, he sailed under the orders of Rear-Admiral Kempenfelt, and had the good fortune to be the first who discovered the enemy's fleet, consisting of nineteen sail-of-the-line, escorting a numerous convoy from Brest. Of those, several were captured, and the object of the expedition entirely defeated. To convey intelligence of this affair to Vice-Admiral Sir Samuel Hood, in the West Indies, Capt. Saumarez was detached from the fleet; and, upon his arrival, he was appointed by that Officer to the Russel, a vessel which he subsequently commanded in the victory achieved by Sir George Rodney over the French fleet, 12 April, 1752, and had a distinguished share in that memorable action.

At the commencement of the war, in 1793, Capt. Saumarez hoisted his pendant on board the Crescent, and captured, in Oct. following, the French frigate, La Réunion; for which service his Majesty was pleased to confer upon him the honor of Knighthood, and the city of London presented him with an elegant piece of plate.

In the month of June, in the following year, Sir James Saumarez, having the Druid and Eurydice under his orders, maintained an action with the enemy's squadron, more than triple his force, consisting of two frigates, four cutters, two large frigates, and a corvette; and succeeded in extracting the Eurydice from their grasp.

Capt. Saumarez soon after obtained the command of the Orion, and was under the orders of Lord Bridport in the action off L'Orient, when three ships of the line were captured. The Orion was one of the first ships which brought the enemy to action.

In a short time afterwards, Sir James was detached from the Channel Fleet to join Admiral Sir John Jervis (subsequently Earl St. Vincent). and the honor to bear a distinguished part in the action of 14 Feb., 1797; for which gallant service he received the strongest marks of the Admiral's approbation, and was entrusted with the command of the advanced squadron off Cadiz. In this ship he accompanied Lord Nelson off Toulon, and was second in command in the glorious battle of the Nile, where he received a severe contusion on the side by a splinter, at almost the close of the conflict.

Having been ordered to Gibraltar with the captured ships, for the purpose of repair, Sir James Saumarez soon after returned to England, and a promotion of Admirals taking place, his Majesty was pleased to confer upon him one of the Colonels of Marines, and he was at the same time appointed to the command of the Cesar. During two successive winters, he was entrusted with the command of the squadron employed to watch the enemy's fleet in Brest, which arduous service he performed with so much vigilance that not a single ship escaped from the port. Sir James Saumarez was promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral 17, 1809, and he continued with the Channel Fleet until the following June. A battery was erected a Bارت, and nominated to command a squadron appointed to watch an expedition preparing at Cadiz for the invasion of Portugal. Soon after his arrival there, the Rear-Admiral having obtained information that three French line-of-battle ships had anchored off Algeciras, he proceeded from his station to attack them. The action commenced on the following morning (6 July), and after a long and severe conflict, in which the squadron had to contend against the enemy's formidable batteries, as well as line-of-battle ships, his Majesty's ship Hannibal having unfortunately grounded, and the enemy having succeeded in warping his ships on shore, Sir James was compelled to withdraw from the attack, and to repair to Gibraltar Mole to refit. The enemy, meantime, being joined by a reinforcement of six sail-of-the-line from Cadiz, the utmost exertions were made by the Rear-Admiral in getting the squadron ready to renew the engagement; and the whole of the enemy's fleet having put to sea on the morning of 12 July, the Cesar, which had only the day before got a new mainmast, was warped out of Gibraltar Mole, and the squadron, consisting altogether of five sail of the line, proceeded in immediate pursuit. Bearing up through the Straits of Gibraltar, Sir James was fortunate enough to overtake the foe before midnight, to attack him, and to triumph. In this gallant action, which rendered the whole of the enemy's force in Cadiz subsequently useless, two Spanish three-deckers, mounting 120 guns each, took fire and blew up, and a French seventy-four was captured.

For this important service Sir James Saumarez obtained the Order of the Bath, the unanimous thanks of both Houses of Parliament, with a pension of £1200 per annum, and the freedom of the city of London, accompanied by a splendid sword. On the eve of the late war, he hoisted his flag at the Nore, and a strong force was placed under his orders, to guard against an expected invasion, menaced by the enemy. In this station he was replaced by Lord Keith, and appointed to command upon that of Guernsey and Jersey, then threatened with an immediate attack from the ports of St. Malo and Granville.

In Dec., 1806, Sir James Saumarez was promoted to the rank of Vice-Admiral, and nominated Second in Command in the Channel Fleet, under the Earl of St. Vincent; his Lordship being absent on Admiralcy leave, the Vice-Admiral was commissioned in watching the enemy's fleet, until the following Aug., when, upon the appointment of Lord Gardner to the command of the Channel Fleet, he resumed his former station.

In March, 1808, Sir James was nominated to the Command of the Fleet desirous for the Baltic; where by his able arrangements the extensive and highly important trade in that quarter was protected under extraordinary difficulties, and his firm and conciliatory conduct towards the Court of Sweden, and the Northern States, tended to detach Russia from her alliance with France, and to unite with Great Britain in the common cause of Europe. Previously to his removal from that station, in Nov., 1812, he was presented with a magnificent sword, set in diamonds, by his Majesty the King of Sweden, in testimony of the services he had rendered to that monarch's dominions. Upon the subsequent visit of the Emperor of Russia and the King of Prussia to England, Admiral Saumarez was honoured with their Majesties' personal thanks, and he received those of the Emperor of Austria through his excellency Prince Metternich, for the benefit the common cause of Europe had derived from his services while in the northern seas. Sir James Saumarez was appointed Commander-in-chief on the Plymouth station 24 March, 1824, and continued there until replaced by Admiral, the Earl of Northesk, after the usual period of service.

Lineage.

The family of Saumarez, originally de Saumarez, is of Norman extraction, and of great antiquity in the Island of Guernsey. By an act of Edward II., anno 1313, and one of Edward III., in the year 1331, it appears that Le Neiguer de Saumarez was appointed hereditary captain (or chatelet) of the Castle of Jerbourg, within the limits of that Fief.

"Stood to the memory of Philip de Saumarez, Esq.; one of the few whose lives ought rather to be measured by their actions than their days. From sixteen to thirty-seven years of age, he served in the Navy and often surrounded with dangers and difficulties unparalleled, always approving himself an able, active, and gallant officer. He went out a lieutenant on board his Majesty's ship the Centurion, under the auspicious conduct of Commodore Anson, in his expedition to the South Seas. He was Commanding Officer of the same ship, when she was driven from her course by the lateness of the year 1746; being Captain of the Nottingham, a 60 gun ship, he then alone attacked and took the Mars, a French ship of 61 guns. In the first engagement of the following year,
The younger was Commander of the Antelope of 50 guns, and captured the Bellequete of 64 guns, in the British Channel.

Sir Charles, as 2nd Bart., at the decease of his father, in Aug., 1814.

When Admiral Anson defeated a squadron of French men-of-war and Indians, he had an honourable share; and in the second, under Admiral Hawke, when the enemy, after a long and obstinate resistance, were again defeated in pursuit of flight, that were making their escape, he gloriously, but unfortunately fell. He was the son of Matthew de Saumarez, the Island of Guernsey, Esq. by Anne Durell of the Island of Jersey, his wife. He was born 17 Nov., 1710, killed 4 Oct., 1747, and buried in the old church at Plymouth, with all the honors due to his distinguished services. This monument is erected out of gratitude and affection by his brothers and sisters.

mansion, came to them with Margaret Dutton, dau. of Jeffrey Dutton, of Dutton, Co. Chester, A.D. 1723, as appears in the History and Antiquities of Cheshire, by Sir Percival Leicester, Bt. "Jeffrey Dutton (says Sir Peter) son of Adam Dutton De Dutton, gave Nether Tabley to his dau. Margaret, and her heirs, about the end of the reign of HENRY IV. This Margaret first married Robert de Dentbigh, and had no issue; afterwards she married Nicholas De Leicester, by whom she had issue, and to whose succeeding progeny the manor of Nether Tabley still belongeth. He was afterwards Sir Nicholas Leicester, Knt., so styled in 1295, and was seneschal to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, Constable of Cheshire. His son, Roger's son and heir, Nicholas, died in 1349; and his son John Leicester, who served in the Wars of France, under John of Gaunt, in 1373 and 1389, built the old Manor Hall of Nether Tabley."

WILLIAM LEICESTER, Esq. of Nether Tabley, son and heir of the above-mentioned John, is the first that we find styled "De Tableby." but this may be in consequence of the statute of additions passed in the last of HARRY V. for, previously to the enactment of that law, few were written either of the place or with the title of Esquire. Certain it is, that this William lived at his Manor-House of Nether Tabley, which, his father John had recently erected, and which continues the seat of the family to the present period. He m. twice, but had issue by his wife, Agnes, sister of Sir John-Piers Dutton, Knt., only. He d. in 1428, and was s. by his eldest son, JOHN LEICESTER, Esq. of Nether Tabley, who d. in 1431, and was s. by his eldest son.

THOMAS LEICESTER, Esq. of Nether Tabley; whose great-great-grandson,

PETER LEICESTER, Esq., the celebrated Antiquarian and Historian of Cheshire, eldest son of Peter Leicester, Esq., by Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Randle Mainwaring, the elder, of Over Peover, b. 3 March, 1613, was created a Baronet, 10 Aug., 1666, Sir Peter m. Elizabeth, youngest dau. of Gilbert, Lord Gerard of Gerard's Bromley, Co. Stafford; and, dying in 1706, was s. by his eldest son.

SIR ROBERT, 2nd Bart., b. 11 Sept., 1643; d. in 1684; and was s. by his second, but eldest surviving, son (by Meriel, dau. of Francis Watson, Esq. of Church Aston, Salop).

SIR FRANCIS, 3rd Bart., M.P. for Newtown, Co. Lancaster; b. 20 July, 1674. This gentleman married Frances, dau. and heir of Joshua Wilson, Esq. of Colton, Co. York, and widow of Bryan Thornhill, Esq., by whom he left at his decease (when the Baronetcy expired), an only dau. and heir.

MIRIEL LEICESTER, b. in 1705, who m. 1st, Fleetwood Leigh, Esq. of Bank, and by him who d. in 1725, had an only daughter,

Anne Meriel Leigh, m. to Peter Brooke, Esq. of Mere, in the Queen's Co., by whom she left her at her decease, in 1746, PETER BYRNE, her successor.

John Byrne, d. unm. in 1778.

Elizabeth Byrne, m. to the Rev. William Russel, and d. his widow in 1805.

Dorothy Byrne, m. to Francis Pryce, Esq. of Bryny-

Pys.

Her eldest son a. his father, in 1742.

Peter Francis Byrne, and assumed in 1744, pursuant to the will of his grandfather, Sir Francis Leicester, that surname. He m. Catharine, youngest dau. and co-heir (with her sisters, Dorothy, the wife of Edward Wilson, Esq. of Dalmah Tower, and Barbary, the wife of Edward Parker, Esq. of Brownhime, Co. York), of Sir William DE VERE.

2. William John, b. 10 Aug., 1806.
3. Catherine, m. 3d April, 1833, to her cousin Patrick John Nugent, Esq.

His Lordship s. as 2nd Viscount, on the demise of his father, 13 Oct., 1804.

Lineage.

This, and the illustrious family of De Burg, Marquesses and Earls of Clanricarde, derive from a common progenitor, namely,

John, Earl of Cornyn and Baron of Tumbridge, in Normandy, son of Balowin II., founder of the House of Blois, in France. From the eldest son of this Earl John, descended the House of Clanricarde; and from the younger,

Eustace de Burgo, Baron of Tumbridge, that of which we are now to treat. This Eustace had two sons, Charles and John, both companions in arms of the Conqueror. The eldest son,

Charles, built the Castle of Knaresborough, in Yorkshire, and was s. by his brother,

John, who m. Margaret, aunt of King Stephen, and was s. by his eldest son,

Eustace Fitz-John, feudal Lord of Knaresborough, who m. Beatrix, dau. and sole heir of Yuu de Vesey, by Adela, only dau. and heir of William Tysoe, Lord of Alynwick, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, who inherited the name and arms of Vesey, and had a grant from Harry II. of Alnwick Castle. He was Sheriff of Northumberland during the greater part of that reign, and a principal commander in the battle fought near Alnwick, wherein the Scottish army sustained a signal overthrow. He m. Burga, dau. of Robert Nutteville, Lord of Knaresborough; and, dying in 1184, was s. by his eldest son,

Eustace de Vesey, one of the twenty-five Barons appointed to enforce the observance of Magna Charta. This distinguished feudal Lord m. Margaret, dau. of William, King of Scotland; and, dying about 1189, was s. by his son,

William de Vesey, who first espoused Isabel, dau. of William Longespee, Earl of Salisbury, and, 2ndly, Agnes, eldest dau. of William Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and, in right of the latter, had a share of those lands assigned to him in Ireland, belonging to William Mareschal, Earl of Pembroke. He d. in 1253, and was s. by his eldest son,

John de Vesey, who was summoned to Parliament as Baron Vesey, 24 Dec., 1584. His Lordship d. a.p. in 1629, and was s. by his brother,

William de Vesey, who was summoned to Parliament in 1635, and was one of the competitors for the Crown of Scotland, temp. Edward I. This nobleman was Justice in Eire for all the English interests beyond Trent, and one of the Justices Inherant touching the pleas of the forest, Governor of Scarborough Castle, and Lord-Justice of Ireland, where he was Lord of Kildare. His Lordship d. in 1297, leaving an only dau., Isabel, m. to Gilbert de Aton, Lord of Aton, in Yorkshire; and the male line of the family was continued by his brother,

Thomas de Vesey, who settled in Newland, Cumberland, where the family continued until his descendant,

William Vesey, having the misfortune to kill his antagonist in a duel, fled into Scotland, whence he removed to Ireland, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. He m. a dau. of the family of Ker, of Cessford, and was s. by his only son,

The Rev. Thomas Vesey, Archdeacon of Armagh, whose son and heir,

The Rev. John Vesey, D.D., was consecrated Archbishop of Tuam. This learned prelate, who was three times one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, left (with other children)

Thomas, Agmodeham, a Privy-Councillor in Ireland, who left, at his death, two daws, co-heirs.

John, in Holy Orders, whose grandnam., Catherine, wife of the Right Hon. James Fitzgerald, was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, as Baroness Fitzgerald and Pearse. (See that dignity.)

His Grace was s. by his eldest son, DEV

DEY

1. THOMAS VRABY, Esq., who was created a BARONET OF IRISHLAND, 20 Sept., 1688. This gentleman, subsequently taking Holy Orders, was consecrated Bishop of Killala in 1713, and translated to the See of Osori in the following year. His Lordship m. Mary, only surviving dau. and heiress of Denny Muschamp, Esq. of Horsley, Co. Surrey, Master-Master-General of Ireland, and his wife, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Dr. Michael Boyle, Archbishop of Armagh, by whom he had issue, JOHN-DENNAY, his successor, and two dau.; the elder m. to Caesar Colelough, Esq. of Duffeny Hall, M.P. for the Co. of Westford; the younger, 1st to William Handcock, Esq. of Willbrook, Co. DEVON

DEVON, EARL OF (William Courtenay), and a Bart.; b. 19 June, 1777, inherited the honors at the decease of his cousin in May, 1833, m. 29 Nov., 1832, Lucy Hertford, dau. of Sir Lucas Pepys, Bart., by Anne, Countess of Rolle, and has issue, Having fortified, during the reign of Robert the Wise, the town of Courtenay, in the Isle of France, these assumed his surname. But as the power of the Courte-nays in England principally arose from the great alliances formed by the first members of the family who settled Derry, we shall pass once to their maternal pedigrees.
Godfrey, Earl of Ewe and Brion, natural son of Richard, 1st Duke of Normandy, was father of Gilbert, Earl of Brion, who had two sons, Richard, 'successor of the House of Clare; and Baldwin de Brioe, who, for the distinguished part he had in the Conquest, obtained from King William the Barony of Oakhampton, the Custody of the Co.
of Devon, and the Government of the Castle of Exeter,
in fee. He m. Adela, dau. of Richard, surmaned Geo., Count of Avantache, and had, with other issue,
Richard, surmaned de Reders.
Robert, governor of Brion.
Kema, m. 1st, to William Avenal, and, 2ndly, to William de Abrincis; by the latter she had issue, Robert de Abrincis, who, on the resignation of his uncle, Richard de Redvers, obtained a grant of the Barony of Oakhampton, the Office of Herald, Sheriff of Devon, and the Governor-ship of Exeter Castle. He m. 1st, to Godwina Dele, and left an only dau. and heir, Mark de Abrincis, who m. 1st, - Deincon, diocese, by whom she had a daughter,
Hawise, who m. Sir Realin de Courte-

Maud espoused, 2ndly, Robert Fitz-Edith, natural son of Henry 1, and had another daughter,
Matilda, m. to William de Courtenay.
Richard de Abrincis, surmaned de Reders, having
a. his father, was created, by Henry I, Earl of Devon, and resigned the Barony of Oakhampton, the Shrievalty of Devon, and the custody of the Castle
def Devon, to his nephew, Robert de Abrincis, from whom that dignity, and those high offices, passed to the husband of his grandau, Hawise, as above,
Sir Realin de Courtenay, who was s. by his
eldest son,
Robert de Courtenay, as feudal Baron of Oakhampton, Viscount of Devonshire, and Governor of the Castle of Exeter. This Robert, in 1144, was made Governor of Bridgnorth, in Shropshire, and the following year Sheriff of Oxfordshire, and Governor of the Castle of Oxford, when the King (John) committed to him the coinage of tin in Devonshire. In the 4th year of Henry III, his Lordship gave the King a palfrey for permission to hold a yearly fair in his manor of Oakhampton, on the vigil and feast-day St. James the Apostle, which fair still continues to be held there.
In the 16th year of the same Prince, most of the castles and counties of England being resumed by the Crown, the Courtenays were deprived of the honor and profit of the Viscounty in Devon, and government of the Castle of Exeter, after those bad been enjoyed nearly two hundred years by them-seves and their ancestors; and Robert de Courtenay was deposited all of his honors, save the simple Barony of Oakhampton. He m. Mary, youngest dau. of William de Redvers, surmaned Fervin, 6th Earl of Devon, and, dying 20 July, 1142, was s. by his eldest son, John de Courtenay, as feudal Baron of Oakhampton, who m. Isabel, dau. of Hugh de Vere, Earl of Oxford, Lord-high-chamberlain of England, and, dying in 1273,
was s. by his only son,

* Much confusion exists regarding the identity of the heirs, who became, through the influence of Henry II, the wife of Sir Realin de Courtenay. Some authorities make her the dau. and heir of Robert de Abrincis, while others call her, as above, his granddaughter.

HUH DE COURtenay, Baron of Oakhampton. This feudal Lord, Eleanor, dau. of Hugh de Spencer, the elder, Earl of Winchester, and was s. by his elder son, HUH DE COURtenay, Baron of Oakhampton. This noblesman having distinguished himself in the Scottish wars of Edward I, was one of the three hundred persons of eminence knighted by that Monarch at Westminster.
In the reign of Henry III, he was created a Knight Banneter; and was fifteen times summoned to special travels in Parliament, as a Baron, within the first eight years of Edward III, and twice to the 9th of the same Monarch, by the name of Hugh de Courtenay, Earl of Devonshire, being the last Earl in office, in having that year only restored to the dignity, in 1272, of his great-grandmother, Mary, dau. of William de Redvers, Earl of Devon. His Lordship m. Agnes, sister of the Lord
St. John, of Blasing, and was s. at his decease, in 1349, by his eldest son,

HUH DE COURtenay, 2nd Earl of Devon, who had
m. in 1235, Margaret, dau. of Humphry Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex (Lord-High-Constable of England, and his wife, the Lady Elizabeth Plantagenet, dau. of Edward I.), by whom he had (with nine dau.) eight sons, viz.
1. Hugh, commonly called Hugh Courtenay de Fitz, one of the gallant soldiers of the marital reign of Edward III, a participator in the glories of Crema, and an original Knight of the Garter. He was sum-momoned to Parliament, as Earl Courtenay, 8 Jan., 1371. His Lordship m. Elisabeth, dau. of Guy Brian, Lord of Tor-Brian, in Devonshire, and sister of the famous Guy, Lord Brian, K.G., Standard-bearer to the King at Cressy, and, dying in the life-time of his father,
left an only son,
Hugh, who m. Matilda, dau. of Thomas Holland, Earl of Kent, by Joan Plantagenet, his wife, the celebrated Fair Maid of Kent, grandau. of Edward I, and (mother, by the Black Prince, of Richard II.) Hugh Courtenay, after his years after his father, and before his grandfather, leaving an issue. His widow espoused Waleran, Earl of St. Paul,

Thomas, M.P. for Devonshire, died before his father.

Edward, of Goddington (who d. also before his father) m. Ethelina, dau. and heir of Sir John D'Amey, knt., and had issue,
1. Edward, successor to his grandfather, as 3rd
Earl.
2. Hugh, (Sir) of Hack-comb, m. 1st, Elizabeth,
dau. of Sir William Cogan, and, by the m. of Sir Fulk Fitzwarine, but by her had no issue. He espoused 2ndly, Elsa Phipasa, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Arredcliffe, and had an only daughter, Joane, m. 1st, to Niceland, Lord Carew,
and 2ndly, to Sir Robt.
Vere.
Sir Hugh Courtenay m.
3dly, Matilda, dau. of Sir John Beamont, of Sherwood, in Northumberland, by whom he had (with daughter, Margaret, m. Sir Thomas Fitwilliam, knt.) and heir,
Hugh, (Sir) of Bocma-noc, who fell at Tewkesbury, leaving (with four daughters), Edward, who was created in 1480, Bar-von Oakhampton, and Earl of Devon.

Sir John, M.P. for Devonshire, temp. Richard II.
Philip, (Sir) of Powysland Castle, of whom here after, as ancestor of the present Earl of Devon.
Peter, (Sir) K.G., Standard-bearer to Edward III, Croutin sole of Devon, Castle, Governor of Calais, and Chamberlain to Richard II, d. 1469.
Humphrey.
Edward, 3rd Earl of Devon, commonly called the Blind Earl. This nobleman served to the beginning of the reign of Richard II, as a Naval Officer, under John of Gaunt, and Thomas of Woodstock respectively, and was appointed, in the 7th of the same Monarch, Admiral of all the King's Fleet, from the mouth of the Thames westward. In the next year, being then Earl Marshall, his Lordship was retained to serve the King in his Scottish Wars. He m. Maud, dau. of Thomas, Lord Camois, and, dying 5 Dec. 1429, was by his only surviving son, THOMAS, 4th Earl of Devon. This nobleman commenced his military career at the age of 16, and was engaged for several years in the French Wars of Hen. VI., with whom he sided on the breaking out of the unhappy conflict between the Houses of York and Lancaster; and the Courtenays ever after adhered, with devout fidelity, to the Hen. rose. In 1446 a dispute regarding pre-eminences arose between the Earl of Devon and Arundel, which was decided by Parliament in favor of the latter Lord, owing to his feudal possession of Arundel Castle. The Earl of Devon d. 3 Feb., 1450, in the Abbey of Abingdon, upon his route to London, as a mediator, with other noblemen, between the King and the Duke of York. He m. Lady Margaret Beaufort, 2nd dau. of John, Marquess of Somerset, and was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS, 6th Earl of Devon. This nobleman, inheriting the political principles, with the honors, of his deceased father, was a strenuous upholder of the Lancastrian interests, and, falling into the hands of the Yorkists at Towtonfield, he was beheaded at York, by order of EDWARD IV., in April, 1462. His Lordship was subsequently attainted, and the honors of the house thus became eclipsed: but his next brother, HUGH COURTENAY (7th Earl, but for the attainder), finding favor with the new King, had restoration of some part of the estates. Engaging, however, in the Lancas- trian ranks, he met with the seal of his predecessors, and was himself attainted, 4 May, 1466, before the King and Justices at Sarum, and beheaded, with the Lord Hunger- ford, on the same day.

(The greater part of the Courtenay estates having been conferred upon Humphrey Stafford, Baron Stafford of Southwicks, that nobleman was created Earl of Devon in 1469; but, falling under the axe as a traitor in the Aug. following, the dignity expired.)

Upon the demise of Hugh Courtenay, his only surviving brother, JOHN COURTENAY, assumed the Earldom of Devon, and the Lancastrian interest prevailing in 1470, by the expulsion of King Edward, his Lordship was restored to the honors and possessions of his family by the Parlia- ment, which invested the Courtenays with the head of HENRY VI. The subsequent defeat, however, of Richard Neville, the Stew Earl of Warwick, at Barnet-Field, 14 April, 1471, again placed the fortunes of the House of Devon in jeopardy; and the Earl, joining MARGARET of Anjou, fell, 15th February, at Tewkesbury, 14 May following, at the head of Margaret's Rear-Guard. Thus the three brothers sealed with their blood their bond of fidelity to the house of Lancaster, and with them expired the senior branch of the ancient and illustrious House of Courtenay.

The last Earl was buried at Tewkesbury, and, being attainted, the honors and estates of Devon became again forfeited.

This branch being thus extinguished, we proceed to that founded by

Sir Hugh Courtenay of Haccombe, brother of Edward, 3rd Earl (revert to issue of Hugh, 2nd Earl). This gentleman's only son, Sir HUMPHRY COURTENAY, Knt., was of Barcomock, in Cornwall, and M.P. for that shire. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Carmyn (the last heir male of that ancient family, whose other dau. and co-heir was married to Sir Thomas Carew, of Monnow's Ottery), and had issue, Edward, (Sir) his successor.

Walter, Sir, d. unmarried.
Elizabeth, m. to John Trethborne, and had a son, Edward Courtenay, who left two daughters, Elizabeth, m. to John Vivian. Maud, m. to Edward Courtenay, Esq. of Lar- rock.

THOMAS TREThURPPE, who left two daughters, Elizabeth, m. to John Vivian. Maud, m. to John Arundel, of Talverm. Isabel, m. to William Mohun. Florence, m. to Robert Trevelyan.

Sir Hugh, faithful to the red rose, fell with his noble kins- man, the Earl of Devon, at Tewkesbury; and his eldest son, Sir Edward Courtenay, being involved with his brother, in the conspiracy of Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, attainted, of the Tower of Henry, Earl of Richmond, was forced to fly into Brittany, upon the failure of the plot and the decapitation of the Duke. Participating subsequently in the victory of Bosworth, he was elevated to the Peerage by HENRY VII. (26 Oct., 1485), as Earl of Devon, and he was attainted in 1494. Tyrell and Wyndham were beheaded on Tower-hill, while Cour- tenay was doomed to incarceration during the King's reign.
The earl d. in 1500, and Henry VIII. ascending the throne in the same year, that monarch immediately released Sir William Courtenay, and took him into favour: but he died in three years afterwards, before he had either letters patent, or a formal restoration of the earldom. He was buried, however, with the honors of an Earl, "at the special command of the King. By the Lady Catherine Plautagenet he left an only son, Edward Courtenay, whn, having been restored in blood and honor, became second Earl of Devon, of the new creation. In 1525, his Lordship obtained a grant of Cæledon, in Cornwall, and of "a fair mansion" situate in the parish of St. Lawrence Poultry, in the City of Lon- don, forfeited by the attainder of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, and was advanced by letters patent, dated 18 June, 1525, to the dignity of Marquess of Exeter. For some years this nobleman enjoyed the favour of the sickly Henry, but he fell at length a victim to that Monarch's jealousy of the House of Pole. He was com- mitted to the Tower, with Henry Pole, 1st Earl of Suffolk, and Sir Edward Nevill, for conspiring to place Reginald Pole, Dean of Exeter, upon the throne, and was beheaded with Sir Edward Nevill, 9 Jan., 1529. On the subsequent attainder of the Marquess, all his honors expired, and the whole of the Duchy of Cornwall was the land in that county which thus came to the Crown. His Lord- ship m. 1st, Elizabeth Grey, dau. and heir of John, Vis- count Lisle, but by that lady had no issue. He espoused secondly, Gertrude, dau. of William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, by whom he left an only child, Edward Courtenay, who, though but twelve years of age at the death of his father, was committed prisoner to the Tower, and detained there during the remainder of King Henry's reign, and of that of EDWARD VI.; but upon the accession of Queen Mary he was released, and a patent dated at Richmond, 3 Sept., 1553, was issued, creating him EARL OF DEVON. The words of this patent, though unusual, appear to have been adapted to the particular circumstances of the case,—"in consideration," it is said, "of the nobility of his birth and his proximity in blood to the Queen, she was pleased to create him Earl of Devon, with all pre-eminences, honors, &c., thereunto belonging, to hold the title and dignity of Earl of Devon, with the said honors and pre-eminences thereunto belonging to the afresaid Edward, and his heirs male for ever, and the present proceeds thus, "And further of our more abundant grace we will, and by these presents do grant to the aforesaid now Earl, that he and his heirs male may have, hold, enjoy, and possess in all Parliaments and other places, the same present and perpetual succession of the said Earl, being hereafter Earls of Devon, hath held or enjoyed." In the Oct. following he was fully restored in blood; but as the attainer of his father was never reversed, he did not succeed to the Earldoms of Devon and Devonshire at the creation of it, nor to the Earldom created in the 3rd Hen. VIII, neither did he to the Marquises of Exeter. His Lordship had some command in suppressing Wyatt's rebellion, and yet was afterwards with the Princess Elizabeth. Accused as anecessary thereto, and sent with her Highness to the Tower. He was subsequently confined in Fotheringay Castle, but released through the interposition of Philip of Spain, upon that Monarch's marriage with the Queen the Lady Elizabeth being liberated through the same influence. His Lordship after this obtained the Queen's permission to go abroad, and died at Padua, not without suspicion of poison, 4 Oct., 1566. He died unm., and his estates reverted to the issue of his great aunt, and the four daus. of Sir Thomas by dau. 1st of Edward, 1st Earl. At his Lordship's decease, the Earldom of Devon was considered to have become extinct, and it remained dormant for more than two hundred and sixty-five years. It was, however, re-established in another branch of the family of the Earls and Lords of Exeter, (to which we shall now proceed) by the decision of Parliament, 15 March, 1631. It is clear, however, that the Courtenays themselves never once previously thought of the Earldom's being in existence, or they would not have accepted the Earldom of Devon.

The existing branch of the Courtenays was founded by Sir Philip Courtenay, of Powderham Castle (refer to issue of Hugh de Courtenay, 2nd of the original Earls of Devon, who received the honor of Knighthood from Edward, the Black Prince, with his brothers, Hugh and Peter, the day before the battle of Navarre, in Spain, and was constituted, in 1383, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland for ten years. Lineage.
The noble family of Cavendish, of which in the last century, two branches attained Duke-edom, laid the foundations of its greatness, originally on the share of Abbey lands, obtained, at the dissolution of the monasteries, by Sir William Cavendish, who had been Gentleman Usher to Cardinal Wolsey, and d. 1557, and, subsequently, by the abilities and the good fortune of Elizabeth, his widow, who re-married George, Earl of Shrewsbury, and d. 1675, aged eighty-seven. But though thence arose the exalted rank and extensive possessions enjoyed at present by the Cavendishes, be it not supposed that their remote ancestors were obscure. Whether the first of the name who enjoyed the lordship of Cavendish, in Suffolk, was or was not the son of a member of the Baronial family of Gernon, whom no records have stated to have owned that estate, it is clearly ascertained that

Sir John Cavendish, who acquired the lordship of Cavendish-Overhall, by his marriage with Alice, dau. and heiress of John de Odyngsclap, was Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench in 1338, 1373, and 1377. In the 4th Richard IL, his Lordship was elected Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and was next year commissioned with Robert de Hales, Treasurer of England, to suppress the insurrection, raised in the city of York: in which year the mob, having risen to the number of 30,000, made it a point, particularly in the Co. Suffolk, to plunder and murder the lawyers, and, being incensed in a more than ordinary degree against the Chief Justice Cavendish, his son John, having killed the notorious Wat Tyler, they seized upon, and dragged him with Sir John of Cambridge, Prior of Bury, into the market-place of that town, and there caused both to be beheaded. The younger son of the Judge,

Sir John Cavendish, Esquire, of the body to King Richard II., is said to be the person who actually slew Wat Tyler. "For William Walworth, Mayor of London, having arrested him, he furiously struck the Mayor with his dagger, but being armed hurt him not: whereupon, the mayor, driving his hndel, being so wounded Wat Tyler, d. in which conflict an Esquire of the King's House, called John Cavendish, drew his sword, and wounded him twice or thrice even unto death. For which service, Cavendish was Knighted in Smithfield, and had a grant ofanny of Magnesium from the King." The great-grandson of this Sir John Cavendish, was

William Cavendish, Gentleman Usher to Cardinal Wolsey, and the faithful attendant of that celebrated churchman, through all fortunes, so faithful, indeed, that after the death of the Cardinal, King Henry VIII. retained him in his own service, especially upon the grounds of his attachment to his late fallen master. In 1530, Mr. Cavendish was appointed one of the Commissioners for visiting and taking the revenues of divers Religious Houses, and in the year the Prior and Convent of Sheen surrendered their Monastery to him. He had subsequently grants from the Crown, received the honor of Knighthood, and was appointed Treasurer of the Chamber to the King: an office which he filled in the ensuing reigns of Eow. VI. and Queen Mary, when he was sworn of the Privy Council. Sir William m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Edmund Bostuck, Esq. of Walford in Cheshire, by whom he had four surviving daughters. He espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Conyngham, Esq., and had two daus. He m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of John Hardwick, of Hardwick, Co. Derby, and widow of Richard Barley, Esq., in the same shire, whose large estates she inherited under William, M.P. for the Co. Derby, was of Tuthury Priory, in Staffordshire. He m. Grace, 3rd dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Shrewsbury, but d. 1616.

William, Sir, who succeeded his mother as Baron Ogle, and was afterwards created with minor dignities, Marquess and Duke of Newcastle, under which latter title he acquired so much renown, as a Cavalier-General, during the Civil Wars, and was commonly styled the "Loyal Duke of Newcastle." His Grace d. 1679, and was s. by his only son.

Henry, second Duke of Newcastle, who d. in 1691, without male issue, when all his honors save the Barony of Ogle, became extinct. His Grace left five daughters, the third of whom, Lady Margaret Cavendish, m. John Holles, Earl of Clare, afterwards Duke of Newcastle.

Sir William Cavendish had considerable grants of forfeited church lands in the reign of Edward VI. He died in the 4th year of the succeeding reign, having sometime before commenced the erection of Chatsworth. Henry Cavendish, Sir William's eldest son, dying, as stated above, issueless, was p. to the second son.

Sir William Cavendish, K.B., who eventually inherited the whole estate: and through his celebrated mother, possessed three of the most splendid seats ever raised by one hand within the same county (erected by her), namely, Chatsworth, Hardwick, and Oldcotes. Sir William was elevated to the Peerage as Baron Cavendish, of Hardwick, 4 May, 1695, and advanced to an Earldom, as Earl of Devonshire, 2 Aug., 1704. Lineage.

The surname of Dick is one of very great antiquity in North Britain, and it is supposed to have had the same origin as the Van Dyke (or Lords of the Dykes) in the Low Countries.

William de Dyke was Alderman, or First Magistrate of Edinburgh, 1296, before the institution of the office of Lord-Provoost, and deposed in the time of the Usurpation.

James Dick, who was designated, in a Charter under the Great-Seal, dated Jan., 1538, Merchant-Burgess of Arbroath: this James left a son,

Alexander Dick, who resided chiefly upon his landed property in the Orkneys: and, after the Reformation, being a person of knowledge and learning, was appointed Provost of the Cathedral Church of Orkney. He d. in 1509, and was s. by his only son,

John Dick, a Merchant of great eminence, who was s. by an only son,

Sir William Dick. This gentleman, adopting from his youth the profession of commerce, became one of the most eminent bankers in Scotland, and acquired considerable wealth, even before the decease of his father, which appears by his advancing to the King £3000 sterling, to defray the household expenses, when his Majesty held a Parliament in Scotland, in 1618. In 1626, he farmed the customs on wine, at £6222 sterling, and the Crown rents in Orkney, at £3000 sterling, per annum, and afterwards the excise. Mr. Dick was elected Lord-Provoost of Edinburgh in 1638 and in 1639, and, after receiving the honor of Knighthood in 1646, was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia. Sir William was fined by the Parliamentarians, as a malignant, in an amount of £64,184; and afterwards coming to London to demand payment of monies he had previously advanced upon government security, he was thrown into prison by the Usurer Crowneill, and d. at Westminster, 19 Dec., 1655, when the Baronetcy passed to his grandson, but was not, we believe, assumed by that gentleman (see Dick of Braid). The 4th son of Sir William, Alexander Dick, had already received from his father, in patrimony, the lands of Hreug, near North Berwick, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

1. James Dick, a merchant of great eminence and wealth in Edinburgh, who, having purchased the lands of Prestonfield, nr Prestonfield, was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia 1639, under the title of Sir James Dick, of Prestonfield. Sir James came from London, in 1642, with the Duke of York, and was with his High Royal Highness in the Gloucester man-of-war, when that vessel struck upon a sand-bank. He was one of the few who took to the long-boat (the Prince and Mr. Churchill, afterwards the Great Duke of Marlborough, effecting their escape in another boat), and so saved his life; whilst several persons of the first rank, who remained in the ship, perished. Of this disaster, the following extract of a letter, dated 9 May, 1652, from Sir James to his correspondent in London, gives some interesting particulars:—"At seven n’clock in the morning of Sunday last, the man-of-war, called the Gloucester, Sir John Berry, Captain, where his Highness was, and a great retinue of noblemen and gentlemen, whereof I was one; the said ship did strike in pieces, and did wholly sink upon the bank of sand, called the emebank, from which they were thence from Youtube. This was occasioned by the wrong calculation and ignorance of a pilot, which put us all in such a consternation that we knew not what to do, the Duke, and the whole that were with him, being all in bed when she struck; the helm of the said ship having broke, and the man being killed by the force thereof, at the first strokes. When the Duke had got his clothes on, he inquired how things stood, she being sunk nine feet of water in the hold, and the sea coming in at the gun-ports; and all the seamen and not at command from the Duke, under his own safety, forced the Duke to go out at the large window of the cabin, where his little boat was ordered quietly to attend him, lest the passengers and seamen should have thrown so upon him as to drown the boat; which was accordingly so conveyed as that none but Earl Wintoun, and the President of the Session (Sir George Gordon, of Haddo, afterwards Earl of Aberdeen), with two of his bed-chamber men (one of these was John Churchill), went with him, but were forced to draw the swords to hold people off. We, seeing his Highness gone, did cause tackle out, with great difficulty, the ship’s boat, wherein the Earl of Perth got in, and then I went by jumping off the shrouds, into the boat; the Earl of Mid-dleton, immediately after me, did jump into the same, upon my shoulders; with there came the Laird of Touch, with several others, besides the seamen that were to row.

Among them that were left, were my Lord Roxburgh, and Lady Hopetoun, and Mr. Lindsay, Roxburgh’s servant, and Dr. Levington, the President of the Session’s man; all being at the place where I jumped, would not follow, since it seems they concluded more safety to stay in the vessel, than to expose themselves to any other hazard; which persons, in an instant, were manacled off, and all drowned. There perished in this disaster above two hundred persons.

In the same year that he had this miraculous escape, Sir James was elected Lord-Provost of Edinburgh, and again in 1624. He m. Anne, dau. of William Paterson, Esq. of Drummuir, Co. Fife, by whom he had several children, but none to attain maturity, save one, Janet, who married Sir William Cuningham, Bart. of Caprington. Sir James, being thus deprived of male issue, made an entail of his estate, his present, and Cortoriphine, in 1660, "to himself and the heirs male of his body;" which failing, to the second and younger sons, successively of his dau., Janet, by the said Sir William Cuningham," &c. He also got a Nova Scotia Barony from Queen Anne, 22 March, 1707, settling the dignity to go according to the entail of his estate. Sir James d. in 1726, and was s. in his estates by his aforesaid dau., to whom s. and to the baronyetc., her son.

11. Sir Alexander Dick, (paternally Cuningham) of Prestonfield. This gentleman, previously to the decease of his brother, had studied medicine, and practised with great repute in the county of Pembroke, as Doctor Alexander Cunningham. In the year 1756, he was unanimously chosen President of the Royal College of Edinburgh; and, for seven years afterwards successively, had the same high honor conferred upon him; at his retirement, the Fellows, as a testimony of the sense which they had entertained of his eminent services, hung up a portrait of the Ex-President in their hall, a mark of distinction never previously bestowed on any member whatever. Sir Alexander, 1st, in 1728, his cousin, Janett. dau. of Alexander Dick, Esq., by whom he had three daus., and, 2ndly, in 1726, Mary, eldest dau. of David Butler, Esq. of Pembroke, by whom he had (with four other daus.) three sons.

FAMILY OF CUNNINGHAM OF CAPRINGTON.

This family is of very great antiquity in North Britain. According to Camden, the name Cunningham came originally into Scotland from England, with King Malcolm Canmore: and he is probably correct, for we find them settled in the shire of Ayre shortly after the time of that monarch. Frederick Van Bussan, a learned Norwegian, who wrote an account of several Scottish families, says that one Malcolm, son of Fratkin, assisted Malcolm, Prince of Scotland (afterwards King Malcolm Canmore), to make his escape from the tyranny of Macbeth, who had murdered his father Duncan, and, being hotly pursued, he took shelter in a barn, where Malcolm concealed the Prince by forking straw over him. The prince eventually made his escape into England, still attended by his faithful Malcolm. Prince Malcolm was no sooner in possession of his kingdom, after his victory over Macbeth, than he rewarded his preserver by the Thanesdom of Cunninghamyke, from which his posterity assumed their surnames, and took a sheaf-fork for their arms, with "Over, fork, over." for their motto.

Robert br Cunningham, of Kilmaurs (oldest son of Warnebold de Cunninghamyke, de Kilmaurs, Co. Ayr), espoused, in 1162, Richenda, only dau. of Sir Humphrey de Berkeley, of Gairntruly, in Scotland, and was s. by his son,

Sir Robert br Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, whose grandson,

Harry br Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, m. Riddele, heiress of Glengarnock, and, dying in 1253, was s. by his son,

Sir William Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, who d. 1250, and was s. by his eldest son.

Edward Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, who d. 1259, and was s. by his eldest son.

Gilbert Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, who was 2. in 1259, by his son.

Sir Robert Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, who swore fealty to Edward I.; but, declaring afterwards for Robert Bruce, had a charter from that Monarch of the superiority of the lands of Lambrechtoun and Grugere, in Cunninghamyke, to be holden of the King, as Alan la bouche, 1250.
and William de Fereres held the same. He d. 1320, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir William Cunningham, of Kilmaurs, who had, by his first wife,
William, (Sir) continuator of the line of Kilmaurs, and grandfather of Alexander Cunningham, of Kilmaurs. He was created Earl of Glasgow, in May, 1485, and fell the next month at Bannockburn.

Thomas, of whom presently.

Sir William espoused 2ndly, ELEANOR BRUCE, a daughter of Sir William Bruce of Carnick, and was created, in her right, Earl of Carnick; by this lady he appears to have had no issue, and, upon his Lordship's decease, the Earldom of Carnick reverted to the Crown. His 2nd son,

Sir William Cunningham, of Braidhead, and, dying in 1385, was s. by his son,

Adam Cunningham, who m. a dau. of Sir Duncan Wallace, the heiress of Caprington, and dying in 1451, was s. by his son,

Sir Adam Cunningham, of Caprington, who m. Isabella, dau. of Malcolm Crawford, and, dying in 1390, was s. by his son,

William Cunningham, of Caprington and Broomhill, who m. —, dau. of Sir William Hamilton of Sanquhar, and d. 1529. His 2nd son,

John Cunningham, of Broomhill, m. Eleanor, dau. of Andrew Macleod, of Waterhead, and was s. by his son,

William Cunningham, of Broomhill, who m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Patrick Leslie, Lord Linlores, by whom he had fifteen children in nine years (the first, single; four times, twins; and three at each birth) only three days. However survived. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of William Sinclair, of Ratter (great-grandfather of William, 16th Earl of Caithness), and 13th in descent from King Robert Bruce. This William Cunningham was one of the Commissioners for the Covenanters in 1688. He was s. at his decease by his son,

I. Sir John Cunningham, of Lamlash and Caprington, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 19 Sept, 1699. This gentleman, a very eminent Lawyer, was appointed to plead against the Duke of Lauderdale, before Charles II. in council, and succeeded in establishing the mis-government of that nobleman. He m. Margaret, dau. of William Murray, of Polmains and Touchadam, Co. Stirling; by whom he had two sons and a daughter. He d. 1624, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. Sir John, who m. Janet, only dau. and heir of Sir James Dick, Bart. of Prestongrange, and had six sons and four daughters. (The title and estate of Prestongrange devolved upon the 3rd son, Alexander, as in the above pedigree of the Dickes.). Sir William d. 1740, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. Sir John. This gentleman, who was esteemed one of the most learned and polished personalities of the period in which he lived, spent most of his time in literary retirement, at his Castle of Prestongrange. (a seat which is said to have belonged to the great Sir William Wallace, and was even then considered ancient). He is reported to have read over, once yearly, for the last 30 years of his life, Homer and Ariosto; he was blessed with constant good health, and his intellectual continuance unmatched to the last. Sitting at supper, at Caprington, 30 Nov., 1777, with his usual cheerfulness, he was seized with a fit of apoplexy, fell back in his chair, and calmly expired, in the 83rd year of his age. Sir John m. 1749, Lady Elizabeth Montgomery, eldest dau. of Alexander, 9th Earl of Eglinton, and had two sons, William, his successor. Alexandre, an Officer in the Army, d. unm.

He was s. by his eldest son,

IV. Sir William, b. 19 Dec, 1722; m. 19 Nov, 1759, Mrs. Grena, and d. without issue, when the Berowecy devolved upon his cousin, the present Sir Robert-Kay Dick, of Prestongrange, the descendant of Alexander Cunningham, 3rd son of Sir William, the 2nd Bart., who assumed the surname of Dick, upon inheriting the title and estate of Prestongrange. Owing to certain restrictions in the entail of Prestongrange, the Bart. is obliged to retain solely the surname of Dick, otherwise he would add that of Cunningham (originally Koningham), and he contemplates doing so by the aid of Parliament.

DIGBY.

DIGBY.

DIGBY, EARL (Edward Digby, D.C.L.), Viscount Coleshill, and Baron Digby, in the Peerage of England; Lord Digby, Baron of Grishill, in the King’s Co., in the Peerage of Ireland; Lord Lieutenant, and Custos Rotulorum of the Co. of Dorset, and of the Town of Poole, and of the Co. thereof; b. 5 Jan. 1773; s. as 2nd Earl, on the demise of his father, 25 Sept., 1793.

Lineage.
The original surname of this ancient family is said to have been Tilton, assumed from their residence at Tilton, Co. Leicester, and the alteration is supposed to have taken place in 1592, when that abode was abandoned for Digby, Co. Lincoln.

In nearly two centuries afterwards, A.D. 1734, we find EVERARD DIGBY, Esq., filling the office of High-Sheriff of the Co. of Rutland, and representing that Shire in Parliament. He fell at the battle of Totten, in 1449, fighting under the banner of the unfortunate Henry VI. He m. Jaquetta, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Esley, of Devonshire, and left (with one dau.) seven sons, of whom the two eldest were,

Everard, (Sir) Lord of Tilton and Drystoke, ancestor of the celebrated Sir Edward Digby, Knt., one of the most faithful adherents of the Royal Cause in the Civil War, and so exile in consequence, during Cromwell’s reign. This emigration of England, as he has been styled, wrote several learned books, was a great benefactor to the Bodleian Library, by presenting it, in 1633, with a large collection of MSS., rescued the reputation of his family, and rendered it famous throughout the Christian world. He returned to England in 1661, was appointed one of the Council on the first settlement of the Royal Society, and d. at his house in Covent Garden, 11 June, 1666. He had two daughters, dau. and co-heir of Sir Edward Stanley, K.B. of Tonge Castle, Co. Salop, and left two sons and a daughter.

Simon, of Coleshill.

The second son,

SIR SIMON DIGBY, Knt. of Colehill, Co. Warwick, having contributed mainly, with his six valiant brothers, to the Earl of Richmont’s success at Bosworth, was rewarded, after the accession of Henry VII., with large grants of lands, and lucrative public employments. Sir Simon m. Alice, dau. and heir of John Walley, Esq. of East Badston, Co. Devon, and, dying in 1519, was s. by his eldest son,

REGINALD DIGBY, Esq. of Colehill, Co. Warwick, who m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of John Danvers, Esq. of Calthorpe, Co. Oxford, and was s. by his son,

SIR GEORGE DIGBY, who espoused Abigail, dau. of Sir Arthur Hemingsham, of Ketetring, in Norfolk, Knight-Banneret, and had, with other issue,

Robert, his successor,

George, who was elevated to the Peerage, in 1617, as Baron Digby of Sherborne, and created in 1623, Earl of Bristol. His Lordship was an eminent Statesman, (Francis I.,) and a staunch adherent of the unhappy Charles I., whom he attended at Edinsshall; at the termination of the contest, the Earl was obliged to withdraw into France, having had his estates confiscated, where he d. in 1622. His Lordship’s honors expired with his grandson, John, 3rd Earl, in 1698. (See Burke’s Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

The son and heir,

SIR ROBERT DIGBY, Knt., who received that honor from Robert, Earl of Essex, at Dublin, in 1586, represented the Borough of Abbe, in Parliament, in 1613, and was called to the Privy-Council. He was a sincere, and heir of Gerald, Lord Offaly, and granddau. of Gerald, 11th Earl of Kildare. This lady was created BARONESS OF OFFALY for life, and brought into the Digby family the Baron of Grishill, in the King’s County. Sir Robert d. 24 May, 1618, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DIGBY, who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 20 July, 1620, as Baron Digby, of Grishill, in the King’s County. His Lordship m. Lady Sarah Boyle, dau. of Richard 1st Earl of Cork, and was s. in 1642, by his son,

KILDARE, 2nd Baron; whose two eldest sons,

Robert, 3rd Baron, and }

Robert, 4th Baron, and joined in the }

Simon, 5th Baron, and }

issue, a younger brother,

William, 6th Baron, inherited in 1697. This nobleman m. Lady Jane Noel, dau. of Edward, 1st Earl of Gainsborough, by whom he had (with eight other children, * all of whom died young),

1. Edward, who m. Charlotte, dau. of Sir Stephen Fox, and pre-deceasing his father (he d. in 1748, left issue,

* Robert Digby, the second son of Lord Digby, and his Lordship’s eldest son, Mary, lie interred at Sherborne church, where, on a black marble tablet fixed in the wall, is the following epitaph, by Pope:

"Go, fair example of untainted youth,
Of modest reason, and pacific truth,
Go, just of worth, in every thought sincere,
Who knew no wish but what the world might hear.
Of gentle manners, unaffected mind,
Lover of peace, and friend of human kind;
Composed in sufferings, and in joys sedate,
Good without noise, without pretensions great;
Go, live, for heaven’s eternal year is thine;
Go, and exalt thy moral to divine.
And thou, too close attendant on his doom,
Blest maid, but hastend to the silent tomb;
Stev the same course, to the same quiet shore,
Not parted long, and now to part no more.
Yet take these lines, more happy’s his lot;
And, till we share your joys, forgive our griefs.
These little rites, a stone and verse, receive,
'Tis all a father, all a friend can give."

Sir John, s. as 4th Bart., on the demise of his father, 20 March, 1814.

Lineage.

This ancient family is descended from that of D'Albin, Earls of Sussex and Barons Duftten, temp. Hen. IV. The present genealogy ascends in the reign of Edward IV., at which time they had large possessions in Cornwallshire and Denbighshire, and were connected by marriage with some of the first families in the Principality. In the line of descent they stand thus; Hugh D'Albin, Humphrey Dallin, John Dallin, William Dolben: this last was Rector of Stanwick, in Northamptonshire, and nominated Bishop of Rochester, but d. before consecration. He was first cousin to David Doulben, or Dolben, Rector of Hackney and Bishop of Bangor.

John DOLBN, Archbishop of York, prior to entering into Holy Orders, was a military officer, and distinguished himself upon active service during the Civil Wars, under the Royal Standard, particularly at the defence of York, where he was severely wounded. He was Lord-High-Almoner and Clerk of the Closet to Charles II., and, during the prohibition of the Liturgy, was accustomed to read it in a house opposite All Souls' College, of which a memorial is preserved in a fine painting, by Sir Peter Lely, at Finedon, a copy of which hangs in the hall of Christ Church, Oxford. V. SIR ALEXANDER, who m. Lady Henriett Cunningham, sister to the 15th and last Earl of Glencarn, and had an only son, ALEXANDER, and two daus., Elizabeth and Mary, whose melancholy fate is thus recorded—
D O M

June 22nd, 1765.—The two Messrs. Don, dau. of Sir Alexander Don, Bart., accompanied by Miss Agnes Wilson, 290 and Miss Jesse Ramsay, went for a walk by the bridge to the Island in the water of Eden. On their return home, apprehensive of being too late for dinner, they resolved to cross the water at the nearest ford, although considerably swelled by the rains, rather than go round by the bridge. Miss Don and Miss Wilson got safely through; but Miss M. Dunn, in following, was carried down the current, when Miss Ramsay rushed in to her assistance, but without effect. This is all that Miss Ramsay recollected; nor could she even tell how she herself was afterwards saved, for Miss Don and Miss Wilson, there is no doubt, ran in to their aid, and both shared the unfortunate fate of the younger Miss Don. Tha distracted state of Miss Ramsay, upon getting out of the water, and missing her companions, prevented any discovery of the fatal accident, till, going to cross the Eden bridge, she saw the body of Miss M. Don floating down the river, and immediately gave the alarm, but, alas! too late."

Sir Alexander was s. at his decease by his son,

VI. SIR ALEXANDER, who m. 1st, Miss Montgomery, of Suffolk, but by her had no issue. He wedded, 2ndly, Grace, eldest dau. of John Stein, Esq. of Edinburgh, for several years M.P. for Bletchingley, and had by her, who survives, one son and one dau., viz.

I. GEORGE-HAMILTON, Earl of Belfast, b. 10 Feb., 1751; m. 8 Dec., 1722, Harriet-Anne, eldest dau. of Richard, 1st Earl of Glengall, and has a son, FREDERICK-RICHARD, Viscount Chichester, b. 23 Nov., 1787.

II. Edward, Dean of Raphoe, b. 11 June, 1790; m. 30 Sept., 1821, Amelia-Diana, dau. of Henry-Deane Grady, Esq., and has His Lordship, who is Lord-Lieut. of the Co. of Donegal, s. n. 2nd Marquess, on the demise of his father, 3 June, 1799.

Liturgy.

The surname of the house of Donegul was anciently written Cleenesther, and the family appears to have been one of the most eminent in the Co. of Devon, quartering, according to Sir William Pole, in his MS. survey of Devonshire, the arms of the Raleighs, the Beaumonts, the Willingtons, and many other noble families. The first of the family settled in Ireland was

Sir Arthur Chichester, Knt., s. distinguished military officer (2nd son of Sir John Chichester, Kzt., High-Sheriff of the county of Donegal, in 1622, and M.P. for the same county in 1632 and 1662, by Gertrude, dau. of Sir William Courtown, Knt., of Powderham Castle, in the Co. of Devon). In 1635, Sir Arthur commanded 200 foot, at Carrickfergus; and the end of Nov., in the following year, in 1638, he remained at that place, and did the country waste within a circumference of twenty miles. In 1643, he was sworn of the Privy-Council; and, in 1664, appointed Lord-Deputy of Ireland, in which year he established two new circuits, sending the first Justice of Assize into one new circuit, and the circuit of Marker, which had been discontinued for more than two hundred years, so that the circuits, which had previously been confined in the English pale, thenceforward included the whole kingdom, with such effect that, in a very short time, there were not found in all the Irish counties so many capital offenders as in the six shires of the Western Circuit in England. Sir Arthur, in consideration of his eminent services, military and civil, obtained considerable grants of land in the province of Ulster, and was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 23 Feb., 1612, by the title of Baron Chichester, of Belfast. His Lordship continued in the government of Ireland for ten years successively, and was re-appointed in July, 1633; in which year the harp of Ireland was first unshackled with the arms of England, and his name has since continued to be impressed upon the coin of the realm. In Nov., 1635, he retired from his high office, and was appointed, in 1636, Lord-High-Treasurer of Ireland. His Lordship chiefly resided at Carrickfergus, where he exerted himself with great magnificence and splendour. In 1662, he went Ambassador to the Palatinate, and thence to treat of peace with the Emperor. During his residence at the Imperial Court, being besieged in the city of Mainz, or Mainzheim, by Count Tilly, he remonstrated against the violation of the law of nations in besieging an Ambassador; to which Tilly replying that he suspected not his being an Ambassador, his Lordship thus answered the messenger:—"Had my master sent me with as many hundred men as he hath sent me on fruitless messages, your General should have known that I had been a soldier as well as an Ambassador." His Lordship m. Letitia, dau. of Sir John Perrott, sometime Lord Deputy of Ireland, widow of Vaughan Blackburn, Esq., and d. in London, 13 Feb., 1624, when, leaving no issue, the Baronry expired, while his large estates devolved upon his brother,

Sir Edward Chichester, in whose favor the dignity was revived, with the additional honor of Viscount Chichester, of Carrickfergus, 1 April, 1653. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1645, Anne, dau. and heir of John Coplestone, Esq. of Eggesford, Co. Devon, by whom he acquired a large estate, and had two sons and a dau. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, dau. of — Denham, Esq. of Wortham, in the same shire, but had no other issue. His Lordship d. in 1660, and was s. by his elder son,

Arthur, M.P. for the Co. of Antrim, in 1639, who, in consideration of his eminent services against the rebels, when Colonel Chichester, and at the express solicitation of the Marques of Ormonde, had been elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 30 March, 1667, as Earl of Donegal, with limitation of the honor to the male descendants of his father. His Lordship was one of the four hostages sent by the Marques of Ormonde, in 1667, to the English Parliament, as surety for the delivery of Dublin and other garrisons to their commissioners. After the Restoration, he was Governor of Carrickfergus; and, in 1668, his Lordship established a mathematical lecture in the University of Dublin. He m. 1st, Dorcas, dau. of John Hill, Esq. of Holney, Co. Warwick, by whom he had an only dau., Mary, who m. John St. Leger, Esq. The Earl m. 2ndly, Lady Mary Digby, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Bristol, but by that lady he had no surviving issue; and, 3rdly, Letitia, only surviving dau. of Sir William Hich, Bart. of Rooksholt, by, her, left one surviving dau., Anne, who m. 1st, John Butler, Earl Gowran, and, 2ndly, Francis Angier, Earl of Longford, but had no issue. The Earl then married, 4thly, Lady Elizabeth Digby, dau. of John, 3rd Earl of Bristol, who died 1699, and was married, 5thly, to Mary, dau. of Thomas Lister, of Dunbrody, Co. Wexford, and was s. by his eldest son, Edward, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, having distinguished himself in the military service of his own country, was appointed, by the Prince of Orange, 2nd Earl, as his regent, and for the space of two years; and fell 10 April, 1707, at Port Monmouth.

His Lordship's 2nd lady (by the 1st, Lady Barbara Boyle, he had no surviving issue) was Lady Catherine Forbes, dau. of Arthur, Earl of Granard, upon whom the following lines were written by his adopted son,

Unseen rivers, with bounteous hand,
 Has form'd a model for your land,
 Whom love endued with every grace,
 The glory of the Grand race.
 Now destined by the powers divine
 The blessing of another line.
 Then would you paint a matchless dame,
 Whom you're com'd to endless fame?
 Invoke not Cynthia's aid,
 Nor borrow from the blue-eyed maid;
 But call the virgin to your side;
 Take qualities from Donegal.

By this lady he had two sons and six dau.; three of the latter, Jane, Frances, and Henrietta, were unfortunately burnt to death in the House of Belfast, consumed by the carelessness of a servant. His Lordship was s. by his elder son,

Arthur, 4th Earl; at whose death without issue, in 1757, the honors devolved upon his nephew, DONERAILE.

DONERAILE, Viscount (Hayes St. Leger), and Baron Doneraile, of Doneraile, Co. Cork, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. 9 May, 1785; m. 14 June, 1816, Charlotte-Esther, 2nd dau. of Francis, 1st Earl of Bandon, and has an only son, HAYES, b. 1 Oct., 1819.

His Lordship is 3rd Viscount, on the demise of his father, 8 Nov., 1819.

Lineage.

The ancient family of St. Leger is of French extraction, and derives from

Sir Robert Sent Leger, Knt., as the name was then written, one of the companions in arms of William the Conqueror; and, according to a tradition in the family, the person who supported that Prince with his arm, when he quitted the ship to land in Sussex. This Sir Robert, having overcome a Pagan Dane, who inhabited the manor of Ulcumb, in Kent, fixed his abode there; and in that place his posterity flourished for many generations. The lineal descendant of Sir Robert,

Sir Arthur St. Leger, Knt., went first into Ireland in 1577, being appointed by Henry VIII. one of the Commissioners for letting the Crown Lands there, and, returning into England, was constited Lord-Deputy of Ireland 7 July, 1546. In 1543, he was recalled to inform the King of his administration of affairs; which gave his Highness such satisfaction that he created him a Knt. Companion of the Garter, and sent him back Lord-Deputy, in which high office he continued until 1556, serving three Sovereigns, when, being recalled by Queen Mary, he retired to his estate in Kent, and d. there 12 March, 1559. This eminent person has been characterised "as a wise and wary gentleman, a valiant servitor in war, and a good justice in peace, properly learned, and having gravity interlaced with pleasanceness." He m. Agnes, dau. of Hugh Warham, Esq. of Warham, and was s. by his second, but eldest surviving, son.

Sir Warham St. Leger, of Uclumb, who was appointed Chief Governor of Munster in 1562, under the Lord-Deputy Sidney. In 1570, he was constituted Knight-Marshal of the same Province; and, in 1589, he caised James of Desmond, who was denominated a notorious rebel, to be hanged under martial law, at Cork. He was killed, eventually, in battle (in single combat), by Hugh Maguire, Lord of Fermangh, who fell himself at the same time. Sir Warham m. Ursula, youngest dau. of George Nevil, Lord of Athenry, and was s. by his son,

Sir William St. Leger, a Privy-Councillor, and Lord-President of Munster, in 1627. Sir William represented the City of Cork in Parliament in 1629, and was appointed, in that year, Serjeant-Major-General of the Army; he was subsequently employed against the rebels in Ireland, and, dying about the year 1642, was s. by his son, DORSET.

DORSET, DUKE of (Charles Sackville-Germain), Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, Viscount Sackville, Baron Buc&burough, Baron Cranfield, and Baron Bolebrooke, K.G., & 6 Aug., 1767; s. to the Viscountcy of Sackville, and Baron of Bolebrooke, at the demise of his father (the once celebrated Lord George Germain), 26 Aug., 1753; and to the dukedom and other hereditary dignities of his family on the death of his cousin, 14 Feb., 1815. His Grace is the 5th Duke.

Ancestry.

The Sackvilles, or Saukevilles, as the name was originally written, have been persons of considerable power, wealth, and influence, ever since the Conquest; and the House of Dorset can trace its foundation to Sir Robert of Sackville, Knt., 3rd son of Herbrand de Salavilla, one of the Chief Men in the Army of the Conqueror. From this Robert descended

John Sackville, Esq., Sheriff of the Co. of Sussex and Surrey, in the 19th, 20th, and 30th of Henry VIII., and M.P. for East Greenwich, in 4th and 5th Philip and Mary (being the only return ever made by Greenwich prior to the recently passed Reform Act). This John m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Sir William Boleyn, Knt., and aunt of Queen Anne Boleyn, and had a numerous family of which the eldest son, Sir Richard Sackville, Knt. was member of the Privy-Council, in the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth; Chancellor of the Court of Augmentations in the former, and Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer in the latter; M.P. for the Co. Kent, and, subsequently, for the Co. Surrey. Sir Richard m. Winifred, dau. of Sir John Bruges, Lord-Mayor of the city of London; and, dying in 1590, was by his eldest son, Thomas Sackville, Esq., who was Knighted in the presence of Queen Elizabeth, by the Duke of Norfolk, 8 June, 1587, and on the same day created a Peer of the Realm, as Baron Buc&burough, of Buc&burough, Co. Sussex. In 1594, his Lordship was appointed Lord High-Treasurer of England; and on 13 March, 1603-4, was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Dorset. Of this nobleman, Warton says, "At both Universities (he had been a student of Oxford and Cambridge) he became celebrated as a Latin and English Poet; and he carried his love of poetry, which he seems to have almost solely cultivated, to the Inner Temple. It was now fashionable for every young man of fortune, before he began his travels, or was admitted into Parliament, to be initiated in the study of the law. But, instead of pursuing a science which could not be his profession, and which was unaccommodated to the bias of his genius, he betrayed his predilection for a more pleasing species of literature, by composing the tragedy of 'Gorboduck'; which tragedy was exhibited in the Great Hall of the Inner Temple, by the students of that society, as part of the entertainments of a grand Christmas festival; and, afterwards, before Queen Elizabeth.

DOU

Germaine, of Drayton, Co. Northampton. This nobleman was subsequently distinguished as a soldier and a statesman, under the designation of "Lord George Germaine." In the former character less fortunate, however, than his illustrious brother, the present Governor of His Majesty's Forces, he was instrumental in various military enterprises, and was next to the Commander-In-Chief, Prince of Brunswick, at the battle of Minden; and being cashiered by a court-martial, held at his own request, upon returning to England. His Lordship was coëdowed with extraordinary talents, and filled, subsequently to this unpleasant affair, some of the highest offices of his country. He was elevated to the Peersage, 11 Feb., 1782, as Baron Balcaskie, and Viscount Kirkville. He m. Diana, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Sir Jeremy Sambrooke, Bart, by whom (who d. 15 Jan., 1775), he had 1 Charles, present Duke. 2 George, b. 1 Dec., 1770, m. in 1791, Miss Pearce, and has by her (who d. 1850) one surviving daughter, Caroline, 3 Caroline, d. 10 Sept., 3 Diana, m. in 1777, to John, second Earl of Glendore, and d. in 1814; 4 Elizabeth, m. in 1781, to Henry Arthur Herbert, Esq. 5 Marquisate, 6 Lordship of France.

Douglas, of Kirkville, in the County of Kirkwall, in the Island of Orkney, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 2 Jan., 1823., m. for his second wife, The Lady Jane Douglas, only dau. of James, second Marquess of Douglas, by whom he had two sons, (twins) Sholto the younger, who d. in infancy, and Sir Archibald Stewart. This gentleman, upon the demise of his uncle, Archibald, Duke of Douglas, without issue, 21 July, 1761 (when the Duke's death expired), was returned heir of line and provision to that nobleman; but the Duke of Hamilton, who had inherited his Grace's Marquislute of Douglas, disputed his returns, on the ground of Mr. Stewart's birth being surreptitious, and the Scotch Courts determining in favor of Hamilton, an appeal was made to the House of Lords, which reversed the Scottish judgment, 27 Feb., 1762. This suit (known well by the name of "Douglas cause") made a noise all over Europe, and is one of the most extraordinary ever litigated. * Mr. Stewart, becoming thus entitled to the estate, assumed the surname and arms of "Douglas," and was elevated to the Peerage as Baron Dolaris, of Douglas, 9 July, 1760. His Lordship m. 1st, in June, 1771, Lucy, only dau. of William, 2nd Duke of Montrose, by whom (who d. 13 Feb., 1783), he has issue, Archibald; present Peer. Charles, b. 25 Oct., 1773, Jane Margaret, m. in 1804, to Henry-James, Lord Montagu. Lord Douglas m. 2ndly, 13 May, 1783, Frances, posthumous dau. of Francis, Earl of Dalkeith, and sister of Henry, 3rd Duke of Buccleuch, by whom he had James, in Holy Orders, b. 9 July, 1765, m. 18 May, 1813, Wilhelmina, second dau. of General the late Hon. James Murray, but has no issue. George, Capt., R.N., b. 9 July, 1768. Caroline-Lucy, m. 27 Oct., 1819, to Rear Admiral Sir George Scott. One of these children, Sholto, died an infant, and against the other Archibald Stewart's inheriting the estates of his maternal cousin, Archibald, Duke of Douglas, on that nobleman's decease, 21 July, 1761, to whom he was reverted heir of line and provision, the guardians of James-George (the heir-presumptive) of Hamilton, instituted a suit at law, and the Scotch Courts determined in favor of His Grace; from the decision an appeal was made to the House of Lords, which eventually reversed it and confirmed Sir Archibald in the possession of the Douglas estates. One of the guardians of the Duke, and inventor of his letters of Archebal Stuart, subsequently published. In Jan., 1775, some very strong letters, addressed to Lord Macfie, alleging the conduct of his Lordship during the progress of the celebrated litigation, and maintaining the rectitude of the Scotch decision.
DOUGLAS.

Douglas, Sir Robert —Andrew, of Glenbervie, Co. Kincardine; Capt. 12 Regt. of Foot; b. 25 April, 1817; s. as 2nd Bart., at the decease of his father, 23 Nov., 1833; m. 1855, Martha Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Joshua Rouse, Esq.

Lineage.

If a long line of illustrious ancestors, distinguished by the highest titles of honor, and connected with the most august houses in Europe, can add importance to a name, there is not one in the empire more dignified than that of Douglas. The family has been connected with the first nobles of Scotland, England, and France; and it has intermarried to less than eleven times with the Royal Houses of Scotland, and once with that of England. The traditional, but probably fabulous, account of the origin of the house, is, that about the year 719, in the reign of Saxontricus, King of the Scots, one Donald Ben, of the Western Isles, having invaded the Scottish territory, and routed the Royal Army, a man of rank and figure came seasonably, with his friends and followers, to the King's assistance, who then renewed the conflict, and obtained a complete victory over the invaders. The King, being desirous of seeing the person who accomplished for him so important a service, that individual was pointed out to the Monarch, by his colour, or complexion, in these words of the old Gaelic, or Celtic language, Sholtu de Gliss; in English, "Behold the black or swarthy-coloured man!" from which, the story goes, he was named Sholtu the Douglas. The King rewarded this hero with grants of lands in the Co. of Lanark, which were denominated Douglas; and hence the family surname. This Sholtu is said to have left two sons;—Hugh, ancestor of the Douglases, in Scotland; and William, progenitor of the Scott Douglases, in Italy.

The Hon. Sir William Douglas, of Glenbervie, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th, and commonly called the great, Earl of Angus, obtained, from his father, in patrimony, the lands and Baronies of Bradwood, in Lanarkshire, about the year 1310; and by his marriage with Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir John Auchinleck, of Auchinleck, Co. Ayr, acquired the lands and Baronies of Glenbervie, in the shire of Kincardine; which became, subsequently, the principal seat of the family; and in consequence of this marriage, Sir William and his posterity have ever since continued to quarter the arms of Auchinleck with their own. Sir William, with his brother, the Hon. George Douglas, fell at the fatal battle of Flodden Field, in 1513, and left an only son, Sir Archibald Douglas, Knt., whose eldest son, Sir William Douglas, 5th, of Glencr is, obtained a charter from James V., in 1501, confirming all the ancient privileges of the family of Douglas, namely—

The first vote or Charter, or Parliament; to be the King's Hereditary Lieutenant; to have the leading of the Iam of the Army in the day of battle; and to carry the Crown at Coronations; to himself and his heirs male. All these were again confirmed by a charter under the Great Seal, in 1592. Sir William, upon the demise of the 8th Earl, of Angus, without male issue, succeeded to the Earldom as heir male, and became the 9th Earl. His Lordship m. Giles, dau. of Sir Robert Graham, of Morphy, by whom he had six sons and dau.; and, at his decease, bequeathed to his 2nd son, the Hon. Sir Robert Douglas, the lands of Glenbervie; which Sir Robert was s. at his decease by his eldest son, William Douglas, of Glenbervie, who was created one of the original Barons of Nova Scotia, with a grant of 1000 acres of land in that colony, 30 May, 1655. Officer in the Army, and Col. of the Scotch Royals, which he commanded at the battle of Steenkirk, in 1692, where he fell; and, dying without male issue, the title devolved upon his cousin.

The Rev. Sir Robert Douglas, D.D., and Rector of Stepney. Sir Robert d. in 1739, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir William. This gentleman, who was s. Lawyer of great eminence and learning, was chosen, in the year 1726, Provost of the city of St. Andrews, and was annually re-elected for nineteen years. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Douglas, Esq. of Garvald, and d., without issue, in July, 1764, when the title devolved upon his brother.

Lineage.

Family of Downes.

The family of Downes, from which the present Peer maternally descends, and through which he inherits the peerage, appears to have been of considerable antiquity in the Co. of Suffolk: its progenitors has long been seated there so far back as the 14th century. From this root branches subsequently spread into Norfolk and Northampton.

Dive Downes, of East Haddon, Co. Northampton, d. in 1629, leaving an only son, The Hr. Lewis Downes, who was Rector of Thornby, in that Co. and was father of Dive Downes. This gentleman, having finished his education at Trinity College, Dublin, took Holy Orders, was made Archdeacon of Dublin, in 1806, and consecrated Bishop of Cork and Ross in the same year. By his first and second wives he had no issue: by the third, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Beecher, Esq. of the Co. of Cork, he had one dau. Elizabeth, and by the fourth, (Catherine, sister of Robert, 12th Earl of Kildare), he left a son, Robert, and a posthumous daughter.

Anne, who m. Thomas Burgh, Esq. of Bert, Co. Kildare, and had with other children, Thomas Burgh, Esq. who m. Anne, only dau. of David Algoin, Esq. and, in 1810, leaving Ulysses, present Lord Downes.

The Bishop was succeeded at his decease by his only son, Robert Downes, Esq. of Donnybroke, M.P. for the Co. of Kildare, who m. in 1752, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Twigge, Esq. of Donnybroke, by whom he had issue, Dive, in Holy Orders, L.L.D., who d. amat. in 1794, and William Downes, Esq., who was called to the Bar of Ireland, in 1756; elevated to the Bench there in 1792, and constituted in 1803, upon the death of Lord Kilbracken, Member of the Court of King's Bench, and sworn of his Majesty's most Honorable Privy-Council in Ireland. His Lordship retired from the Judicial seat in 1822; when he was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, (10 Dec. in the same year), by the title of Baron Downes, of the present day, in full default of male issue, to his cousin, Sir Ulysses Burgh, upon whom, at the decease of his Lordship, 2 March, 1836, the dignity devolved. Lord Downes was Vice-Chancellor of the University of Dublin.

FAMILY OF BURGH.

This family claims a common progenitor with the great and illustrious house of Clanricarde, namely,

Aylem de Burgh, 6 esq. of whose grandsons,

Sir William de Burgh, living in 1291, espoused Finola, dau. of Donagh O'Kelly (chief of the family of O'Kelly), and from that marriage lineally descended

Kemp O'Burke, of Drumeen, Co. Limerick, father of the Right Rev. Ulysses Burgh, of Drumeen, Bishop of Aisagh, who m. Mary, dau. of William Kingsmill, Esq., and had issue,

1. Richard, in Holy Orders, who succeeded at Drumeen.

Ill. Thomas, of Old Town, Co. Kildare, Engineer and Surveyor-General; m. Mary, dau. of William Smith, Bishop of Kilmore, and d. about the year 1720. He had, with other issue,

1 Thomas, of Old Town, whose grandson, The Very Rev. John Thomas Huron, Dean of Cloyne; m. Anne Louisa, dau. of the late Hon. Frances Hely Hutchinson, and sister of the present Earl of Duncaundale, which Anne Louisa, and her sisters and brothers, have been raised to the rank of an Earl's issue, by patent of Precedency.

2 John View of Donamore, Co. Monaghan.

3 Mary, m. to Thomas Burgh, Esq. of Drom- keen.

4 Elizabeth, m. to Ignatius Huron, Esq. Bar- rister-at-Law, and had a son,

Walter Hussey, who assumed the additional surname of Bura.

This gentleman was distinguished as one of the most eloquent ad- vocates at the Irish Bar, under the well- known name of Hus- sard-Burgh. He was afterwards Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland. He m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Burgh, Esq. of Bert, and, dying 29 Oct., 1785, left Drake, Sir Francis Hen- ry, of Buckland, Co. Devon; b. in Aug., 1545; m. Anne Frances, dau. of Thomas Malt- hy, Esq. (of the same family as Doctor Maltby, Bishop of Chichester); s. as 6th Bart. at the decease of his uncle, 24 Feb., 1794.

Liturgy.

This family was founded by the celebrated

Sir Francis Drake, one of the most eminent of the naval heroes who immortalised the reign of ELIZABETH.

Born of humble parents, near Tavistock, in 1545, Drake attained the height he eventually achieved by his own enterprising spirit and transcendant merit alone. He was the son of an honest sailor named Edmund Drake, and the eldest of twelve brethren. He had the good fortune, however, of being allied to Sir John Hawkins, and was brought up at the expense, and under the care of that gallant seaman. When eighteen years of age, he appears to have had the situation of Purser of a ship trading to Biscay, and at twenty, he made a voyage to Guinea. The next year he had the honour of being appointed Captain of the Judith, and, in that capacity, was in the harbour of St. Juan d’Ulos, in the Gulf of Mexico, where he harrassed most gallantly in the glorious actions under Sir John Hawkins, and returned to England, rich in reputation, but in nothing else. At this period he announced his intention of making reprisals upon the King of Spain, and no sooner proclaimed the project than hundreds volunteered to embark in it. In 1570, he made his first expedition with two ships, the DRAGON and the SWAN; and the next year in the Swan alone, wherein he returned safe. If not rich, but having now means sufficient to perform greater matters, he laid before the public the plan of a more important design against his enemies. He put into execution 24 March, 1572: on which day he sailed from Plymouth, himself in the PAMUCH, of seventy tons’ burden, and his brother, JOHN Drake, in the SWAN, of twenty-five tons, their whole strength consisting of no more than seventy-three men and boys. With this inconsiderable force he attacked, on the 22nd July, the town of NOSBARA in Dios, and took it in few hours by storm. Here, however, he obtained but little plunder, and was obliged eventually to retire to his ships, having been severely wounded in the action. His next attempt was upon Vera Cruz, which he carried and pillaged, and in returning to his vessels fortunately fell in with a string of males laden with plate, of which he took possession. From this successful expedition he came back to England in Aug. 1573. He subsequently served as a volunteer in Ireland, under Walter, Earl of Essex; and upon his return, was introduced by Sir Christopher Hatton to Queen Elizabeth, when her Majesty immediately took him under her protection; and he was enabled by her royal favour to undertake, and accomplish, within three months, his celebrated voyage round the world. This famous expedition, consisting of the Pelican, commanded by Drake himself; the Elizabeth, Capt. John Winter; the Maryland, a bark of thirty tons, Capt. John Thomas; the Swan, a fly-boat of fifty tons, Capt. John CHESTER; and the Christophera, a pinnace of fifteen tons, Capt. Thomas Moon, sailed from Plymouth, 15 Nov., 1577, and returned to the same port, 3 Nov. 1580. In a few months after leaving England, Drake committed what has been termed in gentle language, "the least commendable action of his life," but to which a much more severe description might with justice be applied. Having arrived at Port St. Julian, 16 June, he took up his abode there for two months, while he made the necessary provision for passing the Straits of Magellan. Here it was, that, on a sudden, having conducted the persons engaged in the service to a desert island, lying in the bay, he called a kind of Congress on the Court Martial, where he exposed his Commission, by which the Queen had granted him the power of life and death, which was delivered with this remarkable expression from her Majesty's own mouth: "We do account, that he, Drake, who strikes at thee, does strike at us." He then laid open all the great eloquence (for, though his education was but indifferent, he had a wonderful flow of speech), the cause of the assembly; he proceeded next to charge Mr. John Doughty, who had been second in command during the whole voyage, when Drake was present, and first in his absence, with plotting the destruction of the undertaking and the murder of his chief. He said, that he had the first notice of this gentleman's bad intentions before he left England; but that he had hoped his behaviour towards him would have extinguished such disposition, if there had been any truth in the information. He then appealed to the whole assembly, and to the accused himself, for his own conduct; he next exposed the practices of the Prisoner, and supported his accusation by papers under Doughty's own hand, to which the accused did not object, but rather confirmed. After this, the Captain, or, as in the language of those times, he is called, the General, quitted the place, telling the assembly he expected that they should pass a verdict upon the accused, for he would be no judge in his own case. Camden says that Doughty was tried by a jury, but other accounts affirm that the whole forty persons of which the court was composed adjudged him to death, and gave this in writing under their hands and seals, leaving the time and manner of it to the General. Upon this, Capt. Drake, having maturely weighed the whole matter, presented three points to Mr. Doughty's choice: first, to be executed upon the land where they were; next, to be set ashore on the main land; or lastly, to be sent home to abide the justice of his country. The prisoner desired that he might have until the next day to come to a determination, which was allowed him; and then, giving his reasons for rejecting the two last, he declared that he made the first his choice; and, having received the sacrament with the General, from the hands of Mr. Francis Fletcher, Chaplain to the Fleet, and made a full confession, his head was cut off with an axe by the Provost Marshal, 2 July, 1578. It is a very remarkable fact, that the same island had been the scene of a precisely similar affair fifty-eight years before, when Magellan caused John de Cartagena, who was joined in Commission with him by the King of Spain, to be hanged under a charge of the same description; and hence it was called the Island of True Justice. Of this very questionable proceeding upon the part of Drake, Camden says, "Some, who pretending to understand things better than others, gave out that Drake had in charge from Leicester, to take off Doughty upon any pretense whatever, because he had reported that the Earl of Essex had been made away with by the cunning practices of that Earl." In this voyage Drake completely surrounded the globe; but his great success, and the immense wealth he brought home, caused many to characterise the expedition as piratical, and as not only a direct violation of all our treaties with Spain, but likewise of our old league with the House of Burgundy. Her Majesty, however, set the question at rest, and raised the gallant and enterprising seaman above the power of his foes; for proceeding to Deptford, 4 April, 1581, she went on board Capt. Drake's ship, where, after dinner, she conferred upon him the honour of Knighthood, and ordered, at the same time, the preservation of the vessel, that it might remain a monument of Sir Francis's and his country's glory.

In 1588, when the Spanish armada menacing the shores of England, Sir Francis Drake was appointed Vice-Admiral, under Charles, Lord Howard, of Effingham, and

It is observed by Camden, that when the Queen went to dine on board this celebrated ship (the Golden Hind), there was such a concourse of people, that the wooden bridge over which they passed broke, and upwards of one hundred persons fell into the river; by which accident, however, nobody was hurt; as if, he adds, the ship had been built under some lucky constellation. Upon this occasion, the following verses, made by the Scholars of Winchester College, were nailed to the main-mast.

Plus ultra, Hercules Inscribita, Drake, Columna,

Et magnis, dies; Herculis major ero.

Drace, perennis quem novit terminus orbitis,

Quemque simul maxul vidiit uteque Polus;

Sihinc signa homines, fataque sidera notum.

Sol necsit comites non uerum esse eae.*

The ship remained for many years an object of public admiration at Deptford, but her timbers falling at length into decay, it was found necessary to break her up, when a chair made out of her planks was presented by John Davies, Esq., to the University of Oxford, upon which the poet Cowley made the following verses:

To this great ship which round the world has run,

Aud match'd in race the chariot of the sun;

This Pythagorean ship (for it may claim,

Without presumption, so deserved a name),

By knowledge once, and transformation now,

In her new shape, this sacred port alone,

Drake and his ships, now is wish'd from Fate

A happier station, or more blest estate.

For lo! a seat of endless rest is given

To her in Oxford, and to him in heaven.

had the good fortune to capture the Great Galion, commanded by Don Pedro de Valdes, the reputed projector of the enterprise, which himself and his crew divided 350,000 ducats of gold. As Drake's prior expedition to the West Indies, in 1585, when he took the Cities of St. Jago, St. Domingo, Carthagena, and St. Augustin, forms one of the causes of complaint of the Court of Spain, we shall give the very curious Latin verses presented to Queen Elizabeth by the Spanish Ambassador, setting forth the terms upon which Her Majesty might avert the threatened invasion of her territories;

To which the Queen extemporary replied,

Ad Grecan, bone rea, sent mandata calendis.
Worthy king, know this your will,
At latter lammas we'll fail.

3. Louisa, m. to Gordon Duff, Esq. of Hatton.

4. Henrietta, m. to William Sinclair Wemyss, Esq., and d. 3 Nov., 1830.

His Lordship inherited the Baronetcy at the decease of his father in 1792, and the Barony on the demise of his kinsman, James Sutherland, Lord Duffus, 30 Jan., 1827. He is the 6th Baron in succession, and the 5th in possession of the dignity.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the noble House of Sutherland, Earls of Sutherland, springing from Kenneth, 3rd Earl of Sutherland, who fell at the battle of Haldon-Hill, in 1333, and left two sons, William, inheritor of the Earl- dom, and Nichol, who m. Mary, dau. and heir of Reginald de Cheyne, and acquired by her the Barony of Duffus, Co. Elgin, when he added the arms of Cheyne to his paternal coat of Sutherland. From this marriage descended Sir Alexander Sutherland, of Duffus, who was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, 9 Dec., 1666, by the title of Baron Duffus. His Lordship m. four times, but had issue by his 3rd wife (only), Lady Margaret Stewart, dau. of James, 5th Earl of Moray. He d. 1674, and was s. by his only son.

James, 2nd Baron. This nobleman m. Margaret, eldest dau. of Duffus, 3rd Earl of Seaforth, by whom he had three sons, Kenneth, his heir; Sir James Sutherland (who changed his name to Duffus), upon marrying Eulathet, dau. and heir of Sir William Dunbar, Bart., of H dippedges, and is the immediate ancestor of the present Peer), and William Sutherland of Rosencom. Lord Duffus d. 1706, and was s. by his eldest son, Kenneth, 3rd Baron. This nobleman, a Naval Officer, was appointed by Queen Anne to the command of a man- of-war, but being implicated in the Rebellion of 1715, he was obliged to fly the country; taken prisoner, at Hamburgh, his Lordship was brought back, and incarcerated in the Tower of London, from which he was released by the Act of Grace, in 1717, and he then withdrew to the Continent, where he served as a Flag Officer in the Russian Fleet. He m. Charlotte, dau. of Eric de Sibolde, Governor and Admiral of Gothamburgh, by whom he had an only son, Ersk Sutherland, who presented a petition to the King in 1724, setting forth his deceased father's detention at Hamburgh, when he was actually on his way to England, to surrender himself in the terms of the statutes.

and urging, that as he was only prevented from so doing by restraint, he could not be deemed attainted within the meaning of the Act; and that, therefore, the dignity of Baron Duffus had, upon his father's demise, descended to him. The House of Lords, however, upon taking the petition into consideration, resolved that he had no right to the Barony of Duffus. This gentleman, who was an officer in the Army, m. his first cousin, Elisabeth, 3rd dau. of Sir James Dunbar, of Hempriggs, and was a. at his decease, in 1790, by his eldest son, James Guthrie, b. 8 June, 1747, and restored to the honors of his family, by Act of Parliament, 28 May, 1801. His Lordship dying unm. 30 Jan., 1827, the title and estates devolved upon his cousin, Sir Benjamin Dunbar, of Hempriggs, Bart., the present Baron, whose maternal lineage we shall now detail.

DUNBAR, OF HEMPRIGGS.

There are few families so remotely or distantly traced as that of Dunbar: by a Genealogical tree, in the possession of the present Lord, the family of Dunbar is minutely laid down for no less a period than 975 years; but it is not requisite here to trace further back than the last inheritable Sheriff of Murray.

Lodowick Dunbar, from whose seven sons every family of the name extant took its rise. This person, the undoubted chief, was succeeded, for some time, by the lineal descendants of his eldest son; by the male issue failing there, the chiefship and head of the family reverted to the descendant of the Sheriff's 2nd son, Dunbar, of Kilbuish, and became vested in William Dunbar, of Hempriggs, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia about the year 1696. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Alexander Sinclair, of Latham, by whom he had one son, Benjamin, (who d. without issue, in the lifetime of his father) and dau. Elisabeth, upon whom, and her 2nd husband, Sir William entailed his estates after the death of his son. He d. in 1711, when the title reverted to his brother, and with it the chiefship; but the male line again failing with that gentleman's son, Sir Patrick, the title and chiefship reverted to another branch of the family, while the estates of Sir William, according to the deed of entail, devolved upon his daughter,

Elisabeth Dunbar, and her 2nd husband (her 1st husband was Sir William Gordon, Bart. of Gordontown),

I. The Hon James Guthrie, 2nd son of James, 2nd Lord Duffus, who assumed the surname and arms of Dunbar, and being created a Bart. in 1706, became Sir James Dunbar, of Hempriggs. He m. any dau. of Sir James Guthrie, their marriage were two sons and four daughters. His 2nd son, James, was killed at Carthagena; and the elder,

II. Sir William, succeeded to the title and estates. This gentleman d. in 1743, Elisabeth, dau. of Alexander Dunbar, Esq. of Westfield, by whom he had but one dau., the wife of Capt. Linage.

The founder of this family in Ireland was Col. Henry Prittey, who had a grant or confirmation, from Charles II., of Dunalley Castle, and other estates, in the Co. Tipperary. The grandson of this gentleman, Henry Prittey, Esq., sustained a siege of twenty-one days in his Castle of Dunalley, against the disbanded soldiers of the Royal Army, (James II.) after the battle of the Boyne; but the besiegers at length entering, Mr. Prittie was taken headlong from the top of the castle, but miraculously escaped unhurt. whom (who d. 1807) he has no surviving issue. Sir William z. as 6th Bart., at the decease of his father in 1811.

Lineage.
The Scots' charters preserved in Durham, and the registers of Kelloo, leave us no room to doubt that the Earls of Dunbar and March were descended of Gospatrick, Earl of Northumberland. After Northumberland (one of the seven Saxon Kingdoms) became a Province, the Earls thereof were only official and provincial and not hereditary; and they were often changed at the pleasure of the Sovereign.
The Hon. JOHN DUNBAR, 2nd son of Patrick, Earl of March, and his Countess, the only dau. and heir of Thomas Randolph, Earl of Murray, was created, in 1772, Earl of Murray. His Lordship m. Marion, dau. of Robert III., and from this union lineally descended

V. Elizabeth-Katherine.

The family, a Rear-Admiral, R.N., and distinguished by his gallantry, inherited, as 10th Earl, on the demise of his father, 1 July, 1831.

Lineage.

This family, which derived its surname from the Barony of Cochranie, in the Co. of Renfrew, is of great antiquity in North Britain: and, under the name of Blair, was of baronial rank many centuries previously to its attaining the honor of the Peerage.

Warran de Cochrane, in the reign of ALBRECHT III., was witness to the grant made by Duagalt, the son of SWAN, and Walter Cumming, Earl of March, of sundry lands in the Co. of Argyll, and his successor.

WILLIAM DE COCHRANE, performed homage to EDWARD I. From this person descended Wm, de Cochrane, who erected, from the foundation, the ancient seat of Cochrane, and ornamented it with extensive plantations. This gentleman left by his wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Montgomery, of Shelborne, Co. Ayr, an only dau.,

ELIZABETH COCHRANE, who m. Alexander, younger son of John, m. 18th March, 1770, of which

ALEXANDER BLAIR assumed the surname and arms of Cochrane. Of this marriage there were seven sons and three daus. The eldest son,

Sir JOHN COCHRANE, a Col. in the Army of CHARLES I., dying without issue, was s. by his brother,

William Cochrane, of Cowdon, Kt., who was elevated to the Peerage, 27 Dec., 1647, as Baron Cochrane of Dundonald; and advanced, 12 May, 1699, to the dignity of EARL OF DUNDONALD: being at the same time created Lord Cochranie of Paisley and Ochilworth, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the eldest of his heirs female, without division, who should bear or assume the name and arms of Cochrane, and, in failure, to his heirs general. His Lordship m. Euphemia, daughter of Sir William Scott, of Ardross, Co. Fife, by whom he had (with a dau., Giselle, m. to George, 10th Lord Ross), 6 Helen, m. to John, 12th Earl of Sutherland.

7 Jane, m. 1st, to John, 1st Viscount Dundie, and, 2ndly, to William, 3rd Viscount Killyton.

8 John, (Sir) of Ochiltrie, this gentleman having been concerned in the Kye-House plot, was compelled to seek an asylum in Holland during the reign of CHARLES II.; but afterwards residing Scotland (1685) under Argyll, they estates were confiscated, and, being made prisoner with his son, John, he was ignominiously conducted by the haussman, bound and bareheaded, to the Tolbooth of Edinbugh. His life was however spared, and his lands were restored to him after the Revolutions. Sir John m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Strickland, of Boytona, in the Co. of York (one of COWSHELL'S Lords of Parliament), and was s. by his elder son,

Lineage.

This and the noble house of Fingall claim a common ancestor in

SIR CHRISTOPHER FLUKE, Knt., who was Deputy-Governor of Ireland, under Sir Thomas Stanley, Lord-Deputy, in 1432, and, subsequently, under Richard, Duke of York. He m. Joan, dau. and sole heir of Sir Lucas Caspar, Knt., Lord of Killeen and Dunsmury, by whom he had, with other children, John, ancestor of the Earl of Fingall, who inherited the Lordship of Killeen, and

CHRISTOPHER, that of Dunsmury, of which he was created Baron by writ, 17th Henrv VI. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of Richard Fitzgerald, of Ballyson, Co. Kildare, younger son of Maurice, 3rd Earl of Kildare, by whom he had four sons, and s. by the eldest, RICHARD, 2nd Baron, who m. Joan, dau. of Sir Rowland Fitx-Eustace, Lord-Treasurer of Ireland, in 1474, and Lord-High-Chancellor, in 1474; and was s. by his only son.

JOHN, 3rd Baron, K.G. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. of Hussey, feudal Baron of Galtrino, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 4th Baron. This nobleman was slain by the rebel O'Connell, in 1821, and was s. by his son (by Anne, dau. and heir of Philip Bingham),

HORATIO, 5th Baron, who was one of the Peers of the Parliament, held at Dublin, in 1541, when he was ranked, immediately after his kinsman, Lord Killeen. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of William Darcy, of Platan, Knt., Vic-Water-warden of Ireland, by whom he had four sons and nine daughters. He m. 2ndly, Genet, dau. of William Sarfeld, Alderman of Dublin, and widow of Mr. Alderman Shillenford, by whom he had two other sons. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

PATRICK, 9th Baron, who received the present title of confirmation, from James I., of the several castles of Dunsmay, Corbally, &c. His Lordship was subsequently summoned to Parliament, in Charles I., and suffered considerably in the cause of that unfortunate Prince. A short time before the year 1614, the Lords-Justices had supplied the Lords of the pale with arms, but suddenly recalled them, which occasioned much discontent among the Catholic Lords, who, having assembled, appointed Lord Dunsmay to assure the Justices of their attachment and loyalty, and of their readiness to co-operate in every measure that could be conducive to the peace of the country. The Lords-Justices, however, took no further notice of this proffered service, than by confining his Lordship in the Castle of Dublin, where he remained for several years; but, on the restoration of Charles II., he again took his seat in the House of Lords, and continued to sit until 1695. His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of Sir Thomas Henage, of Hayton, Co. Lincoln, and was s. at his decease by his grandson, CHRISTOPHER, 10th Baron, (son of the Hon. Christopher Plunkett, by Catherine, 4th dau. of Randall, 1st Earl of Antrim,) at whose decease, 1732, the barony devolved upon his brother,

DUN

1. RANDALL, 11th Baron. This nobleman adhering to the falling fortunes of his legitimate sovereign, James II., was outlawed in 1691, but being included in the treaty of Limerick, his estates were restored; neglecting, however, the forms necessary to re-establish himself in the privileges of the Peerage, neither his Lordship nor his immediate descendants had a seat in the House of Lords. He m. 1st, Anne, relict of Theobald, 1st Earl of Carniford, and dau. of Sir William Penshall, but by that lady he had no issue. He wedded 2ndly, in 1711, Bridget, only dau. of Richard Fleming, Esq. of Stalhamock, Co. Meath, (by his 1st wife) and dying 16 March, 1725, left an only son,

EDWARD, 12th Baron. This nobleman conformed to the established church, but took no step to confirm the Barony, and his right to a seat in the House of Peers. His Lordship m. Mary, eldest dau. of Francis Allen, Esq. of St. Wolstan's, Co. Kildare, M.P. for that shire, (see Burke's Peerage, Vol. II. page 364,) and had with two daus., Bridget, wife of Hugh McGuire, Esq. of Kelston and Rose, of the Margues de Carouphelit, an only son, his successor in 1781.

RANDALL, 13th Baron, b. in March, 1729-9, who claimed, in 1791, and was allowed his seat in Parliament. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret, widow of Edward Manesdale, of Ballyson, Co. Tipperary, and dau. of Edward Archdeacon, Esq. Co. Kilkenny, by whom (who d. 13 Sept., 1791), he had issue,

Mr. Lamington, representative in Parliament for the Co. of Durham, whose family had sustained the highest rank for centuries among the commoners of England, was elevated to the Peerage, as BARON DURHAM, 29 Jan., 1826, and advanced to the higher dignities 15 March, 1833. Lord Durham is a Privy-Councillor, and now his Majesty's Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburg.

Lineage.

In Surtees' History of the County of Durham, the following passage occurs:—"No earlier owners of Lamington are on record than the ancient and honourable family, which still bears the local name. The regular pedigree can only be traced from the twelfth century, many of the family records being destroyed in the Civil Wars; but the previous residence of the family is well proved by attestation of charters and incidental evidence, from a period very nearly approaching the Norman Conquest." Robert or Lamont, Feudal Lord of Lamont Castle, Co. Durham, died in 1330: and from him linearly descended (the 8th in succession),

John Lamont, Esq. of Lamont, b. in 1548. This gentleman, m. EDMONSTONE.

EDMONSTONE, Sir Archibald, of Duntreath, Co. Stirling; b. 12 March, 1795; s. to the title, as 3rd Bart., upon the demise of his father, 1 April, 1821; m. 10 Oct., 1822, his cousin Emma, dau. of Rundle Wilbraham, Esq. of Rodle Hall, Co. Chester.

Lineage.

The family of Edmonstone is of great antiquity in North Britain. It dates its origin upon the latter end of the 11th century. Among the many foreigners who attended Margaret, dau. of Edgar Athelney, into Scotland, in 1069, and who afterwards rose to distinction, was Edmund, supposed to be a younger son of Count Ermont, of Flanders. This Edmundus obtained a grant of land in the Co. Edinburgh, to which he gave his name, and those lands called Edmundston, thus became the distinctive appellation of the family.

Sir John Edmonstone, Knt., had several charters of land, temp. David II., A.D. 1310. His son,

Sir John Edmonstone, Knt., esposed the Princess, Isabel Stewart, dau. of Robert II., and widow of James Earl of Douglas and Marn, who fell at the battle of Otterbourne. By this lady he left two sons, Sir David Edmonstone, his successor, from whom derived the Edmonstones of Edmon, the chief branch of the family, but lately extinct; and another son,

Sir William Edmonstone, Knt., of Culloiden, the eldest of the family of Duntreath, who (having obtained a Papal dispensation) his 1st cousin, Mary, Countess Dowager of Angus; (in whom he was fourth husband,) dau. of Robert III., King of Scotland. James II. conferred a grant of the lands and Barony of Duntreath, upon Sir William Edmonstone, and the Countess of Angus, by a charter bearing date 1432. This, which had previously been a part of the forfeited estate of the Earls of Lennox, has ever since remained the chief seat of the family. Sir William d. in 1465, and s. by his son,

William, of Culloiden and Duntreath, who was nominated one of the Lords of Session, by James III. in 1461, and the following year. From this eminent person we pass to his lineal descendant,

Sir James Edmonstone, Knt., who was constituted, in 1576, Justice-Deputy under the Earl of Argyll, the Justice-General. This gentleman, with others, was indicted for high treason, and convicted, but pardoned, although his accomplices suffered. From Sir James descended in a direct line,

1. Archibald Edmonstone, Esq. (eldest son of Archibald Edmonstone, Esq. by Anne, dau. of the Hon. John Campbell, of Mammore, grantor of Archibald, Earl of Argyll, and niece of Archibald 1st Duke of Argyll,) who was created a Bart. 5 May, 1774. Sir Archibald represented the Co. Lineage.

The first member of this family who settled in Ireland was

Richard Perceval, eldest son of George Perceval, Esq., Lord of Tykenham and Rolleston, by Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Edward Bankfylde, of Pittomrle, Co. Devon.) The life of this ultimately successful person was chequered and eventful, in no ordinary degree. He was b. in 1568, and educated at St. Paul’s school, then the most celebrated seminary in England, whence he was sent to Lincoln’s Inn, to acquire some general idea of the law, esteemed, in those days, an accomplishment of the highest description. In both his person and manners he was brilliant, but his conduct dissipated and disorderly, so much so indeed, that he incurred the displeasure of his father, who, upon his marriage with Joan, dau. of Henry Young, Esq. of Huchorn Weston, Co. Dorset, entirely abandoned him, observing, that “he had not himself by his own means recovered himself by his wits. Thus unnaturally cast off, Mr. Perceval found means, by the credit of his reversionary estates, and the assistance of his friends, to maintain himself several years; during which time he had three sons and two daughters; but at length, through a failure of resources, and the increasing expenses of his family, he was obliged to quit the kingdom, and travelled into Spain, where he remained about four years. Being then informed of his wife’s death, he returned to England, hoping, now that the principal cause of his father’s displeasure had been removed, he might again recover his good opinion; but that hope proving delusive, his relations, and particularly Roger Cave, Esq. of Stamford, who had married the Lord Treasurer Burghley’s sister, engaged on his side, and, by that gentleman’s means, he contrived an acquaintance with Lord Burghley, who, being pleased with his talents, and moved by his misfortunes, and having endeavoured, in vain, to procure a reconciliation with his father, determined to promote his fortune by employing him in the management of those affairs which he considered as the greatest trust and secrecy. Thus he continued till the year 1595, when, whilst the Court of Spain was meditating the Armada, an English ship succeeded in taking, from a Spanish vessel, letters from the Low Countries, which, by intimacies and communications, were known to be the secret letters of the Earl of Southwell. Those letters being brought to Lord Burghley, were laid by his Lordship before Queen Elizabeth, in Council; but the contents being in cipher, the Lord-Treasurer proposed that the papers should be entrusted to this Richard Perceval, who returned them the next day after they were placed in his hand, to her majesty in person, deciphered, translated, and fairly transcribed, in Spanish, Latin, and English. This was the first certain intelligence of the Spanish design, and Perceval was admitted instantly into the Queen’s favour, and, from that moment, his road to honour and fortune was open and unimpeded. Having subsequently filled the office of Secretary of the Court of Wards in England, for several years, he was nominated, in 1616, Registrar of the Court of Wards in Ireland, where, after obtaining considerable landed property, he d. in 1629, and was b. by his second wife, Alice, dau. of John Sherman, Esq. of Ottery St. Mary’s, Co. Devon.)

Sir Philip Perceval, Knt., a very distinguished Statesman, who, having been actively employed in the government of Ireland for a series of years, obtained grants of several extensive tracts to the extent of one hundred and one thousand statute acres. He m. Catherine, grandaunt, of Sir William Usher, Clerk of the Council, and dau. of Arthur Usher, Esq., by his wife Judith, dau. of Sir Robert Newcomen, of Moystown, Co. Longford, and, dying 10 Nov., 1647, was b. by his eldest son,

1. Sir John Perceval, Knt., who was created a Baronet of Ireland, 29 April, 1661, by patent containing this remarkable clause, that “the eldest son, or grandson, shall exist a baronet, after the age of twenty-one years, at the same time with the father or grandfather.” He m. Catherine, dau. of Robert Southwell, Esq. of Kingsale, by whom he had four sons and two daughters. Sir Robert, John, Charles, Catherine, and Helen. Sir John d. at the age of thirty-six, 1 Nov. 1665, and was b. by his eldest son,

2. Sir Philip, who d. unm., 11 Sept. 1690, when the title devolved upon his brother, the third son of the first Bart. (the second son Robert having been assassinated, 5 June, 1677, in the Strand, London, by some unknown assassin who was never discovered).

Sir John. This gentleman d. 29 April, 1696, of a contagious distemper caught from the prisoners at the assizes of Cork, where he had been officiating as Foreman of the Grand Jury. He left three sons and two daughters by his lady, Catherine, dau. of Sir Edward Dering, Bart. of Surname, Kent, and was b. by his eldest son,

3. Sir Edward, who d. at his tenth year, in 1611, when the title devolved upon his brother,

Sir John, who, after becoming a Privy-Councilor of Ireland, and sitting for several years in the Irish House of Commons, was elevated to the Peerage of that kingdom, by patent, dated 6 Nov., 1724, as Baron Perceval of Burton, Co. Cork, with limitation to the heirs male of his father; and 23 Feb., 1729, his Lordship was created Viscount Perceval of Kinturk, also in the Co. of Cork, with the annual fee of twenty marks, payable out of the Exchequer, attached, to support his mansion. In 1727, Sir John obtained a charter, to Colonise the Province of Georgia, in America, and being nominated President thereof, was advanced to an Earlom in the Peerage of Ireland, by patent, dated, 6 Nov., 1730, as Earl of Egmont. His Lordship m. in 1710, Catherine, eldest dau. of Sir Philip Parker A’Morley, Bart. of Erwarton, Co. Suffolk, by whom he had surviving issue,

The Earl of Egmont having filled some offices at the Court, and being sworn of the Privy Council, was enrolled amongst the Peers of England, 7 May, 1782, by the title of Lord Lovel, *

* This Lady’s brother, Sir Philip Parker A’Morley Long, Bart., who d. b. in 1740, was the last male heir of the Lords Morley, a barony (created by summans to William de Morle, in the 26th of Edward 1.), which came into the family by the marriage of Sir William Lovell, 3rd bart. to Leonard, the Viscount Beauchamp to Richard III., with Alice, Baroness of Morley, dau. of William Lovell, Lord Lovell, second son of William, Lord Lovell, of Tichmerche, Barun of Lovell and Holland, &c. (See Burn’s Extinct Peerages).
EGREMONT.

EGREMONT, EARL OF (George O'Brien Wyndham, F.R.S., and F.S.A.), Baron Cockermouth, both in the Co. Cumberland, and a Bart. d. & 19 Dec., 1731; s. to the honours as 3rd Earl, upon the demise of his father, 21 Aug., 1763. His Lordship is Lord-Lieut. and Custos Rotulorum and Vice-Admiral of the Co. Sussex.

Lineage.

This noble family deduces its descent from Alicewardus, an eminent Saxon, of the Co. Norfolk, who, being possessed of an estate there, in Wyndham (subsequently called Wyndham), assumed, soon after the Norman Conquest, the surname of Wyndham. From this person lineally descended

SIR JOHN WYNDHAM, who was in the battle of Stoke anno 1647, against the Earl of Lincoln, Lambert Simnel, and their adherents, and was Knighted immediately after the victory: hut being afterwards engaged in the interest of the House of York, he was condemned for high-treason, and behaded with Sir James Tyrrell, Lieut. of Guisnes Castle, 17th Hanov. Mr. Bruce had issue, Robert, of Blairhall; Edward; Sir George, of Carnock,* and William. The second son,

* Sir George Bruce, of Carnock, settled at Culross, where he established extensive and flourishing coal-works. He also carried on the manufacture of salt to a great extent, and was engaged in a considerable foreign trade. The coal was brought to a distance under the sea, and was shipped at a most under the sea-mark. James VI. visiting Sir George Bruce, and expressing a desire to inspect the coal-works, was conducted through them to the most, to his Majesty's no small dismay at finding himself in the midst of the sea: he was conducted back, however, in a pinnace, and sumptuously entertained by Sir George, at the Abbey of Culross. By those spirited commercial exertions, Sir George Bruce accumulated great wealth. He was M.P. for Culross, and one of the Commissioners appointed by the Parliament of Scotland to treat with a Union with England, in 1604. Sir George m. The Earl d. in 1610, and was s. by his elder son, Edward, 2nd Baron, K.B. His Lordship did not however, long enjoy his honors, being killed in a duel, in 1613, by Sir Edward Sackville, afterwards Earl of Dorset. Dying unmarried, the barony devolved upon his brother,

Edward, 3rd Baron, who was advanced to an Earldom, 21 June, 1633., as Earl of Elgin, with remainder to his heirs male for ever, bearing the name and arms of Bruce, and created an English Peer 13 July, 1640., as Baron Bruce of Whorlton, Co. York. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir Robert Bruce of Schugh, Co. Devon, and, dying in 1663., was s. by his only son, Robert, 2nd Earl, who, for his loyalty, to the Charles's was created, 18 March, 1663-4, Baron Bruce of Bethonby, Co. York; Viscount Bruce, of Amforth, Co. Resforth, and Earl of Abergavenny, 15 March, 1664. His Lordship m. Diana, dau. of Henry, 1st Earl of Stamford, by whom he had eight sons and nine daughters. He d. in 1695, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, Thomas, 3rd Earl of Elgin, and 2nd Earl of Aylestowe. This nobleman m. twice, and had surviving issue, by his first Countess (Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Lord Beauchamp, and heiress of her brother, William, Duke of Somerset).

Charles, his successor.

Elizabeth, m. to George Brudennell, Earl of Cardigan.

The Earl wedded 2ndly, Charlotte, Countess of Saus in Brabant, and had an only dau. Charlotte, m. in 1722, to the Count of Horn, in Germany. He d. in 1741, and was s. by his son,

Charles, 4th Earl of Elgin, and 3rd Earl of Aylestowe, who had been called to the Upper House in the life-time of his father, by writ, (1714) as Lord Bruce of Whorlton, in April, 1746, his Lordship obtained a new patent, creating him Baron Bruce of Tottenham, Co. Wilt, with remainder to his nephew, Thomas-Bruce Brudenell, the youngest son of his sister, Lady Elizabeth, by George, Earl of Carl-gigan. The Earl, however, being without issue, and leaving no surviving male issue, (although he had two sons by his first wife, Lady Anne Saville, eldest dau. and co-heir of William, Marquess of Halifax, and had, besides two sons, Mary, m. to Henry Bridges, Duke of Chandos; and Elizabeth, m. to the Hon. Benjamin Bathurst, son of Allan, Lord Bathurst), the Earldom of Aylesbury, the Viscountcy of Bruce, of Amforth, and the Baronny of Bruce, of Skelton, as well as that of Bruce, of Wrotham, became extinct at his decease, 10 Feb., 1764. The Baronny of Bruce, of Tottenham, devolved upon his nephew, the Hon. Thomas-Bruce Brudennell, already mentioned; and the Scottish honors reverted to his heir general.

Charles Bruce, 9th Earl of Kincardine (see note for Earldom of Kincardine), who then assumed the joint title of Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, His Lordship m. in 1729, Martha, only child of Thomas White, Esq., a Banker in London; by whom he had

1. William- Robert, 1 succession Earl.

II. Thomas, 2 succession Earls.

III. Charles- Andrew, Governor of Prince of Wales Island, b. 19 Nov., 1687, d. 27 Dec., 1747, having m. 1st, 20 May 1769, Anne Maria, eighth dau. of Sir Charles-William Blunt, Bart., by whom (who d. 19 Sept., 1796), he had no issue; and 2ndly, Charlotte-Sophia, only dau. of Thomas Dashwood, Esq., by whom, (who was s. 2ndly, to James Alexander, Esq. of Somerhill,) he left issue,

1. Charles-Dashwood, 3d. in 1765. to Sir William-Richard.

2. Brudenell, 6. in 1804. to Powlett, Gery, Bart., Lieut. in the 3d Bn. of Guards, d. at Poros, 8 Oct., 1829.

Alexander, 2nd Earl. This nobleman took a prominent part in Scottish affairs after the Restoration, and the Government of Scotland was placed, anno 1667, in the hands of his Lordship, the Earl of Tweeddale, and Sir Robert Murray of Lord Kinclaire was appointed an Extraordinary Lord of Session in 1657, and continued in that office until his decease, 9 July, 1666. He m. in 1659, Varouen, dau. of Cornetl Van Arnoon Van Nommeldeky, Lord of Somsmeldyck and Spylek, in Holland, and was s. by his only surviving son,

James, 3rd Earl. The late Lord baring died deeply involved in debt, the estate was brought to a judicial sale, by order of the Court of Session, and purchased, in 1769, by Col. John Erskine, son of Dauvid, Lord Cardrona. The Earl of Kincardine was an eccentric character, and had the misfortune of losing his sight some years before his death, which happened in Nov., 1766, upon hearing a noise that was coming from his Lordship's sister, Lady Mary Cochran, and Sir Alex-

Edmund Bruce of Broonhill, which terminated in favor of the latter (refer to 2nd son of Sir George Bruce, of Carnock), who s. as

Alexander, 4th Earl. This nobleman m. Christian, dau. of Robert Bruce, of Blairhall, and was s. by his eldest son,

John, of Baberton, of whom presently,
James, Sir of Innesmochie, who was appointed a Lord of Session, in 1806. Constituted one of the eight Commissioners of the Treasury called OCTAVIANS, in 1805, appointed Secretary of State in 1808, and continuing to rise in the King's favour, the lands belonging to the Cistercian Abbey of Balmerino, in Fife, were erected into a temporal lordship in favour of himself, his heirs male, and heirs of tailse, and provision, by charter under the Great Seal, dated 29 Feb., 1805-4, and he took his seat accordingly as a Peer in Parliament by the title of Lord Balmerino. His Lordship was eventually tried and convicted of treason for having in his capacity of Secretary of State, obtained surreptitiously the signature of his royal master, James VI., to a letter addressed to Popa CLERMON VIII., soliciting a Cardinal's hat for his kinsman, Drummond, Bishop of Baison. He did not suffer, however, under the conviction. From this nobleman we pass to his descendants, Arthur, 6th Lord Balmerino, the staunch, but ill-fated adherent of the House of Stuart. This nobleman engaged in the risings of 1715, and 1745. In the latter he was made prisoner after the battle of Culloden, and executed for high treason, 18 Aug., 1746, when his honors became forfeited.

The Marquess is a Privy-Counsellor in Ireland; a Custos-natalorum of the Co. Wexford, and of Col. of Militia.

Intrigue.

This very ancient Yorkshire family, whose surname was originally written “Loftus,” is said to be of consideration in that county since the time of Alfred.

Edward Loftus, of Swinsehead, Co. York, left two sons, viz.,

Robert, whose second son,

Adam Loftus, an eminent lawyer, was appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland, in 1619, and created, in 1622, Viscount Loftus of Ely, a dignity which expired with his Lordship’s grandson, Arthur, 3rd Viscount, who d. in 1725, without male issue, when his Monasterovan estate passed to his only son, Jane’s son (by Charles, Lord Moore), Henry, 4th Earl of Drogheda.

Adam.

The younger son,

The Rev. Adam Loftus, accompanied, as Private Chaplain, the Viceroy, Thomas Earl of Sussex, into Ireland, and was consecrated Archbishop of Armagh, 29 Jan., 1623. In Aug., 1627, his Grace was translated to the see of Dublin, and in six years afterwards (1633) he find him Lord Keeper of the Great seal. In 1628, he was constituted Lord High Chancellor of Ireland, and he continued to hold the seals until his decease. His Grace having a principal share in the foundation of Trinity College, Dublin, was appointed by charter, its first Provost, which he resigned in 1634. He m. Jane, eldest dau. of Adam Purdys, Esq. of Lurgan-race, Co. Louth, by whom he had five sons and two daughters, of the former two only issues, namely, the eldest and the fourth. The latter, Sir Thomas Loftus, Knt., was Constable of the Castle of Wicklow, and had the estates of Killyan and Clonard granted to him. He m. Ellen, dau. of Robert Hartpole, Esq. of Warden, in the Queen’s Co., and is a great-great-grandfather of the late General William Loftus, 9th Lieut. of the Tower of London, and Col. of the 2nd Dragoon Guards, who d. in 1831. The Archbishop d. 5 April, 1636, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir Dudley Loftus, of Rathfarnham, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Henry Bagenal, of Newry, and had other issues.

1. Adam, (Sir) whose grandson,

Adam Loftus, of Rathfarnham, was created in 1805, Baron of Rathfarnham, and Viscount Loftus. His Lordship m. Lucia, dau. and co-heir of George Brydges, 6th Lord Chandos, by whom he had an only dau. and heir, Lucia, who m. Thomas, Lord Wharton, and carried the estates into that family, which her son Philip, Duke of Wharton, sold to William Conolly, Esq. Speaker of the House of Commons in Ireland, for £20,000. The Viscount commanded a Regiment for King William, at the siege of Limerick, and fell there, when the honors expired.

2. Nicholas, of Fethard, of whose line we are about to treat.

The 2nd son of Sir Dudley Loftus, Nicholas Loftus, of Fethard, joint clerk of the Pells and of the Treasury in Ireland, m. in 1653, Margaret, dau. and heir of Thomas Cheatham, Esq. of Nuthurst, in Lanckshire, and Hacketstown, Co. Dublin, and, dying in 1660, was s. by his eldest surviving son, ERROL.

ERROL, Earl of (William-George Hay-Carr), and Baron Hay, of Shuline, in the Peenrige of Scotland, one of the Representative Lords; Baron Kilmarnock, of Kilmarnock, Co. Ayr, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Hereditary Lord-High Constable of Scotland, and a Lord of his Majesty's Bedchamber; b. 21 Feb., 1801; s. to the honours upon the demise of his father, 26 Jan., 1819; m. 4 Dec., 1829, Elizabeth Fitzclarence, sister of the Earl of Munster, by whom he has issue,

1. William, Lord Hay, Page of Honor to the King, b. 3 May, 1823.

11. Adelaide Augusta.

111. Agnes Georgina Elizabeth.

IV. A dau., & lately,

His Lordship is the 21st High Constable, and 16th Earl.

Lineage.

The traditional origin of the noble house of Hay is thus related:—In the reign of Kenneth III. anno 590, the Danes, who had invaded Scotland, having prevailed, at the battle of Luncarty, near Perth, were pursuing the flying Scots from the field, when a countryman with his two sons appeared in a narrow pass, through which the vanquished were hurrying, and impeded for a moment their flight. "What," said the rustic, "had you rather be slaughtered by your merciless foes, than dis honorably in the field? Come, rally, rally!" and he headed the fugitives, brandishing his ploughshare, and crying out that help was at hand: the Danes, believing that a fresh army was falling upon them, fled in confusion, and the Scots thus recovered the laurel which they had lost, and freed their country from servitude. The battle being won, the old man, after being known by the name of Hay, was brought to the King, who, assembling a Parliament at Scone, gave to the said Hay and his sons, as a just reward for their valour, so much land on the river Tay, in the district of Gowrie, as a falcon from a man's hand flew over till it settled; which being six miles in length, was afterwards called Errol; and the King being desirous to elevate Hay and his sons from their humble rank in life, to the order of nobility, his Majesty assigned them a coat of arms, which was, argent, three escutcheons, gules, to intimate that the father and two sons had been the three fortunate shields of Scotland. So much for tradition. But the incontrovertible fact is, that the noble houses of Tweeddale and Errol claim a common progenitor in

William de Hay, who obtained a grant of the lands of Errol from William the Lion, and was King's Butler in that Monarch's reign. He espoused Juliana, dau. of Ralph de Soules, Lord of Liddesdale, and had two sons, William, his heir, and Robert, ancestor of the house of Tweeddale. The elder son,

Sir William de Hay, was father of David de Hay, who wedded Helen, dau. of Gilbert, Earl of Strathern, and had two sons, viz.

Gilbert, his heir.

William, from whom spring the Hays of Laws, of Pitttub, &c. (See Burke's History of the Commoners.)

From the elder son, GILBERT, descended

Sir GILBERT de Hay, Lord of Errol, who, adhering to Robert I., obtained from that Prince a grant of divers crown lands, and was created by charter, dated 18 Nov., 1315, Hum Constable of Scotland, to himself and his heirs for ever. The great great great grand son and lineal descendant of the Constable,

William Hay, of Errol, Constable of Scotland, was elevated to the Peerage, 17 March, 1492-3, as Earl of Errol. His Lordship m. Beatrice Douglas, dau. of James, 3rd Lord Dalkeith, and, dying in 1346, was s. by his elder son, Nicholas, 2nd Earl, who d. without issue in 1470, when the honors devolved upon his brother,

William, 3rd Earl. This nobleman m. 1st, Lady Isabel Gordon, dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Huntley, by whom he had

William, his successor,

Thomas, who m. Margaret Logy, heir of Logie- Almonde, in Perthshire, and was subsequently designated therefrom. He had a son,

George, who m. 6th Earl.

John, of Brogasteph.

Beatris, m. to Alexander Keith, son and heir of Sir William Keith, of Innergave.

His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Lady Elizabeth Lesly, eldest dau. of George, 1st Earl of Rothes, and had a dau., Mariana, m. to David, 7th Earl of Crawford. He m. 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of (Andrew) Ker, of Auldtonburn, and relict of Sir James Sandilands. He d. in 1506, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 4th Earl, who m. Elizabeth, youngest dau. of William, 1st Lord Ruthven, and, falling at Flodden Field, 9 Sept., 1513, was s. by his only son,

William, 5th Earl, who m. Lady Helen Stewart, only dau. of John, 3rd Earl of Lennox, and left at his decease on only daughter, Jean, who m. Andrew, 7th Earl of Errol.

His Lordship dying thus without male issue, the honors devolved upon his cousin (refer to Thomas, 2nd son of 3rd Earl),

George Hay, of Logie-Almonde, as 6th Earl. This nobleman m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Alexander Robertson, of Strowan, by Lady Isabel Stewart, niece of James II., by whom he had four sons and a dau. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Helen, dau. of Walter Bruce, of Patrullen, and had another dau. He was s. by his eldest son, Andrew, 7th Earl, who m. 1st, Lady Jane Hay, only surviving child of William, fifth Earl of Errol, and had three sons and a dau. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Lady Agnes Sinclair, dau. of George, 4th Earl of Caithness, and had another son, George, ('Sir) of Killour, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Patrick Cheyne, of Essenholt, and had a son, Andrew, 4th Sir of Killour. This gentleman m. Margaret, sister of George, 1st Lord Kinnaid, and left a son, John Hay, of Killour, who s. as 11th Earl of Errol.
ERR

The Earl d. 1773, and was s. by his eldest son, Francis, 8th Earl, who m. thrice, but had issue by his 2nd Countess, Lady Elizabeth Douglas, youngest dau. of William, Earl of Morton (only). His Lordship d. in 1781, and was s. by his eldest son, William, 9th Earl. This nobleman, who acted as High Constable of Scotland, at the coronation of Charles II., lived in manner so splendid, that he was obliged to dispose of his ancient paternal Lordship of Errol, granted to his ancestors by King William the Lion, and the lands thereunto annexed. He m. Lady Anne Lyon, only dau. of Patrick, 1st Earl of Kinghorn, and, dying in 1746, was s. by his only son.

George, 10th Earl, who d. a.p. in 1747, when the honors passed, under an especial settlement, to his kinsman (refer to George, youngest son of Andrew, 7th Earl), Sir John Hay, of Killour, as 11th Earl. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Drummond, only dau. of James, 3rd Earl of Perth, by whom he had issue,

His Lordship s. to the honors, as 5th Earl, at the decease of his father, 5 March, 1799, and assumed the surname and arms of Cussanbury upon inheriting the estates of his grandfather, the Countess of Coningsby.

Lineage.

The founder of this noble family,

SIR WILLIAM CABEL, Knt., Alderman of London, and Lord Mayor in 1665, attracting, by the immense wealth he had acquired, the notice of Empson and Dudley, the well-known exhorters of HENRY VII., was fined £1400, to which he submitted; but to a second imposition of £2000, in some years afterwards, under the pretense that, during his Mayoralty, he had not duly punished a party brought before him for coining, he demurred, and was committed to the Tower, where he remained until the death of the King. Sir William m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Arundel, Knt. of Lanherm, in Cornwall, and, dying in 1539, was by his only son,

SIR GILES CABEL, Knt. of Raineshall, in Essex, so created for his valor at the sieges of Teveron and Tournay, and the action which ensued at Guinegate, as commonly called the Battle of Spurs. Sir Giles waited on the King (HARRY VII.), in 1549, in the expedition into France, where he and others challenged all gentlemen there, in feats of arms, for four days. He was constable of the Tower of London, and in the 50th of HENRY VIII. This gallant person m. twice, and left issue, by Isabel, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Newton, his 2nd wife (only). EVELYN.

EVELYN, Sir Hubert, of Wotton Place, Co. Surrey; & 31 Jan., 1769, 5th Burt, upon the demise of his brother, 14 May, 1833.

Lineage.

This family flourished originally in the Co. Salop, at a place now called Evelyn, but formerly written Avelyn and Evelyne. From Shropshire it removed to Long Ditton, in Surrey; thence to Harrow-on-the-Hill, Co. Middlesex, temp. Henry IV. and to Kingston, in Surrey, in the reign of Henry VIII.

George Evelyn, Esq., the founder of this branch of the Evelyne, in Surrey, was the first person to bring the art of making gunpowder to perfection in England: and, for the convenience of his works in the neighbourhood, purchased the estate at Wotton. This gentleman left, at his decease, six sons and two daughters. Thomas, the eldest son, was father of Edward, of Long Ditton, who was created a Bar. in 1662, but, dying without issue in 1669, the dignity expired. John, the 2nd son, was father of John, of Gladstone, who created a Bar. in 1699, but, dying without issue, the honor ceased. He (John, the 2nd son) was also father of George Evelyn, Esq., who d. in 1693, and was s. by his only surviving son.

Richard Evelyn, Esq., who m. in 1693, and was s. by his only surviving son.

George Evelyn, Esq., who d. in 1693, and was s. by his eldest son.

George Evelyn, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Surrey; at whose decease, anno, in 1746, the estates devolved upon his brother, John Evelyn, Esq., the elegant and distinguished author of "Silva," and other celebrated literary works. Mr. Evelyn visiting, in 1647, the French capital, and being recommended to Sir Richard Browne, Bart., the King's minister there, m. the only dau. of that gentleman, and, in her right, became possessed of Say's Court, near Deptford, in Kent.

After the Restoration, Mr. Evelyn was most graciously received at Court, and upon the establishment of the Royal Society, about the close of the year 1662, he was appointed one of the first Fellows and Council thereof. In 1669, he was honored with the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws, by the University of Oxford.

After the Revolution, he was Treasurer of Greenwich Hospital, and, though far advanced in years, wrote some pieces, and translated others, which will confer imperishable fame upon himself and his country. The period of this learned person's life and labours terminated almost together: as he died soon after he had prepared the 4th edition of his "Silva" for the press, in the 80th year of his age, 27 Feb., 1706.

Bishop Burnet styles him a most ingenious and virtuous gentleman; and informs us that he was not satisfied to have advanced the knowledge of his age, by his most useful labours, about planting and divers other ways; but he was ready to contribute everything in his power to perfect other men's endeavours. Mr. Evelyn was s. by his only surviving grandson,

1. John Evelyn, Esq., who was created a Bar., 6 Aug., 1713. Sir John was one of the Commissioners of Customs, and a Fellow of the Royal Society. He m. in 1756, Anne, dau. of Edward Boscowen, Esq., and had, with other issue,

v. Penelope.

Lineage.

This family is a branch of the noble house of Yver, of Norman extraction: it enjoyed, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, considerable possessions in the vicinity of Chard, in Somersetshire. The first direct ancestor of the present Bart. we find upon record is JOHNS EVANS, of Chaffercombe, Co. Somerset, who held the office of Sergeant-at-Arms to Queen Elizabeth, and was Patron of the Rectory and Parsonage of Chardstock, the imprisonment of which he bequeathed to his eldest son, THE REV. JOHNS EVANS, who inherited in 1689. This John was of St. Mary Magdalen College, Oxford, and took the degree of Master of Arts. He m. Elizabeth, sister of William Lambert, Esq. of Oxford, and continued to reside in that city until his decease, in 1643, when he was a in the Rectory and Parsonage of Chardstock, with other considerable property, by his only son,

I. Simon, Esq., who was created a Bart., 26 May, 1641, and subsequently distinguished himself by his steady adherence to the Royal Cause. He m. Anne, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Leigh, of Egginton, Co. Derby, Knt., and removed his place of residence to that seat by this lady he had issue, EXETER.

EXETER, MARQUESS AND EARL OF (Brownlow Cecil), and Baron of Barghley, Co. Northampton; a Knight of the Garter, Joint Hereditary Grand Almoner to the King in fee, Lord-Lieut. of the Co. of Rutland, and Recorder of the Borough of Stamford; & 2 July, 1733; s. to the honors, as 2nd Marquess, upon the demise of his father, 1 May, 1804; m. 12 May, 1824, Isabella, dau. of William-Stephen Payntou, Esq. of Cowdry, Co. Sussex, and has issue,

1. WILLIAM-ALLINEY, Lord Barghley, b. 30 April, 1825.

3. Mary-Frances.

His Lordship officiated as Grand-Almoner at the Coronation of his Majesty, GEORGE IV.

Lineage.

The surname of this noble family has been spelt at different periods Stiltz, Siceli, Seycell, Cyssel, and Cecil.

WILLIAM CECIL, b. at Bourne, in Lincolnshire, 18 Sept., 1520 (son and heir of Richard Cyssel, an Officer of the Court, in attendance upon HENRY VIII., particularly at the celebrated interview between that Monarch and Francis King of France, upon the Field of the Cloth of Gold, having attracted the attention and attained the subsequent favor of his sovereign, by a successful disputation with two intertempore chaplains of O’Neale, the Irish Chieftain, on the power of the Roman Pontiff, the King granted him a reversion of the office of Custos-brevium; and from that period he resolutely pursued a political, rather than a forensic, course, which latter he had originally intended to adopt, having entered himself at Gray’s Inn, in 1541. In the reign of KOWARVI, Mr. Cecil was appointed Secretary of State, when he received the honor of Knighthood, and was sworn of the Privy-Council. Under the rule of his most illustrious cousin and co-heir, Sir William, with the tact of the renowned churchman of Bray, doffed his protestant mantle, and conformed to the ancient faith; outwards, with his recent Biographer, Dr. Nares;
but certainly so far as engaging a Catholic domestic chaplain, humbling himself at the confessional, and kneeling before the altar of the Real Presence, constitute such a conformation. This outward demonstration proved not to have been assumed toyao, for we find the wily politician enjoying again the sunshine of royal favor, and actually ominated with Lord Paget and Sir Edward Hastings, to conduct Cardinal Pole, then invested with a legatine mission, into England. In this reign Cecil represented the Co. of Lincoln in Parliament. Immediately upon the accession of Elisabeth, however (once more a stanch de-nouncer of Popish errors), the star of his fortune arose, and few statements have been guided through a more brilliant course. His first official employment was the resumption of the Secretary-of-State, and in that, so sensible was his Royal Mistress of his important services, that he was made to the Peerage, by the title of Baron Burghley, in 1571, although at this period his pri-ivate fortune does not appear to have been much advanced, for, by a letter written by himself, just after his elevation, he says, "that he is the poorest Lord in England." A couple of months after his discovery against his licento the two assassins, Barney and Matter, declared, at their execution, that they were instigated by the Spanish Ambassador: for which, and other offences, his Excel-liency was ordered to depart the kingdom. As a conclusion for these perils, the Secretary was again honored with the Order of the Garter, in June, 1572; and in the Sept.
following, at the decease of the Marquess of Winchester, appointed Lord High Treasurer. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1591, Mary, sister of Sir John Cheke, tutor to EwN. VI., whom he had an only son,
THOMAS, his successor.
His first lady dying after a short period, he m. 2ndly, in 1546, Mildred, dau. of Sir Anthony Coke, Knt. of Giddy
Hall, Co. Essex, by whom he had surviving issue, ROBERT, who was created Earl of Salisbury. (See Marquess of Salisbury.)
Anne, Countess of Oxford.
Elizabeth, m. to William, eldest son of Lord Wentworth.
The last memorable act of the Lord-Treasurer's life was an attempt to bring about a peace with Spain, in which he was vehemently opposed by Essex, then in the 5th of his youth. The young soldier becoming heated in the debate, the venerable Minister was induced to pull out a Prayer-Book, and point to the words "Men of blood shall not live half their lives." Burghley has been universally condemned for his participation in the destruction of the unhappy MARY of Scotland—and justly. The whole reign of MARY of England, darkly as it has been depicted, is not stained with a more atrocious deed than the murder of that interesting, lovely, and unfortunate woman. Of the manner of living adopted by this eminent person, we are informed that, suitable to his rank and the custom of the times, he kept up an extraordinary degree of splendour in his houses and gardens, and every thing belonging to him.
He had four places of residence; his lodgings at Court;
his house in the Strand: his family seat at Burghley;
and his own favourite seat at Tresham. At his house in London, he had four score persons in family, exclusively of those who attended him at Court. His expenses there, as we have it from a person who lived many years in his family, were £30 a-week in his absence, and between £40 and £50 while he was at home. At Tresham, with thirty persons in his family; and, besides a constant allowance in charity, he directed £20 a-week to be laid out in keeping the poor at work in his gardens, &c. The expenses of his stables were a thousand marks a-year. He kept a standing table for gentlemen, and two other tables for persons of nearer condition, which were always served alike, whether he entertained strangers, or his own family. Twelve times he entertained the Queen at his house for several weeks together, at the expense of two or three thousand pounds each visit.
At his decease he left about £4000 a-year to land, £11,100 in money, and in valuable effects about £14,000.
His Lordship d. 4 Aug., 1574, and was s. by his older son,
THOMAS, 2nd Baron, who was created Earl of Exeter, 4 May, 1615, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His Lordship m. 1st, Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of John Nevil,
