Lineage.

RICHARD FAIRFAX, of Walton, living temp. Henry VI., m. Anastasia, dau. and heir of John Calthorpe, and had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, of Walton, whose direct descendant (5th in succession),

Sir Thomas Fairfax, of Walton, was created, in 1629, Viscount Fairfax, of Emeley, Co. Tyrone, in the Peerage of Ireland, a dignity that expired with Charles Gregory, Viscount Fairfax, in 1772, when his estates eventually devolved on Charles Gregory Pigott, who assumed the name of Fairfax, and is the present Mr. Fairfax, of Gilling Castle.

Sir Guy Fairfax, of Steeton, who, having served the office of Attorney-General, was appointed one of the Justices of the Court of King's Bench, 20 Sept., 1474. This learned person m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Ryther, of Ryther, and was s. at Steeton Castle, Co. York, which he had erected, by his eldest son,

Sir William, one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, his Lordship m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Robert Manners, Knt., ancestor of the Dukes of Rutland, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

Sir William, who was High Sheriff of the Co. of York, in 1665 and 1667 of Henry VIII. He m. Isabella, dau. and heir of John Thwaits, Esq. of Denton Castle, Yorkshire, by whom he acquired that seat, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

Sir Thomas Fairfax, of Denton, who served the office of Sheriff for the Co. of York, in 1621. Crawford mentions that this gentleman was with the Duke of Bourbon at the sack of Rome, and that his father, being highly offended therewith, settled Steeton on his youngest son, Gabriel. Sir Thomas m. Dorothy, dau. of George Gale, Esq. of Asham Grange, and had, besides two daughters,

Thomas, his successor.

Edward, of Newhall, a poet, the translator of Tasso's Godfrey of Boulogne into English verse, and author of a Treatise on Demodology. He d. in 1633.

Charles, Sir, Col. in the Army, killed at the Siege of Ostend.

Sir Thomas was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Thomas Fairfax, Knt. of Denton Castle, who was created a Peer of Scotland, 10 Oct., 1657, as Baron Fairfax of Cameron. His Lordship m. in 1687, Ellen, dau. of Robert Ashe, Esq., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son, FRONIMANDO, 2nd Baron. This nobleman, at the beginning of the Civil War, was the Parliamentary General for York, and became eminently distinguished. After defeating the Earl of Newcastle, in 1645, Lord Byron, in 1643, and Col. Bellsass, whom he took prisoner, in April, 1644, at Selby, he had the chief command at the battle of Marston Moor, in the July of the same year, and there, defeating the royal army under Prince Rupert, he took possession of the city of York, as Governor. His Lordship m. 1st, Lady Mary Sheffiled, dau. of Edmund, 1st Earl of Mulgrave; and, 2dly, Rhoda, dau. and co-heir of Thomas, Lord of Cholmley. He was a participant in the victory obtained by his father at Selby, and he commanded the right wing of the Parliamentarians at Marston Moor.

In the 34th year of his age, he was appointed General-In-Chief of the Parliament's armies, and soon after routed the King at Naseby, retook Leicester, beat Col. Goring, took Bridgewater, Dartmouth, Bristol, defeated Lord Hopton, forced the Prince of Wales to retire into France, and then, reducing the entire of the West, drove the King from Oxford, in May, 1648; in which year he was made Governor of the Tower of London. After succeeding to the Barony, he reduced Colchester; but he took no part in the subsequent proceedings of the Independents, and was entirely free of any participation in the death of the King. In 1650, he resigned the command of the army to Lord Fairfax, and retired to his estate of 1st, Lordship, coalescing with Monk, assisted zealously in restoring the monarchy, and was one of the Commissioners deputed, upon that occasion, to the King. Soon after this event, Lord Fairfax represented the Co. of York in Parliament; but he, in the latter part of his life in rural retirement, his Lordship m. Anna, dau. and co-heir of Sir Horatio Vere, Lord Vere of Tilbury, by whom he had an only child, Mary, m. George Villiers, 2nd Duke of Buckingham. He d. in 1671, when the Baron devolved upon his cousin, Henry, 4th Baron, grandson of the 1st Lord, through his 2nd son, the Hon. Rev. Henry Fairfax, of Oglethorpe, Co. York, by Mary, dau. of Sir Henry Cholmley. This nobleman m. Frances, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Barwick, of Tolston, Yorkshire, by whom he left two sons,

1. THOMAS, his successor.
2. Henry, of Tolston, Co. York, m. Anna, dau. and co-heir of Richard Harrison, Esq., and had, with other issue,
   2. William, who settled in New England, whence he removed to Virginia, and became manager of his cousin, Lord Fairfax's estates there.
   3. Lord Fairfax's 3rd son, by the elder wife.
3. Thomas, 5th Baron, Col. in the Gda. and M.P. for the Co. of York, which seat he was obliged to relinquish at the Union, upon ceasing to be a Commoner in England. His Lordship m. Catharina, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Colepepper, by whom he had
   1. Thomas, his successor,
   2. Henry, Colepepper, d. unm., in 1734.
   3. Robert, who s. as 7th Lord.

v. Frances, m. to Denny Martin, Esq., and, dying in 1791, left issue,
1. Denny Martin, in Holy Orders, who inherited at the decease of his father, Robert, Lord, Leeda Castle, and the other estates in Kent, when he assumed the name of Fairfax. He d. s.p. in 1800.
2. Philip Martin, Lieut.-Gen., in the Army who

The Baron was s. in 1710, by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 6th Baron. This nobleman inherited, from his mother, a splendid fortune, consisting of several manors in Kent, estates in the Isle of Wight, and a tract of land in Virginia, called the Northern Neck, comprised within the boundaries of the rivers Potowmack and Rappahannock, containing, by estimation, 5,700,000 acres. From his father he inherited Denton Hall, and other property in Yorkshire, but he was obliged by his mother and grandmother to dispose of those, in order to redeem the Colepepper manors. His Lordship had a Commission in the Horse Guards, but visiting his American estates about the year 1738, he was so captivated with the soil, climate, and beauties of Virginia, that he resolved to spend the remainder of his life there; and he soon after erected two mansions, Balvoir and Greenway Court; where he continued ever afterwards to reside in a state of baronial hospitality. His dress was plain and simple, his manners modest and unaffected, and his style of living magnificent. Such was his generosity that he gave up his English estates to his younger brother and Robert, and the surplus of his American income was distributed among his poor neighbours. His principal amusement was hunting; and after the chase he was wont to invite the whole field to partake his hospitality. He had been educated in revolutionary principles, and had imbibed the notions of republican liberty. He was Lieut. and Custos-Rotulorum of Frederick county, and presided at the Provincial Courts at Winchester, where, during the session, he kept an open table. His Lordship d. unm., at Greenway Court, in 1782, when the title devolved upon his eldest son of fourth Lord, to whom it was confirmed by Parliament, in 1783. His Lordship is the present Peer.

FALKLAND, VISCOUNT (Lucretius Cary), of Falkland, Co. Yorke, in the Peerage of Scotland ; Baron Hunsdon, of Scuttarskifie, Co. York, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom ; b. 5 Nov., 1803 ; s. to the dignity, as 9th Viscount, upon the demise of his father, 2 March, 1809 ; m. 27 Dec., 1830, Miss Amelia Fitz-Clarence, and has issue,

A SON and HEIR, b. 24 Nov., 1813.

His Lordship was created an English Peer 16 May, 1852.

Lineage.

For the early descent of the Cary family, refer to Bruna’s Commentaries, Vol. II, p. 33.

Sir John Cary, Knt. of Cockington, Co. Devon, a Baron of the Exchequer in the reign of Richard II., left issue, John, Bishop of Exeter in 1419, and an elder son, his heir,

Sir Robert Cary, Knt. who, among other feats of arms, vanquished an Arragonian Knight in Smithfield, and, as a reward for his valor received the honor of knighthood, and the permission to adopt the armorial ensigns of his defeated rival, namely, an on bend, three roses. The gal-living in such a state of perpetual grief and anxiety. This extreme uncasefulness seems to have hurried him on to destruction. Putting himself into the first rank of Lord Byron's regiment at Newbury, 20 Sept., 1815, he received a musket-shot wound, and, falling from his horse, his body was not found until the next morning. "Thus Falkland died the generous and the just." Lord Clarendon, speaking of Falkland, says that he was a person of so much individual parts, of learning and knowledge, and of that imitable sweetness and delight in conversation, and of so flowing and obliging a humanity and goodness to mankind, and of that primitive simplicity and integrity of life, that, if there were no other brand upon the odious and accursed Civil War, than that single loss, it must be most insufferable to all posterity.

"War, civil war, was raging like a flood, England lay wasting in her own heart's blood; Brother with brother waged unnatural strife, Two passions — virtues they assumed to be— Virtues they were—romantic loyalty, And stern up-bearing patriotism, possessed Divided empire in the nation's breast, As though two hearts should in one body reign, And crave conflicting streams from vein to vein; On either side the noblest spirit fought, And highest deeds on either side were wrought; Hampden in battle, Ralegh in his blood, To murder Falkland joins the immortal dead; The one for freedom perish'd—not in vain, The other falls—a courtier without sin."

His Lordship at one time filled the office of Secretary-off-of-State to Charles II. He m. Letitia, dau. of Richard Morrison, Esq., of Tooley Park, Co. Leicester, and was a, by his only son, Henley, 3rd Viscount. His Lordship represented, after the Restoration, Arundel in Parliament, and was nominated Lord-Lieutenant of the Co. Oxford. He was committed to the Tower during the usurpation, upon suspicion of being concerned in Sir George Booth's rising for the Restoration of Charles II. Lord Falkland was author of the "Marriage Night," a comedy. He espoused Margaret, dau. of Anthony Hungerford, Esq., and dying in 1673, left a son, by his only son, Anthony, 4th Viscount. This nobleman filled some high official situations, during the reigns of Charles II. and William III., but incurred the displeasure of the House of Commons, which resolved, 17 Jan., 1693-4, that Viscount Falkland, one of its members, by begging and receiving £8000 from his Majesty, contrary to the ordinary method of issuing and bestowing the King's money, was guilty of a high misdemeanor and breach of trust, and that he be committed to the Tower. His Lordship m. Rebecca, dau of Sir Rowland Lyttelton, of Knebeworth, Herts, and, dying in 1694, left issue, a son, John, M. to John Villiers, 1st Earl of Grandison, and a son and successor.

1 Elizabeth, m. to Jef. 2 Catherine, m. to Sir Ferey, 1st Lord Amberst, John Russel, Bart. and d. 27 May, 1800.

The Viscount wedded, 2ndly, Laura, dau. of Arthur Dillen, and sister of the Viscounts (Charles and Henry) Dillon, and of Arthur, Arch-bishop of Nachbume, by whom he had an only dau., w. M. Lieut.-Gen. Comte de Rothe, Col. of the Irish regiment of Rohan, in the service of the King of France, and d. 9 Feb., 1804. His Lordship d. in 1730, and was s. by his eldest son, Lucius-Charles, 6th Viscount. This nobleman m. 1st, 4 Alteria-Augusta, m. to Samuel Charters, Esq. 2 Lucia, m. to Major John Grattan, late of the 10th Regt., Adjutant Gen. to his Majesty's Forces in India. 3 Lavinia-Matilda. The Viscount espoused, 2ndly, Sarah, Duchess Dowager of Suffolk, and dau. of Thomas Innew, Esq. of Southwark. He d. in 1785, and was s. by his eldest grandson, Henry-Thomas, 7th Viscount, who d. unm. in 1797, when the dignity devolved upon his brother, Charles-John, 8th Viscount, Capt. R. N. His Lordship m. in 1803, Miss Carolina Aiton, by whom (who d. 25 July, 1822) he had issue.

Lucius, the present Viscount. Plantagenet-Pierrepont, R. N., 6th Sept., 1806.

The Viscount was mortally wounded, in a duel, by A. Powell, Esq., 28 Feb., 1809, and d. in two days afterwards.

Lineage.

The very ancient and honorable family of Shirley has had the good fortune to have been illustrated by an historical narrative, compiled by a distinguished member of its own house. Sir Thomas Shirley, of Botolph's Bridge, Co. Huntingdon, composed three distinct MS. histories of the Shirleys, all of which are preserved in the British Museum.

Sir Ralph D' Shirley, in the 7th year of Edw. I. held the manor of Etenendon, Co. Warwick, of Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, the King's brother, by the service of two knights' fees. In the 20th of the same reign, he had the customs of the Co. Salop and Stafford, with the Castle of Shrewsbury committed to his charge, and was Sheriff of the Co. Derby and Nottingham, in the 27th, 28th, and 30th, of the same Kig. In the 3rd Edward II. he was constituted one of the Justices of the Co. Warwick for the goal delivery, and in two years afterwards was elected to Parliament for that County. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Walter de Waldstein, of Fairfield, Co. Derby, cup-bearer to Edward II.; and dying in 1327, was s. by his son,
Sir Thomas Shirley, Knt. M.P. for the Co. Warwick, in the 14th year of Edward III. This Sir Thomas is said to be "the great founder of the family of Shirleys, famous in his time for his valor, and for the many services, &c. rendered to the Kings of England against the French." He m. Isabel, grandn. of Ralph, Lord Basset, of Drayton, and eventually heir of her brother Ralph, the last Lord Basset, of that line (since whose decease that Barony has been in abeyance.—see Brun's 'Extinct Peerage'), and, dying in 1362, was s. by his son, Ralph Shirley, Constable of Melbourne Castle, and of the Castle in the Peak of Derbyshire; m. 1st. Margaret, dau. and sole heir of John de Staunton, of Staunton Harold, Co. Leicester, by whom he had an only son, Joan, his successor. He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Blount, Knt., and sister of Walter Blount, Lord Mountjoy, by whom he had Ralph Shirley, Esquire of the Body to Henry V. He m. 3rdly, Lucia, dau. of Sir John Aston, of Atherstone, widow of Sir John Byron, and of Sir Barton Entwistle. He was s. by his elder son, John Shirley, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Hugh Wulfloughby, of Wollaton, Co. Notts, and, dying in 1405, was s. by his son, Stephen Shirley, Esq., Sheriff of the Co. of Warwick, and in the 4th year of Philip and Mary. This gentleman m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Gifford, of Chillington, Co. Stafford, and widow of John Conrere, Esq. He d. in 1571, and was s. by his grandson, George Shirley, Esq. of Staunton Harold (son of John Shirley, Knt. by his 2nd wife, Dorothy, dau. and heir of Thomas Lovett, Esq. of Awstall, Co. Northampton), who was created a Bart. at the first institution of that dignity, 29 May, 1611, being the 4th in order of precedence. Sir George m. Frances, dau. of Henry, Lord Berkeley, by Katherine, dau. of the famous Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey; and, dying 27 April, 1623, was s. by his eldest surviving son, Sir Henry. This gentleman m. in 1615, Dorothy, youngest dau. of Queen Elizabeth's accomplished but unfortunate favorite, Robert, Earl of Essex, and one of the co-heirs of her brother, Robert, Earl of Essex, the celebrated Parliamentarian General; (by this alliance, the Earls of Ferrers quarter the arms of France and England with their own: the Earl of Essex having descended, maternally, from Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge, grandson of Edward III.) Sir Henry d. 1632, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir Charles, then in his ninth year. This gentleman d. unm. in 1644, when the title devolved upon his brother, Sir Walter Shirley, who was committed to the Tower by the Unhappy Cromwell, and there ended his life in captivity, not, however, without suspicion of poison, leaving two sons and two dau., by his wife, Catherine, dau. of Humphrey Okeover, of Okeover, Co. Stafford, Esq.; the elder of whom was: Sir Samuel, s. to the title, and m. Diana, dau. of Robert, Earl of Aylesbury, by whom he left an only son, who, as 6th Bart., but survived his father a short period, when the title reverted to Sir Robert (sir Samuel's brother), who had been previously enfranchised. This gentleman being grandson and heir of Lady Dorothy Devereux, the younger of the two sisters and heirs of Robert Devereux, last Earl of Essex, of that family, and the issue of the elder sister becoming extinct, his Majesty Charles II. was graciously pleased, 14 Dec., 1667, to terminate the abeyance of the ancient Baronies of Ferrers of Chartley, Bourchier, and Lovaine, in his favour; these Baronies being so situated since the decease of the abovementioned Robert, last Earl of Essex. Sir Robert Shirley became thus Lord Ferrers, of Chartley, &c. His Lordship was of the Privy-Council of King William and Queen Anne, and was created, by the latter Sovereign, 3 Sept., 1711, Viscount Tamworth, and Earl Ferrers. Lineage.

This family is of Saxou origin, and was seated at Fetherston, in Northumberland, before the Conquest; that part of the county having been allotted to its progenitor, a Saxon officer, for his gallant conduct against the Britons.

The surname is said to have been thus derived: The house in which the family resided was formerly upon a hill (where were two stones, called fether stones), and was moated round as a barrier against the Scots; but, upon being destroyed, a new edifice was erected on a small or valley under the hill, which valley was locally denominated a haugh, and thence the appellation of "Fetherstonhaugh."

The family of Fetherstonhaugh was first raised to the dignity of Bart. in 1699, in the person of HENNAS, grandson of CUTHBERT FETHERSTONHAUGH, of Hatherly Clough, in the parish of Stanhope, Co. Durham, who settled in London towards the latter end of the 16th century. The honor, however, expired with his last surviving son and heir,

Sir HENRY FETHERSTONHAUGH, who enjoined his heir-at-law to obtain a revival of the same, which he did. L. MATTHEW FETHERSTONHAUGH, Esq. of Fetherstonhaugh Castle, Co. Northumberland, was created a Bart., 3 Jan. 1747. Sir Matthew m. 24 Dec. 1746, Sarah, only dau. of Christopher Letheley, Esq. of Belmont, Co. FIN

EARL OF FINGAL. 26 Sept., 1698, JAMES I. preluding
the honor by a most flattering letter, dated Westminster, 28 June, in that year, beginning thus:—"That having re-eceived good testimonies of the virtuous and many good parts of the person of his said well-beloved subject, the Lord Baron Killeen, being one of the ancient nobility of Ireland, his Majesty was pleased," &c. &c. This His Lordship s. four times, and had issue by his 2nd marriage with Susannah, 16th dau. of Edward, Lord Brabazon (only), of which,

CHRISTOPHER, the eldest son, succeeded to the honors.
Georgine, dau. in 1691, for the marriage of the eldest brother with Susannah, and was s. by his son,

JAMES, who s. 1st, Catherine, dau. of Edward Plunket, of Loughcrew, and niece of Oliver Plunket, Titular Primate of all Ireland, in 1691, a cler-gyman of great virtues and ability, who fell a victim in the times in which he lived, being most unjustly executed in 1681, as one of the conspirators in the pretended Popish plot. By this lady he had a dau., Mary, m. to William O'Mara, of Kilcull, 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Robert Cusack, Esq. of Jer-town, Co. Meath, and had with other issue,

ROBERT, who s. as 6th Earl.

His Lordship d. in 1697, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, having been made prisoner at the battle of Rathmee, d. in the Castle of Dublin fourteen days afterwards, A.D. 1649, and was s. by his son, (by Mabel, dau. of Nicholas, Viscount Kingsland.)

LUCAS, 3rd Earl, who was restored to his estates and honors, by the Court of Claims, and was s. at his decease
by his only son,

FEDERICK, 4th Earl. This nobleman was outlawed, by the name of Luke, in 1601, for his loyalty to his legitimate sovereign James I., but the outlawry was reversed in six years afterwards, A.D. 1607. His Lordship m. Frances, 3rd dau. of Sir Edward Hales, Bart., and, dying 24 Jan.,

JUSTIN, his successor.

MARGARET, m. to J. Nugent, of Coolambar, Esq.
EMILIA, m. to Robert, Earl Nugent.
MARY, m. to Maurice O'Conor, Esq. of Mount Pleasant, King's Co.

His Lordship was s. by his only son,

JUStIN, 5th Earl, who d. in 1723, without issue, and in-testate, and was s. in his titles and estates by his cousin and heir male,

ROBERT, 6th Earl, (refer to George, 2nd son of Lucas, lst Earl), who enjoyed the honors without opposition or question, on the part of the three dau. and heirs lineal of Peter, 4th Earl. In about a century afterwards, however, the grandson of the youngest dau., Maurice O'Conor, Esq., m. dau. of the Baron of Killeen, as a Barony created by writ, and as such inheritable through females.
Like all other claims of the same nature, it has been unsuccessful, though brought forward at a time when the feelings of the Irish Government were violently excited against the Earl of Fingall. Robert, 6th Earl of Fingall, was a Captain in Berwick's regiment, in the service of France. He m. Mary, dau. of Roger Magenis, Esq., and dying in 1738, was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR-JAMES, 7th Earl, then in his seventh year. His Lordship m. in 1756, Henrietta-Maria, only dau. and heir of William Woolscot,* Esq. of Wolscot, Co. Berks, by whom (who d. 12 March, 1806) he had issue,

* William Woolscot is supposed by the Rev. Thomas Wharton, in his "History and Antiquities of Bridgdon," to be of the same family as the Wellescots or Wellescotons, who formerly held that manor. "Of the name of Wellescote," says Sir Robert, who s. as 6th Earl of Wellescot, "there is," says Mr. Wharton, "a family seated at Woolscot, near Newbury, in Berkshire. They write Woolscote. The last heir, as I suppose, intermarried with the Earl of Fingall, an Irish peer, within these last twenty years (1738) who is now living in that place.

* The writs of summons as taken from the ancient close rolls in Ireland will be found in a recent legal work on Irish titles * Case Illustrative of the Law and Usage of the Prescriptive Barones of Ireland, as distinguished from other titles, and copies of writs peculiar to England," by William Lynch, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, London. Sweet, Chancery Lane, 1890.
Fitzgerald, Sir James, of Castle Ishen, Co. Cork, inherited the title at the decease of his father; m. 27 Sept., 1826, Augusta, second dau. of the late Vice-Admiral Sir Thomas Freeman, and sister of the present Sir Thomas Francis Freeman, Bart., by whom he has issue, Sir James is the 8th Bart., in succession, but the 3rd only in the enjoyment of the dignity.

Lineage.

This ancient family descends from Gerald Fitzgerald, surnamed M'Carril, from whom also sprang the extinct house of Fitzgerald, Earls of Desmond. Thus—His son, Maurice, was father of Thomas Fitzgerald, who had two sons, Maurice, created Earl of Desmond, and John Fitzgerald, of Callan, first Lord of Clegnish, whose son, John, married Fitzgerald, was father of Gerald Fitzgerald, of Clegnish, whose son, Maurice Fitzgerald, was ancestor of Thomas Fitzgerald, Lord and owner of Clegnish, Co. Limerick, who m. Mary, dau. of Cormack M'Dermot M'Carthay, Esq. of Muskerry, Co. Cork, and had issue, Edmund, his successor. Maurice. Eleanor. Ellen.

Mr. Fitzgerald d. in 1635, and was s. by his elder son,

1. Sir Edward Fitzgerald, Knt. of Clegnish, who was created a Baronet of Ireland, 8 Feb., 1644.
Edmund m. Honora, dau. of James Fitzgerald, grandson of John, 11th Earl of Desmond, of that family, by whom he had an only son, Maurice. Sir Edmund, during the revolutionary times of the Commonwealth, buried his Castle of Cloghlish, to prevent its falling into the hands of the Rebels, and raised and maintained, at his own expense, a regiment of horse, in support of the Royal Cause. After the Restoration, he presented a petition to Charles II., praying to be reinstated in the property of which Cromwell had deprived him; but the Act of Settlement having passed, his petition was in vain. In consequence of the destruction of the Castle of Cloghlish, the Baronet established himself at the Castle of Ishen, Co. Cork, which, with considerable estates in that county, as well as in Kerry and Tipperary, are still in possession of the present Bart. Sir Edward was s. at his decease, by his son,

(II. Sir) MAURICE, who, in consequence of the diminution of the family estates, never assumed the family dignity. This gentleman m. Lady Honora McCarthy, dau. of the Earl of Charlcote, and was s. by an only son,

(III. Sir) GABINET, who, acting by the same motive as his father, declined assuming the title. He m. Catherine, 4th dau. of Connor O'Brien, 2nd Viscount Clare, of that family, by whom he had an only son, his successor,

(IV. Sir) JAMES. This gentleman declined also assuming the title. He m. Conyngham, dau. of Thomas Fitzgerald, 1st of Kerry, and was s. at his decease by his son,

(V. Sir) MAURICE, who refused, likewise, the assumption of the title. Mr. Fitzgerald m. Helen, dau. of Walter, son of Richard Butler, Esq. of Kilcash, by whom he had,

Richard,
Mary, who m. three: 1st, in 1731, Justin, 5th Earl of Fingall; 2ndly, in 1735, Valentia, Viscount Kenmare; and 3rdly, Lord Bellow.

Maurice Fitzgerald was s. at his decease by his only son,

(VI. Sir) RICHARD, who resumed the family dignity, and had his right acknowledged, and confirmed by the College of Arms in Ireland, 18 Nov., 1780. Sir Richard m. Johanna, only dau. and heir of James Trent, Esq. of Dingle, Co. Kerry; by whom he had an only son, his successor, (VII. Sir) JAMES. This gentleman m. Bridget Ann, dau. of Robert Dalton, Esq. of Thurham Hall, Co. Lancaster, by his 3rd wife, Bridget More, of Barnborough Hall, Haldenbury Park, in Yorkshire, and who was the heiress of that lineal descendant of the celebrated Chancellor, Sir Thomas More. Lineage.

In 1658, Hugh Fitz William, Esq. of Sprotborough, Co. York, collected the records of his family, and from these records the following particulars are partly deduced.

Sir William Fitz Godec, cousin to King Edward the Confessor, left a son and heir,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, who, being Ambassador at the Court of William, Duke of Normandy, attended that Prince in his victorious expedition against England, as Marshal of the Army, A.D. 1069; and for his valor at the battle of Hastings, the Conqueror presented him with a scarf from his own arm. This Sir William was father of Sir William Fitzwilliam, Knt., who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of Sir John Elmer, of Elmley and Sprotborough, by which marriage the Fitzwilliams obtained the lordships of Elmley and Sprotborough, which continued with them until the reign of Henry VII., when those lordships were carried, by co-heirs, into the families of Sutbili and Copley. Sir William was s. by his son,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, Lord of Elmley and Sprotborough, living in 1177, appears from a grant made by him of a piece of the wood in Elmley to the Monks of Piland. To this grant, in a round seal, is represented a man on horseback, completely armed, and circumscribed, S. Williæ Fitiæ Williæ Domi de Emmátula; and on the reverse, the arms of Fitzwilliam, viz. Lionce. Thus Sir William, or one of his descendants, caused a cross to be set up in the high street of Sprotborough, with these words engraven on brass:

"Whoso is hungry, and list, will eat, Let him come to Sprotborough to his meat; And for a night, and for a day, His horse shall have both corn and hay, And no man shall ask him where he goeth away."

Which cross was pulled down in 1590. From this Sir William we pass to his descendant,

Sir John Fitzwilliam, who founded, in 1578, the Chantry of St. Edward, in the Church of Sprotborough; and, having m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Clinton, had three sons, the eldest of whom,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, m. Masud, dau. of Ralph, Lord Cromwell, of Tattershall, and co-heir of the Lord-Treasurer Cromwell, by whom he had one son and two dau.s, and was s. by the former,

Sir John Fitzwilliam, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Henry Green, of Drayton, and had six sons and a dau. The youngest son,

John Fitzwilliam, Esq. of Milton and Green's Norton, in Northamptonshire, m. Eleanor, dau. of William Villiers, Esq. of Brokebury, Co. Leicester, by whom he had three sons and two daus., and was e. by his eldest son,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, of Milton, of Gainsparks, Co. Essex, and also of the city of London, of which he was Sheriff in 1556, and subsequently Alderman of Bread-street Ward. He had been for some time in the train of Cardinal Wolsey, and retiring afterwards to his house at Milton, there gave his old master, the Cardinal, in the hour of his disgrace, a kind reception; for which conduct, being brought to task by King Henry, he replied, that he had not acted in con turfipitous disobedience of his Highevous's orders, but in gratitude to the fallen minister, who had been his master, and partly the founder of his good fortune: at which answer the king was so pleased, that he immediately knighted Mr. Fitzwilliam, and made him one of his Privy-Council. Sir William m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir John Hhes, Knt. of the city of London, and had William, his heir, with another son and dau. He espoused, 2ndly, Mildred, dau. of Richard Sarkvile, of Buckhurst, Co. Sussex, and had three sons and two daus. His d. in 1534, and was e. by his eldest son,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, Knt., who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Sapocote, of Elton, Co. Huntingdon, and was e. by his eldest son,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, who was Lord-Deputy and Lord-Justice of Ireland, from 1560 to 1584. This eminent person is thus noticed by Fuller in his Worthies of England: —'Sir William Fitzwilliam was five times Lord Deputy of Ireland, a sufficient evidence of his honesty and ability. Queen Elizabeth never trusting twice, where she was once deceived, in a Minister of State. And she also preserved him in the power of his place, that sending over Walter, Earl of Essex, to be Governor of Ireland, there was no order to take his commission from the Lord-Deputy.' Sir William m. Anne, dau. of Sir William Sydney, and aunt of the 1st Earl of Leicester, and, dying in 1589, was e. by the elder of two sons,

Sir William Fitzwilliam, Knt. of Milton and Gains Park Hall, who m. Winifred, dau. of Sir Walter Mildmay, Knt., Chancellor of the Exchequer and Under-Treasurer of England, and, dying in 1569, was e. by his eldest son,

William Fitzwilliam, Esq. of Milton and Gains Park Hall, who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, by a patent dated at Westminster, 1 Dec., 1626, by the title of Lord Fitzwilliam, of Lifford, Co. Donegal. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. of William Hyde, Esq. of South Denchworth, Co. Berks, and, dying 6 Jan., 1634, was e. by his eldest son,

William, 2nd Lord, who m. Jane, dau. and co-beit of Hugh Petti, Esq. otherwise Hunter, Alderman of London, and was e. in 1658, by his 2nd and eldest surviving son,

William, 3rd Lord; b. 29 April, 1641; advanced to an Irish Viscountcy and Earlom, 21 July, 1716, as Viscount Milton, Co. Westmeath, and Earl Fitzwilliam, Co. Tyrone. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. and sole heir of Edmund Cremer, Esq. of West Winch, Co. Norfolk, by whom he had four sons and six daus. He d. 30 Dec., 1719, and was e. by his 3rd, but eldest surviving son,

John, 2nd Earl, who m. Anne, dau. and sole heir of John Stringer, Esq. of Sutton-upon-Lound, Co. Nottingham, and, dying 28 Aug., 1738, was succeeded by his only son, William, 3rd Earl. His Lordship was enrolled amongst the Peers of Great Britain, by George II, 19 April, 1742, in the dignity of Lord Fitzwilliam, Baron Milton, Co. Northampton; and advanced 6 Sept., 1746, to an English Viscountcy and Earlom, as Viscount Milton, and Earl Fitzwilliam, of Northborough, in the same County. He m. 1744, Lady Anne Wentworth, eldest dau. of Thomas, Marquess of Rockingham, and sister and co-heir of Charles, 1nd Marquess, (see Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage), by whom (who d. 6 May, 1750) he had, with another son and four other daus., who d. unm.,

William, his successor,

Charlotte, m. to Thomas, 1st Lord Dundas,

Frances-Henrietta.

His Lordship d. 9 Aug., 1756, and was e. by his eldest son,

William, 4th Earl, in the Peerage of Ireland, and 2nd Earl, in that of England, b. 30 May, 1748. This nobleman was Lord-Lieut. of Ireland for a very short period, in 1756. He m. 1st, 11 July, 1721, the Lady Charlotte Ponsonby, 2nd dau. of William, 2nd Earl of Desborough, by whom (who d. 13 May, 1802) he had an only child, Charles-Wilham Wentworth, present Peer.

His Lordship wedded 2ndly, 21 July, 1723, Louisa, 4th dau. of Richard, 3rd Viscount Mowbray, and widow of William, 1st Lord Ponsonby, by whom (who d. 1 Sept., 1824) he had no issue. He d. 8 Feb., 1853.

Creations.—Baron, 1 Dec., 1620, Viscount and Earl, 21 July, 1716; (Irish honours). Baron, 19 April, 1742. Viscount and Earl, 6 Sept., 1746; (British honors).

Sir William, from his veneration for antiquity, being desirous of restoring the original orthography of the family name, by re-adopting the particle "le," incorporated it with his son's Christian name at the baptismal font, but which soon fell by his death, in 1726, as Sir Michael Le Fleming, the 3rd in succession from Sir Richard Le Fleming, the progenitor of the family. Sir Michael m. diana, only dau. and heir of Thomas, 14th Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, by whom he

Sir Richard is Rector of Grassmere and Wildermere, in Cumberland.

Lineage.

The founder of this very ancient and highly honorable family was Sir Michael Le Fleming, Knt., a kinsman of Baldwin, the 5th Earl of Flanders, who, being sent to assist William, the 2nd Earl of Beaufort, in the conquest of the North of France, was, some years afterwards employed by the successful monarch against the Scots upon the borders; for which, and other services, he obtained the Castle of Gleston, the manor of Aldingham, and other lands in Furness, all in the Co.

of Lancaster, together with the Castle of Caernarvon, the Lordship and Manor of Beckenmer, and other estates in Cumberland. From the 2nd son of this Sir Michael, Sir Richard Le Fleming, lineally descended, through a long line of worth and distinguished Barons.

Sir Daniel Fleming, Knt. of Rydal Hall, Co. Cumberland, M.P. for Cockermouth, in the latter part of the 17th century; for which borough, his election being contested, the contest cost him the sum of £ 20. FOR

Lineage.

This is a branch of the noble House of Forbes, Lords Forbes, springing from

The Hon. Patrick Forbes, of Corse, (Armour-Boarer, by charter, dated 13 Oct., 1492, to James III.) 3rd son of James, 2nd Lord Forbes, by Lady Egida Keith, dau. of William, 1st Earl Marischal. This Patrick was father of

David Forbes, Esq., Laird of Corse, whose great grandson,

The Rev. Patrick Forbes, of Corse, was, for 17 years, Bishop of Aberdeen, and a distinguished ornament of the Reformed Church. His Lordship d. 1655, and his male line failing with his grand-children, the representation of the family reverted to the descendants of his brother,

William Forbes, Esq. This gentleman having realised a large fortune by commercial pursuits at Danzig, purchased the unfinished Castle of Craigyvar, from the family of Mortimer, and having completed the structure in a splendid manner, furnished it after the most sumptuous fashion of the period, A.D. 1655, and took his designation therefrom. The castle is seven stories high, and though not inhabited, is still kept in good repair. The name of Craigyvar, or in Gaelic, "Creg a Mhar," means the rock of Mer; and the place, from tradition, derives considerable interest. In its immediate vicinity are two or three long trenches on the top of the hill of Corse, supposed to be a camp or fortification of Macbeth; and near this, there are a great number of small tumuli, now overgrown with short heath, the last memorials of those who fell, "when Burton wood came to Dunsemain." At a small distance from these, and upon the same hill, the spot is shown where Macduff killed Macbeth; and there is still a large cairn called Macbeth's, in which ancient arms were found some years ago. This William Forbes m. Margaret Udward, dau. of the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

I. William Forbes, Esq. of Craigyvar, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 20 April, 1658. Sir William appears to have engaged on the side of the Parliaments during the Civil Comotions. In 1641, he was appointed, by the Republicans, one of the Commissioners for planting kirk; in 1645, one of the Committee of Estates; in 1646, one of the Commissioners for selling Malignants' Estates; and in 1647, Sheriff of Aberdeen. He m. Bethia, dau. of Sir Archibald Murray, of Blackbarony, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. Sir John, who m. Margaret Young, dau. of the Laird of Auldbar, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. Sir William, who m. Margaret, dau. of Hugh Rose, of Kilvarock, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. Sir Arthur. This gentleman m. 1st, Christian, eldest dau. of Provost Rose, of Aberdeen, by whom he had one daus., and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Strachan, of Balgall, and relict of John Burnett, Esq. of Krick, by whom he had five sons and two daus., and was s. at his decease by his 2nd, and eldest surviving son, Forbes, Sir John-Stuart, of Pitsligo, Co. Aberdeen; d. 25 Sept., 1816, s. to the title, as 4th Bart., upon the demise of his father, 24 Oct., 1828.

Lineage.

This family, by the death of the attained Lord Pitsligo's son, without issue, became, in right of the 4th Bart.'s 2nd wife, the only descendant of that noble family. It is a branch of the noble house of Forbes, Lord Forbes springing from

The Hon. Duncan Forbes, of Corseindie, 2nd son of James, 2nd Lord Forbes, who was s. by his son,

William Forbes, Esq., whose 2nd son,

Duncan Forbes, Esq., 1st of Monymusk, and afterwards of Pitsligo, m. Agnes, dau. of Baillie William Gray, of Aberdeen, and had issue, three sons and three daus.

I. Sir Duncan Forbes, esq., of—

II. Sir William, who m. Margaret Douglas, dau. of William, 9th Earl of Angus, by whom he had five sons and three daus. He d. 1828, and was s. by his eldest son, Dalmahoy, by whom he had two sons and three daus. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

V. Sir William, who m. Lady Jean Keith, dau. of John, Earl of Kintore, by whom he had two sons and four daus. John, the eldest son, m. Mary Forbes, dau. of John, Lord Pitsligo, and, dying before his father, left two sons; by the elder of whom Sir William was s. at his decease, namely,

VI. Sir William, who was s. at his decease in 1743, by his eldest surviving son,

VII. Sir William. This gentleman was a banker of great eminence in Edinburgh; and Sir Walter Scott says, in his notes to "Marmion," that "he was unequalled, perhaps, in the degree of individual affection entertained for him, by his friends, as well as in the general esteem and respect of Scotland at large." Sir William was indeed a person of more than ordinary accomplishments, of the most fascinating manners, and of considerable literary abilities, as his "Life of Beattie" sufficiently attests. He m. Miss Hay, dau. of Sir James Hay, of Hayston, Bart., and was s. at his decease in 1806, by his eldest son, whose name and arms are to be borne by his successors. By this lady he had a numerous family, and, dying in 1826, was s. by his son,

JOHN-STUART, the present Bart.

The Earl s. to the Baronony of Fortescue, as 3rd Baron, at the demise of his father, 10 July, 1783, and was created Viscount Ebrington, and Earl Fortescue, 1 Sept., 1789.

Lineage.

This noble family deduces its origin from Sir Richard de Forte, a distinguished soldier in the invading army of William the Conqueror, who protected his royal master, at the celebrated battle of Hastings, by bearing a strong shield before him; from which event, the French word "exercus" (a shield) was added to the original surname of "Forte," and thus Fortescue produced. The son of this gallant warrior,

Sir Adam Fortescue, Knt., being also a Commanding Officer in the same conflict, obtained, from the successful monarch, a grant of Wimondston, or, as it is now written, Winston, Co. Devon, of which he became Lord. The descendant of this Sir Adam.

WILLIAM FOSTER, m. Elizabeth, sister and co-heir of Thomas Beauchamp, of Ryne, Co. Dorset, and widow of Richard Branscomb, by whom he left two sons, WILLIAM, of Winston, ancestor of the FOSTERBys of Lathom, Prestoo, and FALALY. Of the last, the representative in the female line is the present

FOULIS.

Foulis, Sir James, of Colinton, Co. Edinburgh, (and lineal descendant of Sir John Foulis, Bart. of Ravelston, which latter dignity was forsetted by the 2nd Bart.), Sir Archibald Primrose, who was beheaded for High Treason, in 1745, at Carlisle; b. 9 Sept., 1770; m. 1810, Agnes, eldest dau. of John Grier, Esq. of Edinburgh, by whom he has issue.

Sit James, s. to the honors of the family upon the demise of his kinsman, Sir James Foulis, in 1825, and is the 7th Bart. of Colinton.

Linnage.

It is universally admitted, that the surname of Foulis is of Norman Origin. The progenitor of the family came into England either at, or before the Conquest, and his memorial bearings being three leaves, called Foulis, in the old Norman, it is certain that the name was either given to the family whilst residing in South Britain, or else assumed by the individual who first took up his abode in Scotland, in the reign of Malcolm Canmore, when surname was here for the first time adopted.

James Foulis, Esq. of Colinton, living temp. Queen Mary, and James IV., of Scotland, m. Agnes Heriot, heir of Lumphoy, and had four sons.

John, of Lendhill, whose grandau., Anco, heir of Lendhill, m. Sir James Hope, of Hopetoun, from whom the Earls of Hopetoun descended.

This James Foulis was s. at his decease, by his eldest son, Sir James Foulis, Knt. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Lauder, of Hattoon, and was s. by his only son.

I. Alexander Foulis, Esq., who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 7 June, 1654. Sir Alexander m. Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Heyburn, Esq. of Ford, great-grandau. of the Earl of Bothwell, and heir of the great sheriff of Butle (by whom she had a son, the progenitor of the Marquess of Butle). By this lady, Sir Alexander had one dau., who m. to the first Earl of Haddington, and an only son, his successor.

II. Sir James. This gentleman had the honor of knighthood conferred upon him during the lifetime of his father, and was actively engaged in the unfortunate war which ravaged Scotland after the death of King Charles I. Having, along with others, attended a Convention of the Committee of Estates, at Elliot, in Angus, he was betrayed into the hands of the English, and, with his companions, the Earls of Leven, Crawford, Marishal, Lord Ogilivy, and several gentlemen of rank, surprised on Thursday morning, 28 Aug., 1651, by a squadron of Dragons, and relented by Col. Aldridge, who carried the whole party to Brugy, and consigned them thence in a vessel to London. After the restoration of the Monarchy, Sir James was constituted, in 1661, one of the Senators of the College of Justice; and, in 1684, appointed Lord-Chief Justice Clerk, which high office he held under the titular designation of Lord Colinton. His Lordship m. Barbara, dau. of Alexander Ainsley, Esq. of Dolphington, by whom he had two sons. He d. 19 Jan., 1688, and was s. by the elder.

III. Sir James, a Lord of Session, Privy-Councillor, and Member of the last Scottish Parliament, in 1706, at which time he joined the Duke of Hamilton, and Atholl, and many others of their nobility and gentry, in their celebrated protest, made by Lord Errol, the Earl Marischal, respecting the most constitutional military defence of the House of Legislature. He also joined in the protest which declared that an incorporating union of the two nations was inconsistent with the honor of Scotland. Sir James had, subsequently a seat in the first British Parliament. He m. Margaret, dau. of John Boyd, Esq., Dean of the Guild of Edinburgh, descended of the family of Kelmainock, by whom he had seven sons, of whom six died s. p. Sir James d. in 1711, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR JAMES; at whose decease, unm., in 1749, the title devolved upon his nephew,
V. SIR JAMES, eldest and only surviving son of Henry Foulis, Esq. (third son of Sir James, the 3rd Bart.) by Jean, dau. of James Foulis, Esq., Merchant, in Edinburgh, and niece of Sir John Foulis, of Kavelston, Bart., (so created in 1661.) This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Archibald Wightman, by whom he had two sons and three dau.s, and was a. at his decease in Jan., 1791, by his only surviving son, VI. SIR JAMES, This gentleman m. twice: 1st, a Spanish lady; and 2ndly, Miss Dallas; but having no issue, the title devolved upon his kinsman, JAMES FOU LIS, Esq. of Woodhall, the present Bart., great-great-grandson of Sir John Foulis, of Ravelston, Bart., which Sir John was cousin of the 1st Bart. of Colinton. The present Sir James represents, therefore, the house of Colinton, Woodhall and Ravelston. The second Bart. of Ravelston, (who was son of the 1st Baronet’s eldest son, George Primrose Foulis, Esq., by whom the lands of Dunbar were inherited in right of his mother, Margaret, dowager of Sir Archibald-Primrose and mother of the 1st Earl of Roseberry, bore the designation of Sir Archibald-Primrose, Primrose of Ravelston; which Sir Archibald’s m. cousin, lady Mary Primrose, dau. of the 1st Earl of Roseberry, and had an only son, Archibald, who d. in early life, issueless. Sir Archibald was involved in the rebellion of 1745, and beheaded at Carlisle, when his honors ceased.

This is a branch of the house of Foulis, Bart.s of Nova Scotia, springing from
1. SIR DAVID FOULIS, (3rd son of James Foulis, Esq. of Colinton, by Agnes Heriot), who accompanied James I, into England, and having obtained a grant of Ingleby, in Yorkshire, was created a. Bart., 6 Feb., 1619. In the subsequent reigns, however, he fell into disgrace; and for resisting, in 1622, the commission issued to compel gentlemen to compound for neglecting to receive the honor of Knighthood, he was brought before the Star-Chamber, when he was deprived of his official employments, committed to the Fleet, and fined £5000. His son and heir was also sent to the Fleet, and fined £5000. Sir David m. Cerdela, dau. of Mr. Sergeant Fleetwood, Recorder of London in the reign of Elizabeth, and, dying in 1642, was a. by his son, 11. SIR HENRY, who m. Mary, eldest dau. of Sir Thomas Clayton, of Seahowe, Co. York, and had with other issue, DAVID, his successor, Henry, Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford, author of several works on Divinity.

FRANKFORT, DE MONTMORENCY, VISCOUNT (Lodge-Raymond De Montmorency), and Baron Frankfort of Gal moye, Co. Kilkenny, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. 24 Nov., 1808; m. 12 Jan., 1835, Georgina—Frederica, dau. of Peter Fitz-Gibbon Hin chey, Esq., and has issue, A son, b. 21 Sept., 1835. His Lordship s. to the honors, as 2nd Viscount, upon the demise of his father, 21 Sept., 1822. He is an Officer in the 10th Hussars.

Lineage.

The noble and ancient family of Morres, or Morries, descended from the ducal House of Montmorency (of which this is a branch,) came into England with the Norman Conquerors, and having obtained a grant of lands in the principality of Wales, soon after settled in the Isle of Anglesey.

HERVEY DE MONTMORENCY, the nephew of Richard, Earl Strongbow, accompanied his uncle in the expedition to Ireland, and obtained considerable territorial grants in the counties of Wexford, Tipperary, and Kerry, some of which still remain in the possession of the family, but the great part has been carried by intermarriages into the Houses of Leinster and Ormonde. From this Hervey descended

SIR JOHN MURRIS, Bart., of Knockagh, Co. Tipperary, whose grandson,

HERVEY MURRIS, Esq., settled in the Co. Kilkenny, upon lands obtained from CROWMELL, and through his influence with the usurper (into whose service he had entered,) preserved the property of his elder brother from confiscation. After the Restoration, Mr. Morres had the Cromwellian grant confirmed by Charles II., and erected into the manor of Castlemorres, with ample privileges attached. This gentleman m. thrice, and left, by his last wife, Frances, dau. of the Hon. Pierce Butler, (son of Lord Viscount Galway,) an only son, FRANCIS MURRIS, Esq., who m. in 1796, Catherine, dau. and heir of Sir William Evans, of Kilcreen, Co. Kilkenny, and left issue,

John, his successor. Hervey, ancestor of the Lord Mountmorres.

Mr. Morres, d. 1794, and was s. by his eldest son, REDMOND-EVANS-MURRIS, Esq., who performed a distinguishing part in the political arena of Ireland, from 1763, when first returned to Parliament, until that country ceased to be an independent kingdom, in 1801. In 1785, Mr. Morres was nominated Secretary to the Lord-Lieut., and sworn of the Privy-Council. Upon the 29th July, 1846, the Rt. Hon. Gentleman was called to the Upper House, by the title of Baron Frankfort, of Gal moye, 22 Jan., 1816, advanced to a Viscount as VISCOUNT FRANKFORT DE MONTMORENCY, during which year his Lordship obtained royal permission to adopt the ancient family surname of "de Montmorency," only. His Lordship m. twice: 1st, Mary, dau. and sole heir of Joseph Fadé, Esq., of Dublin, by whom he had no child; and, 2ndly, Catharine, dau. of Mr. George White, of Castle Bellingham, and by her (who d. FRANKLAND.

FRANKLAND, Sir Robert, of Thirkelby, Co. York; b. 16 July, 1784; m. 30 Nov., 1815, Louisa-Anne, 3rd dau. of the late Rt. Hon. and Rt. Rev. Lord George Murray, Bishop of St. David's, and has issue,

I. Augusta-Louisa.
II. Caroline-Agnes.
III. Emily-Anne.
IV. Julia-Roberta.
v. Rosalind-Alicia.

Sir Robert s. to the title, as 7th Bart., at the decease of his father, 4 Jan. 1831.

LINEAGE.

This family is undoubtedly of great antiquity in the Co. of York, where it is probable it first settled at the time of the Conquest; soon after that event, we find the Norman names of Julian, Sigen, Gilbert, William, and Robert Frankland or Frankland attached to grants of lands to the Abbies and Priories of Coulne-North, Carlton, near Thirsk, and to several other places in the Co. of York. WILLIAM FRANKLAND, of Bye, in Hertfordshire, acquired a considerable fortune in trade as a Clothworker, and was one of the principal persons who, in 1530, obtained a charter for the incorporation of the Clothiers' Company: he died in 1570, leaving all his wealth to his brother, RICHARD FRANKLAND, who quitied Herts and returned to Yorkshire. He settled at Thirkelby in that Co. and m. Lucy, dau. of Sir Henry Butler, of Hatfield Woodhall Herts., by whom he had a son and successor.

SIR HENRY FRANKLAND, Knt. of Thirkelby, m. Anne, dau. of Sir Arthur Harris, Knt. of Creaksey, Co. Essex, and left a son,

I. SIR WILLIAM FRANKLAND, of Thirkelby, who had been created a Baronet, 24 Dec., 1699, prior to the decease of his father. Sir William m. Arabella, dau. of the Hon. Henry Bellasga, eldest son of Thomas, Viscount Fauncomb, by whom he had

THOMAS, his successor.
Henry, of Sowerby, d. nam., in 1730.
John, in Holy Orders, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and Dean of Ely, by whom Miss Mary Turoton, by whom he had a son, John, late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, Vicear of Eust Bournor, in Sussex, and Rector of Sundridge, Kent, m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Dr. Green, Dean of Ely, and 2ndly, Mrs. Mary Pearson, but left no issue.

Grace, m. to Leonard Smelt, of Kirkby-Fletbam, Esq. from whom descends the present Leonard Smelt, Esq. of Leases in the Co. of York.

The Baronetcy was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR THOMAS. This gentleman, upon marrying Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Russell, Bart., by Frances, dau. of the usurper Cromwell, obtained a considerable estate at Chiswick, by deed of gift from his uncle, Thomas Earl Fauncomb, who had married Mary, another dau. of Anne, whom was m. to Thomas, 1st Earl of Chichester.

Robert, s. s. met with the following death. This gentleman was supercargo of the ship of his brother, Thomas, the Governor, from Calcutta to the Persian Gulf; and, having finished his trading voyage, was preparing to leave Judda, and to return to Bengal, when, unfortunately, the natives of the former place discovered some Lascar sailors, who had died on board his ship, and whose bodies, buried below high-water-mark, had floated up the river. In consequence, with real, or pretended fury, they plundered and slew Mr. Frankland, and every other European they could find.

Mary, was m. to Thomas Worsey, Esq. of Hovingham, in Yorkshire.

Frances, was m. to Roger Talbot, Esq.

FRASER.

FRASER, Sir William Augustus, of Lede- cune, Co. Inverness, in 1825; s. to the title, as 4th Bart, upon the demise of his father, 3 June, 1834.

Lineage.

The founder of the family of Fraser is said to have been one Pierre, a Frenchman (see Lord Saltoun), who arrived in Scotland in the reign of Archbishop, when the famous league was entered into with France. The poetry of this individual became Thanes of the Isle of Man, and afterwards settling in Tweeddale, generally adopted the surname of Fraser, when such designations came into use.

1. William Fraser, Esq. (directly descended from Hugh Fraser, 1st Lord Lovat, through Alexander, his second son) was created a Baronet, 27 Nov., 1764. Sir William was in the Naval service of the East India Company, and commanded two of their ships, viz.: the Lord Mansfield in 1771, which was lost in coming out of the Bengal river in 1773; and the Earl of Mansfield from 1777 to 1785. ford, was preferred by the said Duke to HENRY VIII.'s service, and distinguishing himself at the siege of Trelaw, was thereupon made Captain of the Castle of Calais (usually called Guynes), shortly after was sent for home, and Knighted, and made of the Privy-Council, Vice-Chamber read, and Captain of the Guards; few years after, for services done on the borders of Scotland, at his return, was made Comptroller of the Household, and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in one day. In a few days after, he was made Constable of the Tower of London, and, the next St. George's Feast, Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter; at the winning of Boulogne. (Sith HENRY VIII.), he was in joint commission with Charles, Duke of Suffolk, Lord-Lieutenant of His Majesty's Camp, and for sundry services there with Sir Anthony Brown, Knt., Master of the Horse, was made General Captain of the Bands of Horsemen. After the death of our Sovereign Lord, EDWARD VI., at the coming of Queen Mary, was made her Lord-Chamberlain. Thus, having served in all these three offices, and others, truly, faithfully, and painfully, from the 1st year of our Sovereign Lords, HENRY VIII., of famous memory, unto the 5th year of QUEEN MARY, untouched with any reproach, or unfaithful service, at this time, being seventy-seven years of age, he ended his life, in favour with his Prince, at his own house, at Firle, in Sussex."

GALLOWAY.

GALLOWAY, EARL OF (Randolph Stewart), and Lord Garlies, in the Peerage of Scotland; Baron Stewart, of Garlies, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Lord-Lieutenant of Wigtownshire, and the barony of Kirkudbright; b. 16 Sept., 1809; m. 9 Aug., 1833, Blanche, 7th dau. of the Duke of Beaufort, and has issue, Helen-Blanche.

His Lordship s. to the honors as 9th Earl, upon the demise his father, 27 March, 1834.

Lineage.

The first of this family upon record is

SIR WALTER STEWART, son of Sir James Stewart, of Monkyl, and grandson of Alexander, High-Steward of Scotland (whose great grandson, through his 2nd son, James, also High Steward, ascended the Scottish throne, in 1571), which Sir Walter obtained the Barony of Garlies from John Randolph, Earl of Moray, by charter, wherein the Earl denominates Sir Walter his uncle. Sir Walter Stewart was father of

SIR JOHN STEWART, of Dalwinston, who, according to Rymer, was made prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1386. He was likewise one of the hostages for King David Bruce, in 1357. This Sir John left issue,

SIR WALTER STEWART, of Dalwinston, whose dau. and heir,

MARIAN STEWART, espoused, 17 Oct. 1396.

SIR JOHN STEWART, son of Sir William Stewart, of Jedworth, Sheriff of Tiviotdale (said to be of the house of Barlay), and left two sons.

WILLIAM, John, Provost of Glasgow.

The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM STEWART of Dalwinston and Garlies, obtained the estate of Minto in 1429, after much opposition from the Turnbuls, the former possessors. He was living in the year 1479, and had issue, ANDREW, who pre-deceased his father, b. p.

ALEXANDRA, (Sir) his successor.

THOMAS, (Sir) of Minto, ancestor of Lord Biantyre.

Walter, of Tonderghle.

Sir William was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART of Garlies, who was s. by his only surviving son.

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART, of Garlies, whose grand-

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART, of Garlies, was one of the prisoners taken at the rout of Solway, in Nov., 1542; and appears to have been released in 1543, on giving his son and heir, ALEXANDER, as his hostage. He m. twice, and had issue, by his second wife, Margaret, dau. and heir of Patrick Dunbar, Esq. of Clugston (only). Sir Alexander d. in 1580, and was s. by (the son of his son ALEXANDER, by Catherine, second dau. of William, 4th Lord Herries, which Alexander was killed with the Regent Lennox, in 1571) his grandson.

xii. Charlotte, relict of Sir Edward Crofton, Bart.

xiii. Caroline, m. in 1843, to the Hon. and Rev. George Roushout, and d. in 1818.

xiv. Georgiana-Charlotte, m. to Hon. W. Bligh, and d. in 1800.

The Earl of Galloway was enrolled amongst the Peers of Great Britain, as Baron Stewart, of Garlies, Co. Wigtoun, 6 June, 1796. His Lordship d. 13 Nov., 1806, and was s. by his eldest son, Gaeron, 9th Earl, K. T., Admiral of the Blue, b. 24 March, 1797. This distinguished nobleman m. 18 April, 1797, Jane, 2nd dau. of Henry, 1st Earl of Uxbridge, by whom he left issue, RANDULPH, present Earl.

Keith, a Lieut. in the Navy, b. 5 Jan., 1814, Jane, m. to George, Marquess of Blandford, Caroline.

Louisa, m. to the Hon. William Duncombe, M. P., eldest son of Lord Ferrers. His Lordship d. 27 March, 1834.

The Earl of Galloway claims the representation of the Darnley family, and Andrew Stewart, in his "Geographical History of the Stuarts," admits (while he argues against the probability) that if it can be established that Sir William Stewart, of Darnley, then the Earl of Galloway must be undoubtedly heir male and representative of the Darnley family, after the death of Cardinal York.

Lineage.

This very ancient family springs from a common ancestor with the Dukes of Leinster, in Ireland, and the Earls of Plymouth in England, namely:

William or Walter, a rich and powerful lord, temp. King Alfred, descended from the Dukes of Tuscany. According to Sir William Dugdale, this Othen was a Baron of England in the 10th of Edward the Confessor, and was father of:

Walter Fitzthom. or Fitzotheri, who, at the General Survey of the kingdom, in 1076, was Castellan of Windsor, and appointed by William the Conqueror, Warden of the Forests of Berkshire. This Walter left three sons—Robert, the 2nd son, was Baron of Eton, or Eustacie in Essex, which Barony continued with his descendants until purchased by Sir Henry Maynard, temp. Queen Elizabeth, and it now gives title to Sir Henry's descendant, Lord Maynard, of Eustacie. William, the youngest son, was ancestor of the Lords Windsor; from which Lords descended the Earls of Plymouth; and the eldest son,

GRAL or Gerard, generally surmised Fitzwalter, having m. Nestia, dau. of Rees, son of Theodore the Great, Prince of South Wales, had three sons, viz.,

William, of whom presently.

Maurice-Fitzgerald, who accompanied Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke, into Ireland, and was founder of the Fitzgeralds, Earls of Kilkare, now Dukes of Leinster, and other eminent houses in that kingdom.

David, Bishop of St. David's in 1146.

The eldest son,

Odo, from whom the Carew's descend.

Raymond-Crasus, who went to Ireland, and had a principal share in the Conquest of that kingdom.

And

(11 April, 1807,) summoned to Parliament in his father's Barony of Gordon, of Huntly. His Grace m. 11 Dec., 1813, Elizabeth, dau. of the late Alexander Brodie, Esq. of Am Hall.

Lineage.

Although there are numerous histories of this illustrious family extant, yet the historians do not coincide as to its origin and first settlement in Great Britain. Some bring the Gordons from Greece to Gaul, and thence into Scotland, at least a thousand years ago; while others convey them from Spain, Flanders, &c. The most probable conjecture, however, is that some of those Gordons came into England with WILLIAM, DUKE OF NORMANDY, and into Scotland with King MALCOLM CANMORE. Indeed, there is a tradition in North Britain that the first of the name who crossed the Tweed was a valiant Knight, a favourite of MALCOLM's, who, having killed a wild boar which greatly infested the borders, obtained a grant of lands in the Merse, or Berwicksire, which he called Gordon, after his own surname; and, settling there, assumed the boar's head for his armorial bearing, in commemoration of the exploit. Be the early origin, however, what it may, and there is no doubt that it was distinguished, the ducal family of which we are about to treat deduces its direct maternal descent from

SIR JOHN DE GORDON, Knt., who obtained, in the 28th year of DAVID II., a charter, dated 30 March, 1327-8, confirming the donation which ROBERT I. had made to his grandfather, Sir Adam de Gordon, of the lands of Strathbogie, and was a, by his son.

SIR JOHN DE GORDON, who obtained a confirmatory charter of the same lands from ROBERT II., dated 16 June, 1376. In the same year, the Earl of March having attacked and burned the town of Roxburgh, the English borderers retaliated on the lands of Sir John Gordon, who, passing the border, encountered Sir John de Lilburn, and, after a desperate affray, defeated him at Carham. Sir John Gordon had also a chief hand in the defeat and capture of Sir Thomas de Musgrave, Governor of Berwick, in 1376, after a severe conflict. Sir John fell, eventually, at the battle of Otterburn, in Aug., 1388, leaving a son,

SIR ACHAB DE GORDON, Knt., of Huntly, who was slain in 1492, at the battle of Homildon, and was a, in his estates by his only dau. (by his wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William de Keith, great-marshal of Scotland),

ELIZABETH GORDON, who m. Alexander Seton (2nd son of Sir William Seton, of Seton), and obtained, in conjunction with his husband, from Robert, Duke of Albany, a charter, dated 20 July, 1486, to their joint heirs, and, in default, to the heirs of the said Elizabeth, of the Baronies of Gourdon and Huntly, &c., and thenceforward the said Alexander was styled Lord of Gordon and Huntly.

Of this marriage there were two sons and a dau.,

The Duchess retiring to a convent in Flanders, the Prince of Orange presented to her 16th of August, 1677. In 1711, her Grace excited no small attention, by sending to the Dean and Faculty of Advocates a silver medal, with the head of the Chevalier on one side, and on the other the British isles, with the word Residuo. The Dean having presented the medal to the Faculty at their next meeting, a debate ensued about the propriety of admitting it into their repositories, when the affirmative was carried, and a vote passed, to return thanks to the Duchess for her present. Two Advocates, delegating for that purpose, waited upon her Grace, and expressed their hopes that she would soon have an opportunity to compliment the Faculty with a second medal on the Restoration. The Duke was bred up in the Catholic religion, which his family always professed. He was a military character, and served under Turenne at the battle of Strasburg. In 1675, he went over to Flanders, and made a campaign in the Army of the Prince of Orange. He d. 7 Dec., 1726, and was s. by his only son,

GORE, Sir Ralph, of Minor Gore, Co. Donegal; s. to the Earl of Donegal, the 7th Barronet, upon the demise of his uncle, Sir Ralph Gore, Earl of Ross; m. Lady Grace Maxwell, dau. of Barry, Earl of Farnham, by whom he has issue,

r. St. George.
ii. Grace.
iii. Martha.
iv. Elizabeth.

Lineage.

This family is the parent stock whence the noble house of Gore, Earls of Arran, branched.

1. Paul Gore, a Captain of Horse, settled in Ireland, during the reign of Elizabeth, and, having obtained large territorial grants, which he condensed into a manor, by the designation of Manor Gore, was created a Bart. of Ireland, 2 Feb., 1601. Sir Paul m. Isabella, dau. of Francis Wickie, Esq., and niece of Sir Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, by whom he had six sons and seven daughters; and the second eldest of whom,

Ralph, the eldest, s. his father.

Arthur, the second, created a Bart. in 1602, was ancestor of the Earls of Arran, and of the Gores of Woodford, Co. Leitrim, now represented by William Ormsby-Gore, Esq., M.P.

Sir Paul d. in 1629, and was s. by his eldest son,

2. Sir Ralph, who m. Anne, 2nd dau. of William, 2nd Lord Canfield, of Charlemont, by whom he had an only son,

3. Sir William. This gentleman, who was a Privy-Councillor in Ireland, and Custos Rotulorum of the Co. Leitrim, m. Hannah, dau. and co-heir of James, son and heir of Sir F. Hamilton, Knight, of Manor Hamilton, Co. Leitrim, by whom he had three sons and five daughters; and, dying in 1720, was s. by his eldest son,

4. Sir Ralph, M.P. for the Co. Donegal, a Privy-Councillor, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and subsequently in 1729, Speaker of the House of Commons in Ireland, upon the death of the Rt. Hon. William Conolly, Col. of the Army. This gentleman succeeded, in right of his mother, to the estates of Manor Hamilton, and, beautifying the Island of Ballymacnamah, in Lough Erne, gave it the name of Belle Isle. Sir Ralph m. 1st, Miss Colville, dau. of Sir Robert Colville, of Newtown, Co. Leitrim, by whom he had two daughters; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of the Right Rev. Dr. St. George Ash, Bishop of Clogher, by whom he had three sons and four daughters; and, dying 23 Feb., 1729, was s. by his eldest son,

5. Sir St. George Gore, of St. George's, M.P. for the Co. Donegal, who assumed the latter surname upon inheriting the estates of his maternal ancestors, his mother being, first, co-heir, and eventually, sole heir of her brother, Sir Richard St. George, of Dunmore. Sir St. George m. 22 Sept., 1743, Anne, only dau. of the Right Hon. Francis Burton, of Buncrana, and sister of Francis-Pierpoint Burton Lord Conyngham, but, having no issue, the title at his death, in 1746, devolved upon his brother,

6. Sir Ralph Gore, a distinguished Military Officer, who, having obtained the command of a battalion, at the battle of Laffield, 9 July, 1747, when only a Captain, owing to the fall of his senior officers, distinguished himself so highly that he received the thanks of the Duke of Cumberland on the following day, at the head of his regiment. He, subsequently, represented the Co. Donegal in Parliament, and was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, in 1764, by the title of Baron Gore. In 1768, the Earl was advanced to the Viscountcy of Belleisle, and in 1771, created Earl of Ross. In 1758, his Lordship, who had attained the rank of Lieut.-Gen., was appointed Commander-in-Chief in Ireland, in the absence of Lieut.-Gen. Pitt. Lord Ross m. 1st, 3d Feb., 1754, Catherine, dau. of the Right Hon. Thomas Connolly, by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Alice, dau. of the Right Hon. Nathaniel Clements, and sister of Robert, Lord Lettirmingham, by whom he had an only son, Ralph, Viscount Belleisle, who d. issueless, in 1799. His Lordship d. 1802, when the Peerage expired; but the Baronetcy devolved upon his nephew, Ralph Gore, Esq., the present Bart., eldest son of the deceased Lord's brother, Richard Gore, Esq. of Sandymount, Co. Wicklow.

Creation.—2 Feb., 1621.

Arms.—On a fesse or between three cross crosslets, fitchée, or.

Crest.—A wolf rampant, ar. collared gu.

Motto.—Sola salus servire Deo.

GORE.

GORE-BOOTH, Sir Robert, of Lissadell, Co. Sligo; s. to the title, as 3rd Bart., upon the demise of his father; m. 23d March, 1727, Caroline, second dau. of Viscount Lorton, by whom (who d. in 1728) he has no issue. Sir Robert wedded, 2ndly, 2 April, 1830, Caroline-Susan, second dau. of Thomas Goodl, Esq. of Dublin.

Lineage.

This family is a branch of the house of Gore, Baronets, springing from

Sir Francis Gore, Knt. of Artamia, Co. Sligo (fourth son of Sir Paul Gore, Bart. of Manor Gore, and brother of Sir Arthur Gore, ancestor of the Earls of Arran). Sir Francis m. Anne, dau. and heir of Robert Parke, Esq. of Newtown, Co. Leitrim, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert Gore, Knt. of Newtown, who m. in 1728, Frances, eldest dau. of Sir Thomas Newcomen, Knt. of Sutton, Co. Dublin, and was s. at his decease, in 1735, by his eldest surviving son, Nathaniel Gore, Esq. of Artamia and of Newtown. This gentleman m. in 1711, Lettice, only dau. and heir of Humphrey Booth, Esq. of Dublin, by whom he had two sons and three daughters.

John, the second son, s. to the estates of Salford, Co. Lancastcr, through his cousin, Robert Booth, Esq., and assumed the surname of Booth, but d. unmarried, in 1763.

Mr. Gore was s. by his eldest son,

1. Booth Gore, Esq. of Lissadell, Co. Sligo, who was created a BARONET OF IRELAND, 30 Aug., 1799, Sir Booth m. Emily, dau. of Brabazon Newcombe, Esq. of the Co. of Carlow, by whom he had two sons. He d. 22 Aug., 1773, and was s. by the elder,

2. Sir Booth, of Lissadell, Co. Sligo, and of Huntercombe House, Co. Bucks, at whose decease, 3d. 17 June, 1804, the title devolved upon his only brother,

3. Sir Robert, who assumed, by sign manual, 30 Aug., 1804, the additional surname and arms of Booth. This gentleman m. a dau. of Henry Irwin, Esq. of Strapemton, Co. Sligo, and had issue, Robert, present Bart.

Another son.

Anne, m. to the Hon. Robert King, eldest son of Viscount Lorton.

Creation.—30 Aug., 1763.

Seats.—Lissadell, Co. Sligo; Huntercombe, Bucks; and Salford, Lancashire.

Sir Charles s. to the title, as 6th Bart., upon the demise of his father, 1 Dec., 1824, and served the office of High-Sheriff for Sussex in 1827.

Lineage.

This very ancient Sussex family deduces its descent from

John, Lord of Goring, in that Co., living temp. Edward I., from whom descended lineally

Sir William Goring, Knt., Gentleman of the Privy-Chamber to Edward VI., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of William Covert, Esq. of Slaughan, Co. Sussex, and had two sons, Henry, of Burtoe, whose grandson, William Goring, Esq., was created a Bart., in 1622, an honor that expired with Sir William, the 3rd Bart., in 1724.

And

Goromas Goring, Esq., of Oving Dean, who m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of William Everard, Esq., and had two sons,

George, whose son Goromas was elevated to the Peerage as Baron Goring, in 1622, and created Earl of Norwich, in 1644, dignities which ceased with his only son and successor, Charles, 2nd Earl, in 1672.—(See Burke's Extinct Peerage.)

Edward, whose descendant,

1. Harry Goring, Esq., eldest son of Henry Goring, Esq. of High Deane, s. to the dignity of Bart., upon the demise of Sir James Bowyer, Bart. of Leighthorne, Co. Sussex (whose grandfather had been so created, 23 July, 1627), agreeably to a new patent, dated 18 May, 1678, obtained by Sir James, entailing the title upon Mr. Goring, with precedence, according to the original creation. Sir Henry m. Diana, dau. of Sir Edward Bishopp, Bart. of Parham, and granddau. of Nicholas, 1st Earl of Thanet, by whom he had two sons, Harry, who was killed in his father's life-time, by Sir Edward Dering, Bart., in one of the theatres. He left, by his 1st wife, a son, Charles, and by his 2nd wife, the dau. of Sir John Covert, Bart., of Slaughan, Co. Sussex, a son, Harry.

Charles, L.L.D., who m. Miss Bridger, and d. s.p.

Sir Henry was s. at his decease, in 1709, by his eldest grandson,

2. Sir Charles: s. whose decease, without issue, in 1714, the title devolved upon his half-brother, to the Viscount, 2 Aug., 1800, to take his seat in the House of Peers.

Lineage.

The first member of this very ancient and distinguished family which we find upon record, in Ireland, is

Philip Preston, whose grandson, Horo Preston, was Justice of the Court of Common-Pleas in the first year of Edward III., and, in 1331, one of the Justices of the Court of King's Bench. The son and heir of this learned person,

Sir Robert Preston, who was Knighted in the Field, 1361, by Lionel, Duke of Clarence, and obtained a grant for ever of the Manor of Goshampton, in the Co. of Dublin and Meath, was Lord of Preston, in Lancashire, and filled the office of Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. Being possessed of Carbery, Co. Kildare, he made that the chief place of his residence. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Walter de Birmingham, Lord of Carbery, and was s. by his only son,

Sir Christopher Preston, Knt. This gentleman was imprisoned in the Castle of Trim, for corresponding with the Prior of Kilmainham. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William Laundes, Baron of Naas, in right of his mother, Emma, dau. of William Fitzmaurice, Baron of Naas, (so created by Henry II.) and his wife, Helen, sister of Richard, Earl of Pembroke (by which marriage the Prestons obtained the barony of Naas). Sir Christopher was s. by his only son,

Christopher Preston, Baron of Naas, in right of his mother, who m. Jane, dau. of Sir Jenico D'Artola, Knt., and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert Preston, who was appointed Deputy to Sir John Dynham, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland: and Richard, Duke of York, youngest son of Edward IV., being constituted Lord-Deputy of Ireland, 5 May, 1478, Sir Robert was appointed that Prince's Deputy (he being in minority), with power to elect a Deputy to himself. On the 7th Aug., in the same year (1478), he was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, by the title of Viscount Goshampton, of Goshampton. His Lordship sat in the Parliament of 1480, and in that of 1483. He d. in 1503, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William, 2nd Viscount. This nobleman filled the office of Deputy to Sir James Ormonde, Lord-Treasurer in 1483. In 1504, his Lordship attended the Earl of Kildare, Lord Deputy, to the famous battle of Knocktoh, to the Province of Connaught, where, with Lord Kilkeney, he led the wings of the Bawmee; and in 1528, he was appointed Lord-Justice of Ireland. His Lordship was s. at his decease, by his eldest son,

Janico, 3rd Viscount, who d. 8 Nov., and was s. by his eldest son,

Christopher, 4th Viscount. This nobleman left, with several daws, three sons, namely,

Janico, his successor.

Thomas, created Viscount Tara, which title ceased with his Lordship's grandson, Thomas, 3rd Viscount, who was killed 8 July, 1674, by Sir Francis Blundell, Knt. of the King's Co., and his brothers, William and Winwood Blundell. These gentlemen being all, however, acquitted of murder, received his Majesty's pardon in the December of the same year.

His Lordship was s. by his eldest son,

Nicholas, 6th Viscount, who m. Mary, dau. of Nicholas, 1st Viscount Kingsland, and had issue,

Jenico, his successor.

Nicholas, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Anthony, 2nd Viscount Tara, and had issue,

James, who s. as 8th Viscount.

Anthony, who s. as 9th Viscount.

His Lordship was s. by his eldest son,

Janico, 7th Viscount. This nobleman having adhered

Lineage.

The founder of this noble family in Ireland was ARCHIBALD ACHESON, Esq. of Gosford, Co. Haddington, North Britain, who settled in that kingdom in the beginning of the 17th century. In the year 1611, we find Mr. Acheson obtaining a large grant of lands in the Co. of Antrim, and, in the following year, another grant in the Co. of Cavan. In Sept., 1628, he was created Bart. of Nova Scotia, and, in 1630, he obtained a tract of land in that province. Sir Archibald was Solicitor-General, a Senator of Justice, and many years Secretary of State for Scotland; which latter office he continued to fill until his decease, at Letter Keny, in the Co. of Donegal, in 1654, when he was s. in his title and estates by his eldest son,

GRACE.

GRACE.
Sir William, of Grace Castle, Co. Kilkenny: s. to the title upon the demise of his cousin, Sir Richard-Grace Gamon, of Minchenden, Co. Middlesex, M.P., 8 April, 1818, and is the 2nd Bart.

This very ancient family deduces its descent from Raymond Fitzwilliam, or Le Gros, 2nd son of William Fitzgerald, or de Carew, who was eldest son of Gerald Fitzwalter, or de Windsor, 3rd son of Baron Walter Fitz-Other, Governor of Windsor Castle, in 1081.

* Anne, m. to Walter Cope, Bishop of Leighlin and Ferns.
* Nichola, m. to Robert French, Esq. of Monlara.

This Raymond was one of the most powerful Barons, who, with Richard de Clare, surnamed Strongbow, achieved the Conquest of Ireland, of which kingdom, ho, the said Raymond, became Viceroy, in 1176, and Commander of the English Forces there. By his marriage with Basilia, dau. of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Pembroke, and sister of Earl Strongbow, he acquired the extensive district in the Co. of Kilkenny, still styled the “canonred of Grace’s country.” From the 2nd son of this marriage, Fitz-Raymond, Lord of Lixnau and Clannmaurice, the noble house of Fitzmaurice derives, while from the eldest, William le Gros, or Fitz-Raymond, Lord of Lecon, descended (the 12th in succession) Sir John le Gros, (surnamed creius iarum, the iron belted) Baron of Courtstown, and Lord of Grace’s country, living in 1220 and 1334, who m. Catharine, dau. of Pierce, Lord le Poer, of Curraghmore, Co. Waterford, and had two sons, John, Baron of Courtstown and Lord of Grace’s country, M.P. for the Co. Kilkenny, in 1698. This line terminated in 1744, on the death of Robert, only son of John, the last Baron of Courtstown, by whom, John, 2nd Lord, in the Viceroyship of Ireland, was created Earl of Ormonde, and had issue, Gerald Grace (surnamed morroch, the horseman), of Ballylinch Castle, Aq., who d. 4 March, 1618, having m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Hartpole, of Shrule Castle, Queen’s Co., and had issue.

Oliver Grace (surnamed skerbaugh, the handsome), of Ballylinch Castle, m. m. Margaret, dau. of Edmund Butler, 2nd Viscount Mountgarret, and dying 27 Aug., 1626, was s. by his son, Gerald Grace (surnamed rennir, the traveller), of Ballylinch Castle, Aq., who fell at the battle of Kilkiruth, 15 April, 1649, and a confiscation, by the Commonwealth, of 17,000 acres of his estates ensued. He m. Ellen, eldest dau. and eventually co-heir of Edmund Butler, 3rd Lord Dunbayne, and his wife, Margaret, dau. and heir of Thomas Butler, 4th Lord Caher, and was s. by his son, William Grace, who was denominated of Ballylinch Castle, but resided at Barrowmount, Co. Kilkenny: m. Ellenor, sister of Edward, 2nd Viscount Galmoye, and dying in 1630, left issue

Sir Oliver, of whom presently.

ii. John, of the Grange, in the Queen’s Co., who m. Anne, dau. and heir of John Grace, Esq. of Thomas-town, and had an only dau. Elizabeth, who espoused Richard Gamon, Esq. of Dalworthbury, Co. Herts, and left two children,

1 Richard Grace Gamon, of Minchenden, Co. Middlesex, M.P., 8 April, 1818, and is the 2nd Bart.

ii. Oliver, Grace, Esq. of Shangash (now Gracefield), Queen’s Co., M.P., m. Elizabeth, only surviving child of John Bryan, Esq. of Dawnamore, Co. Kilkenny, (by his 2nd wife, Ursula, 2nd dau., and eventual co-heir, of Walter Walsh, Esq. of Castle Hoel, by his wife, the late Magdalen Sheffield, sister of Edmund, 2nd Earl of Mulgrave, grand-aunt, and eventually sole heir, of Ed. mend Sheffield, last Duke of Buckingham and Normanby,) and dying 8 June, 1786, left, (with other children, one of whom, Anne, m. 1st, Richard, eldest son of Sir Richard Nangle, Secretary-of-State for Ireland, temp. JAMES II., and 2ndly, Edmund Butler, 8th Lord Dunboyne,) a son, MICHAEL GRACE, Esq. of Gracefield, who inherited as co-heir, at law, the undivided estates of the Sheffield family, in the Coxs, Susses, Middlesex, and York. He d. 13 Feb., 1794, having m. Mary, dau. of John Galwey, Esq. of Lota House, Co. Cork, and had (with other children, one of whom, Helena, m. Simon Kavanagh, Esq. of Inch, whose grandson, Henry, was created, in 1836, a Baron of Hungary, and appointed Chamberlain to the Emperor of Austria, and chief of the military department of the Council of War,) two sons, 1. OLIVIA, of Gracefield, who d. 24 Aug., 1781, leaving by Mary, dau. and heir of John Dowell, Esq. of Mantua House, 1 Michael, of Gracefield, d. 25 Aug., 1785, and left by Mary, dau. and co-heir of Nicholas Plunket, Esq. of Dunophys Castle, an only child, Alicia Grace, of Gracefield, who m. GRAHAME.

Graham, Sir Robert, of Eok, Co. Cumberland: b. 1 Oct., 1769; s. to the title, as 8th Bart., upon the demise of his brother, in 1795, m. 25 April, 1810, Elizabeth, only dau. of John Young, Esq. of Battle, Co. Sussex, by whom he has issue, Sir Robert is one of the claimants to the Earldom of Annandale and Hartfell, as descendant of Sir George Graham and Lady Mary Johnston (see note).

Lineage.

This family claims descent from the renowned Graham, who, anno 404, commanded King Fergus the Second’s Army, and was Governor of Scotland in the minority of his grandchild, Eupheme. In the year 420, this gallant person made a breach in the mighty wall, which the Emperor Severus had erected between the rivers Firth and Clyde, which has ever since borne the name of Graham’s Dyke. From the time of this eminent man, the Graham family are to be found in the records of Scotland, enjoying the very highest influence: but our limits prohibit individual detail; we therefore pass to

Sir Patrick Graham, of Montrose: who was taken prisoner with King David Bruce, at the battle of Durham, in 1366, and whose son,

Sir Patrick Graham, Lord of Dundaff and Kinardine, was appointed one of the hostages for the said King David’s ransom, in 1337. This sir Patrick m. twice: from his 1st marriage descends the Dukes of Montrose; and of the 2nd, (with Eupheme, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Failstock, brother to King Robert I.) there was a son,

Sir Robert Graham, of Eliston, Kilt., who m. Eupheme, only dau. and heir of David Stewart, Earl of Strathern, and obtained in consequence that Earldom. (From this alliance, the family quarters the Royal Arms of Stuart.) This Sir Robert being slain by John Sir Drummond, in 1413, was by his son, Malise, Earl of Strathearn, who changed the title to Menteith, that of Strathern being annexed to the Royal House by King Robert II. This nobleman m. Anne, dau. of Henry Vere, Earl of Oxford and had three sons and two daughters, the 2nd of which sons,

The Hon. Sir John Graham, of Killdean, called "John with the bright sword," left

Richard Graham, from whom are lineally descended the Grahams of the borders, both of the English and Scottish side, but chiefly the Houses of Netherby and Plompy, Co. Cumberland, Fergus Graham, Esq., of Plompy; m. Sibilly, dau. of William Bell, Esq. of God’s Brig, in North Britain, and had four sons, the 2nd of whom,

Richard Graham, Esq., Gentleman of the Horse to James I., was created a Bart., 30 March, 1628, by the style of Sir Richard Graham, of Esk, Co. Cumberland. This gentleman purchased Netherby, and the barony of Liddell, in the same county, of Francis, Earl of Cumberland. Sir Robert subsequently distinguished himself under the Royal Banner, particularly at Edge-Hill, where he was severely wounded, and lay amongst the slain for an entire night. He m. Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Musgrave, of Camrach, Cumberland, and was s. in 1632, by his elder son, (the younger, Richard, was created a Bart., in 1632, see Graham of Noston-Conynbro.)

Sir George, who m. Lady Mary Johnston, dau. of James, 1st Earl of Hartfell, and had, with other issue,

1. Richard, his successor, of whom presently;
2. William, 1st Viscount Preston, D.B., and Duke of Carlisle and Wells, Clerk of the Closet, and Chaplain to Queen Anne: left issue,

1. Charles, in Holy Orders, Rectrix of St. Mary’s Church, in Essex; m. Friscilla, dau. of — Billingales, Esq. of Esthenden, and has issue, William, in Holy Orders, who inherited the Barony of Preston, upon the decease of the last Viscount Preston.

Thomas-Fanz-Charles, in Holy Orders, m. Anne, dau. of Joseph Harrington, Esq. of Clare, Co. Suffolk, and widow of the Rev. Francis Greenwood. (by which 1st m. he had an only son, Charles Greenwood, Esq. of Aldermaston, Army-Agent, and a daughter, Anne, m. to Thomas Hammerley, Esq. of Foll-Pall.)

Bridget, m. to Thomas Elkington, Esq. of Coventry.

2. Robert, in Holy Orders, D.D., who succeeded to the Preston estates upon the decease of Lady Widdrington.

Sir George d. in 1657, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Richard, who was advanced, in 1690, to the Peerage of Scotland, as Viscount Preston, and took his seat in the Scottish Parliament in that dignity. His Lordship was British Ambassador to the Court of France for many years, and subsequently Secretary of State to James II. Upon the revolution, the Viscount was committed to the Tower, but soon released from imprisonment. Being afterwards, however, apprehended in an attempt to escape to his old master, in France, he was sent to Newgate, arraigned for high-treason, and condemned, but pardoned through the interference of his friends, under the sign-manual, in June, 1691. He m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Sir Anthony, 1st Earl of Croxton, by whom he had (with two sons) his successor, in 1696.

IV. Edwards, 2nd Viscount (the attainder of the deceased Lord not affecting his Scottish Peerage, as no

* James Johnston, of Johnston, had charters of the Barony of Newble, in 1609; of the lands of Brunswell, in Annandale, in 1622; and of other estates, in 1629. He was elevated to the Peerage, 1633, as Lord Johnston, of Lochwood; and created, 1643, Earl of Hartfell, with remainder to his heirs male for ever. His Lordship, 1st Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of William, 1st Earl of Queenberry, and had issue, James, his successor; Mary, m. 1st, to Sir George Graham, ancestor of the present, Sir Robert Graham, as in the text; Her Ladyship espoused 2ndly, Sir George Fletcher, of Rothiemur, of Rothiemur, Janet, m. to Sir William Murray, of Stanhope, Bart. Margaret, m. to Sir Robert Dalzell, of Glencairn.

The Earl espoused 2ndly, Elisabeth, d. of Sir Samuel Johnston of Elphinstone; and 3rdly, Lady Margaret Hamilton, dau. of David, 2nd Earl of Haddington, and widow of David, Lord Carnegie, but had no further issue. He d. 1653, and was s. by his son, James, 2nd Earl of Hartfell. This nobleman made a resignation of his Peerage to the Crown, 1661, and the Earlom of Annandale having become extinct, by the death of James Murray, 2nd Earl of Annandale, he had a new patent, creating him Earl of Annandale and Hartfell, Viscount Annand, Lord Johnston of Lochwood, &c. to the heir male of his body by the eldest heirs male of his body, and the eldest heir male of the body of such heirs female, bearing the name and arms of Johnston; and all other Johnston; who shall, in the eldest heirs whatsoever of his Lordship, with the former precedence of 16 March, 1643. The son and successor of the Earl.

William, Earl of Annandale and Hartfell, was created Marquess of Annandale, 1701. He was s. by his son,

James Johnston, of Johnston, who d. 1712, leaves two issues, when the Marquises expired, and the Earldom of Annandale and Hartfell has since been claimed by different branches of the family. It continues dormant,

Lineage.

"The ancient and powerful family of Graham," says Sir Walter Scott, in the Lady of the Lake, "held extensive possessions in the counties of Dunbarton and Stirling. Few families can boast of more historical renown, having claim to three of the most remarkable characters in the Scottish annals; Sir John Groene, the faithful and undaunted partaker of the labours and patriotic warfare of Wallace, fell in the unfortunate field of Falkirk, in 1298. The celebrated Marquess of Montrose, in whom De Reta saw realized his abstract ideas of the heroes of antiquity, was the second of these worthies; and notwithstanding the severity of his temper, and the vigour with which he executed the oppressive mandates of the Punic, whom he served, 1st do not hesitate to name, as the third, John Graham, of Cleaverhouse, Viscount of Dundee, whose heroic death, in the arms of victory, may be allowed to cancel the memory of his cruelty to the non-conformists, during the reigns of Charles II and James II.

The Grahams, of Norton (Co. York, where we are about to treat), the Grahams of Esk, and the Grahams of Netherby, derive their descent from the same common ancestor, namely,

SIR RICHARD GRAHAM, who was created a Bart., in 1629 (see Graham of Esk), and whose 2nd son, Lord Granard is a Lieut.-Gen. in the Army, and Clerk of the Crown and Hanaper in Ireland.

Lineage.

The surname of Forbes is said to be a corruption of "Forbeast," which was originally assumed by the founder of the family in Scotland, to commemorate the achievement of having destroyed a ferocious bear, which had infested the country.

Sir Arthur Forbes, Knt. (directly descended from the Hon. Patrick Forbes, of Corsie, younger son of James 2nd Lord Forbes, of Scotland, and Egidia, his wife, dau. of William Keith, Earl Marshal of the same Kingdom), settled in Ireland in 1620, and was made by patent, dated at Dublin, in 1623, Knight of the Royal Garter. In 1648, Sir Arthur created a Baronet of Nova Scotia; and having, by petition to the king, made discovery that several royal fishes in the province of Ulster belonged to the Crown, an inquiry was thereupon instituted, and Sir Arthur, eventuallly, was rewarded by a grant of such proportion of the said fisheries as he thought proper to demand, besides the sum of £300 from the first profits of the remainder. He had previously obtained extensive territorial possessions from the Crown, particularly a great quantity of sandy lands in the Co. of Longford, in all 1600 acres, which were erected into the manor of Castle Forbes, with the usual feudal privileges. Sir Arthur, m. Jane, dau. of — Lowther, Esq., and falling in a duel at Hamburg, in 1652, where he had accompanied his regiment (he was Lieut.-Col. in the Army) to assist Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, was a, by his eldest son,

Sir Arthur, b. in 1625. This gentleman, who solemnly espoused the Royal Cause, in Scotland, was rewarded, after the Restoration, by being sworn of the Privy-Council in Ireland, (A.D. 1674), and appointed Marshal of the Army in that Kingdom. In 1671, Sir Arthur was constituted one of the Lord's Justices, and again, in 1673, when he was elevated to the Peerage (by patent, dated 21 Nov.), as Earl Forbes, of Newcourt in the Manor of Longford, in Ireland, his Lordship was made Col. of the Royal Regt. of Foot, in Ireland, and Lieut.-Gen. in the Army; and on the 30th Dec. in the same year, created Earl of Granard. He m. Catharine, dau. of Sir Robert Newcomen, of Moss Town, Co. Longford, Bart. by whom he had five sons and a daughter. His Lordship d. in 1696, and was a, by his eldest son, Arthur, 2nd Earl, b. in 1636; m. in 1678, Mary, eldest dau. of Sir George Rawdon, Bart. of Nolra, Co. Down, and, dying heirless, in 1724, was a, by his only surviving son,

George, 3rd Earl, b. in 1685, who had been called to the House of Peers, in the lifetime of his father, as Lord Forbes. His Lordship was a Naval Officer of great eminence, and, at the time of his decease, was Senior Admiral of the British Navy. In 1723, he was appointed his Majesty's Plenipotentiary to the Court of Muscovy, and, upon his recall, in 1724, was highly complimented by the Czarina. He m. Archibald d. 1717, and s. by his eldest son,

1. FRANCIS GRANT, of Luss.

He was bred to the Bar, and displayed such ability and integrity as an Advocate, that soon after the Revolution, he was appointed one of the Senators of the College of Justice, by the title of Lord Cullen, from an estate which he possessed in Buchan. About the end of the 17th century, he purchased the estate of Monymusk, from the ancestor of the present Sir John Stuart Forbes, Bart. of Pitsligo, in 1705, he was raised to the dignity of a Bart. of Nova Scotia by Queen Anne, and 17 May, 1720, he received a special warrant under the hand of his Majesty George I, granting him the usual armorial addition of a Bower Ermine, as a testimony of his Sovereign's favor, and a memorial of his Judicial eminence,—together with Two Angels as Supporters, the motto "Suum cuique," on a scroll above, and the motto "Jehovah Arb.," on a scroll below,—the only instance in Scottish Heraldry of an Hebrew motto. He early foresaw the important advantages that would accrue to Scotland from a union with England: and to this great measure he gave his zealous and influential support. He was endowed with great mental qualities, Exalted piety, indefatigable integrity and unbounded benevolence shone in every action of his life; and among his many generous acts, he bequeathed a sum of money to build and endow a school in the northern part of the parish of Monymusk, which was executed some years ago, is now in full operation, and is attended by highly beneficial consequences to all classes, especially to the children of the indigent, who received a free education. He m. 1st, Jean, dau. of the Rev. William Meldum, of Melburn, by whom he had no issue; secondly, Sarah, dau. of the Rev. Alexander Fordyce, of Aytoun, by whom he had issue.

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common progenitor, with the extinct Ducal houses of Suffolk and Kent, the Baronic houses of Gray and Warwick, and the existing houses of Donet, Tankerville, and Stammford; namely, Ansechetit de Gray, one of the companions in arms of William the Conqueror, who obtained large grants of land in the co. Oxford and other places. From this person sprang

SIR ANDREW GRAY, of Chillingham, co. Northumberland, who, in reward of his good and faithful services, obtained from King ROBERT BRUCE, in 1326, the Manor of Longford, co. Perth, with other lands in the co. Forfar, and the lands of Brownfield and Broxmouth. From this Sir Andrew directly descended

SIR ANDREW GRAY, of Broxmouth, who was created a Lord of Parliament before 9 Oct., 1457, by the title of LORD GRAY, of Gra. (There is a doubt, however, whether this was the 1st Lord, as the precise date of creation is not ascertained.—see Creation, at foot.) His Lordship m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Sir Roger de Mortimer, with whom he obtained the Baronry of Foulis, and by her had a son, ANDREW, and six daughters. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Walter Buchanan, Knt., and had four sons and a daughter. He d. in the year 1459-60, and was s. by his eldest son,

ANDREW, 2nd Baron, one of the eminent persons who became hostages for the Scottish King James I, in 1483. His Lordship was Ambassador to England in 1449 and 1451. He d. in 1469. This nobleman obtained a license from the crown to build the strong and beautiful Castle of Huntly, in the Carse of Gowrie, (which his family possessed for some ages,) now called Castle Lyon, and belonging to the Earl of Strathmore. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Rires, and was s. by his grandson,

ANDREW, 3rd Baron, (son of Patrick, Master of Gray, by Annabella, dau. of Alexander, Lord Forbes.) This nobleman was one of the Privy-Council to James IV., and Justice-General of Scotland. He m. 1st, Janet, only dau. of John, Lord Keith, son of William, Earl Marischal, by whom he had PATRICK, his successor, and two daughters. He m. 2ndly, Lady Elizabeth Stewart, 3rd dau. of John, Earl of Atholl, son and heir of James II, and had a numerous family, of which the eldest surviving son,

GILBERT, of Buttergask, esq. Egilda, dau. of Sir Lawrence Mercer, of Aldie, and had, with other issue,

PATRICK, who inherited as 5th Lord.

His Lordship d. in 1514, and was s. by his eldest son,

PATRICK, 4th Baron. This nobleman m. Janet, 2nd dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Huntly, by whom he had three dau., viz., Margaret, m. to Sir William Keith, of Innergachie; Isabel, m. to Sir Adam Crichton, of Ruthven; and ———, m. to ———, of Monorgand, of Monorgand. His Lord. d. in 1541, and was s. by his nephew, PATRICK, 5th Baron, (son of Gilbert Gray, of Buttergask, who m. Marion, dau. of James, Lord Ogilvy, of Airly, and, dying in 1562, was s. by his eldest son,

PATRICK, 6th Baron. This nobleman m. Barbara, 4th dau. of William, Lord Ruthven, and was s. in 1596, by his son,

PATRICK, 7th Baron, who m. Lady Mary Stewart, eldest dau. of Robert, Earl of Orkney, and was s. in 1619, by his eldest son,

ANDREW, 8th Baron. This nobleman was Lieut. of the Gens d’Armes in France, under Lord Gordon, in 1624: and was much employed in the wars there. He resigned the Heritable Sheriffship of Forfarshire to Charles L, for which he got his Majesty’s bond for 50,000 pounds, which was never paid. He was banished the kingdom by the Parliament for being with Montrose, in 1645, but this sentence does not appear to have been carried into effect. He was excommunicated by commission of the General Assembly, in 1649, on account of his being a Roman Catholic; and had a fine of £1,000 imposed upon him by Cromwell’s act of grace and pardon, in 1654. He was recalled upon by CHARLES II, and the Duke of York, then in exile, to resign the Lieutenancy of the Gens d’Armes in France, in favour of Mareschal Schomberg, which office he long enjoyed by Scotsmen, and never afterwards could be recovered. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne Ogilvy, sister of the 1st Earl of Findlater, Sibet of James, Earl of Buchan, and had PATRICK, Master of Gray, killed in France, and d. unm. before his father.

ANNE, Mistress of Gray, who m. William Gray, son of Sir William Gray, of Pattendrum, by whom, (who was slain in a duel, by the Earl of Stair,) she had, with two other sons, PATRICK, who s. as 9th Lord.

His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Dame Catherine Cadell, by whom he had one daughter,

Frances, m. to Capt. Mackensae, son of the Bishop of Moray,

His Lordship having thus no surviving male issue, obtained a new patent, 1st Jan., 1638-9, by which the dignity descended to the son of his only dau., Anne, Mistress of Gray, by Sir William Gray, of Pattendrum, which son s. at his Lordship’s decease, in 1663, as PATRICK, 9th Baron, but, having no male issue, was himself obliged to obtain a new patent, in 1707, in favor of the husband of his only dau., Marjory, Mistress of Gray.

JOHN GRAY, Esq. of Criechie, who inherited, accordingly, at his father-in-law’s demise, in 1711, as 10th Baron. His Lordship d. in 1724, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, 11th Baron, who d. in Dec., 1736, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, 12th Baron. This nobleman m. in 1741, Miss Blair, of Kinfauns, an heiress, by whom he had issue, ANDREW, Master of Gray, who d. unm.

CHARLES, his successor.

WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

GRESLEY

GRESLEY, Sir ROGER, of Drakelow, Co. Derby; b. 27 Dec. 1799; s. to the life as 4th Bart., upon the demise of his father, 26 March, 1801; m. 2 June, 1821, Sophia-Catherine, youngest dau. of Geo. William, 7th Earl of Coventry.

Lineage.

This family, which is of Norman extraction, traces its descent from Malebucius, uncle to Rodo, Duke of Normandy, the renowned ancestor of William the Conqueror.

NIGEL, younger son of Roger de Toeye, standard-bearer of Normandy, son of the said Malebucius, arrived in England with an elder brother, Robert, (ancestor of the noble race of the Staffords) in the train of William; and, at the time of the survey, held extensive possessions in the Co. of Derby and Stafford, of which Grglesley in the former, where he fixed his abode, was one. This Nigel left a son, William FITS NIGEL, surnamed 'de Grlesley,' who was founder of the Castle and Monastery of Grlesley, in honor of St. George, and left a son, ROBERT DE GRESLEY, who, in 1134, founded an Abbey of Cistercian Monks, at Swinehead, in Lincolnshire. From this person lineally descended through a long line of distinguished individuals, Sir WILLIAM GRESLEY, Knt. (eldest son and heir of Sir George Gresley, created a Knt. of the Bath at the Coronation of Queen Anne BULLEN, in 1703), who served the office of High-Sheriff for the Co. of Stafford, in the 4th year of Queen Elizabeth, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir THOMAS GRESLEY, Knt. of Drakelow. This gentleman served the office of Sheriff of Staffordshire, in the 23rd of Queen Elizabeth, and of Derbyshire, in the 30th and 45th years of the same reign. His Lordship succeeded to the Peerage, as 2nd Earl, upon the demise of his father, 14 Nov., 1807; and to the Barony, as 3rd Bart., at the decease of his uncle, Sir Henry Grey, of Howick, in 1808. Lord Grey was first returned to Parliament by the Co. of Northumberland, in 1786, and he maintained, for twenty-one years afterwards, an eventful era in the annals of England, a leading position in the House of Commons. Upon the accession of the Whig Administration in 1806, Mr. Grey came into office, as First Lord of the Admiralty, a post which he exchanged upon the lamented decease of Charles Fox, for that of Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He retired with his party in 1807; was called to preside over the Councils of his Sovereign in 1810, as First Lord of the Treasury; and again seceded from office, His Lordship is a Commissioner of the Land Tax, a Trustee of the National Gallery, and a Governor of the Charter House.

Lineage.

That the family of Grey has been of great antiquity in the Co. Northumberland, and celebrated for military achievements, is attested by numerous authorities; and that it was first ennobled in the reign of the fourth Edward, is also upon record.

* The 3rd son, John Grey, Esq., was grandfather of the present Col. Grey, of Morwick.
tlingished himself as a Commanding Officer, during the first American war, was appointed in 1774, upon the breaking out of hostilities with the French Republic, to the chief command of the Land Forces, sent in conjunction with the Naval Armament under Lord St. Vincent, to reduce the West India Islands: and, after his return, was nominated to the command of the Southern District in England; in 1777, he was sworn of the Privy-Council; and elevated to the Peerage, 23 June, 1804, by the title of Baron Grey de Tweedie. His Lordship was advanced to a Viscountcy and Earldom 11 April, 1806, as Viscount Tweedie, and Earl Grey. He m. 1795, Elizabeth, dau. of George Grey, Esq. of Southwick, by whom (who d. 26 May, 1822) he had issue,

1. CHARLES, Lord Howick, present Earl.

Grey De RUTHY, BARONESS (Barbara Rawdon-Hastings), Baronesse Hastings, of Ashley-Weyford and Valence; b. 20 May, 1810; s. to the honors in the same year as 2nd Baroness, (29 Oct., 1810), upon the demise of her father, Henry, 10th Lord Grey de Ruthyn, m. 1 Aug., 1831, to George, present Marquess of Hastings.

Lineage.

The descent of this family is deduced by a French genealogist and antiquary, of great repute, (Francis de Belieforest, of Cominges), from Rollo, Chamberlain to Robert, Duke of Normandy, who obtained by grant, from his master, the Castle and Honore of Croc, in Picardy; whence the surname of De Croc, changed into De Grey), is said to have originated. In the 3th year of Richard I., that Monarch conferred the manor of Thurock, Co. Essex, afterwards called Thurock-Grey, upon Henry de Grey, m. Isolda, niece and heir of Robert Bardolf, and had, with other issue,

Sir John de Grey, of Eaton, near Fenny Stratford, Bucks, who was Sheriff of the Counties of Buckingham and Bedford, 33rd Earl of Oxford, and, 2ndly, made a Grant of the King to attend the King in his Wars in France. In the 4th of the same Monarch, he was appointed Constable of the Castle of Gannock, in North Wales; in seven years afterwards, he was made Governor of Northampton Castle, and the next year, constituted Steward of all Gascoigne; but, in two years subsequently, being, according to Matthew Paris, "an aged Knight of much esteem, for his courtesy and valor, as also chief of the King's Council, until I heard the King's weary of the vanities of the Court, he withdrew himself." This Sir John d. 20 Henry III., and was e. by his only son,

Rhona I de Grey, who was Justice of Chester, 9th Earl of Oxford, who was descended from that house, with other grants, the Castle of Ruthyn, Co. Denbigh. He m. Maud, dau. and heir of Henry de Longcamp, a great Baron, whose principal seat was at Wilton Castle, in Herefordshire, and, dying in 1307, was e. by his only son.

John de Grey, of Wilton, who was summoned to the Parliament, in 1270, was e. by his son, Ralph, Lord of Northanger, who was summoned, with other noblemen, to be at London, to attend the General Council; and, in the 9th of the same Monarch, was appointed Justice of North Wales, and Governor of Caernarvon Castle. This nobleman m. for his 2nd wife, Maud, dau. of Ralph, Lord Bassett, of Drayon, by whom he had an only son, (by his 1st wife he had a son, Henry, his successor, ancestor of the Greys, of Wilton.)

Roma de Grey, who had, with other considerable estates from his father, the Castle of Ruthyn. In 1319, he was summoned to meet the King at Winchester, the second Sunday in Lent, to confer with him before his departure into Aquitaine, and was called to the Parliament, held at York, in 1322, as Lord Grey de Ruthyn. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Hastings of Hergavenny, and Isabel, his wife, dau. of William de Valence, and sister and co-heir of Aymer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke who after his posterity became heirs to the last John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, who was killed in a tournament at Woodstock, in Dec. 1290 (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerages), and, dying 6 March, 1292-3, was e. by his only surviving son,

Rhona II de Grey, who d. in 1395, and was e. by his eldest son,

Rhona III de Grey, who, m. in the death of John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, was found to be his nearest heir. He had afterwards a great contest in the Court of Chivalry, with Sir Edward de Hastings, touching the title of Lord Hastings, and bearing the entire arms of the said John de Hastings, late Earl of Pembroke, which cause coming to a definitive sentence, 11th Henry IV., the right and title to the said name and arms was adjudged to Lord Grey and his heirs, as Lord Hastings; and Sir Edward de Hastings, thereforforth prohibited to bear them, was sentenced to pay such costs of suit as should be awarded. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of William, Lord Roos, and had an only son, John, (Sir) who, dying in the life time of his father, left two sons, by his wife, Constance, dau. of John Holland, Lord of Exeter, and widow of Thomas, Lord Mowbray.

EDMUND, who s. his grandfather.

THOMAS, created BARTON GRAY, of Rousmound, but, being an elder Lancastrian, was attainted 1st. Edward IV., when his honors expired, and he d. s. p.

Lord Grey espoused, 2ndly, Joane, dau. and heir of William, Lord Astley, and had three sons, of whom, Edward, the eldest, m. the heir of Ferrers, of Groby, and was ancestor to the Duke of Suffolk and the present Earl of Stamford. His Lordship d. in 1440, and was s. by his grandson,

EDMUND, 4th Baron, created EARL OF KENT, 3 May, 1465, and appointed Lord-High-Treasurer of England, in which superior dignity (the Earldom of Kent) the Baronoy merged for one hundred and seventy-four years, until the Earl of Kent became extinct at the demise of his 3rd Earl, 8th Earl and 11th Baron, without male issue, in 1629. His Lordship's great-great-grandfather, Henry Grey, 4th Earl and 7th Baron, never, owing to his poverty, assumed the family honors. Upon the demise of this 8th Earl of Kent, his nephew (the son of his Lordship's sister, Lady Susan, dau. of Sir Michael Longueville),

CHARLES LONGUEVILLE, claimed the Baronoy, and had his claim admitted, in 1640, as 12th Baron Godrey de Ruthyn, in despite of the opposition of Anthony Grey, the then Earl of Kent, grounded upon the plea, that "when a Baron was in writ it was once involved in an Earlom, it should wait upon such Earlom, and might not be subsequently transferred to another family by a dau. and heir, so long as the Earlom continued in the male." The decision upon this case established the principle, that an Earlom, or other superior dignity, does not affect a Baronoy in fee. His Lordship, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Edward Neville, Esq., d. in three years afterwards, and was s. by his only daughter,

SUSAN LONGUEVILLE, who then became Baroness Grey de Ruthyn. Her Ladyship is m. Sir Henry Yelverton, Bart.

FAMILY OF YELVERTON.

The Yelvertons are of great antiquity to the Co. of Norfolk.

ROBERT YELVERTON, seated at Rackheath, near Norwich, temp. Edward 111., m. Cecilia, dau. of Sir Thomas Hasted, Lord High Steward of England, by whose death he m. Margaret, daug. of Sir Michael Longueville,

JOHN YELVERTON, Esq. of Rackheath, whose second son,

THOMAS YELVERTON, was Burgess for Yarmouth, 14 Henry VI., in the Parliament then held at Westminster, and by his abilities in the study of the common law, gained so great a reputation, that in the 16th Henry VI., he was elected to the degree of Serjeant-at-law, and, in four years afterwards, constituted one of the Judges of the King's Bench. He was continued in that employment by Edward IV., and was created a Knight of the Bath at that monarch's coronation. Nevertheless, when Henry VI. recovered for a short interval the reins of government, Sir William was constituted one of the Judges of the Court of Common-Pleas, by patent, dated 4 Oct., 1746. From this learned and eminent person we pass to his lineal descendant,

WILLIAM YELVERTON, Esq. of Roughton, who m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Henry Fermor, of East Barsham, Co. Norfolk, by whom he had five sons and four daughters, of whom the eldest son,

HENRY, a. his father, and left a son,

WILLIAM, created a Bart., in 1629, a title that expired with his son,

SIR WILLIAM, 2nd Bart.

The third son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER YELVERTON, an eminent Lawyer, of Easton Mauduit, Co. Northampton, and, dying in 1676, was s. by his son,

SIR CHARLES YELVERTON, Bart., as 13th Baron, who d. unmarried, in 1729, when the Baronoy expired by his brother,

BARON YELVERTON, 14th Baron, who bore the spurs at the coronation of James II. and William and Mary, and was created 21 April, 1681, Fourth Earl of Longueville. His Lordship m. Barbara, dau. of John Talbot, Esq. of Laycock, Co. Wiltshire, and was s. at his decease, 24 March, 1703-4, by his older son,

TAILOR, 15th Baron and 2nd Viscount, who was advanced to an Earlom, as Earl of Sussex, 26 Sept., 1717. His Lordship was appointed Deputy-Earl-Marshal of England, in 1725, and elected a Knight of the Bath at the revival of that Order in the same year. The Earl officiated as Earl-Marshal at the coronation of George II. His Lordship m. Lucy, dau. of Henry Pelham, Esq. of Lewes, Co. Sussex, and niece of Thomas, Lord Pelham, by whom he had two sons. He d. 27 Oct., 1731, and was s. by the elder,

GEORGE-AUGUSTUS, 2nd Earl. This nobleman d. unmarried, in 1750, when the honors expired by his brother,

HENRY, 3rd Earl, d. in 1729. His Lordship m. 1st, Hesta., dau. of John Hall, Esq. of Mansfield Woodhouse, Notts, by whom he had one surviving child,

BARBARA, m. 27 Oct., 1725, to Edward Thoroton Gould, Esq., and d. 8 April, 1781, leaving issue,

HENRY-EDWARD, successor to the Baron.

Barony, d. un. Mary, m. to the Hon. and Rev. Frederick Pory, son of Lord Lilford, and has Frederick-Henry and other children.

The Earl m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of John Vaughan, Esq. of Bristol, by whom he had no child. His Lordship dying thus, in 1789, without male descendants, the Earlom of Sussex and the Viscountcy of Longueville ceased, but the Baronoy of Grey de Ruthyn expired by his deceased dau., Lady Barbara Gould, his grandson,

HENRY-EDWARD GOULD, Esq., who thus became 19th Baron Grey de Ruthyn, and assumed, in 1800, the name and armor of YELVERTON. His Lordship m. 21 June, 1790, Amma-Meria, dau. of Mr. William Kellam, of Ryton-upon-Dunsmore, Co. Warwick, by whom he had issue, in 1810, an only child and heir, BARBARA, the present was appointed Queen's Serjeant in the 31st Elizabeth. He was afterward chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, and constituted one of the Judges of the Queen's Bench, in the 4th of the same reign. Upon the accession of King James, he was made a Judge of the Common Pleas, and he received the honor of Knighthood. He d. at Easton MAUDUIT, a seat in Northamptonshire which he had purchased, and was buried in the church there in 1677. His Lordship was m. by his eldest son (by Margaret, dau. of Thomas Catesby, Esq. of Easton, in Northamptonshire),

HENRY YELVERTON, Esq. of Easton Mauduit, Barrister-at-Law, Recorder of Northampton, and M.P. for that borough. In 1613, Mr. Yelverton was appointed Solicitor-General, when he received the honor of Knighthood. In four years afterwards, he was constituted Attorney-General; but, incurring the hostility of the favorite, Buckingham, he fell under the displeasure of the King, and suffered loss of place, fine, and imprisonment. He subsequently resumed his practice at the Bar, and, being reconciled to the favorite, was constituted one of the Justices of the Court of Common-Pleas. This venerable and learned person d. 24 Jan., 1629-30, and was s. by his eldest son (by Margaret, dau. of Robert Beale, Esq., Clerk of the Council to Queen Elizabeth, the better of the warrant for the execution of the Queen of Scots to Febingay),

SIR CHRISTOPHER YELVERTON, Knt. of Easton Mauduit, who was created a Bart., 20 June, 1620. He m. Anne, youngest dau. of Sir William Twisden, Bart. of Rydon Hall, and was s. by his only son,

SIR HENRY YELVERTON, Member for the Co. of Northampton in the Restoration Parliament. This gentleman m. Susan Longueville, BARONESS GREY DE RUTHYN, as in the text.

GRIERSON.

GRIERSON, Sir Robert, of Lag, Co. Dumfries; s. to the title, as 5th Bart., upon the demise of his father, in 1813.

Liturage.

This family claims descent from Gilbert, second son of Malcolm, Lord of Margregor, who died in 1374; but whether the claim be well founded or not, it is certain that the Griersons, of Lag, have been settled in that part of Scotland for a period exceeding four centuries.

Thomas Grierson, Laird of Arde, obtained, 6 Dec., 1400, a charter from his cousin, John M’Rath de Lachs, conveying to him all right and claim which he, the said

GUI

John, had to the lands of Lag. From this Thomas lineally descended

Sir William Grierson, Knt. of Lag, who was appointed, in 1623, the Keeper of certain Rolls. He m. in 1630, Miss Maxwell, sister of William, Lord Herries. Sir William d. about the year 1629, and from this time the family of Lag seem to have made an alteration in their surname, calling themselves "Grier," instead of "Grierson," for some generations. Sir William was s. by his son.

Sir Robert Grierson, Knt., M.P., in 1625. This gentleman m. in 1629, Margaret, eldest dau. of Sir James Murray, of Cockpool, by whom he had four sons and a dau. Sir Robert d. in 1634, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir John Grier, Knt., but his male issue failing, the line of descent is carried on by the posterity of the second son, James Grierson, Esq., who left a son,

Sir Robert Grierson, Esq., who s. in 1669, to the estates of his cousin, Sir John Grierson, Knt. of Lag, and was created a Bt. of Nova Scotia, 28 March, 1685. Sir Robert m. Henrietta, dau. of James, 2nd Earl of Queensberry, by whom he had four sons. This gentleman, who enjoyed a pension from the crown of £200 a year, was s. at his decease, by his eldest son.

Sir William, who s. Anna, dau. of Sir Richard Musgrave, of Hayton; but, dying without male issue, the title devolved upon his brother,

Sir Gilbert. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Col. Matlatt, of the Coldstream Regt. of Guards, and, dying 7 Feb., 1766, was s. by his son,

Sir Robert, who m. Margaret, eldest dau. of the Hon. Alexander Dalrell, of Glenese, by whom he had four sons and a dau., and, dying in 1813, was s. by his son, Robert, the present Bart.

Creation.—28 March, 1768.

Arms.—Gu. on a fesse or, between three quadrangular locks (or fetter-lock)s ar. a mullet ar.

Crest.—A lock, as in the arms.

Motto.—Hoc securior.

Seat.—Lag, Dumfrieshire.

Lineage.

This branch of the ducal House of Hamilton springing from

THOMAS HAMILTON, of Orcharfield, who acquired, in 1582, from John, Earl of Lennox, the Baronies of Bathgate, Co. Linlithgow, and in 1524, purchased the lands of Bailnacrief in the same shire. He was s. by his son.

THOMAS HAMILTON, who fell at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept., 1547, leaving two sons,

THOMAS.

John, a secular Priest, who leaving Scotland on account of his religion, took up his abode at Paris in 1573, and was appointed Professor of Philosophy in the College of Navarre. He became tutor to the Cardinal de Bourbon, in 1576; and to Francis de Joyeuse, afterwards a Cardinal, in 1578; was chosen Rector of the University of Paris, in 1584, the next year was presented by the University of the parishes of St. Cosmos and Damian, at Paris. He was a zealous partisan of the League, and one of the counsell who offered the Crown to Philip II., of Spain, in 1591. When Henry IV. entered Paris, in 1604, Hamilton was arrested, but had liberty soon after to depart from Paris. He retired to Brussels, and, in 1605, ventured to revisit his native country, after an absence of nearly 30 years. He found a temporary asylum at the Castle of Lord Givige; but in 1608 was arrested by a party of Life-Guards, and committed to the Tower of London, where he died.

The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, had a charter of Balhyn, Drumcairn, and Priestfield, in the year 1607. He was admitted a Member of Session in 1614, but resigned his seat on the Bench to his second son the next year. Sir Thomas m. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, b. in 1603: studied the law in France; was admitted Advocate in 1607; and soon distinguished himself at the Bar, was appointed a Lord of Session in 1609, by the title of LORD BRAWCUM. He was subsequently one of the Commissioners of the Treasury of Exchequer, called Oeclana, and King's Advocate. In 1614 he was nominated a Commissioner by Parliament, to treat of a union with England. In 1618, he was received Lord Clerk Register of Scotland, and in the same year succeeded Sir Alexander Hay, as Secretary of State. He was elevated to the Peerage, 30 Nov., 1613, as Lord Balting and Byres, was appointed Lord President of the Court of Session in 1616, and created EARL of MALNOSE 30 March, 1616. His Lordship s. 1st, Margaret, dau. of James Bothwic, Esq. of Newbyes, by whom he had an only dau., Christian, m. 1st, to John, Lord Lindsey, and, 2dly, to Robert, Lord Boyd. where Sir John Cope was defeated, in 1745. Sir Peter was taken prisoner by the Chevalier's troops, and dismissed on his parole; and was one of the five officers (the others being the Hon. Mr. Ross, Capt. Lucy Scott, and Lieuts.
Farquharson and Cumming) who refused, in Feb., 1746, to rejoin their regiments on the Duke of Cumberland's command and threat of forfeiting their commissions.
Their reply, "that his Royal Highness was master of their commissions, but not of their honor," was approved by government, and Sir Peter, in 1754, embarked for America, in command of the 44th Regt. He fell, with his younger son, James, in Gen. Braddock's defeat by the Indians, 9 July, 1755. By the Lady Amelia Stewart, second daughter of Francis, 8th Earl of Moray, he had three sons;

HAMILTON.

Lineage. This family is said to be descended from Sir William de Hamelden, one of the younger sons of Robert de Belkomont, 3rd Earl of Leicester, which Sir William de Hamelden's son, Sir Gilbert Hamilton, having expressed himself at the Court of Edward II., in admiration of King Robert Brave, received a blow from John de Spencer, which led the following day to a encounter wherein Spencer fell; and Hamilton sought security in Scotland, about the year 1252. Being closely pursued, however, in his flight, he and his servant changed clothes with two woodcutters, and taking their saws, were in the act of cutting through an oak-tree when his pursuers passed by. Perceiving his servant notice them, Sir Gilbert hastily cried out to him, "Through," which word, with the oath and saw through it, he took for his crest in commemoration of his deliverance. This detail is, however, liable to many objections. Sir William Dugdale, in his account of the Earls of Leicester, is totally silent as to the descent of the Hamiltons from Robert, 3rd Earl. That nobleman, according to Sir William, had three sons, Robert, 4th Earl of Leicester, Roger, Bishop of St. Andrew's, and Chancellor of Scotland, d. 1292. William, a leper, founder of the Hospital of St. Leonard, at Leicester. That this last William pre-deceased his eldest brother without issue is evident, from the circumstance of the great inheritance of the Earls of Leicester devolving, on the death of the 4th Earl, in 1294, upon his sisters, and Simon de Montfort, the husband of the eldest, having, in her right, the title of Earl of Leicester. (See Burke's Extinct Peerage.)

William de Hamilton occurs frequently in "Rymer's Frewera," from 1274 to 1306, being employed by Edward I. In various negotiations and transactions of importance. He was appointed Dean of York, in 1296, and High-Chancellor of England, 16 Jan., 1306. This is the first of the names noticed in the "Frewera." It appears somewhat earlier, however, in Scotland;

GILBERT DE HAMILTON being on record, in the Chartulary of Paislay, in 1272; the younger son of this Gilbert, John, was ancestor of the Earls of Haddington; the eldest,

SIR WALTER DE HAMILTON, sired fealty to Edward I., in 1292 and 1294; attaching himself to King Robert, he had divers grants of lands, amongst others, the Baronies of Kinnel (Kinneil) and Cadyow, (now Hamilton), in the Sheriffdom of Lanark. From this Sir Walter lineage descended

SIR JAMES HAMILTON, of Cadyow, who m. Janet, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander da Levintstoun, and had with other issue, James, his successor. Alexander, ancestor of the Hamiltons of Stirerton Hill, Baronets.

He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES HAMILTON, of Cadyow, who was created a Lord of Parliament, by Royal Charter, 29 June, 1445, as Lord Hamilton. This nobleman obtained a grant, dated 1 July, 1455, of the Office of Sheriff of the Co. Lanark, and subsequently, grants of extensive territorial possessions. He m. 1st, Lady Euphemia Graham, eldest dau. of Patrick, Earl of Strathearn, Dormer of Archibald, 5th Earl of Douglas, by whom he had an only dau., Elizabeth, m. to David, 4th Earl of Crawford. Lord Hamilton, m. 2ndly, in 1474, Mary, eldest dau. of James II., and relict of Thomas Boyd, Earl of Arran, and, dying in 1479, was s. by his only son,

James, 2nd Lord, who obtained a charter of the lands and Earldom of Arran, dated 11 Aug., 1503, to himself and his heirs male, in failure of which to revert to the Crown. This nobleman, who took a prominent part in the affairs of Scotland, was constituted Lieut.-Gen. of the Kingdom, Warden of the Marches, and one of the Lords of Regency, in 1517. And his Lordship obtained, on the forfeiture of the Earl of Angus, the Lordship of Bothwell. He d. about 1528, and was s. by his eldest son,

James, 2nd Earl. This nobleman, upon the death of James V. in 1542, was unanimously chosen Regent of Scotland, by the nobles assembled for that purpose: the public voice applauding their choice: the next year he was declared by Parliament heir apparent to the Crown, appointed Guardian to Queen Mary, and Governor of the Realm during her Majesty's minority. In 1548, he HAM

Lordship was invested with the French Order of St. Michael, and created, by HENRY II. of France, DUKE OF CHÂTELHERAULT, in Poitou. His Grace, one of the most estimable persons in Scottish history, m. Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, and had issue,

JAMES, his successor,

JOHN, successor to his brother.

David, d. without issue.

Claude, ancestor of the Marquess of Abercorn.

He d. 22 Jan., 1575, when the Earldom of Arran (the Dukeedom of Châtellerault having been resumed by the Crown of France) passed to his eldest son,

JAMES, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, upon the arrival of QUEEN MARY, in 1615, openly aspired to her hand, but opposing the Queen's enjoying the exercise of her religion, and entering a protestation against it, his Lordship entirely forfeited her favour. His love, however, inflamed by disappointment, and his impatience exasperated by repeated delays, he entered into extravagant speculations, and after these extravagances, broke out at last in ungodly frenzy. He was, in consequence, declared to be in a state of insanity, by the cognizance of an inquest, passed on a brief directed out of the Court of Chancery, and the estates of his deceased father lapsed to the Crown. This nobleman,

LORD JOHN HAMILTON, who, with his younger brother, Claude, was banished from Scotland in 1579; but, returning in 1590, the set of forfeitures, which had been passed, was annulled, and he was elevated to the Peerage, 17 April, 1599, as Marquess of Hamilton. This nobleman, never allowed his fealty to his unhappy QUEEN MARY to subserve one moment; and, so conscious was the unfortunated Prince of his unmannerly fidelity, that one of her last acts was to transmit to him a ring (which is still treasured in the family), through the medium of an attendant. His Lordship m. Margaret, only dau. of John, 8th Lord Glamis, and, dying 12 April, 1604, was s. by his only son,

JAMES, 2nd Marquess, K.G., who, upon the demise of his uncle, James (already mentioned as insane), Earl of Arran, in 1608, inherited that nobleman's honors. His Lordship obtained an English Peerage, 16 June, 1619, by the titles of Baron of Enderdale, in Cumberland, and Earl of Cumnock, and was invested a Knight of the Garter at Windsor, 7 July, 1625. He m. Lady Anne Cunningham, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairn, by whom he had issue,

JAMES, his successor,

WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

Anne, m. to Robert, 3rd Earl of Southesk.

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to James, Lord Kilmarnock, and, 2ndly, to Sir David Cunningham, of Robertland, K.G., 3rd Earl of Morton, Mary, m. 1st, to Alexander, 2nd Earl of Caithness, 2ndly, to Sir James Livingston, 3rdly, to James, 3rd Earl of Pinnsater.

Margaret, m. to William Blair, of Blair.

The Duke received a mortal wound in the service of CHARLES II., at the unfortunate battle of Worcester, and by Cromwell's Act of Grace, passed in 1654, he was exceptioned from all forfeiture thereof, and his estates restored, reserving out of them £400 a year for his Duchy for life, and after her death, £200 a year each to his four daus., and their heirs for ever. His Grace's own honors fell under the attainer, and his English dignities expired, while the Dukeedom of Hamilton, in virtue of the patent of 1643, devolved upon (the eldest dau. of James, the 1st Duke) his niece,

LADY ANNE HAMILTON, duchess of Hamilton, who married,

LORD WILLIAM DOUGLAS, eldest son of William, 1st Marquess of Douglas, by his 2nd wife, Lady Mary Gordon, 3rd dau. of George, 1st Marquess of Huntly, and obtained, by petition, for her husband, in 1660, the title of Duke of Hamilton for life. His Grace had been previously elevated to the Peerage as Earl of Selkirk, (see that dignity). The issue of this marriage were, besides three daughters,

1. JAMES, 4th Duke.
3. Charles, upon his father's resignation, was created Earl of Selkirk.

iv. John, created Earl of Raglen, and s. his brother in the Earldom of Selkirk.

v. George, created Earl of Orkney.

vi. William, who m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of Sir David Dunbar, bart.

vii. Archibald, an Admiral, Governor of Greenwich Hospital, and Governor of Jamaica, who d. 5 April, 1754, leaving issue by his wife, Jane, dau. of James, 4th Earl of Abercorn.

1. Charles, who m. Mary Catherine, dau. of Col. Duffusrence, and d. 10 Sept., 1731, leaving an only Ambassador at Naples son, Mary, m. to John, 2nd Earl of Selkirk.

3. Archibald, accidentally drowned, 30 May, 1744.

5. Elizabeth, m. to Francis, 4th Lord Brooke.

6. Jane, m. to Charles, 9th Lord Cathcart.

VIII. Catherine, m. to John, 1st Duke of Atholl.

IX. Susanna, m. to John, 2nd Duke of Dundonald.

X. Margaret, m. to James Maule, Earl of Pemmure.

The Duke d. 1604, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, Earl of Arran, (who, upon the Duchess, a few years afterwards, surrendering her honors,) became then, by patent, dated 10 Aug., 1668, Duke of Hamilton, &c. with the precedence of the original creation, 12 April, 1643, in the same manner as if he had regularly inherited. His Grace was installed a Knight of the Garter, and created an English Peer, 11 Sept., 1711, as Baron of Dunton, Co. Chester, and D fame of Brandon, Co. Suffolk; but, upon applying for his seat in the House of Lords, it was objected that, by the 23rd article of the Union, "no Peer of Scotland could, after the Union, be created a Peer of England;" and the House of Lords so resolved, after a protracted debate. His Grace m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Robert, Earl of Sunderland, by whom he had two daus., who d. young and bodily, Elizabeth, and Anne, who m. to Sir Digby, Lord Gerrard, of Gerrard's Bromley, by whom he acquired a large estate in the Cos. Lancaster and Stafford, and had issue,

1. JAMES, his successor,

2. William, who m. Anne, dau. and sole heir of Francis Hawkins, d. 23 July, 1724.

3. Anne, who called after his godmother, Queen Anne, who m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of —- Powall, Esq., and left issue, James, who m. 29 July, 1767, Lucy, dau. of Sir Richard Lucy, Lord and aut of Sir John Barker, Bart., and d. 22 Jan., 1834, leaving an only dau., m. to Gen. R. Anstruther.

2 Charles, Powell, an Admiral, who m. Lucretia, dau. of — Brosrer, Esq., and d. 12 March, 1782, leaving issue, Hamilton Charles James, who m. 13 April, 1785, Maria Stuennaw, 2nd dau. of Luett Gen. Sir F. Pilson K.C.B. Augustus Harlington Price, Lieut., K.N., who m. 2 April, 1848, Maria Catherina, dau. of the late John Hyde, Esq., and has issue,

IV. Susan, m. to Anthony Tracy Kreck, of Great Tee, Esq., Co. Oxford, and d. 3 June, 1755. V. Charlotte, m. to Charles Edwin, Esq., and d. 5 Feb., 1777.

The Duke, having accepted a challenge from Lord Mounb, engaged that nobleman in Hyde Park, on Sunday, 11 Nov., 1792; and, having stood his opponent, fell himself, it was suspected, through the treachery of Gen. Macartney, Lord Mounb's second, for whose supposed share of guilt, a reward of £200 was subsequently offered; the General eventually surrendering, was tried, 10 June, 1716, in the Court of King's Bench, and acquitted of the murder, but found guilty of manslaughter. He d.

in Kensing-ton-square, in 1730. His Grace was s. by his son,

James, 5th Duke of Hamilton, and 2nd Duke of Brandon, K.T. This nobleman m. thrice. By his 1st wife, Anne, dau. of John, Earl of Dundonald, he had an only son James, his successor; by the 2nd, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Strangways, Esq. of Melbury Sampford, Co. Dorset, he had no issue; and by the 3rd, Anne, dau. and sole heir of Edward Spencer, Esq. of Rendlesham, Co. Suffolk, he had

Archibald, who s. as 9th Duke. Spencer, b. to 1742, a Lieut.-Col. in the Gds. d. in 1791. Archibald, in 1761, to Arthur, lst Marquis of Dougl. His Grace d. in 1748, and was s. by his eldest son,

James, 6th Duke, K.T., who m. in 1758, Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of John Gunning, Esq. of Castle Court, Co. Roscommon; by whom he had two sons, who inherited successively as 7th and 8th Dukes, and a dau. Elizabeth, m. to Edward, 18th Earl of Derby. His Grace d. 17 Jan., 1780, and was s. by his elder son,

James-George, 7th Duke, who s. to the Marquise of Douglas, and Earl of Angus, upon the demise of Archibald, last Duke of Douglas, in 1761. The guardians of his Grace (one of whom, Andrew Stuart, Esq. published in 1773, a series of letters to Lord Mansfield, demonstrating on the course taken in this affair, by his Lordship) asserted his right to the Douglas estates, upon the ground that Mr. Stewart, son and heir of Lady Jane Stewart, sister of the Duke of Douglas, was not her son, and the celebrated "Douglas cause" ensued. (See Lord Douglas, of Douglas.) His Grace dying unm., 7 July, 1789, the honors devolved upon his brother,

Douglas, 8th Duke, who, in 1789, again mooted the point decided against his predecessor, James, 4th Duke, relative to his seat in the House of Lords; and obtaining, after the opinion of the Judges had been taken, a resolution in his favour, was summoned to the House of Lords, as Duke of Brandon. His Grace m. 4 April, 1778, Elizabeth Anne, dau. of the late Peter Burrell, Esq. of Beckenhurst, Kenn, which marriage was dissolved by the Scots Commisary Court, in 1794, and, dying without issue, 2 Aug., 1798, the honors reverted to his uncle,

Archibald, 9th Duke of Hamilton, and 6th Duke of Brandon, eldest son of James, 5th Duke of Hamilton. His Grace m. 25 May, 1765, Harriet, dau. of Alexander, 6th Earl of Galloway, by whom he had issue, Alexander, present Duke, who was summoned to Parliament in the lifetime of his father, in the Barony of Dottin.

Archibald, M.P., b. 16 March, 1790; d. unm., 2 Aug., 1843.

Charlotte, m. to the Duke of Somerset, and d. 10 June, Susan, m. to the Earl of Dumor.

E. JAMES HAMILTON, b. 4 Aug., 1755, a distinguished Military Commander. This gallant Officer entered upon active service at an unusually early age, and for a period of upwards of fifty years, ending with the General Peace of 1815, he was never unemployed, was never on half-pay, and, what is perhaps without parallel in the British Army, he was never, during more than half a century, relieved from duty, by official leave of absence, excepting for one fortnight only; a relaxation to which he was solely prompted by filial affection. Having distinguished himself by extraordinary intrepidity and judgment at the escallade of the fortress of Guiallar, the storming of the strong forts of Lahar and Bangalore, and in many similar daring exploits, he was permitted, while still extremely young, and while even in the subordinate situation of Lieutenant, to raise an Indian regiment: a favor which, as it had never before, and has never since been, conferred upon any Officer beneath the rank of Colonel, marks, in the very strongest manner, the universal and high sense entertained of his personal merits. In 1795, he commanded a Light Brigade at the capture of St. Domingo, and his services elsewhere in the West Indies were likewise eminently conspicuous. While in Africa it devolved upon him, as Military Commissioner, to make, in 1803, the important surrenders to the Dutch of our newly-acquired territory at the Cape of Good Hope. Being appointed, in 1806, to the command of the Northern District of Ireland, the city of Londonderry being the head-quarters of his staff, he evinced, in a manner at once openly decisive and wholly unprecedented, his respect for the laws and tranquillity of his country, and his generous abhorrence of wanton insult towards his unprotected and inoffensive Catholic fellow-subjects, by forcibly suppressing all exhibitions of religious party triumph. During the recent conflict in Spain, Portugal, and France, his professional science and exemplary courage were still more importantly exhibited in discharging the many arduous duties of the trust imposed in him by the Duke of Wellington, who confided to his command a large division of the Allied Army. While Imperial Portugal, a nation necessitous and resourceless of that kingdom became, through his indefatigable efforts, as effective and as distinguished for high discipline as it had previously been for want of energy and military character. For this and other valuable services, his Portuguese Majesty conferred upon him the post of the highest class of the Royal Order of the Tower and Sword. Nor did his active merit as a British General both there and in Spain pass unrecorded in the Duke of Wellington's official dispatches. Five achievements, even amidst numberless scenes of brilliant exploit, was more gallant or more deservedly the theme of universal admiration than his unexampled and almost incredible defence of the unfortified town and dismantled castle of Alba de Tormes, in the latter kingdom, with fifteen hundred men exhausted by a fatiguing retreat, against the pursuing army of the celebrated Marshal Soult, fifteen thousand strong, and supported by twenty pieces of artillery. For this most service, the dignity of a Bart. of Great Britain was conferred upon him by patent, 21 Dec., 1814, and his Majesty subsequently received his Majesty's permission to bear an augmentation in his arms commemorating of this signal instance of military skill and personal heroism. Sir James m. 1 May, 1794, Emily-Sophia, dau. of George-Paul Monck, Esq., and Lady Ariminta Beresford, sixth dau. of Marcus, 1st Earl of Tyrone, by whom he had issue, grandfather, 4 Oct., 1828; m.

3 Sept., 1833, Georgiana, youngest dau. of Sir George Chetwynd, Bart. of Grendon Hall, Warwickshire.

In the reign of Edward I.,

Sir John or Hanmer, Knt., was appointed Governor of Caernarvon Castle. This gentleman, who was possessed of Hanmer, in the year 1588, m. Haws, dau. of Eyton ap-Griffith ap-Gwynfryn, Lord of Powis, from which marriage the descent in the male line is unbroken to the present day; and was one of the first who assumed their surname from the place of their residence, as appears by a letter from the celebrated Camden, to Mr. John Hammer, preserved among the Harleian Manuscripts, in the British Museum. The grandson of Sir John Hamner,

Sir David Hanmer, was appointed a Judge in the Court of King's Bench, in the 6th year of Richard II., and received the honor of Knighthood from that monarch.
His Lordship left 8 dau., Margaret, m. to the famed Owen
Glendower, and a son and successor,

Sir John Hanmer, Knt., who fell under the banner of his brother-in-law at the battle of Shrewsbury. The grandson of this Sir John,

Richard Hanmer, Esq. of Hanmer, m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Roger Kynaston, of Hordley (by Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Grey, Earl of Tankerville, by Antigone, dau. of Humfrey Plantagenet, Duke of Gloucester), and had a son and successor,

Flint, m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Salisbury, of Llewenny, Knt., and left issue,

Sir Thomas Hanmer, Knt., who was M.P. for the Co.
of Flint, and one of the Council of the President of the Marches of Wales. He also attended the Earl of Derby into France, with the Earls of Garto to Henry III.
from Queen Elizabeth, and was himself knighted by James I., in 1603. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of John Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Mostyn, Knt. of Mostyn, by whom he had a son and successor,

Sir John Hanmer, Knt., who was created a Bart., 8 July, 1629, and represented the Co. of Flint in Parliament, in 1621. Sir John was s. by an only son,

Sir Thomas Hanmer, M.P. for the Co. of Flint, and Cup-Bearer to Charles I., in whose cause he raised, during the Civil War, two troops of horse. Sir Thomas was to have been one of the Knights of the Royal Oak, had the institution of that Order actually taken place. He m.
1st, Elizabeth Baker, of Wittingham, Co. Suffolk, Maid of Honour to Queen Henrietta Maria, whom he left a son, John, and, 2ndly, Susan, dau. of Sir William Her-voy, of Ickworth, Knt., by whom he also left issue. He was s. in 1678, by his eldest son,

Sir John Hanmer, M.P. for the Co. of Flint, and Col. of a regiment under King William, at the battle of the Boyne. Sir John attained the rank of Major-Gen. in the Army, but, dying without issue, in 1701, the title devolved upon his nephew,

Sir Thomas Hanmer, b. in 1676, son of William Hanmer, Esq. eldest son of Sir Thomas, the 2nd Bart., by his 2nd marriage; by his wife, Penelope, sister and heir of Sir Henry North, Bart. of Milden Hall. Sir Thomas Hanmer was returned to Parliament, at the accession of Queen Anne, for the Co. of Flint; elected 1775, for the Co. of Suffolk; and chosen Speaker of the House of Commons in 1712. Alluding to this latter event, Dr. Johnson says,

Illustrous age! how bright thy glories shine
When Hanmer filled the Chair, and Anne the Throne.

Sir Thomas was no less distinguished as a man of letters than a statesman; and a superb edition of Shakespeare's Plays, with his own annotations, published by the University of Oxford (to which he presented the MS.), in six vols., fully established his refined taste and critical acumen. Sir Thomas m. 1st, in 1668, Isabella, Duchess Dowager of Sir George had another son,

iv. John-Lucie, an Officer in the Coldstream Guards, who fell at Waterloo, in 1815, unmarried.

The paternal surname of this gentleman was Blackman, and under that he was created a Bart., 28 July, 1821. Sir George Blackman assumed, by royal permission, 13 Oct., 1821, the surname of "Harnage" only, as representative of that very ancient family,—a family which held a high rank in the Co. of Salop so far back as the time of Edward III., A.D. 1339. In the 9th year of Richard II., A.D. 1386, we find Richard de Harnage holding the Bart.'s direct and paternal progenitor a very leading personage amongst the gentry of that part of the kingdom. The grumlon of this Richard, Hugh de Harnage, was High-Sheriff for the Co. of Salop, A.D. 1423, temp. Henry VI.; and his son, Thomas, purchased Belleswardine from the Dudley family, in the 33rd year of Henry VIII., A.D. 1542.

HASTINGS, MARQUESSES OF (George-Augustus-Francis Rawdon-Hastings), Earl of Rawdon, and Viscount Loudoun, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Baron Rawdon, of Rawdon, Co. York, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Baron Hastings, Hunsford, Newmarket, Botreaux, Molins, and Moels, in the Peerage of England; Earl of Moira, and Baron Rawdon, in the Peerage of Ireland; a Bart. of England; and one of the co-heirs to the Barony of Montague, (See Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article Pol., Baron Montague); 6. 4 Feb., 1808; m. in Aug., 1831, Barbara, Baroness Grey de Ruthyn, in her own right, and has with a dau., a son, PAULYN-REDINOLAL-SELD, EARL OF RAWDON.

His Lordship inherited the honors of his family, as 2nd Marquess, upon the demise of his father, 20 Nov., 1826.

Unirage.

The illustrious family of Rawdon deduces the pedigree from Paulinus de Rawdon, to whom WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR granted considerable estates (part of which the present Marquess enjoys), by the following deed:

"I, William King, the third yere of my reigne, Give Paulyn Berdun, Hope and Hopetowne, With all the bounds both up and downe; From heven to yether, from yether to heil, For the and thynue ther to dwel, As truly as this kingright is myn; For a crossebow and an arrow, When I sal come to hunt on Yarow, And in token that this thing is sooth, I bit the whyt wax with my tooth. Before Meg, Maud, and Margaret, And my third sonne, Henry."

This Paulyn, or Paulinus, commanded a band of Archers in the Norman invading army, and derived his surname of Rawdon, from the lands of that denomination, near Leeds, which constituted a portion of the royal grant. From this successful officer, lineally sprung (16th in descent), through a line of eminent ancestors,

GEORGE RAWDON, Esq. (only son of Francis Rawdon, Esq. of Rawdon), who settled in Ireland, and took an active part as a Military Commander during the Rebellion in 1641, in that kingdom; and subsequently, until his decease, in 1684, in the general affairs of Ireland. Mr. Rawdon was created a Bart. of England, 30 May, 1665, being denominated, of Moira, Co. Down. Sir George m.

place of his patronymic wallhouse, was elevated to the Peerage in 1835. He had previously for many years represented Staffordshire in Parliament, and held office under the Crown, as Chief Secretary for Ireland.

Lineage.
The family of Littleton has been of long standing in the Co. of Worcester, and had considerable possessions in the Valle of Evesham, particularly at South Littleton, whence the name was probably assumed in the beginning of the 13th century.

His Lordship s. to the honors, as 3rd Marquess, upon the demise of his father, 17 June, 1822.

Lineage.

Sir Edward Seymour, 1st Duke of Somerset (the Protector), m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Fillol, of Fillol Hall, Essex (see Berk's Extinct Peers), and had two sons, Edward (Sir), John, who d. s. p., leaving his estates to his brother.

The elder son, Sir Edward Seymour, received the honor of Knighthood for his conduct in the battle of Muscelburgh. He was seated at Berry Pomeroy, in Devonshire; and he obtained, in the 7th Edward VI., an Act of Parliament, restoring him in blood, so far as to enable him to enjoy lands that might subsequently come to him from any collateral ancestor. Sir Edward was sheriff of Devon in the 25th Elizabeth. He m. Mary, dau. of Mr. Justice Wishin, of the Court of Common Pleas, and was s. by his son, Edward Seymour, Esq. of Berry Pomeroy, M.P. for the Co. of Devon, who was created a Bartz., 29 June, 1611. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Arthur Champersum, Knt., of Dartington, in Devonshire, and, dying 11 April, 1613, was s. by his eldest son, SIR EDWARD SYMEON, 2nd Bart., who had received the honor of Knighthood from James I., and was returned to two Parliaments by the Co. of Devon, in that monarch's reign. To the latter part of his life he lived in retirement at the Castle of Berry Pomeroy, upon which he is said to have lost, in London, the sum of £20,000. He m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir Henry Killigrew, and, dying in 1629, was succeeded by his eldest son.

SIR EDWARD SYMEON, 3rd Bart., M. P. for the Co. Devon in the two last Parliaments of Charles I. Adhering to that unhappy Prince, Sir Edward had his seat, Burr Castle, (the ancient abode of the Pomeroyes) plundered and burnt to the ground. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir William Portman, and, dying 7 Dec., 1689, was succeeded by his eldest son.

SIR EDWARD SYMEON, 4th Bart. This gentleman made a distinguished figure, both in Court and Parliament, during four successive reigns. He served constantly after his first election to the time of his death, and few had more weight in the House of Commons. In 1692, he promoted the impeachment of Lord Clarendon: was the first that moved it, and carried it up to the house of Lords. In Feb., 1673-5, he was unanimously chosen Speaker of the long Parliament, on the resignation of Sir Job Charter. In the April succeeding he was sworn of the Privy Council, and made soon after Treasurer of the Navy. Burnet describes Sir Edward as "the ablest man of his party, the first Speaker of the House of Commons that was not bred to the law: a graceful man, bold and quick, and of high birth, being of the elder branch of the Seymour family." He m. HILLARY.

HILLARY, SIR WILLIAM, Bart. of Danbury-

Place, Co. Essex, and of Rigg House, Co. York; s. created 8 Nov., 1805; Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant of the 1st Essex Legion; m. 21 Feb., 1790, Frances Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heir of the late Louis Disney-Fytche,* Esq. of Plintham, Co. Nottingham, and of Swinderby, Co. Lincoln, (by Elizabeth, sole representative of the ancient family of Fytche, of Danbury-Place,) by whom he has issue,

1. ACQUETT—WILLIAM, late of the 6th Dragoon Guards; b. 19 Nov., 1806, (to whom H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, first sponsor,) m. 30 Sept., 1828, Susan Curwen, eldest dau. of J. Christian, of Un-neriggs Hall, Cumberland, Esq.

2. ELIZABETH-MARY, twin with her brother, m. in 1818, to Christopher Richard Preston, Esq. of Blackmore Priory, Co. Essex, and has issue.

Sir William m. 2ndly, 30 Aug., 1813, Ema, youngest dau. of the late Patrick Tobin, Esq. of the Isle of Man. Sir William Hillary passed much of his early life upon the Continent of Europe, in company with H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, to whom he is Equerry. Upon the renewal of the war with France in 1803, Sir William raised, at his own expense, and many years commanded, the 1st Essex Legion of Infantry and Cavalry, amounting to 1400 men, the largest force then offered by any private individual for the defence of the country; in consideration of which, and other services, the Baronetage was conferred by the personal direction of his Majesty King GEORGE III. The Baronet has since become the projector, and through his successful efforts, happily, the founder, of the Royal National Institution for the Preservation of Life from Shipwreck.

Lineage.

There are few names of greater antiquity in Italy, France and England, than that of Hillary, St. Hilaire, or St. hillary, as it has been variously written. In the 6th century, according to the Roman calendar, it gave a successor to St. Peter; and, in the third, fourth, and fifth centuries no less than three Saints to the Church of Rome, two of whom are recorded as of ancient and noble families. The name was ennobled in France long before the time of William the Conqueror, and it still so continues, in the person of the Marquess St. Hilaire, of Normandy.

HILLARY, afterwards Bishop of Chester, accompanied HENRY II. into England; and, according to Fuller, "was in great favour with that monarch, and had charge of the Shore of Surrey." Dugdale, in his Baronetage, states the marriage of Roger, Earl of St. Clare, with MAUD, dau. of James de St. Hillary. These and numerous other proofs which could be adduced, confirm the ancient dignity and high importance of the family. The Hillarys subsequently settled in the Co. of Warwick and Stafford, and continued to maintain their rank in those shires, until the era of the Reforma-

tions, when the last and remaining branch of the family removed into Wensley Dales, in the North Riding of the Co. York, and purchased estates there.

WILLIAM HILLARY, of Wensley, m. in 1561, Elizabeth Jaynes, and was s. by his son.

Livery.

This noble family, and that of Fox, Earls of Ichester, have had a common progenitor in

Sir Stephen Fox, a distinguished Senator during the reigns of Charles II., James II., William III., and Queen Anne. By his marriage, in 1730, with Christian, dau. of the Rev. Charles Hope, of Naseby, Co. Lincoln, this gentleman had two sons; Stephen, created Earl of Ichester, (see that dignity,) and Henry Fox, who filled several high official situations in the reign of George II. (amongst others, those of Secretary-at-War, and Secretary of State,) from 1725, when he was first returned to Parliament for Hendon, until the accession of his Majesty George III., at which period he was a Member of the Privy Council, and enjoyed the office of Paymaster-General to the Forces, but which he soon afterwards resigned. The Right Hon. gentleman m. in 1744, Georgiana-Carolina, eldest dau. of Charles, 2nd Duke of Richmond, and had issue,

1. Stephen, his successor.

2. Charles-James (b. Jan., G.S. 1748-9), one of the most eminent Statesmen of modern times, distinguished alike by the soundness of his political principles, the force of his senatorial eloquence, and the ardor of his attachment to freedom. Mr. Fox first came into parliament from Midhurst, in 1776, before he was of age. In 1770, he was appointed a Lord of the Admiralty, which post he retained till May, 1772; in 1773, he was made Lord of the Treasury, an office he resigned the following year, to oppose Lord North, and the American war. This nobleman commanded the van with the Earl of Huntly, at the battle of Flodden-field, dispersed the English opposed to him, and was one of the few who escaped the carnage of that disastrous day. His Lordship joined the Queen Dowagers and her husband Angus, in 1515: and embraced the English interest in opposition to the Regent Albany, who took Home Castle and Earl Castle against him as his lands. Albany having caused the French Ambassador to offer an amnesty, and to send a pardon to Lord Home, with a request of a conference, he agreed to meet the Regent at Dunbars, where he was instantly arrested, and committed to Edinburgh Castle, then under the governorship of the Earl of Arran; but Lord Home prevailed on Arran to permit him to escape, and to accompany him to the Borders. Lord Home made his peace with the Regent in 1516, and was restored to his honours and estates; but visiting the court in the September of that year, with his brother, William, they were arrested, tried for treason, and convicted. Lord Home was executed, 8 Oct., 1516, his head placed on the tolbooth of Edinburgh, and his honours and estates forfeited to the Crown. His brother suffered the next day. His Lordship left by his wife, Agnes Stewart, two daughters, Janet, m. to Sir John Hamilton, natural brother of James, Duke of Chatelherault. Alson. JOHN ALEXANDER, Viscount Aithrie, b. 22 March, 1831.

Linage.

The surname of Hope is one of great antiquity in Scotland; and the ancestor of the present family,

JOHN DE HOPE is said to have come from France in the retinue of Magdalene, Queen of James V. in 1507, and settling in Scotland, left a son,

EDWARD HOPE, who was one of the most considerable inhabitants of Edinburgh in the reign of Queen Mary; and being a great promoter of the Reformation, was chosen one of the Commissioners for the Metropolis to the Parliament in 1500. He left a son,

HINSEY HOPE, a very eminent Merchant, who m. a French lady, Jaqueline de Tott, and had two sons,

Thomas. Henry, from whom the opulent family of Hope, of Amsterdam, derive.

THOMAS HOPE, the eldest son, being bred to the Scottish Bar, first attained eminence in 1646, by his defence of the six ministers (clergymen) tried for high-treason, for deying that the King possessed authority in matters ecclesiastical, and acquired, eventually, the largest fortune ever accumulated by a member of the legal profession in Scottland. He was subsequently appointed King's Advocate, and created a Bart., of Nova Scotia, 11 Feb., 1686. (See lineage of Sir John Hope, Bart., the chief of the house of Hope, for a further account of this learned person.) Sir Thomas left a very large family, from the eldest son of which descend the Hopes of Craigiehall. The sixth son,

Sir John Hope, of Hopetoun, a Member of the Scottish Bar, marrying Anne, only dau. and heir of Robert Foules, of Leadhills, Co. Lanark, acquired the valuable mine there, and applying himself to mining, brought the art of mining to the highest perfection ever before known in Scotland. Sir John was appointed, in 1641,

Governor of the Mint, and constituted a Lord of Session, in 1648. He m. 2ndly, Mary Lady Kelth, eldest dau.

and one of the co-heirs of William, 7th Earl Marischal;

by the 1st marriage he had several children: by the second an only surviving son, William, of Balcombe, who was created a Bart., in 1686, (having had previously the honor of Knighthood,) a dignity that expired with his grandson,

Sir John Hope, Bart. and more especially, a captain in the East Indies' Company's Service, who was killed in Bengal, in 1763. Sir

John d. in 1661, and was by his eldest surviving son,

John Hope, Esq. of Hopetoun, who took up his residence at the castle of Niddry, the barony of which he purchased from Lord Haddington, and he also purchased about the same time (1670) the barony of Abercorn, with the office of heritable Sheriff of the Co. of Linlithgow, from

Sir Walter Seton. Mr. Hope represented the shire of Linlithgow in Parliament, in 1684. He m. Margaret, eldest dau. of James, of Haddington, by whom he had a son, and a dau., Eleanor, who m. Thomas, 6th Earl of Haddington. Mr. Hope having embarked with the Duke of York, and several other persons of distinction, in the Gloucester frigate, in 1683, was lost in the wreck of that vessel, a few days after going abroad, in the 30th year of his age. His son,

Charles Hope, who was b. in the previous year, s. to the family estates, and was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland 5 April, 1703, by the titles of Viscount Athole,

Bart. Hope, and Earl of Hopetoun. His Lordship, who was one of the Representative Peers of Scotland, from 1729 to 1759, increased, was invested, with ensigns of the Order of the Thistle at Holyrood House, in 1738. He
m. in 1689, Henrietta, only dau. of William (Johnstone),

1st Marquess of Annandale, and had thirteen children, of whom,

1. John, Lord Hope, succeeded to the honors.

2. Charles, to the death of his uncle, James, 2nd Marquess of Annandale, in 1730, inherited the estate of Craigiehall, and upon his marriage in 1733, with Catharine, only dau. and heir of Sir William Vere, Bart. of Blackwood, Co. Lanark, assumed the surname and arms of Vere. By this lady he had (with other issue),

1 William, who m. Sophia, dau. of Joseph Corrie, Esq., and dying in 1811, left issue.

Lineage.

Lord William Howard, eldest son of Thomas, 2nd Duke of Norfolk, by Agnes, his 2nd Duchess (sister and heir of Sir Philip Thynne, of Boston, Co. Lincoln), having been employed by Henry VIII. and Edward VI. in numerous confidential missions to foreign Courts; amongst others, to the Czar of Muscovy, in 1533 (being the first embassy from England to the Russian Empire), was elevated to the Peerage, in the first year of the reign of Queen Mary, 11 March, 1554, as Baron Howard of Effingham, and was constituted, upon the 29th of the same month, Lord-High-Admiral of her Majesty's dominions. His Lordship was installed a Knight of the Garter in the Dec. of the same year. Lord Howard of Effingham, in the reign of Elizabeth, held the office of Lord-Chamberlain to the Household, and afterwards that of Lord-Privy-Seal. He m. 1st, Katharine, sister and co-heir of John Broughton, Esq., by whom he had an only dau., Agnes, who m. William Paulet, 3rd Marquess of St L.

He and, vested in the Peerage of England, whose daughter, Margaret, dau. of William Monson, Knt. of Kinnersley, was a. by his eldest son, Sir Charles Howard, m. Frances, dau. of Sir George Courtthorpe, of Whillig, Co. Sussex, and dying in 1672, left two sons, Francis, who s. as 5th Baron, Charles, 2nd Baron, who was invested a Knight of the Garter, 24 April, 1544, and having been appointed, by Queen Elizabeth, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet fitted out to oppose the formidable Spanish Armada, in 1588, his Lordship (a Roman Catholic) had the high honor of preserving the shores of his country inviolable, by dispersing and totally destroying that powerful armament. On the 22nd Oct., 1559, Lord Howard was created Earl of Nottingham, and, after the accession of James I., (at whose coronation he officiated as Lord High Steward of England,) his Lordship was engaged in several diplomatic missions of importance. The Earl m. 1st, Catharine, dau. of Henry Carey, Lord Hunsdon, by whom he had two sons and three daughters, and, 2dly, Margaret, dau. of James Stewart, Earl of Moray, by whom he had two sons. Puffed up in his quaint manner, thus speaks of this gallant and eminent personage:—

"An hearty gentleman, and cordial to his sovereign, of a most proper person, one reason why Queen Elizabeth (though she did not value a jewel by, valued it the more for, a fair case) reflected so much on him."

"His services in the 8th is notoriously known, when, at the first news of the Spanish approach, he towed at a cable with his own hands to draw out the harbour hound ships into the sea: I dare boldly say, he drew more, though not by his person, by his presence and example, than any in the place. True it is, he was no deep seaman, (not to be expected from one of his extraction,) but had skill enough to know those who had more skill than himself, and to follow their instructions; and would not starve the Queen's service, by feasting his own sturdy willfulness, but was ruled by the experienced sea masters, the Queen having a navy of oak, and an Admiral of Owal."—

His Lordship d. at the advanced age of 87, 14 Dec., 1684, and was e. by his 2nd, but eldest surviving son, Charles, 2nd Earl, who d. without male issue, 3 Oct., 1684, when the honors devolved upon his half-brother, Sir Charles Howard, Knt., as 3rd Earl. His Lordship d. without issue, 26 April, 1681, when the Earldom of Nottingham expired—(see Rook's "Kettner and Dormant Peerage")—but the Heraldry of Howard of Effingham reverted to the Howden.

Howden, Baron (John Francis Caradoc), of Grinstone, in the Peverage of Ireland; and Baron Howden, of Howden and Grinstone, Co. York, in the Unit of the United Kingdom; b. 12 Aug., 1762; m. 17 Nov., 1798, Theodosia-Sarah- Frances, 3rd dau. of John, 1st Earl of Chawillan, grandau. of the Earl of Dornley, and lineally descended from Edward Hyde, Earl of Clarendon; by whom he has an only son,

This nobleman, who obtained the Irish Peerage by patent of creation, 19 Oct., 1813, and the English honors, 7 Sept., 1831, is the only son of his Grace, John, (Craddock) Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Primate of Ireland, (who d. 11 Dec., 1788), by Mary, relict of Richard St. George, Esq. of Kilrush. and dau. of William Blaydin, Esq. of Boston, Co. Lincoln. His Lordship is a General Officer in the Army, Col. of the 3rd Regiment of Foot, a Kut. Grand-Cross of the Bath, and Kut. Grand-Cross of the Imperial Ottoman Order of the Crescent, which orders were bestowed upon his Lordship for his distinguished services in Egypt.

Lineage.

The family of Lord Howden is of the most ancient Welsh origin, claiming descent from Cadragon and the earliest Princes of Wales. After the final defeat of Cadog (the Caractacus of the Romans) near a mountain still called Caer Cadragon, in the neighbourhood of Shrewsbury, his descendants settled partly in Leicestershire, and partly in Staffordshire, but a large portion went as far north as Richmond, in Yorkshire; some even crossed the sea, and took refuge in Brittany; where a village, not far from Hennes, still bears their name. His Lordship is descended from a younger son of Sir Matthew Craddock, of Cavern Castle, Co. Stafford, and his wife the Lady Katherine Gordon, called the White Rose of Scotland, upon whose tomb, in St. Herbert's Isle, Swansea Church, the following inscription appears:—Here lies Sir Matthew Craddock, Knt., sometime Depute unto the Right Honorable Charles Erle of Worcester, in the county of Glamorgan: R. Attor—R. Chancellor of the same, Steward of Gower and Helviel; and my Lady Katherine his wife.

Sir Matthew Craddock and his lady above mentioned, had two daughters. The elder, Mary, was m. to Sir Edward Herbert, son of the 1st Earl of Pembroke: and from that union descended the Earls of Pembroke, and Powis, Hana Stanley, Esq., George Price, Esq., &c. The younger, less fortunate, espoused the famous Perkin Warbeck, whose life was as extraordinary as his death was ignominious: though his real pretensions are to this day a subject of dispute.

The elder branches of the Cradocks of Staffordshire terminated in heiresses, by whom the estates were carried into other families.

Lineage.

The original surname of this very ancient family was Tristram, and it is said to have been exchanged for the present one of ST. LAWRENCE, under the following circumstances:—A member of the house of Tristram, having been raised to the rank of an armiger by his own native soil, attacked and totally routed them on St. Lawrence's day, near Clontarffe, and assumed, in consequence of a vow made previously to the battle, the name, the shield, the arms of which his descendants have ever since borne. The sword, with which this warrior fought and vanquished, still hangs in the Hall of Howth, where the family has resided since its first arrival in Ireland, a period of six centuries at least.

Sir Amoricus Tristram, the brother-in-law and companion in Arms of Sir John Courcy, having, in the year 1177, effected a landing at Howth, defeated the Irish in a pitched battle, at the bridge of Ivone, and obtained the lands and barony (by tenure) of Howth, as a reward for his distinguished valour during the conflict. After this successful commencement, Sir Amoricus, with his brother-in-law, Sir John Courcy, reduced the whole province of Ulster; but in 1189, when Sir John was removed from the government of Ireland, by RICHARD I., Sir Amoricus, who was then in Connaught, being attacked by O'Conor, the great King of that Province, and overborne without numbers, himself and his whole party, consisting of thirty knights and two hundred infantry, perished to a man.

Prior to the battle, the horse evincing a disposition to seek safety in flight, Sir Amoricus thus addressed them:—"Who will now pave his life by flight on horseback, if he can; but, assuredly, my heart will not suffer me to leave these my poor friends in their necessity, with whom I had rather die in honor, than live in disgrace; but to all those that will stand this day, I can say no more than this: as our lives shall together depart, so shall my soul accompany with yours to the latter day; and in doing this I give you all my most humble thanks, and this day will live and die in the field. And my fellows and friends, all bear witness with me the latter day, that to God I render and yield my soul; my service to my natural prince; my heart to my brother, Sir John Courcy, and my wife: my force, might, pain, and good will, to my poor friends and followers here." This he spake smiling, and kissing the cross of his sword, thrust it through his horse, saying, "he should not leave it behind him, with whom he so worthily and truly had served afore." His example was followed by all the horsemen, except two young gentlemen, whom he ordered to stand upon the next hill, to witness the conflict, and after it was over, to convey the news to his brother, and tell him what they had suffered and testified to the circumstances of this transaction. Thus died Sir Amory Tristram, who, among a thousand Knights might be chosen for beauty and heroic courage: for humility and courtesy to his inferiors; yielding to none but in the way of gentleness. By the sister of Sir John Courcy, Earl of Ulster, Sir Amory left three sons; the two younger of whom were slain on Good Friday, 1303, in assisting their uncle Courcy, against Lacie's men, in the churchyard of Downpatrick; and the eldest,

Sir Nicholas Fitz Amory, 2nd Baron, was obliged to content himself with the lands of Howth, and relinquished to religious houses, the conquests of his father in Ulster. From this Sir Nicholas the Baronies descended uninterruptedly to his eldest son,

Sir Robert St. Lawrence, the 15th Baron, who was appointed 23 Feb, 1647, Chancellor of the green-wax of the Exchequer; and constituted 10 July, 1643, Lord-Chancellor of Ireland. His Lordship was Joan, 2nd dau. of Edward Peirse, Duke of Somerset, by whom he had four sons and two daughters, the last of whom, by which he settled all his estates on Trustees for the uses and purposes of that marriage, and which contains most of the names of the prime nobility of England, as the Lady's Trustees is duly enrolled in Ireland. By this marriage Lord Howth's descendants derived descent from Eow. 111, and became inheritors of the Blood Royal. Further, it is well deserving of observation that it was formerly and long considered that the instrument of the marriage of the children of John of Gaunt, "time honored Lancaster," were legitimized had a special reservation of their right to inherit the Royal dignity, but the accuracy of modern research has discovered the fallacy of this opinion and torn away the mystery with which the fact was surrounded. The Act of Parliament confirming the legitimation was lately found on strict examination to contain no such clause or reservation, and consequently, though King Henry IV.'s right to the throne became questionable, if, as was thought, any of the Duke of Lancaster's children happened to have been born before him, and he thereby had a positive interest in inserting such a clause in his Patent, and did so, yet in England, the King's Letters or Patents never have had the power to annul or defeat the express Statute Law of the Realm. Hence HAW.VII., but truly described himself when he said he was heir lineal of John of Gaunt, and representative of the House of Lancaster. The second son, Thomas, was appointed in 1532, Attorney-General of Ireland, and, in 1535, second Justice of the Court of King's Bench; he left an only dau., Margaret, m. to William, son of Patrick Birmingham, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, in 1530. Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son, Sir Nicholas St. Lawrence, the 16th Baron. This nobleman, whose name is prefixed to HAW.VII., was a Protestant of Lambert Simnel, was presented by that monarch with three hundred pieces of gold, and confirmed by charter, dated 4 March, 1489, in the lands of Howth, &c. He subsequently attended the Lord-Deputy Kildare, at the famous battle of Kinsale, in Connaught, fought against the Irish, 19 Aug., 1694, where his Lordship headed the billmen on foot. Sir Nicholas was made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, 10 June, 1599, and dying in 1598, was s. by his eldest son, by his first wife, Gest, only dau. of Sir Christopher Plunket, 3rd Lord of Kilteen.

Sir Christopher St. Lawrence, the 17th Baron, who was s. by his eldest son, Edward, 18th Baron. This nobleman, dying without male issue, in 1649, was s. by his brother,

Sir Richard St. Lawrence, 19th Baron: at whose decease, without issue, in 1595, the lineal heirship of what ever honors accrued to the family of Robert's inter-marriage as above, with Joan, one of the co-heirs of the most illustrious and powerful Prince Edward, Duke and Earl of Somerset, who became Duke of Dorset and Earl of Morten, by his wife a noble Princess Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of the most noble Lord Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick and Albemarle," (as the record has it) devolved on Lord Richard's two sisters, Anna, wife of B. Dillon, Esq. of Keptoch; and Alice, wife of John Goulding, Esq., while the Irish dynasty of Baron of Howth passed over undisputedly to the nearest heir male of the family according to the usual course. This happened to be his brother,

Christopher, 20th Baron, generally called the "blind Lord," who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Plunket, of Beaulieu, by his wife, Anne, dau. of Robert Barnewall, Esq. of Dromenagh, and was s. at his decease, in 1589, by his eldest son, Sir Nicholas St. Lawrence, 21st Baron. This nobleman m. 1st, Margaret, 5th dau. of Sir Christopher Barnewall, of Turvey; and, Indly, Mary, dau. of Sir Nicholas Whyte, of Lextlip, Master of the Rolls. HUNTINGDON.

HUNTINGDON, EARL OF (Frances-Theophilus-Henry Hastings), b. 28 Nov., 1809; s. as 12th Earl, at the decease of his father, 9 Dec., 1826, m. 8 Sept., 1835, Elizabeth-Anne, dau. and heir of the late Richard Power, Esq. of Clashmore, Co. Waterford.

Lineage.

This illustrious house, so renowned in the cabinet and the field, derives its surname from the sea-port of Hastings, in Sussex (the lastage of which its senior members farmed for many years from the Crown), and deduces its pedigree from Robert de Hastings, Portgave of Hastings, Lord of Filongley, in Warwickshire, and Dispensator, or Steward, to William the Conqueror. The successor of this Robert was

WALTER DE HASTINGS, who became Steward to HENRY I., as owner of the manor of Ashill, Co. Norfolk, a grant from the Crown, upon the condition of taking care of the nave (table linnen) of the coronation. From this Walter descended

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who, as 4th dau. of David, Earl of Huntingdon, by Maud, dau. of Hugh, and sister and co-heir of Ranulph, Earl of Chester, (refer to BURKE’S Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article Meschino, Earls of Chester), and was s. by his only son.

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who, adhering to Simon Montford, Earl of Leicester, against HENRY III., was knighted, and was made Governor by that noblemman of the Castles of Scarborough and Winchester in 1264; and in the following year of Kemilworth Castle, and the feudal Baron. m. Joane, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of George de Cantilupe, Barons of Bergavenny; and, dying in 1293, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN DE HASTINGS, Lord Hastings and Bergavenny, secomchial of Aultaine, and, in 1294, one of the aspirants to the Scottish throne, in right of his grandmother, Ada, who was niece of MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM the Lion, King of Scotland. This noblemman had summons to Parliament from 1295 to the time of his death. He m. Isabel, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of Aylmer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, by whom he had two sons and three dau.; the 2nd of which dau., Elizabeth, m. Roger, Lord Grey de Ruthyn, and her Ladyship’s grand- son, Reginald, Lord Grey of Ruthyn, eventually inheited the estates of this branch of the family, with the Baronies of Hastings, Bergavenny, and Welshford. His Lordship m. 3rdly, Isabel, 5th dau. of Hugh Despenser, Earl of Winchester, and had two sons. He d. 9 March, 1312-13, and was s. by the eldest son of the first marriage,

JOHN, LORD HASTINGS, Bergavenny and Welshford, Governor of Kemilworth Castle, in 1329, who d. in 1329, and was s. by his only son,

LAURENCE, who, upon the decease of his grand-uncle, Aylmer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, s. p., was created Earl of Pembroke, by patent, dated 13 Oct., 1390; a dignity that expired with John, 3rd Earl, who was accidentally slain in a tournament, by Sir John St. John, at Woodstock. His Lordship’s minor honors, however, Lord Hastings, Bergavenny, and Welshford, devolved upon Reginald, Lord Grey of Ruthyn. This terminated the elder branch of the noble house of Hastings; but a younger, deriving from

THOMAS DE HASTINGS, great-grandson of Walter de Hastings, Steward to HENRY I., and eldest son of William de Hastings, by his second wife, Ida, dau. of Henry, Earl of Ewe, laid the foundation of the present Earlom of Huntingdon. From this Thomas lineage descended

SIR WILLIAM DE HASTINGS, Kn., who was nominated, by EDWARD IV. Master of the Mints, at London and Calais, Steward of the honor of Leicester, and of the manors and castles of Donnington, Higham Ferrers, and Daventry; and created, by the same monarch, 28 July, 1461, Baron Hastings, of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, when his Lordship was installed a Kn., of the most noble Order of the Garter. His Lordship m. Catharine, relic of William, Lord Bonville and Harrington, and dau. of Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had four sons, and two daughters. In 1465, he find this nobleman entering into an agreement with Dame Elizabeth Grey, late wife of Sir John Grey, Kn. and heir of Edward Grey, late Lord
HUN

Ferrers, that he should have the wardship of her son, Thomas, afterwards Marquis of Dorset, on whose part it was stipulated, that he should within five or six years afterwards, marry the eldest dau. of Lord Hastings, that might then be living. His Lordship about this time undertook in his capacity of Master of the Mint, a new coinage of gold, consisting of pieces of eight shillings and four-pence-stirling each, called sixpence, half, and a third of one-fourth that value. For several years afterwards, Lord Hastings was one of the most powerful persons in the kingdom. In 1474, he obtained a license from Edward IV., to impark three thousand acres of land and wood in Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and he accordingly built, at Ashby, a magnificent castle for the residence of his family, which it continued to be for two hundred years. This castle was afterwards remarkable as the temporary prison of Mary, Queen of Scots. Of his Lordship, Fuller says, "The reader needeth not my dim candle to direct him to this illustrious person, whom King Edward IV., or rather Edward Plantagenet (because more in human than his royal capacity), so delighted in, that he made him his Lord-Chamberlain, Baron Hastings of Ashby-de-la-Zouch," etc. Lord Hastings fell a victim, eventually, to the Protector, Gloucester (Richard III.), and was beheaded in the Tower, 13 June, 1483, when his estates were confiscated, but soon afterwards restored, partly by Richard, and the remainder by Henry VII. to his son

Edward, K.B., 2nd Baron, who having m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of Thomas, Baron Hangerford, Bourges, Moulins, and Moere, had been summoned to Parliament, 15 Nov., 1487, as Lord Hungerford. By this union, his Lordship had a dau., Anne, who became the wife of Thomas Stanley, Earl of Derby, and, after his decease, of John Radcliffe, Lord Fitz Walter; and a son, his successor, at his demise, 9 Nov., 1507.

George, 3rd Baron. This nobleman attended Henry VIII., in 1543, at the taking of Beroune and Tournoy, and was created, by that Monarch, 3 Nov., 1529, Earl of Huntingdon. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Henry Stafford, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, and widow of Sir Walter Herbert, Kt., and, dying 21 July, 1544, was s. by his eldest son.

Francis, 2nd Earl, K.G., who m. Katherine, dau. and co-heir of Henry Pole, Lord Montagu, and granddau. of Margaret, Countess of Salisbury (which Margaret was dau. and sole-heir of George Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, brother of Edward IV.). On new year's day, 1553, we find this nobleman presenting to Edward VI., in a purse of red silk, five sovereigns, and receiving in return a gilt cup and cover, weighing twenty ounces. His Lordship d. 20 June, 1561, having had six sons and five dau.; of the youngest dau., the beautiful Lady Mary Hastings, the following circumstance is related: "John Vanslitch, Great Duke and Emperor of Russia, having a desire to marry an English lady, was told of the Lady Mary Hastings, who being of the Blood Royal, he began to affect: whereupon making his desire known to Queen Elizabeth, who did well approve thereof, he sent over Theodore Popemakotse, a nephew man of great account, his Ambassador, who, in the name of his master, offered great advantages to the Queen in the event of the marriage. The Queen hereupon caused the lady to be attended with divers ladies and young noblemens, that so the Ambassador might have a sight of her, which was accom plished in York House garden, near Charing Cross, Lon don. There was the Envoy brought into her presence, and casting down his courtesies, fell prostrate before her, then rising back with his face still towards her, (the lady with the rest, adoring at his striking, and the garter), he said, by his interpreter, 'It sufficed him to behold the angelic presence of her, who he hoped would be his master's spouse and Empress.' The alliance did not, however, take place, and the Lady died unmarried. Of the Earl's sons,

vii. Adela-Coriandula-Maria.

His Lordship e. to the honors, as 5th Earl, upon the demise of his father, 22 Aug., 1625, and obtained royal permission, in 1612, for his Countess (who eventually inherited the large possessions of her grandmother) and himself to assume the additional surname and arms of CHILD.

Innagre.

This noble family deduces its descent from the ancient and honorable house of Villiers, seigneurs of Lille-Adam, in Normandy; and its establishment in England is fixed at the period of the Conquest. For six centuries, subsequently, it ranked amongst the most considerable gentry, serving the office of sheriff, receiving the honor of Knighthood, &c. &c., and was amongst the earliest distinguished by a Baronet, that dignity having been conferred, 19 July, 1619, upon

William Villiers, Esq. of Brookesby, eldest son of Sir George Villiers, Knt. (by his 1st marriage with Audrey, daughter and heir of William Sanders, Esq. of Harrington, Co. Northampton). The title, however, ceased in 1711, without the demise of the grandson of the first possessor, without issue. The eldest son, by his 2nd marriage, of Sir George Villiers, and the half-brother of Sir William, the 1st bart., was George, Duke of Buckingham, the celebrated favorite of James I. and Charles I., who fell by the hand of the assassin, Felton, 9 Aug., 1628, (for an account of Villiers, Dukes of Buckingham, see Burnet's Extinct and Dormant Peerage). The 2nd son of the above Sir George Villiers, Knt., by his 1st wife, and consequently, brother of Sir William Villiers, aforesaid, Edward Villiers, received the honor of Knighthood
7 Sept., 1616, and from him the present Earl of Jersey directly derives. This gentleman having been employed, in 1609, in a commission to Bohemia, was nominated in 1629, through the interest of his half-brother, the Duke of Buckingham, President of the Province of Munster, in Ireland, upon the decease of the Earl of T Desmond.
Sir Edward m. Barbara, eldest dau. of Sir John St. John, of Lidiard Tregone, Co. Wells, and niece of Sir Gliver St.
John, created, 3 Jan., 1603, Viscount Grandison, in the Peers of Ireland, with limitation of the honor to her (Lady Villiers') posterity. By this marriage, Sir Edward had four sons and three daughters. He d. 7 Sept., 1656, lamented more deeply than any Governor who had previously ruled the island of Jersey, and was interred in the Earl of Cork's chapel, at Youghall, where the following lines were engraved on his tomb:

" Munster may curse the time that Villiers came,
To make us worse, by leaving such a name
Of noble parts, as none can imitate,
But those whose hearts are married to the state:
If they press to imitate his fame,
May they bless the time that Villiers came."

William Villiers, Esq., the eldest son of Sir Edward, succeeded to the estate of his father, and, upon the demise of his uncle, in 1639, became Viscount Grandison. Actively espousing the cause of Charles I., his Lordship received a wound at the siege of Bristol, 30 July, 1643, of which he died in the following month, at Oxford, leaving, by Mary, dau. of Paul, Viscount Baving, an only dau., Barbara, (wife of Roger Palmer, Earl of Castlemain, in Ireland,) afterwards Duchess of Cleveland, and Mistress of Charles II., and transmitting his title to his brother, John, 3rd Viscount Grandison, who d. a.p., when the horses devoured his brother,

George, 4th Viscount, who m. Lady Mary Leigh, 2nd
dau. and co-heir of Sir Francis Leigh, Bart., created Lord Doncaster, in 1638, and Earl of Chichester, in 1644; (honors which expired with his Lordship, in 1653), and had two sons and two daus. The eldest son,

Edward, 5th Viscount-Gen. in the Army, and Lieut.-Col.
the Queen's Regt. of Horse, m. in 1677, Catherine, daughter and heiress of John Fitzgerald, Esq. of Dromana, Co. Waterford, by whom he obtained a considerable landed property in that county. He d. in 1688,

Vuller, FIRST EARL of Gen. Stewart.

Mrs. Villiers obtained a patent from King William in 1695, granting her the privilege to enjoy the same title and precedence, as if her husband had survived his father, and had actually been possessed of the honor of Viscount Grandison. She married with Lieut-Gen. Warrington-Amelia, who died in 1711, Commander-in-Chief of the Army during the Duke of Ormonde's absence. General Stewart was 31st P. for the Co. of Waterford, and a Privy-Councillor in Ireland.

Lord Grandison d. 1699, and was s. by his grandson, John, 5th Viscount, who was created EARL GRANDISON, of Limerick, 11 Sept., 1721. His Lordship was Lady Frances Carey, dau. of Anthony, Viscount Falkland, by whom he had issue,

James Fitzhardinge, Lord Villiers, M.P. for the Co.
Waterford, m. June, dau. and heiress of Richard Butler,
who d. 1738.

William, Lord Villiers, died also before his father and unmarried.

Elizabeth, who became eventually heir of her father, and was created Viscount-Gen. on 10 April, 1746, as Viscountess Grandison, of Dromana, in the Co. of Waterford, and created Countess Grandison, in 1766.
Her Ladyship m. in 1730, Alain-John Mason, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Waterford, and was s. by her only surviving child,

Edward Villiers, Esq., the youngest son of the Governor of Munster, who, for his gallantry, as a Military Gentleman of rank, during the Civil Wars, was Knighted by Charles II., 7 April, 1699; and appointed Knight-Man of the Household, and Governor of Tintimout Castle. He had likewise a grant from the same Monarch, of the royal house and manor of Richmond; and his Lady was appointed Governor to the Princesses, Mary and Anne, after the death of Queen of England. Sir Edward

The first member of this very ancient family is Stiven de Johnston, who lived in the reign of King David Bruce. He was brother to the Laird of Johnston, in Annandale, and was denominated Clerk, on account of his learning, which was rare in those days. Retiring from the troubles in his own country, he removed to the North of Scotland, and was well received by Thomas, Earl of Nairn, then one of the most powerful persons there. This

JOHNSTON.

Johnstone, Sir George-Frederick, of Westerhall, Co. Dumfries; b. in Dec., 1810; d. as 7th Bt., upon the decease of his father, 24 Dec., 1811.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the family of Johnston, of Johnston, and the representative of the ancient house of Johnston of Annandale. He had the title of June.

In the year 1385, the King of France sent forty thousand francs to be divided amongst his faithful allies, the Scotch nobility; of which, three hundred were allotted to Sir John de Johnston, Knt., who d. in 1489, and was s. by his son, Sir Adam Johnston, Knt., who distinguished Commander under the Earl of Douglas and Ormonde, at the battle of Sark, in 1448, where the Scots obtained an important victory over the English. Sir Adam m. twice, and had issue, by his 1st wife, John, his heir; whose descendant, James Johnston, was elevated to the Peerage, in 1633, by the title of Lord Johnston, of Lochwood, and created, in 1644, Earl of Hartfell, which latter title was exchanged by James, the 2nd Earl, for that of Amaundale. William, the 2nd Earl of Annandale, was created, in 1701, Marquess of Annandale; but all these honors expired at the decease of George, 3rd Marquess of Annandale, unum, in 1792, when the present branch became the chief of the family.

Matthew, of whom presently.

Sir Adam had, by his 2nd wife (the Lady Janet Dunbar, dau. of George, Earl of March, and widow of John, Lord Seton), three more sons.

Matthew Johnston, Esq., second son of Sir Adam, took up his abode at Westerhall, and from him lineally descended

Sir James Johnston, Knt. of Westerhall, Member of the Convention Parliament, in 1688-9, who d. in 1689, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. John Johnston, Esq., of Westerhall, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 26 April, 1741. Sir John represented Dumfries in the Scottish Parliament, and voted for the Union. He d. in 1711; and, leaving an only dau., Philadelphia, who m. James Douglas, Esq. of Dornock, the title devolved upon his only brother.

II. Sir William, who d. in 1727, and was s. by his elder son,

III. Sir James. This gentleman was appointed Provost of Lochmaben in 1748. In 1719 he m. Barbara, eldest dau. of Alexander, 4th Lord of Kilbarn, by whom he had fourteen children, of whom James, was his successor.

William, became eventually Inheritor of the Barony, Miss Patience, niece of the Earl of Bath and of General Pulteney, by whom he acquired an immense

George, his successor.

John, of New-place, father of John, the 4th Bt.

Jean, m. to Irvine, of Brakely.

Christian, m. to William Keith, of Lenturk.

Sir George was made Sheriff of Aberdeen, upon the removal of George, 6th Earl of Huntly, in 1633. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son.

II. Sir John. This gentleman having entered early into the Army, and served in King William's wars in Flanders, was afterwards a Capt. under that Prince, at the battles of Steene and the Bresle. He married with misfortune to assist his friend, the Hon. Capt. James Campbell, i. v. carrying off and marrying Miss Mary Wharton, a young and rich heiress, related to Lord Wharton, the great favourite of King William, who obtained a proclamation for arresting all the parties. Campbell escaped into Scotland; but Sir John being betrayed by his landlord for fifty pounds, was tried at the Old Bailey, and condemned, and executed in Dec., 1699; although it appeared upon the trial, by the evidence of the clergyman who performed the marriage ceremony, and the people of the house in which the parties lodged, and where they remained two days, as well as by Miss Wharton's own letter to her aunt, informing her of her marriage, that no force had been used, but that she had acted with her free will. The marriage was ultimately dissolved by Act of Parliament, and Capt. Campbell, marrying in Scotland, became the father of Gen. Campbell, afterwards Duke of Argyll. Sir John Johnston dying unm., the title devolved upon his cousin.

IV. SIR JOHN (son of John Johnston, Esq. of New-place), who m. Miss Mitchell, sister of Provost Mitchell, of Aberdeen, by whom he had one son and two daughters. Sir John was strongly attached to the House of Stuart, and greatly came to the union of England and Scotland. In the year 1715, he took the field, with his only son, and as many of his clans as he could assemble, and joined the Earl of Mar, in support of Chevalier St. George. In the battle of Sheriff Muir, young Johnston fell, and Sir John, being obliged to fly, sunk into the grave, broken hearted, his hopes frustrated, and his branch of the family extinct.

He died at the close of the year, 1724, when the Barony devolved upon his cousin,

V. SIR WILLIAM, of Craig and Bishoptown. This gentleman m. Jean, eldest dau. of John Sandilands, Esq. of Craigston, by whom he had two sons and three daus., and was s. at his decease, in 1750, by his eldest son, KEMP.

KEMP, THE REV. SIR WILLIAM-ROBERT, of Gissing, Co. Norfolk; b. in Nov. 1791; s. as 10th Bart., on the decease of his father, 11 Oct., 1804. Sir William Kemp is Rector of Flordon and Gissing, both in the Co. Norfolk.

Lineage.

The name of Kemp is derived from the Saxon word Kemp, or combat, which in Norfolk is retained to this day: a foot-ball match being called Camping or Kemping; and thus, in Saxon, a Kemper signifies a combatant, a champion, a man of arms.

The family of Kemp has been of long standing in the Co. of Kent, Essex, Suffolk, and Norfolk: and we meet with two very eminent churchmen of the name—John Kemp, LL.D., Bishop successively of Rochester, of Chester, and of London, then Archbishop of York, and finally Archbishop of Canterbury; and Thomas Kemp, his Grace's nephew, who was consecrated Bishop of London, in 1449.

I. SIR ROBERT KEMP, Knt., (only surviving son of Robert Kemp, Esq., by Dorothy, dau. of Arthur Herin, Esq. of Cixeth, Co. Essex), was created a Baronet, 4 March, 1641. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Matthew Browne, of Beechworth Castle, Co. Surrey, by whom he had four sons and a dau., Jane, m. to Thomas Waldgrave, Esq. of Smallbridge. He d. 20 Aug., 1657, having suffered much in his real and personal estate by the sequestration of those times, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR ROBERT, M.P. for Norfolk, in 1698, who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of John Kerridge, Esq. of Shelly Hall, Co. Suffolk, by whom he left no surviving issue; and, 2ndly, Mary, dau. and sole heir of John Some, Esq. of Uffington Hall, Co. Suffolk, by whom he had three sons and two daws, Mary, m. to Sir Charles Blois, Bart. and Jane, m. to John Dade, Esq.; dying 26 Sept., 1710, he was s. by his eldest son,

KEN

III. SIR ROBERT. This gentleman m. four times: 1st. Letitia, dau. of Robert King, Esq. of Great Thorlow, by whom he left an only dau., Mary, (wife of Sir Edmund Bacon, Bart. of Garboldisham, Co. Norfolk; 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John Brand, Esq. of Edwardstone, Co. Suffolk, by whom he had five sons and two daws; 3rdly, Martha, dau. of William Blackwell, Esq. of Mortlake, Co. Surrey, by whom he had three children; and 4thly, Amy, dau. of Richard Philips, Esq., and rel. of John Burrough, Esq. of Ipswich, by whom he had no issue. Sir Robert d. 18 Dec. 1734, having several times represented the Borough of Dunwich, and twice the Co. of Norfolk, in Parliament; and was e. by his eldest son.

IV. SIR ROBERT, M.P. for Oxford, Co. Suffolk; at whose decease, &c., in 1715, the title devolved upon his brother,

V. SIR JOHN. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, widow of Isaac-Brand Colt, Esq. of Brightlingsea, Co. Essex, but dying s. p. 25 Nov., 1701, the title reverted to his nephew,

VI. SIR JOHN, who d. in minority and was, 16 Jan., 1717, when the title devolved upon his uncle,

VII. SIR BENJAMIN. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Mann, Esq., and rel. of John Colt, Esq. of Tooting, Co. Surrey; but dying s. p. in 1777, was e. by his kinsman,

VIII. SIR WILLIAM (son of William Kemp, Esq. of Antingham, Co. Norfolk, by Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Alderman Shadelow, which William was second son of Sir Robert, the 2nd Bart). This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of — Ives, Esq., and, dying in 1790, was e. by his eldest son,

IX. SIR WILLIAM-ROBERT, who m. in 1788, Sarah, dau. and heir of Thomas Aldcock, Esq. of Carleton, Co. Norfolk, and had issue, William-Robert, present Baronet Thomas-John, b. in 1786.

Sir William d. 11 Oct., 1804.

KENMARE.

KENMARE, EARL OF (Valentine Browne), Viscount Castlecrosse and Kenmare, and Baron of Castlecrosse, in the Peerage of Ireland, and a Baronet of the same part of the United Kingdom; s. 15 Jan., 1788; e. to the honors, as 2nd Earl, upon the demise of his father, 3 Oct., 1812; m. 1 July, 1816, August, 2nd dau. of Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart. of Osmaston, Co. Derby, by whom he has no issue.
Ken: Lillage.

This family dedicates its descent from the Earldom of Cork, Co. Limerick, and was constituted Auditor-General of Ireland, and d. in 1577, leaving

Sir Valentine Browne, his heir, who in 1663, received instruction, jointly with Sir Henry Willsop, for the surveying several escheated lands in Ireland. He was subsequently surnamed the Surveyor-General, and represented the Co. of Sligo in Parliament, in 1685. On the 28th June, in the same year, Sir Valentine purchased from Donald, Earl of Clancaury, all the lands, manors, &c., in the Co. of Kerry and Cork, which had been in the possession of the Kerries, Mo. Conac, and one Donoghmore. Sir Valentine m. Thomazine, sister of the Lord Keeper (Sir Nicholas) Baron, and had two sons, the second of whom,

Sir Nicholas Browne, of Ross, Co. Kerry, Killm., d. in 1616; and was s. by his eldest son, Valentine Browne, Esq., who was created a baron of Ireland, 16 Feb., 1623. Sir Valentine, after his father's decease, presented a petition to James I., praying an abatement of his yearly rent remitted, which he held from the Crown as an undertaker, at the annual sum of £123 6s. 8d., in regard of the small profit he made of it, being set out in the most barren and remote part of the county of Kerry; which request was complied with, and confirmed by a confirmation, of all his lands at a reduced rent. Sir Valentine m. Elizabeth, 5th dau. of Gerald, Earl of Kildare, and was s. by his grandson,

Sir Valentine, b. in 1630, who was sworn of the Privy-Council of James II., and created by that Monarch, subsequently to his abdication, 30 May, 1688, Baron of Castlerose, and Viscount Kenmure. His Lordship, who was Colonel of Infantry in the Army of King James, forfeited his estates by his involuntary fidelity to that unfortunate Monarch. His eldest son, and only son of Sir Nicholas Plunket, and had five sons and four daughters. He d. in 1704, and was s. by his eldest son, Nicholas, 2nd Viscount, an Officer of rank in the Service of King James, and attained in consequence. His Lordship m. in 1661, Helen, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Brown, Esq. of Hospital, by whom he obtained a very considerable fortune, but which, with his own estates, became forfeited for his life. The Crown, however, allowed his lady a rent-charge of £400 per year, for the use and benefit of herself and children. His Lordship d. in 1728, leaving four daws., and his son, and successor, Valentine, 3rd Viscount, who continued outlawed by the attainder of his father and grandfather. His Lordship m. in 1729, Honoria, and dau. of Thomas Butler, Esq., and great-grand-niece of James, Duke of Ormonde, by whom he had issue, Thomas, his successor, and two daws., one of whom, Helen, m. John Wogan, Esq. His Lordship d. only dau. of Maurice Fitzgerald, Esq. of Castle Isbin, by whom he left a posthumous dau. He d. in 1736, and was s. by his only son,

Thomas, 4th Viscount. This nobleman m. in 1729, Anne, only dau. of Thomas Cooke, Esq. of Painswold, Co. Cork, by whom he had a son and a dau., Catharine, m. to Count Durfort Sevres. His Lordship d. 9 Sept., 1790, and was s. by his son, Valentine, 5th Viscount, who was created (the Viscount of James II. never having been acknowledged in Law), 12 Feb., 1768, Baron of Castlerose, and Viscount Kenmure, and advanced to the Viscountcy of Castlerose, and Earlhood of Kenmure, 29 Dec., 1800. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1777, Charlotte, dau. of Henry, 11th Viscount Dilton, by whom he had an only dau., Charlotte, who m. in 1802, Sir George Gould, Bart. His Lordship m. 2 daws., in 1725, Mary, eldest dau. of Michael Ayling, Esq. of Lyons, Co. Kildare, by whom he had issue,

1. Valentine, present Earl.
2. Thomas, b. 15 Jan., 1769; m. in 1822, Catherine, dau. and co-heir of the late Edmund O'Callaghan, Esq. of Kilgorig, and has issue.
3. Valentine-Augustus, b. 1780; m. in 1822, Catherine.
4. William, b. 1 Nov., 1791; m. 26 April, 1826, Anne- Frances, dau. of the late Thomas Segrave, Esq.
5. Michael, b. 18 May, 1755, wounded at Waterloo, and d. in 1825.
6. Marianne, m. in 1809, to the late Sir Thomas Gage, Baronet.

His Lordship d. 3 Oct., 1812.

The Viscount is Viso-Lieut. of the Stewarty of Kirkcudbright, is the 10th Viscount in succession, and the 7th in the enjoyment of the dignity.

Lineage.

The Gordons are believed to have come from Gaul to England, with William the Conqueror; and thence to Scotland with Malcolm III., in whose reign the public records exhibit Richard de Gordon, the head of this family, as holding the Baron of Gordoun and other extensive possessions in the Merse, in the Southern frontiers of Scotland. From this Richard descended

Sir Adam de Gordon, a Knight of great renown, and the representative of the family in the momentous period of Scottish History, who, though his possessions were almost on the borders of England, long held out against the tyranny of Edw. i., and for a long time resisted the bond of fealty and submission prescribed by Edward, in 1292; but that bond having become generally subscribed by the successively conquered Scotch nobility, and Sir Adam's own son, William de Gordon, having been obliged to do so, the valiant Knight was compelled to succumb, 20 July, 1296. Balliol's subsequent resignation of the Crown to Edward gave Sir Adam a pretence to fly to arms, and thereafter, like Wallace and others, he leagued his fortunes with those of Robert Bruce, from whom he obtained for his services a grant of the lands of Strathbogie in the North, forfeited by the descent of the Earl of Athol. These Sir Adam never however possessed, for the donation became ineffective, by the return of the Earl to his alle-
Sir Adam had another son who shone conspicuously at Halidon Hill, in 1333, but it has not yet been ascertained whether William or Alexander was the elder son. But in the records, that Sir Adam in 1346 took a charter of his Baronry of Stichill in life-rent to himself, and in fee to his son,

Sir William de Gordoun, who subscribed the bond of fealty 13 July, 1365, and was designed in a writ, in 1393, as Sinugor de Stichill. He was s. by his son,

Roger de Gordoun, who was s. by his son,

Sir Alexander de Gordoun, who d. in 1423, leaving a son and successor,

William de Gordoun, who fixed his residence in Galloway, and was the first who designed himself of Lochinvar. He d. in 1450, and was s. by his son,

Sir John Gordon, of Lochinvar, who had three sons,

Alexander, a valiant Knight, who d. before his father, falling with his Sovereign James IV., at Flodden, in 1513.

Robert, (Sir) successor to his father,

William, of Craichlaw and Culvenan. (See Brawa's Commissaries.)

Sir John d. in 1517, and was s. by his son,

Sir Robert Gordon, who m. Marion, dau. and sole heir of John Accarson, of Gleshoodern, and, dying in 1550, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir James Gordon, of Lochinvar, who m. Margaret, dau. and sole heir of Robert Crigtton, of Kilpatrick, and had, with other issues,

John, his successor,

William, of Pennygame, who m. Helen, dau. of Alexander Stewart, of Garlies, and was s. by his son,

John of Pennygame, who r. by his son,

Alexander, of Pennygame, who d. about the year 1643, was s. by his son,

William, of Pennygame, who left two sons,

John, d. s. p. in 1692.

Alexander, of Pennygame, who d. in 1750, s. by his son,

Sir James Gordon, of Lochinvar, who d. 10 Sept., 1647, and was s. by his elder son,

Sir John Gordon, of Lochinvar. This gentleman m. 1st, in 1603, Juliana, dau. of Hume, of Wetherburn, and had an only dau., Margaret, m. to Hugh, 1st Lord Low-doun. Sir John espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Herries, and dying in 1644, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert Gordon, of Lochinvar, remarkable for his great bodily strength and activity, who, at a tournament, presented by James VI., obtained, as one of the three successful champions, a prize from the hands of the Princess Elizabeth. He m. Lady Isabel Ruthven, dau. of William, 1st Earl of Gowrie, and, dying in 1630, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Gordon, of Lochinvar. This gentleman disposed of Stichill, the ancient inheritance of the family, and is said to have given the produce in a purse to the Duke of Buckingham, to insure his Grace's interest, in forwarding his claim to the Excellency of Gowrie. But the Duke failing the very next day, by the hand of the assas-iun Felton, the expectation proved abortive. Sir John was, however, elevated to the Peerage, as Lord Lochin-vor, and Viscount Kenmurn, by patent, dated 8 May, 1633, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the surname and arms of Gordon. His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of Archibald, 7th Earl of Argyll, and dying in 1634, was s. by his only son,

John, 2nd Viscount, who d. without issue, in 1637, when the Peerage devolved to the eldest son of James Gordon, of Barncrosh, by Margaret, dau. of Sir John Vans, and redict of John Glendonwuy, of Drumrah), his Lordship's cousin, and next male heir,

John, 3rd Viscount. This nobleman d. unm., in Oct., 1643, when the honors devolved upon his brother,

Robert, 4th Viscount, b. in Nov., 1622. This nobleman was a devoted adherent of the House of Stuart, and suffered in consequence. He d. s. p. in 1652, when the Peersage descended to his cousin,

Alexander Gordon, Esq. of Pennygame, as 5th Viscount. His Lordship m. thrice, and was s. in 1646, by his eldest son (by his 2nd wife, Marian, dau. of Maculloch, of Ardwell),

William, 6th Viscount. This unfortunate nobleman, inheriting the attachment of his family to the Stuartis, took up arms in 1715, against George I. He was made prisoner at Preston Pans the following year and thence conveyed to London, where he was tried, condemned and executed on Tower Hill, 26 Feb., ensuing, when the honors of his house fell under an attainer. He m. Mary Dalzel, only sister of Robert, 6th Earl of Carnwath (a title also forfeited, and recently restored), by whom he left three sons (the eldest and youngest d. unm.) and a dau., Harriet,

m. to John Dalzel, Esq. When his Lordship's estate was brought to the hammer, his Dowager purchased it, and when her son Robert came of age, delivered it up to him free of debt, which son,

Robert Gordon, was styled 7th Viscount. He d. unm., 1 Aug., 1741, when the estates devolved on his brother,

John Gordon, by courtesy 8th Viscount, who m.

I. John Kennaway, Esq. (descended from William

Kennaway, Esq., a Merchant, by Joyce, dau. of Sir William Bastard, of Garston, Devon), having entered early into the service of the Hon. East India Company, received his commission as Captain in 1730, and served in the Bengal part of the grand Army, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Sir

Eyre Coots, K.B., in the Carnatic, during the invasion of Hyder Ali, until the battle and siege of Cuddalore. A general peace soon after taking place, Capt. Kennaway returned to Bengal, was appointed, in 1766, Adjutant-Camp to Marquess Cornwallis, and sent with his Lordship, in 1788, as

Enuy to the Court of Hyderabad, to demand from the Nizam the cession of the maritime province of Gunttoo,

which, contrary to treaty, had for many years remained in his Highness's possession; Capt. Kennaway was in this embassy eminently successful, and soon after concluded with the Nizam a treaty of alliance against Tippoo Sultan, for which service his Majesty was pleased to create him a Bart., 25 Feb., 1791, and the Court of Directors of the East India Company to take out his patent at the public expense. In 1792, he was appointed by Marquess Cornwallis Commissioner to adjust, in concert with agents of the Nizam and the Maharrattas, a preliminary and definite treaty of Peace with the Commissioners of Tippoo Sultan, by which the latter Prince ceded half his dominions, and agreed to the payment of three millions three hundred thousand pounds to the three allied powers, for the expenses of the war, and to deliver up two of his sons as hostages for the due performance of the treaty. His health having suffered by his residence in India, Sir John Kennaway returned to England on furlough in 1794, was promoted to be Major, and subsequently Lieut.-Col., by brevet, in his Majesty's service in India. The East India Company, in 1796, under the sanction of the Board of Commissioners for the Affairs of India, conferred upon Col. Kennaway a pension of £200 per annum, as a reward for his services. KILKENNY.

Kilkenney, Earl of (Edmund Butler), and

Viscount Mountgarret, in the Peerage of Ireland;

& 6 Jan., 1771; m. 8 June, 1793, Mildred, eldest

dau. of the Most Rev. Robert Fowler, Archbishop of Dublin, but has no issue. Her Ladyship d.

30 Dec., 1830. His Lordship s. to the Viscountcy, on the demise of his father, 16 July, 1793, and was advanced to the Earldom by patent dated 20 Dec., 1793.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the noble house of Butler, Earls and Marquesses of Ormonde, springing from

The Hon. Richard Butler (2nd son of Pierce, 1st

Earl of Ossory, and 6th Earl of Ormonde), who was created

Viscount Mountgarret of the Kingdom of Ireland, 23 Oct., 1560. He m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of Theobald Butler, Esq.

of Nexham, Co. Kilkenney, and had one son, Edmund.

He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. and heir of Peter Barnewall,

Esq. of Stackallan, Co. Meath, and had Barnewall, who

d. w.o., Pierce, and other issue. His Lordship m. 3rdly, in 1541, Anne, dau. of John, Lord Kilkeen, from whom he was divorced in the first year of his marriage. He d.

30 Dec., 1571, and was s. by his eldest son,

Edmund, 2nd Viscount, who m. Gisela, dau. of Barnaby, 1st Lord of Upper Ossory, and, dying in 1609, was

s. by his eldest son.

Richard, 3rd Viscount. This nobleman took up arms in 1649, under an apprehension that the extirpation of the Catholics was in contemplation, and obtaining possession of the City of Kilkenney, was appointed General of the Irish forces. He was soon afterwards defeated by the Earl of Ormonde, at Kilrush, and forced to fall back upon

Kilkenney, where he was chosen President of the Supreme Councell assembled there in the summer of 1642. He continued, subsequently, an active leader in the War, until his decease, in 1651, when (although dead) he was excepted from pardons for life or estate, by Cromwell's Act, passed in 1659, for the settlement of Ireland. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret, eldest dau. of Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, by whom alone he had issue, and was s. by his eldest son,

Edmund, 4th Viscount, who espoused the cause in which his father had so actively engaged, and was eventually restored to his estates and honors by Charles II.

His Lordship m. Lady Dorothy Touchet, 2nd dau. of Mertyn, Earl of Castleheven; and, dying in 1679, was s.

by his eldest son,

Richard, 5th Viscount. This nobleman leading the forlorn hope, as Captain of a Troop of Horse in the service of James II., against Londonerry, 4 June, 1689, fell into the hands of the enemy, and an outlawry and confiscation of his estates followed. In 1699 his Lordship claimed his seat in Parliament, and subscribed the oath of allegiance; but being required to take the oath of supremacy, he declined, when the Lord - Chancellor apprised him, that in consequence of such refusal, he could not sit in the House of Lords. His Lordship m.

Emma, dau. of William Blundel, Esq. of Crosby, Co.

Lancaster, and, dying in 1695, was s. by his eldest son,

Edmund, 6th Viscount, who, by petition to the House of Lords, claimed, in 1721, his Privilege of Parliament, which (upon proof that the outlawry of Richard, Lord

Mountgarret, for the Rebellion of 1641, had been reversed in the year 1697) being allowed by resolution, he delivered his writ of summons, and took the oath of allegiance. His Lordship d. in 1735, and was s. by his eldest son,

Richard, 7th Viscount, who d. e. p. in 1736, and was s.

by his brother,

James, 8th Viscount; at whose decease, s. p. 1736, the honors devolved upon his brother,

Edmund, 9th Viscount. This nobleman conformed, in 1726, to the established church, and took his seat in Parliament in 1726. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Toby Purrell, of Pat/mail Mattin, Co. Kilkenney, and was s. to 1730, by his only son,

His Lordship s. as 28th, and Premier, Baron, on the demise of his father, 25 Jan., 1832. Lord Kingsale enjoys the hereditary privilege (granted by King John to De Courcy, Earl of Ulster,) of wearing his hat in the royal presence.

Lineage.

The family of Courcy claims alliance with most of the Royal Houses of Europe, paternally through the Dukes of Lorraine, and maternally through the Ducal House of Normandy.

Lewis IV. King of France, b. in 920, m. in 920, Gerberga, dau. of Hanay I., Emperor of Germany, by whom he had two sons, Lotharius, who succeeded in the French Throne (and with whose, Lewis V., the race of Monarchs descended from Charlemagne ceased), and

Charles, Duke of Lorraine, whose immediate descendant,

Robert de Courcy, was Lord of Courcy, in Normandy, to 1066, and was s. by his eldest son,

Richard de Courcy, who accompanied his sovereign, William, into England, and distinguishing himself at the battle of Hastings, participated largely in the Conqueror's spoil, having been allotted numerous lordships; amongst which was that of Stoke, Co. Somerset, and thence denominated Stoke Courcy. His Lordship d. in 1066, and was s. by his son,

Robert, as Lord de Courcy, in Normandy, and Baron of Stoke Courcy in England. This nobleman was steward of the Household to Hanay I., and to his dau., Maude the Empress: by the former of whom he was made one of the greater Barons of Westminster. His Lordship m. Hohesia, dau. of Hugh de Grant Mesnil, Lord of Hinckley, Co. Leicester, and Lord High-Steward of England, by whom he had five sons, and was s. by the eldest,

William, Baron of Stoke Courcy, and Dapifer to Hanay I. This nobleman, having no issue, was s. by his brother,

Robert, Baron of Stoke Courcy, who, temp. King Stephen, had a principal command at the battle of Northampton, against the Scotch. This feudal Lord m. Avicia, dau. and co-heir of William de Moschutes, Earl of Cambridge, and was s. by an only son,

William, Baron of Stoke Courcy, and Dapifer to Hanay II. This nobleman d. in 1177, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir John Courcy, who, having distinguished himself in the battle of Boulogne in 1177, and at the siege of Acre in 1189, was appointed by the King of England as governor of that city, and subsequently was employed in the innumerable expeditions against the Saracen emperors, and the various kings of Syria. He was styled Lord de Courcy, and was the last of the line of that noble family.

soldiers, and, after many hard fought battles, succeeded in attaching that quarter of the kingdom to the English monarchy. For which important service he was created, in 1811, (being the first Englishman dignified with an Irish title of honor), EARL OF ULSKE. His Lordship continued in high favour during the remainder of the reign of his royal master, and performed prodigies of valor in Ireland; but upon the accession of King John, his splendid and rank havieng excited the envy of Hugh de Lacie, appointed Governor of Ireland by that monarch, the Earl of Ulster was treacherously seized while performing penance unarmed and harrowed in the churchyard of Down-Patrick, on Good Friday, anno 1203, and sent over to England, where the King commanded him to perpetual imprisonment in the Tower, and granted to Lacie all the Earl's possessions in Ireland. After his Lordship had been in confinement about a year, a dispute happening to arise between King John, and Philip-Augustus of France, concerning the Duchy of Normandy, the decision of which was referred to single combat, King John, more hastily than advised, appointed the day, against which the King of France provided his champion; but the King of England, less fortunate, could find no one of his subjects willing to take up the gauntlet, until his captive in the Tower, the gallant Earl of Ulster, was prevailed upon to accept the challenge. But, when every thing was prepared for the contest, and prepared the lists, in presence of the Monarchs of England, France and Spain, the opponent of the Earl, seised with a sudden panic, put spurs to his horse, and fled the arena; whereupon the victory was adjudged with acclamation to the champion of England. The English King, being informed, however, of the Earl's powerful strength, and wishing to witness some exhibition of it, his Lordship at the desire of King John, placed a massive helmet in twain at a single blow. The King was so well satisfied with this sign performance, that he not only restored the Earl to his estates and effects, but desired him to ask any thing within his gift, and it should be granted. To which Ulster replied, that having estates and titles enough, he desired that his successors might have the privilege (their first obeisance being paid) to remain covered to the presence of his Majesty, and all future Kings of England, which request was immediately conceded. This heroic warrior and able statesman d. to France, about the year 1210, and e. by his only son,

1. ABERAY, upon whom HENRY III. conferred, in 1211, the Baronry of Kingsale, in Ireland, as a compensation for the Earlship of Ulster, which was retained by Hugo de Lacie. For five centuries afterwards the honors descended regularly. The 18th Lord, KINLOCH.

KINLOCH, Sir David, of Gilmerton, Co. Edinburgh ; b. 1 Sept. 1809; s. as 9th Bart., on the decease of his father, in Feb. 1832; m. 5 June, 1829, Eleanor-Hyndford, eldest dau. of Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, Bart., and has a son and heir, b. in 1830.

Lineage.

The name of Kinloch is derived from a territory in Fife-shire, and the family had possessions in that county as far back as the 13th and 14th centuries. Its chief was raised to the Baronetage by James II. of England, as Kinloch, of Kinloch, but the title expired, upon the failure of male descendants.

From the parent stock branched (at what period is not ascertained,) the Kinlochs of Gilmerton, the first of whom upon record is Francis Kinloch, Esq. of Gilmerton, who d. in 1685, and was s. by his only son.

1. Alexander Kinloch, Esq., who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia 16 Sept., 1696. He m. Magdalene M'Math, and had a numerous family. Sir Alexander, who was Lord Provost of the city of Edinburgh, died about the year 1706, and was s. by his eldest son.

11. Sir Alexander. This gentleman m. KINNAIRD.

KINNAIRD, Baron (George-William-Fox Kinnaird), of Inchture, Co. Perth, in the Peerage of Scotland; and Baron Rossie, of Rossie, Co. Perth, in that of the United Kingdom ; & 14 April, 1807; inherited the Scottish Peerage, as 9th Baron, at the decease of his father, 11 Dec., 1826, and obtained the Barony of the Empire, by creation, 16 June, 1831.

Lineage.

The feudal Barony of Kinnaird, in Perthshire, was conferred (by charter) upon RAGUEBUS RIVUS, or the Red, by William the Lion, King of Scotland, whence the family assumed the name of Kinnaird. From this personage directly descended.

Sir George-Patrick Kinnaird, of Inchture, (an estate which came into the family by the marriage of Reginald Kinnaird, with Marjory, dau. and heir of Sir John Kirkaldy, of Inchture, about the close of the 14th century) who, for his loyalty to the house of Stuart, was knighted by Charles II. in 1661, and elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, 20 Dec., 1662, as Baron Kinnaird, of Inchture, with limitation to the heirs male of his body. PETER HAY, Esq. of Melginch, m. Margaret, dau. of Crichton, of Ruthven, and had issue.
Peter, of whom presently.
James, Sir of Kincaid, whose son,
Sir James HAY, of Pitcorthie, Co. Fife, accompanied JAIME VI. Into England, and became, subse- quently, celebrated as the favourite of that Monarch. Sir James was created a Baron of England in 1615, as Lord Hay of Southey, Co. York, without a solemn investiture, being the first Peer so created, the lawyers declaring that the delivery of the letters patent was sufficient without any ceremony. In 1646 his Lordship went Ambassador to France, and was advanced, in 1648, to the Viscountcy of Duncasse, and being again deputed upon a similar embassy, waas created Earl of Carnall. His Lordship was Groom of the Stole to King James, and Knight of the Garter. Upon the accession of Charles I, he |obtained a grant of the Island of Bardsey. This nobleman was remarkable for the extravagancy of his his services, and left behind him, according to his Lordship d. in 1656, and was z. by his only son, by Honora, dau. and sole heir of Edward, Lord Deney's.

James, 2nd Earl of Carlisle, at whose decease, s.p., in 1660, the honors expired (see Braine's Racault Peerage), and the island of Barbadoes devolved upon the Earl of Kinnon.

PATRICK HAY, the elder son. m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Patrick Ogilvie, and had three sons, viz.

PATRICK, of Melginch, ancestor of the Hays of Pitfour.
KIN

George, of whom presently.

Francis, of Balhousie, Co. Perth, m. Margaret, d. of James Oliphant, Esq. of Balcithan, and was s. by his son,

George, of Balhousie, who m. Marion, d. of Sir Thomas Nicholson, of Carnock, King's Ad cocate, and was s. in 1673, by his elder son,

The second son,

George Hay, Esq. of Kintfauns, being a highly accomplished person, was introduced at Court by his uncle, Lord Carlisle, and acquired immediately the full confidence and favor of King James. He was appointed a Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, honored with the dignity of Knighthood, and granted (18 Feb., 1695) the dissolved Carthusian Priory of Perth. He was, subsequently, nominated Clerk Register of Scotland, and in 1699, appointed to the high dignity of Lord Chancellor of that kingdom.

Sir George was advanced to the Peerage by Charles I., 4 May, 1667, by the titles of Baron Hay, of Kintfauns, and Viscount Duplin, with reversion to his heir general whatsoever, and peerage in Scotland, 1693, Earl of Kinnoul, with the same reversionary clause in the patent. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir James Halliburn, of Pitcur, by whom he had issue, two sons and a daughter. The Earl d. 16 Dec., 1634, (up to which period he continued Chancellor, with the reversion of the earldom and dukedom,) and was s. by his second, but eldest surviving son, George, 2nd Earl, Captain of the Yermen of the Guard to Charles I., and one of his Majesty's Privy Council. His Lordship was distinguished, during the Civil Wars, by unshaken fidelity to his unfortunate sovereign, and gallant and active services as a soldier in his cause. He m. Anne, eldest dau. of William, (Douglas) Earl of Morton, Lord Treasurer of Scotland, by whom he had issue two daus., and his successor, 1st to his denuis, in 1644.

William, 3rd Earl, who became, upon the decease of his cousin, James, Earl of Carlisle, without issue, in 1660, proprietor of the Island of Barbadoes, granted by King Charles I. to the 1st Earl of Carlisle, which his Lordship disposed of to Charles II. in 1661. This noblemien, during the Civil Wars, was taken by the Round heads, and committed prisoner to the Castle of Edinburgh, whence he made his escape, 28 May, 1654, over the wall, by tying sheets and blankets together. Joining the Earl of Middleton in the North, he was made prisoner again by the English, and gallant and active services as a soldier in his cause. The Earl m. 1st, Mary, dau., of Robert, 2nd Earl of Cardigan, by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Charles Viscount Cranboug and granddau. of William Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had two sons, successive Earls. His Lordship d. in 1677, and was s. by his eldest son,

George, 4th Earl, who d. s. p. in 1692, when the honors devolved upon his brother,

William, 5th Earl, at whose decease, unm., in 1709, the Peerage, according to the clause of the patent, in favor of heirs general, devolved upon his kinsman and heir-at-law (refer to Peter of Kirkland, youngest son of Peter Hay, father of the 1st Lord), Thomas, Viscount Duplin, as 6th Earl. His Lordship was a Commissioner for the Treaty of Union between England and Scotland, and sat in the first Parliament of Great Britain, as one of the sixteen representative Peers. He m. 2. A son, b. 7 June, 1829.

3. A son, b. in 1832.

4. Isabella-Catherine.

Lineage.

Sir WILLIAM KATH, Knt., was created Earl Marischal of Scotland, by James II. of that kingdom in 1456, which dignity passed in regular succession to his eldest son; but this nobleman joining in the rising of 1715, his honors and estates fell under an act of attainer in 1716. His Lordship was, for many years subsequently, in the service of the King of Prussia, and his only brother, the Hon. George Keith, following his fortunes, distinguished himself first in the Russian service, where he attained the rank of Field Marshal, and had the command of the Russian Army in the war of 1740. He was afterwards in the service of the King of Prussia. He fell at Hochkirch, 14 Oct., 1758; and a superb monument to his memory, at Berlin, records his achievements, as the celebrated Marshal Keith.

The Hon. Sir JOHN KATH, Knt., 3rd son of William, 6th Earl Marischal, by Lady Mary Kaka, was elevated to the Peerage 26 June, 1677, by the titles of Barun Keith, of Inverurie, and Keith Hall, and Earl of Kintore, having been appointed in 1690, Knight Marischal of Scotland, and that office settled hereditarily in his family, in consideration of the loyalty he had evinced, in preserving the regalia of Scotland from falling into the hands of Cromwell. Sir John Keith had those eminences of royalty safely conveyed from Dunsmore Castle, and deposited under ground in the church of Kinneff; sailing immediately for France, it was supposed that he had carried them away in consequence of which, all further search, by the Cromwellians, was abandoned. His Lordship obtained a new grant of his honors in 1694, extending the reversion to his own female heirs, and to the male issue of his brother George. He m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Earl of Haddington, and was s. in 1714, by his only son.

William, 2nd Earl. This nobleman, having joined the insurgents of 1715, was at the battle of Sheriff Muir, and never afterwards showed his head; he does not appear to have suffered in consequence, however, further than being deprived of the Office of Marischal. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. and Heiress of David, 4th Viscount Stormont, by whom he had issue,

1. JOHN, 1 successor Earl.

2. WILLIAM, m. to David, 5th Lord Falconer of Halkerton, and had, with other issue,

i. ALEXANDER, 6th Lord 1776, and was s. by his Falconer, who was s. in eldest son,

ii. 1772, by his brother,

2. WILLIAM, s. Lord 1792, Falconer of whom Falconer, who d. in Dec. heretofore, as 8th Earl of KINTORE.

His Lordship was in 1718, by his eldest son,

3. JOHN, 3rd Earl, who d. a. p. in 1728, when the honors devolved upon his brother,

William, 4th Earl. This nobleman dying ss. in 1761, the estates devolved upon George, the 10th and attained Earl Marischal, while the Peerage remained suspended, until that nobleman's decease, in 1778, when it passed to

ANTHONY-ADRIAN FALCONER, 8th Lord Falconer, of Hakerton; (revert to Catherine, dau. of William, 4th Earl, and her descendants), who inherited with it the estate of Kintore, the old castle of Hadd Forest, given to the family by Robert I. and Keith Hall. The noble family of Falconer deduce their descent from Ramsulphus, (son of Walter de Lunkyr), appointed King's Falconer by William the Lion, whence he assumed the surname of Falconer. The descendant of that personage, Alexander, passed in the following year to enable him to inherit estates, but he rejected the insertion of a clause empowering his succession to honor. His Lordship was further favored by the Crown, on uu to the same, and with a grant of public money in 1761. He died in 1778, at Potsdam, at the advanced age of eighty-eight, enjoying his Majesty of Prussia's confidence to the last, in so great a degree as to be called "the King's friend." An "Eloge de mon Prince Mareschal," by M. D'Alembert, was published at Berlin in 1779.

1. James, b. in 1802.
2. Eleanor, m. to Captain W. J. Hope Johnston.

Lineage.

Tradition states, that an ancestor of this principal family, as Nisbet calls it, possessed lands in Nethdale, in the beginning of the 9th century; but the first of their members upon record is

IVONA KIRKPATRICK, who lived temp. David I. and is witness to a charter, sans date, of Robert Brus, the elder, or 1st Lord of Annandale, and of his wife, Esenia, granting the fishing of Torduff to the monks of Abbey-boim. The grandson of this Ivona,

IVONA KIRKPATRICK, obtained a confirmatory charter of the lands of Closeburne, from Alexander II. dated 15 Aug., 1239; and from him directly descended, through a long line of hereditary Lords of Closeburne,

SIR THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, Knt. Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to James VI, who obtained a patent of free demesne, within the Kingdom of England, in 1603, from that monarch. He d. about the year 1628, and was s. by his son,

2. Sir Thomas, who m. in 1709, Isabel, eldest dau. of Sir William Lockhart, Bart. of Carstairs, by whom he had four sons and a dau.; and was s. at his decease by his eldest son.

3. Sir Thomas, this gentleman m. Susanna, dau. and heir of James Grierson, Esq. of Capleno, by whom he had eight children. Upon the night of Monday, 29 Aug., 1748, the mansion of Closeburne, built by the 1st Bart., partly with the materials of the old residence, of which he left nothing standing, saw the tower, was burnt to the ground, through the carelessness of drunken servants, and all the family papers, portraits, plate, &c. therein consumed. Sir Thomas d. in Oct., 1771, and was s. by his 2nd and eldest surviving son.

4. Sir James, who m. Miss Jardine, and was s. at his decease, 7 June, 1804, by his eldest son, Thomas, the present Baronet.

His Lordship s. to the honors, as 3rd Viscount, on the demise of his brother, in May, 1836.

Lineage.

Almaric Lake, of Southampton, had two sons,

Thomas, (Sir) of whom presently.

Arthur, in Holy Orders, consecrated Bishop of Bath and Wells, in 1626, d. unm. 4 May, 1616.

The elder son,

Sir Thomas Lake, of Canon, Co. Middlesex, was born at Southampton, bred a scholar, and afterwards taken into the service of Sir Francis Walsingham, Secretary of State, as his amanuensis. By this Minister he was recommended to Queen Elizabeth, to whom he read French and Latin. A little before her Majesty’s death, she made him Clerk of her Signet; and, after her decease, he was admitted by the State, in that capacity, to attend James I. from Berwick. That monarch soon afterwards employed him in French affairs, and Knighted him. After Sir Robert Cecil (Salisbury) attained the administration of affairs, the Secretaryship of State was divided, and Sir Thomas Lake was appointed one of the Secretaries; “and so continued,” says A. Wood, “with honorable esteem of all men, till malice and revenge, two violent passions, over-ruled the weaker sex,” concerning his wife and dau., in

* From a statement made by Saunderson, who was Secretary to Lord Roos, during that nobleman’s embassy in Spain (1811), we extract the cause and issue of the great feud between Frances, 2nd wife of Thomas, 1st Earl of Exeter, and the Lake family, alluded to above. We must previously premise that Thomas, 1st Earl of Exeter, espoused, for his 2nd Countess, Frances Brydges, dau. of William, Lord Chandos, and widow of Sir Thomas Smith, Master of Requests to James I., and that the Lady was thirty-eight years younger than her noble husband. It is necessary also to observe, that Lord Roos, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Lake, was only son of William, 2nd Earl of Exeter (son and successor of the 1st Earl), by Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Edward Manners, Earl of Rutland. He was thus step-grandson to Frances, Countess of Exeter.

Upon Lord Roos’s return from Spain, falling into some neglect of his wife and her kindred, and soon after withdrawing into Italy, where he became a Roman Catholic, Lady Lake and her dau., Lady Roos, asserted that an improper intimacy had subsisted between his Lordship and the Countess, his step-grandmother, and that the discovery of the intrigue had caused his Lordship’s flight 2 0 3

Lineage.

LIEUT.-COL. ROBERT BURGESS, a gentleman of considerable fortune in the Co. Berks, distinguished himself amongst the most gallant adherents of Royalty during the Civil Wars, and had the honor of successfully opposing the Usurper Cromwell himself; of which affair the following account is extracted from Rushbrooke's Historical Collection for 1645.

"He (Cromwell) then marched over the river to Farrington, hoping to have reduced the place, where a garrison was kept for the King, by Lieut.-Col. Burgess (as Deputy-Governor under Col. Owen); but wanting Foot for that service, he sent to Major-Gen. Brown at Abington, who dispatched thither about five or six hundred; whilst, in the meantime, Cromwell sent in his summons:

"Sir,—I summon you to deliver into my hands the house wherein you are, and your ammunition, with all things else there, together with your persons, to be disposed of as the Parliament shall appoint; which, if you refuse to do, you are to expect the utmost severity of war. I rest your servant.

"April 29, 1645.

"To the Governor of the garrison of Farrington.""

"To which answer was returned, "that the King had intrusted them to keep that garrison and, without special order from his Majesty himself, they would not deliver it:"

"Cromwell then drew unto the town of Farrington, and sent this second summons:

"Sir,—I understand by forty or fifty poor men, whom you forced into your house, that you had many there whom you cannot arm, and who are not serviceable to you. If these men should bow under your means, it will be a great inhumanity surely. Honesty and honesty require this, that though ye be prodigal of your own lives, yet not to be so of theirs. If God give you into my hands, I will not spare a man of you, if you put me to a storm.""

"April 29, 1645.

"To the Governor of the garrison of Farrington."

"But the Deputy-Governor returned his resolute answer:

"Sir,—We have forced none into our garrison. We should have you to know, you are not now at Abington. The guiltless blood that shall be spill, God shall require at your hands, that have caused this unnatural war. We fear not your storming, nor will have any more parleys."

About three o'clock the next morning, (the Abington foot being come up,) Cromwell with them and his Dragon, began the assault, but was repulsed with the loss of fourteen men killed, and Captain Canon (who reared the first scaling ladder, and ascended himself) taken prisoner, with an ensign and eight common soldiers, and divers wounded; after which, CROMWELL led off his force, and joined Fairfax.

The great-grandson of this stout cavalier, I. JAMES-BLADE BURGESS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, only son of George Burgess, Esq. John Langrishe, Esq. (son of Hercules Langrishe, Esq., the first member of the family who settled in Ireland), became proprietor of the Borough of Knocktopher, Co. Kilkenny, Mr. Langrishe m. 1st, Alicia, 2nd dau. of Harry, 2nd Lord Hanly, and widow of Thomas Sandford, Esq. of Sandford Court. He m. 2dly, Miss Sandford, dau. of Col. Sandford; but had issue by neither of those ladies. He m. 3dly, Mary, dau. of Robert Grace, Esq., Baron of Courtstown, M.P. for Thomastown (see Bank’s Commoners, Vol. ii. p. 354), and by her had an only son, his successor, Robert Langrishe, Esq. of Knocktopher, who m. Miss Whitley, dau. of — Whitley, Esq. of Kilruggan, Co. Kilkenny, and was s. at his decease, in 1776, by his only son,

1. HERCULES LANGRISHE, Esq. of Knocktopher. This gentleman was created a BARONET OF IRELAND, 24 Jan., 1777. Sir Hercules, who was a Member of the Privy-Council, represented the borough of Knocktopher in the Irish Parliament for forty years, during which period he ranked amongst the most distinguished of its members, and was the first who advocated and obtained a partial relaxation of the atrocious code of laws which oppressed the Roman Catholics of Ireland, a code that consigned four-fifths of the population to unmitigated and grinding slavery, and reduced the whole to a state of semi-barbarism. He m. Hannah, dau. and co-heir of Robert Myhill, Esq. of Killarney, Co. Kilkenny, and sister of Jane, wife of Charles, 1st Marquess of Ely, by whom he had issue, Robert, present Bart.

James, in Holy Orders.
Mary-Jane, m. to James Wilson, Esq. of Parsons town, Co. Meath.

LANSDOWNE.

Lansdowne, Marquess of (Henry Petty-Fitzmaurice, D.C.L., F.R.S.), Earl of Wycombe, Viscount Calne and Calnstone, and Baron Wycombe, of Chipping Wycombe, Co. Bucks, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Earl of Kerry, and Earl of Shelburne, Viscount Clannamurice and Fitzmaurice, Baron of Kerry, Lixnaw, and Dunkerron, in the Peerage of Ireland: b. 2 July, 1770; m. 30 March, 1808, Louisa-Emma, fifth dau. of Henry-Thomas, 2nd Earl of Ilchester, by whom he has issue,

1. WILLIAM-THOMAS, Earl of Kerry, b. 30 March, 1811; m. 18 March, 1834, the Hon. Augusta-Lavinia-Priscilla Poseyson, second dau. of Viscount Duncombe, and has a daughter.

2. Henry, b. 3 Jan., 1816.
3. Louisa.

His Lordship, s. in the English honors, and the Irish Earldom of Shelburne, with the Viscountcy of Fitzmaurice, and the Baronry of Dunkerron, upon the demise of his half-brother, 15 Nov., 1849; and to the Earldom of Kerry, &c., at the decease of his cousin, Francis-Thomas, 3rd Earl of Kerry, 4 July, 1818. The Marquess of Lansdowne has recently filled the office of Chief Secretary of State for the Home Department, and is now Lord-President of the Council.

Lineage.

The Earls of Kerry trace their origin to a common ancestor in the direct line with the eminent houses of Fitz-gerald, Wydham-Carew, Mc-Mckenzie, &c., namely, Walter Fitz-otho, Castellan of Windsor, in the eleventh century; whose eldest son, Gerald Fitz-walter, obtained a grant from Henry I. of Nokesford, Co. Berks. This Gerald m. Nesta, dau. of Rees Gruffyth, Prince of South Wales, and had issue, Maurice Fitz-gerald, ancestor of the Ducal house of Leinster.

William, of whom presently.

David, consecrated, in 1147, Bishop of St. David’s, and d. in 1178.

The second son,

William, called by Geraldus Cambrensis the eldest son; but the pedigree of the family of Leinster setting forth the contrary, and his being possessed of the castle of Karrin, Co. Carmarthen, in South Wales, his mother’s inheritance, and assuming that surname, bespeak him a younger son

* The present Marquess of Lansdowne entails his heir apparent EARL OF KERRY, but certainly without authority. The Earldom of Kerry is a distinct Irish Peerage, enjoyed by his Lordship, one of the privileges of which he himself exercises at every election of an Irish Representative Peer, and is summoned as Earl of Kerry: it does not therefore merge in the Marquise of Lansdowne. The courtesy title of the Marquess of Lansdowne’s eldest son, is, correctiy, EARL OF WYCOMBE—of the Earl of Kerry’s, Viscount Clannamurice.

which is confirmed by the unerring testimony of the addition of another name or allusion to the old he- was aided to his death, and, in the year 1728, he ning of this branch, a certain sign of cadency, to distinguish him and his posterity (from the elder branch of the family). This William was sent, in 1171, by Earl Strongbow, into Ireland, with his son Rey-mond, where, for a time, he assisted in the reduction of that kingdom; but returning to his native country, died there, in the year 1123, leaving issue, by Catharine, dau. of Sir Adam de Kingsley, of Cheshire, seven sons and a dau.

The eldest son,

Raymon, surnamed from his corpulence Le Grosse, having, as stated above, accompanied his father into Ireland, was a principal in the reduction of that kingdom. He m. Basilia, sister of Earl Strongbow, and had, as a marriage portion with her, a large territorial grant, and the Constableship of Leinster. After this we find him aiding Mac Carthy, King of Cork, against his rebellious son, Cormac O’Leaneagh, and acquiring for his services a large tract of land in the Co. of Kerry, where he settled his eldest son.

Maurice Fitz Raymon, who m. for his 1st wife, Johanna, dau. of Miles Fitzmurry, founder of Conall Abbey, Co. Kildare, and Chief Governor of Ireland, by whom he had a son, Thomas, who assumed the surname of Fitzmurry, and became Lord of Kerry and Lixnaw. This Thomas founded the Kerry family, as he is the progenitor of Edward L., in 1257, with horse and arms, in an exped-tion against Scotland. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Sir John M’Cloud, of Galway, and dying in 1383, was a. by his eldest son, Nicholas, 2nd Lord of Kerry, whose son,

Maurice, 4th Lord of Kerry, having a dispute with Dermoid Oge Mac Carthy, killed him upon the Bench before the Judge of Assize at Tralee, in 1285, for which he was tried and attainted by the Parliament of Dublin, but was not put to death. His lands were, however, forfeited, but restored, after his decease, to his brother and successor,

John, 5th Lord, from whose time we are obliged, by our limits, to pass over nearly four centuries, and to come to

Thomas, 21st Lord of Kerry, who was created 17 Jan., 1722, Viscount Clancarcr and Earl of Kerry. His Lordship m. in 1692, Anne, only dau. of Sir William Petty, Physician-General to the Army in Ireland, in 1632, so celebrated for his extraordinary talents and surprising fortune. In 1700, Sir William undertook the survey of Ireland; and, in March, 1696, he had completed the measuretment of two millions and eight thousand acres of arable lands, for which, by contract, he was to receive one penny per acre, and did actually acquire an estate of £6000 a year. This eminent and distinguished person died of a gangrene in his foot, 16 Dec., 1697. The Earl of Kerry had issue, five sons and three dau., of whom the eldest son, William, succeeded at his decease, 16 March, 1741, as 2nd Earl of Kerry. His Lordship, who was a Colonel in the Coldstream Foot-Guards, left at his decease in 1747, by his 2nd wife, Gertrude, only dau. of Richard, 4th Earl of Cavan, Anna Maria, m. to Maurice Fitzgerald, Knt. of Kerry.

And an only son, his successor,

Francis-Thomas, 3rd Earl of Kerry, who m. Anastasia, dau. and co-heir of Peter Daly, Esq. of Quinsharly, Co. Galway, but dying s. p. 4 July, 1818, his Lordship’s honours devolved upon his cousin, Henry, present Marquis of Lansdowne.

Thomas, 1st Earl of Kerry’s 2nd son.

The Hon. John Fitzmurry, having inherited the Petty estates, upon the demise of his maternal uncle, Henry Petty, Earl of Shelburne, in April, 1724 (when that Earl died), assumed the surname and arms of Petty, and was advanced to the Peerage of Ireland, 2nd Oct., 1724, by the titles of Baron Dunkerron and Viscount Fitzmurry. His Lordship was further promoted, 26 June, 1725, to the Barony of Shelburne. He m. in 1734, his 1st-cousin, Mary, dau. of the Hon. William Fitzmurry, of Gallane, Co. Kerry, by whom he had issue, William, his successor; and Thomas, who m. Mary, Countess of Orkney, a Peeress in her own right. The Earl of Shelburne was created a Peer of Great Britain, 17 May, 1740, as Baron Wycombe of Chipping Wycombe, and dying 10 May, 1750, was a. by his eldest son, William, 2nd Earl of Shelburne, a General Officer in the Army, and a distinguished statesman in the reign of George III. In 1760, his Lordship, after the decease of the Marquesses of Rockingham (under whom he filled the office of Secretary for Foreign Affairs), was nominated Prime Minister, and, 30 Nov., 1764, advanced to the digni-ties of Earl of Wycombe, Co. Bucks, Viscount Calne and Calne, and Marquess of Lansdowne, Co. Somerset.

The Marquesas m. 1st, in 1765, Sophia, dau. of John, Earl Granville, by whom he had one son, John, his successor; and, 2ndly, in 1773, Louisa, dau. of John (Fitzpatric), Earl of Upper Ossory, by whom he had another son, Henry, present Marquess, and a dau., Louisa, who d. young. His Lordship d. in May, 1788, and was a. by his eldest son,

John, 2nd Marquess, who m. 27 May, 1806, Lady Gifford, relict of Sir Duke Gifford, of Castle Jordan, in Ireland; but, dying without issue, in 1806, the honours devolved upon his half-brother, Lord Henry Petty, present Peer, who had already distinguished himself as an eloquent public speaker, and had attained considerable popularity by his enlightened views as a statesman. His Lordship s. also to the honors of the house of Kerry, upon the demise of his cousin. (Revert to descendants of William, eldest son and successor of Thomas, 1st Earl of Kerry.)

LAUDER.

LAUDER, SIR THOMAS DICK, Bart. of Fountain Hall, Co. Haddington; b. 1784; m. 1808, Charles-Anne, only child and heir of George Cummis, Esq. of Renties (and his wife, Susan-Judith Crewig, eldest dau. of Col. Halkett, of Hall Hill, Co. Fife,) by whom he lies issue, Sir Thomas, who is the lineal male representative of the family of Lauder, of Luder-Tower, and Bass, and, through a female, of Dick, of Braid, and Grange, s. to the title, as 7th Bart., upon the decease of his father, in 1820.

Linagr.

The surname of Lauder, anciently De Lavedre, is of Norman origin, and the Scottish historians mention the first De Lavedre as one of those Anglo-Norman Barons who accompanied Malcolm Canmore into Scotland, 1056, to assist that Prince in recovering his kingdom from the usurper, Macbeth; for which important service De Lavedre received grants of land from the King, in Berwickshire, to which he gave his own name, as other Knights, similarly recompensed, had done, to obediency, according to Boethius, of a direct Royal Command. The next of the family, of whom there is any particular notice, is

Robert de Lavedre, who seems to have been the 5th Baron, and was a Soldier of the Cross, in the 5th Crusade, in 1189; after him, the earliest we find is

Sir Robert De Lavedre, the brave associate of Sir William Wallace, probably the 6th Baron. This gallant soldier d. 1131, and his monument existed in the time of Nisbet, who gives its inscription at length. The present Baronet has to his possession an original charter from William de Lamberton, Bishop of St. Andrews, to another Robert de Lavedre, of that fragment of the island of Bass, over which the abbey of St. Andrews had, until then, retained a right, the family having enjoyed the larger part of it for generations before. It is dated 4 June, 1316, as is the charter of confirmation, by John de Forfar, prior of St. Andrews, also in the family charter chest. This Robert, was Ambassador to England, from Robert I. upon various occasions. In 1263, he was one of the Proxies in the Oath of Pease, with Edward: on which occasion he swore, "on the soul of the Bruce," for the due maintenance of it by the Scottish King. His son,

Sir Robert de Lavedre, fought at Halidon, in 1333, in the 3rd Division of the Army under Archibald Douglas, Lord of Galloway, nick-named Tynemaw, Regent of Scotland. Immediately after the defeat, Sir Robert, who was "justiciary by the north the Forth," hastened to occupy the Castle of Ureachar, on Lochness, one of the only four strong holds which defied the power of Edward. This gallant knight was generally denominated a Quarrelwood. His son,

Sir Alan de Lavedre, m. Alicia Campbell, dau. of Sir Robert Campbell, of Lochawe, the 9th of the Argyll family, by whom he had

Sir Alan was killed with The Douglases, in Spain, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert Lavedre, who was deputed, with his brother the Chancellor, to the Court of England, to treat about the liberation of King James I. of Scotland. Sir Robert was s. by his son,

Sir Edward Lavedre, who, in 1425, was sent Ambassador to France, to negotiate the treaty of marriage between Louis XI. and Margaret, dau. of James I., and the contract was signed by him in 1426. From this Sir Edward lineally descended.

I. John, Esq.—of Newington, Edrington, and Fountainhall, who was created a Bar. of Nova Scotia, in 1069, and who, by the death of his third cousin, Robert Luder, of Luder, became the representative of that branch of the family. Sir John m. Isabel Ellis, of Morton Hall, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. John, this gentleman was nominated a Lord of Session and Justice, by the title of Lord Fountainhall. He m. Janet, dau. of Sir Andrew Ramsay, Lord Abbotsbath, a Lord of Session, by whom he had several children, and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

III. John, who m. in 1069, Isabel, dau. of Sir Alexander Seton, a Lord of Session, as Lord Pittmedden, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. Sir Alexander; at whose decease, 1363.+ in 1370, the title devolved upon his brother,

V. Sir Andrew, who m. his cousin, Isabel, only child and heir of William Dick, Esq. of Grange, by whom he had three sons, and was s. at his decease by the third and only surviving,

VI. Sir Andrew Lavedre-Dick, of Fountainhall, and Grange. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Brown, Esq. of Johnstoneburn, and had an only son, Thomas, the present Bart. Sir Andrew d. in 670.

Creation,—1060.

Arms.—Quarterly: first and fourth, gu. a griffin, rampant, ar. second and third, ar. a fesse wavy, az. between three molettes gu.

Crest.—A tower, and a curiell looking from the top thereof, pp.

Supporters.—Two lions, rampant, ar.

Mottoes.—Ut migraturus habita. Turris praeclarus custos, for Laverter. Virtuti, for Dick.

VII. Julian-Jane, m. in 1823, to John Warrender, Esq., and d. 19 May, 1827.

Heie Lordship s. to the Scottish honors, as 8th Earl, upon the demise of his father, 17 Aug., 1789; and obtained the English Barony by patent of creation, dated the 15 Feb., 1806. Lord Lauderdale is hereditary Standard-Bearer for Scotland.

Lineage.

This very ancient and distinguished family of North Britain has been seated at Thirlestane, in Berwickshire, for nearly six centuries. Its earliest ancestor was Sir Richard de Maitland, (as the name was formerly written), who gave divers lands to the Abbey of Dryburgh, in the reign of Alexander III.

Sir Richard Maitland, 12th feudal Lord of Thirlestane, was a person of considerable importance in the era in which he lived. In 1552 and 1560, we find him one of the Commissioners appointed to adjust the differences between England and the debatable lands on the borders. In 1554, he was constituted one of the extraordinary Lords of Session. In 1561, appointed one of the ordinary Lords, and in the following year Keeper of the Privy-Sec ret, which latter office he resigned in 1567. In favor of his 2nd son, his Lordship retired from the Bench in 1564; on which occasion James VI acknowledged, by letter, Sir Richard's faithful service, "to his grandfather, and himself," by which it would seem that this eminent person was employed seventy years at least in the public service. In the literary world he was known by his history of the family of Seton, and poems on several subjects. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Cranston, and had

William, of Leithington, Secretary of State for Scotland, and one of the principal actors in the turbulent times of the unhappy Mary. Secretary Maitland was at once a notable advocate of the marriage of Mary with Darnley; and he was the person said subsequently to have projected the alli ance of his fortune with his mistress, the Duke of Norfolk. In 1571, he was deprived of the Secretar yship, proclaimed a traitor, and attained in the Parli ment held in the Canongate; and being in the castle of Edinburgh when it surrendered in 1572, he terminated his life, according to the old Roman fashion, says Melvill, by a voluntary death. 9 June, 1573. to the disgrace of public execution, the fate of his friend, Kirkaldy, the Governor. Secretary Maitland left an only son, James, who, being a Roman Catholic, withdrew to the continent, and sold his estate of Leithington to his uncle,

Sir John Maitland, Knt. (second son of Sir Richard), who, having filled the high office of Lord-Privy-Secretary, Judge of the Court of Session, Secretary of State, and Lord Advocate, of Scotland, was elevated to the Peers, 18 May, 1550, by the title of Lord Maitland, of Thirlestane. His Lordship m. Jane, only dau. and heir of James, 4th Lord Fleming, and granddau., maternally, of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault; and, dying in 1565, was a. by his only son.

John, 2nd Earl. This nobleman having distinguished himself, by his zealous and active exertions in the Royal cause, during the civil wars, was installed, after the Restor ation, a Knight of the Garter, appointed High-Commissioner of Scotland, and created, 2 May, 1673, Marquess of March, and Duke of Lauderdale; and enrolled amongst the Peers of England, 25 June, 1674, as Baron Petersham, and Earl of Guilford, Co. Surrey. His Grace m. 1st. Anne, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 1st Earl of Home, co. heir, with her sister, Margaret, Countess of

Mony, of her brother, James, 2nd Earl of Home, by whom he had an only child, Anna, m. in 1686, to John, the Duke of Argyll, and grandson of the Duke of Argyll, 17 Feb., 1677-2, Eliza, Countess of Dysart, relict of Sir Lionel Talisman, Bart., but had no other issue. His d. in 1692, when all his own honors expired, while those of his family devolved upon his brother,

Charles, 3rd Earl of Lauderdale. His Lordship m. in 1652, Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Richard Lauder, Esq. of Harton, Co. Edinburgh, by whom he had issue, Richard, John, and Charles, besides three other sons and two dau. The Earl, who was General of the Mint, Deputy-Treasurer, and one of the Judges of the Court of Session, in Scotland, and a Bart. of Nova Scotia (created 12 May, 1672), d. in 1694, and was by his eldest son,

Richard, 4th Earl. This nobleman, who was a Privy -Councillor, General of the Mint, and Lord-Justice-General from 1691 to 1694, was outlawed in 1694, for his adherence to the fortunes of James II., and dying in Paris, without issue, in 1695 (he m. Anne, second dau. of Archibald, 9th Earl of Argyll), the Peerage devolved upon his brother,

John, 5th Earl, one of the Lords of Session, under the title of Lord Bavarig. His Lordship m. Lady Margaret Cunningham, only child of Alexander, 10th Earl of Gairncairn, and heir of line of that ancient family, and, dying in 1710, was by his eldest surviving son,

Charles, 6th Earl. This coheir m. Elizabeth, dau. of James, Earl of Fife, and Seafall, Lord-Chancellor of Scotland, by whom he had, with other issue,

1. James, his successor.

11. Charles, who, upon his marriage with Isabel Barclay, heir of Towle, assumed the surname and arms of Barcl ay. He had, by other issue, a dau., and heir (who d. in 1761), Charles, who m. Miss HuU. Mr. Maitland Barclay espoused, 2dly, a dau. of Patrick Haldane, Esq. of Gienegillies; and, 3dly, Janet, dau. of Sir Thomas Moncreiffe, Bart. He d. in 1796.

LE DESPENCER.

Le Despencer, Baroness (Mary—Frances—Elizabeth Stapleton), in the Peerage of England; b. 24 March, 1822; s. to the title upon the demise of her grandfather, 3 Oct., 1831.

Liturage.

This is one of the old Baronies created by writ of summons, which, being heritable through the female as well as the male line, pass at different periods into different families.

Hugh or Spencer, son of Thomas de Spencer, (who was the sixth in descent from Robert Despencer, or Stewart, to William the Conqueror, and one of his Barons), was summoned to Parliament 14 Dec., 1254, when he was constituted, by patent, Justiciary of England. This personage, one of the most powerful Barons of his time, taking up arms with other nobles, in defence of their ancient privileges, was elected by them, in 1259, one of the twelve, who, with twelve other Barons, chosen by the King, were to amend and reform all the political abuses complained of. Hugh de Spencer distinguished himself subsequently in the field against the Crown, but, disgusted with the haughty deportment of Simon Mountfor, Earl of Leicester, he forsook the Baronial Banner, and obtained immediately the highest favor of the Court, being, as stated above, elevated to the Peerage, and appointed Justiciary, an office which then comprehended the jurisdiction of all the present Law-Courts. Again, however, exposing the cause of the Barons, he fell at the battle of Evesham, 5 Aug., 1265, and was s. by his son (by Oliva, dau. and heir of Philip, Lord Basset of Wycombe, Co. Bucks).

Hugh, known in history as Hugh Despencer, senior, 2nd Baron, who was summoned to Parliament, 23 June, 1256, and appointed Governor of Marthcomb Castle, 2nd Edward I. He was further promoted to the dignity of Earl of Winchester, 10 May, 1322. This nobleman was banished the realm through the influence of the Barons in 1320; but returning the ensuing year, and adhering staunchly to the cause of his oppressed sovereign, was beheaded after the landing of Queen Isabel and the Prince of Wales, in Oct., 1326, without the formality of trial. His Lordship m. Isabel, dau. of William de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and widow of Sir Patrick Chaworth, by whom he had, with five dau., an only son.

Sir Hugh or Spencer, (known as Hugh De-Spencer, junior), who having s. Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of Gilbert, Earl of Gloucester, and niece of Edward II., was summoned to Parliament as a Baron, from 1314, to 1325, and was commonly called Earl of Gloucester. In the 13th Edward II., he was nominated Lord-Chamberlain. His Lordship was soon after, however, obliged with his father to leave the kingdom; but being recalled with him, was constituted Governor of the castle anddomains of Gloucester, and Warden of the forest of Dean. He was eventually, however, beheaded at Hereford, in Nov., 1326, and having been declared a traitor by Parliament, his honors became forfeited. This eminent nobleman left issue,

2 Thomas.

The eldest son,
Hers, commonly called Lord Glamorgan, having entered into the Military service of Edward III., and distinguished himself in France and Scotland, was sum-momted to Parliament, from 1338 to 1348, when he d. without issue; and his nephew and heir,

Sir EDMUND DE SPENCE, being summoned, from 1357 to 1375, was installed a Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Bartholomew Burghersh, Knt., and, dying in 1375, was a. by his son,

Thomas, commonly called Despenser of Glamorgan, who was summoned, in 1396, and created Earl of Gloucester in 1397; but being beheaded and declared a traitor in 1400, for conspiring to restore Richard II., his honors were extinguished. This nobleman left a son and heir, who died during minority; when his Lordship's sister,

ISABEL DE SPENCE, became his heir, and m. Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Worcester, and Baron Abergavenny, by whom she had an only daughter,

ELIZABETH BEAUCHAMP, who m. Edward Neville, 4th son of Ralph, Earl of Westmorland, (an Earldom forfeited in 1570;) and the attainer of her grandfather, Thomas, 7th Baron de Spencer, having been reversed, her Ladyship carried the Barony of Bergavenny, Burghersh, and De Spencer, into the family of her husband, where they remained until 1586, when

HENRY, the 4th Baron Abergavenny, d. without male issue. His Lordship's only daughter,

The Hon. MARY NIVEL, m. in 1624, Sir Thomas Fane, Knt., by whom she had issue four sons and two daughters. Lady Fane, after the demise of Sir Thomas, 23 May, 1604, was restored, by letters patent, to the dignity of Baroness Le De Spencer, in remainder to the heirs of her body, with the ancient seat, place, and precedence of her ancestors (her Ladyship, was likewise entitled to the Barony of Burghersh, but that has never been claimed; the Barony of Abergavenny was confirmed at the same time to the heir male), Lady Le De Spencer d. 29 June, 1655, and was. by her eldest son,

FRANCI, who was created Baron Burghersh, and Earl of Westmorland, 20 Dec., 1624, and the Barony of De Spencer merged in the Earldom, until the demise of John, the 7th Earl, in 1769 (who succeeded his two brothers), without issue, when it fell into abeyance, between the heirs of his Lordships sisters, Mary, wife of Sir Francis Dashwood, Bart., and Catherine, lady of William Paul, Esq.; but the Crown terminated the abeyance, in 1768, in favor of Sir Francis Dashwood, Bart., son and heir of the above-named Sir Francis. This nobleman dying, however, in 1781, without issue, the Barony again fell into abeyance, between his sister Rachel, relict of Sir Robert Austin, Bart., and the heir of his aunt Lady Catherine, Paul; namely, the descendant of

CATHERINE PAUL, (only dau. of Lady Catherine), who m. William Stapleton, Esq., (created a Baronet, 28 June, 1797), and left (with a daughter) an only son,

Sir THOMAS STAPLETON, 2nd Bart. of Rotherfill

Greys, Co. Oxford. This gentleman m. in 1785, Mary, dau.

Lineage.

This noble family, like many others in the Peerage, traces its origin to the City of London, where it first became of importance through SIR EDWARD OSBORNE, Knt., who filled the Office of Lord-Mayor in the year 1600. This gentleman discovering an early bias to commercial pursuits, was put apprentice to Sir William Hewet, of the Cloth-workers' Company, one of the most considerable merchants in London, and, while serving his apprenticeship, Sir William's only child, Anna, having accidentally fallen from the window of Sir William's house on London Bridge into the Thames, Mr. Osborne leaped into the river, and brought her out in safety, when but little hope remained of her rescue. This lady was afterwards his wife, and by her had issue, Hawry, his successor.

Edward, d. viscount.
Anne, m. to Robert Osly, Esq. of London.
Alice, m. to Sir John Peyton, Bart. of Ithelham, Cambridgeshire.

Sir Edward espoused 2ndly, Margaret, who outlived him, and wedded 3rdly, Robert Clarke, Esq., one of the Barons of the Exchequer: by her, however, he had no issue. Sir Edward Osborne was Member of Parliament for the City of London in 1655. He d. in 1681, and was z. by his elder son, SIR HAWRY OSBORNE, who received the honor of Knighthood from the Earl of Essex in Ireland for his services there. He m. Joice, dau. of Thomas Fleetwood, Esq. of the Vache, Bucks, Master of the Mint, and had, with a dau. Alice, m. to Christopher Wandesford, Esq. of Kirklington, in Yorkshire, an only son, his successor, in 1614.

LEE

SIR EDWARD OSBORNE, Knt. of Kiveton, Co. York, who was created a Baronet 13 July, 1600. In 1629, when Thomas, Lord Viscount Wentworth (afterwards Earl of Strafford), was made Lord-President of the North. Sir Edward Osborne was appointed Vice-President of the Council to CHARLES I. for the North of England; and, upon the breaking out of the Rebellion, in 1641, was one of the forces raised in his Majesty's defence in that part of the country. He m. 1st, Margaret, eldest dau. of Thomas, Viscount Fauconberg, and had a son, Edward, who was killed in youth, by the fall of some chimneys at his father's residence. Sir Edward espoused 2ndly, Anne, widow of William Middleton, Esq. of Stockeld, Yorkshire, and dau. of Thomas Walmesley,* Esq. of Dunkenhalgh, Co. Lancaster (by his wife, Elizabeth Danvers, granddau. of John Nevill, Lord Latimer, see BURKE's Extinct Peerage.) by this lady he had an only son, his successor, SIR THOMAS, who became Lord-High-Treasurer of England, and was elevated to the Peerage, 15 Aug., 1673, as Baron Osborne, of Kiveton, and Viscount Latimer, of Danby. His Lordship was advanced to an Earldom 27 June, in the next year, as Earl of Danby, created Marquess of Carmarthen, 20 April, 1688, and Duke of Leeds 4 May, 1694. His Grace was installed a Knight of the Garter, and enrolled amongst the Peers of Scotland 19 June, 1673, by the title of Viscount Dumbellaine. The Duke m. LEIGHTON.

LEIGH, Sir Samuel-Egerton, of South Carolina; b. 16 Nov., 1796; s. to the title, as 3rd Bart., upon the demise of his uncle, 27 April, 1818.

Lineage.

The first surname of this very ancient family was Lynne, and that was assumed from a township in Cheshire.

RICHARD LYNNE, about the close of the 13th century, m. Agnes, dau. and heir of Richard de Leigh, Lord of a moiety of High Leigh (see Burke's Extinct Peerage, Leigh, Barons Leigh, of Stoneleigh); and from this marriage lineally descended.

RICHARD LEIGH, Esq. of West Hall, in High Leigh, living in 1408, who m. 1st. Alice, dau. of John Leister, Esq. of Taby; and 2ndly, Joan, widow of Thomas Holford, Esq.; and was s. by the eldest son, of his first marriage.

THOMAS LEIGH, Esq. from whom, through a long line of most respectable ancestors, sprung:

RAB REV. PETER LEIGH, Rector of Whitechurch, Co. Salop, who m. Elizabeth, only dau. of the Hon. Thomas Egerton, of Tatton, by whom he had four sons; the youngest of whom,

PETER LEIGH, Esq. in 1710, being bred to the Bar, became High-Bailiff of Westminster; and was subsequently appointed Chief Justice of South Carolina, where he died in 1739, leaving an only surviving son,

1. EUGENY LEIGH, Esq., who having been appointed his Majesty's Attorney-General, Surveyor-General, and Member of Council in South Carolina, was created a Bart. 19 Sept. 1772. Sir Egerton m. in 1756, Martha, dau. of Francis Bremar, Esq. also of South Carolina, by whom he had issue, five sons and five daughters, and was s. at his demise, by his third and eldest surviving son.

II. SIR EUGENY, who m. Theodosia, (relict of the unfortunate Capt. John Donelan), dau. of Sir Edward, and sister of Sir Theodosius—Edward Boughton, Bart. (for the murder of which Sir Theodosius, by poison, Capt. Donelan was executed at Warwick, 1 April, 1781); by whom he had issue a son, who d. before himself unmarried, and an only dau. to survive him, namely,

THEODOSIA DA MALSBURGH, m. in 1811, John Ward, Esq. (son of William Touch Locas-Ward, Esq. of Gylleborogh), and her husband assumed, in consequence, the additional surnames of BOUGHTON and LEIGH, (See Burke's Complete Peerage, Vol. I. page 379.)

Sir Egerton d. in 1818, and leaving no male issue, the title reverted to his nephew, SIR EUGENY, the present Bart., who is the only son of his brother, Sir Egerton Leigh, Knt. Lady Leigh, the widow of Sir Egerton, m. since his decease, Barry O'Meara, Esq., and died recently.

II. 2 P
This family claims a settlement in England long antecedent to the Norman conquest, and deduces its pedigree from

TOTTILUS DE LITTON, whose name appears in Domesday-Book, as a landed proprietor in the Co. Salop. The grandson of this Tottius, SIR THOMAS DE LITTON, Knt. of the Sealcrope, upon his return from the Holy Land, was a joint founder of the Abbey of Buldeuw, in Salop. His son,
SIR RICHARD DE LITTON, Knt., had a reconveyance from William Fitz Allan, soon after the Conquest, of the Manor of Leighton; and from him descended
JOHN L minton, Esq. of Stratton, who was thrice High-Sherrif of Shropshire, in the reign of EDWARD IV., and obtained the manors of Wateshborough, and Aiderbury (still in the possession of the family), by marriage with Anchoreset, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Burgh, and grandson of Sir Hugh Burgh, Treasurer of England, by whom he had a son, his successor,
SIR THOMAS L minton, who was Knt. of the Body to HANNAY VII., and one of the chief Commanders in the army sent over to France in the beginning of that reign, in aid of the Duke of Burgundy against the French Monarch; he was also engaged in the wars of HANNAY VIII., when he had the honor of being made Knight-Banneret under the King's own banner displayed in the Royal Army, his Majesty being present, for his valor and conduct at the battle of Spurs. This Sir Thomas represented the Co. Salop in Parliament in the reigns of HANNAY VII. and HANNAY VIII. He m. Walter, Lord Ferrers, of Charlely, and widow of Sir Richard Corbet, Knt., and was b. by his son,
JOHN L minton, Squire of the Body to HANNAY VIII., and towards the close of that reign Member for Salop in the Parliament then held at Blackfriars. He was b. by his son,
SIR EDWARD L minton, M.P. temp. Elizabeth, and one of her Majesty's Privy Council, who was b. by his son, Buckingham, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Custos-Rotulorum and Governor of the Co. Kildare; b. 21 Aug., 1791; d. to the honors, as 3rd Duke, on the demise of his father, 28 Oct., 1864; m. 16 June, 1816, Charlotte Augusta, youngest dau. of Charles, 3rd Earl of Harrington, by whom he has issue,

1. CHARLES-WILLIAM, Marquess of Kildare, b. 30 March, 1819.
2. Gerald, b. 6 Jan., 1821.
4. Jane-Seymour, b. 3 Feb., 1834.

His Grace is the sole Duke, and the Premier Marquess, and Earl, of Ireland.

Lineage.

This illustrious family is descended from a common ancestor with the house of Pittemaurice, Earl of Kerty, (an Earldom now merged in the Marquisiate of Lansdown,) and that of Windsor, Earl of Plymouth, namely,

MAURICE FITZGERALD, through whose exertions the possession of Ireland was chiefly accomplished by HENRY II. This Maurice was son of Gerald Fitz-Otho, (son of Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor, in the reign of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; which Walter was son of Otho, a Baron of England, in the 6th year of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR,) by Nasta, dau. of Rhese, Prince of South Wales. The said Maurice obtained for his services a grant of extensive territories in the Province of Leinster, and was constituted, in 1172, one of the Governors of Ireland; in which year he slew O'Rourke, Prince of Meath, then in rebellion against the English government. This feudal Chief d. full of honor 1 Sept., 1177, and was b. by his eldest son,

GERALD, who was with his father in the memorable sally out of Dublin, anno 1173, when that city was besieged by O'Connor, King of Connaught, with an army of 30,000 men, over whom the Fitzgeralds obtained a complete victory. This Gerald dying at Sligo, was b. by his son, (by Latharme, dau. of Hamo de Valais, Lord Justice of Ireland, in 1167.)

MAURICE FITZGERALD, Lord of Offaly, who was put into possession by a mandatory letter of HENRY III., dated 86 Nov., 1216, of Maymouth, and all other lands of which his father died seized in Ireland, and was put also into possession of the Castle of Carm, Co. Limerick. This nobleman is said to have been the first who brought the Orders of Friars Minor and Preachers into Ireland. In 1226, the King, appreciating the good services of the family since its settlement in Ireland, constituted him Lord Justice of the kingdom. In 1236, Lord Offaly built the Castle of Armagh; and, in 1249, he erected a similar edifice at Athlone. His Lordship d. 20 May, 1257, in the habit of St. Francis, leaving a reputation of having been a "va- liant knight, a very pleasant man, inferior to none in the kingdom, having lived all his life with commendation." He was b. by his son,

MAURICE-FITZGERALD, then in minority; and Prince EDWARD having obtained the dominion of Ireland from his father, King Henry, claimed his wardship as a part of the prerogative; but the BARONY OF OFFALY being held by the minor and his deceased father, under Margaret, Countess of Lincoln, to whom belonged the Co. Kildare, as widow of the Earl of Pembroke, that Lady contested the right of wardship, and brought the case before the King himself for decision. This nobleman was afterwards Chief Governor of Ireland, and was b. at his decease by his son,

JOHN, Lord of Offaly, designated of Callan, who m. 1st, Margery, dau. of Sir Thomas Anthony, with whom he acquired the lands of Decies and Desmond, and had an only son, MAURICE; he m. 2dly, Honora, dau. of Hugh O'Conor, Earl of Thomond; the first Irish Lady to whom a wife (by any member of the family), and had four sons,

Gilbert, from whom descended the White Knight,

John, ancestor of the Knights of the Glyn and the Valley.

Maurice, first Knight of Kerry, or the Black Knight, Thomas.

This John being killed with his eldest son Maurice, at Callan, by Macartury Mors, against whom the Fitzgeralds had raised a great army, in 1261, was b. by his grandson,

THOMAS, nicknamed Nappagh Simiarus, or the APP, a surname thus acquired—being only nine months old when his father and grandfather fell at Callan, his attendants rushing out at the first astonishment excited by the intelligence, left the child alone in its cradle, when a baboon, kept in the family, took him up, and carried him to the top of the steeple of the Abbey of Tralee; whence, after conveying him round the battlements, and exhibiting him to the appalled spectators, he brought him down safely, and laid him in its cradle. From this tradition the supporters of the house of Leinster are said to have been adopted. This Thomas, who is called 6th feudal Lord Offaly, was constituted Lord Justice of Ireland, in 1267; Governor of all Desmond, in 1269; and being of so much power, was generally styled Prince and Ruler of Munster. He m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Barry, of Oisahan, and, dying in 1298, left two sons,

JOHN, his successor,

Maurice, created EARL OF DESMOND, 21 Aug., 1329, whose descendants ranked amongst the most powerful nobles of Ireland for more than two centuries, until Gerald, 10th Earl, entering into rebellion, decreed war for nearly ten years against the whole power of the English Government, and eventually lost his life in attempting to seize upon a prey of cattle; when his head was transmitted by the Earl of Ormonde to Queen Elizabeth, who caused it to be fixed upon London Bridge. An attainder of course followed, (23rd Sept., 1367,) by which his prodigious estates, comprising 574,628 acres, became forfeited.

The family of this unfortunate nobleman,

James, having been educated at the Court of Eliza- beth, embraced the Protestant faith; and her Majesty, hoping, by his influence, to

* In the very able work upon "Feudal Dignities," by the late William Lynch, Esq., it is denied that the Desmond family was at all connected with that of Leinster subsequently to the year 1492, and Mr. Lynch supports his statement by the strongest documentary evidence.

Thomas, Lord of Offaly, was s. by his elder son, John Fitzgerald, Lord of Offaly. This nobleman, being at variance with William Vese, Lord of Kildare, and Lord-Chief-Justice of Ireland, in 1291, and having various charges to prefer against him, came over to England, and confronted, and challenged the said Vese, Lord of Kildare, in 1292, and he was obliged therefore to return to London, where he died in 1611. The last male heir of the House of Vese, who assumed the title of Earl of Desmond, was an Officer in the King of Spain's and the Emperor's armies, who died in Germany in 1622.

Geraldo, 9th Earl, who, with his five uncles, having died, was imprisoned in the Tower, where he died, 19 Dec., 1354, and an act was passed in the Parliament of Ireland, attaining him of high treason, and forfeiting the family house of Desmond. His eldest THOMAS, 10th Earl, shared in the misfortunes of his father, and, leaving no issue, was s. by his brother, Geraldo, 11th Earl, of whom a most remarkable account is given, by a contemporary historian, Stampa-Gaile, 8th Earl of Kildare, who died, leaving a dau.
and heir, Elizabeth, who, marrying James de Boteler, Earl of Ormond, the King's Sheriff, in the year 1436, was ordered, in payment of the usual fine to the Exchequer, to give full Livery of the Earl of Kildare's estates to this latter nobleman and his wife: and, on the same Roll in that year we find that the Earl of Ormond and his wife paid the accustomed " Relief" due to the Crown out of the estates of the said Boteler. But no claim was ever made by the Earl of Ormond to the Parliamentary Baronie of the Kildare family in right of their marriage with the heir; for we find it with the Earl of Kildare inherited by Thomas, the 7th Earl, who succeeded his father, John,
the 6th Earl, in 1429. This nobleman was appointed, in 1442 and 1455, Deputy-Deputy of Ireland; in the latter of which years he held a great Council or Parliament, in Dublin, and, subsequently, one at Nais, wherein, amongst other proceedings, it was resolved, "That as no mean could be had to keep the King's peace and quiet in the Kingdom of Ireland, that all Frenchmen, Spaniards, Britons, Portugales, and other sundry nations, should pay for every pound of silver they carried out of the land, forty-pence of custom to the King's Custom, for the use of the King's person." His immediately succeeded him; but no claim was ever made by the Earl of Ormond to the Parliamentary Baronie of the Kildare family in right of their marriage with the heir: for we find it with the Earl inherited by THOMAS, the 7th Earl, who succeeded his father, John,
the 6th Earl, in 1429. This nobleman was appointed, in 1442 and 1455, Deputy-Deputy of Ireland; in the latter of which years he held a great Council or Parliament, in Dublin, and, subsequently, one at Nais, wherein, amongst other proceedings, it was resolved, "That as no mean
could be had to keep the King's peace and quiet in the Kingdom of Ireland, that all Frenchmen, Spaniards, Britons, Portugales, and other sundry nations, should pay for every pound of silver they carried out of the land, forty-pence of custom to the King's Custom, for the use of the King's person." His immediately succeeded him; but no claim was ever made by the Earl of Ormond to the Parliamentary Baronie of the Kildare family in right of their marriage with the heir: for
we find it with the Earl inherited by Geraldo, the 8th Earl, who, being involved with the Earl of Desmond, was attainted with that nobleman (who suffered death), but subsequently pardoned, set at liberty, and restored in blood, by act of Parliament. His Lordship was afterwards Lord Justice, and, in 1471, Deputy to George, Duke of Clarence. He d. 23 March, 1477, and was. by his eldest son [by John, dau. of James,
7th Earl Kildare], Geraldo, 8th Earl, who was constituted, on his accession to the Peerage, Lord-Deputy to Richard, Duke of York, and held a Parliament at Nais, on Friday, after the feast of St. Petronelle the Virgin. In 1480, he was reappointed Lord-Deputy; and again, upon the accession of HAnryvil, Deputy to Jasper, Duke of Bedford, the Lord-Lieutenant. Upon the arrival, however, of Lambert Simnel, and his tutor, Richard Simon, an Oxford Priest, in Ireland, the Lord-Deputy, the Chancellor (Thomas Fitzgerald, the Deputy's brother), Treasurer, and other nobles, in the York interest, immediately acknowledged the impostor, and had him proclaimed in Dublin, by the style of Edward VI.; and the Lord-Deputy assisted, with the others, at his coronation, in Christ's Church, 2 May, 1487, where he was solemnly crowned King of Ireland, the Chancellor, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Earl of Lincoln, Lord Lovel, Jenico Marks, Mayor of Dublin, and several other persons of rank attending. The crown was borrowed from the image of the Virgin Mary; John Palo, Bishop of Meath, pronounced the coronation cermony, and the Pretender was subsequently conveyed upon the shoulders of Darcy of Platen, a person of extraordinary height, to the Castle of Dublin, amidst the shouts of the populace. In the engagement which afterwards decided the fate of the Pretender, the Chancellor's Petticoat fell; but the Lord Deputy had the good fortune to make his peace with the King. His Lordship was nominated Lord-Lieut. of Ireland in 1486, and d. in 1513, when he was 52.

Nothing can better shew the extreme difficulty of writing, even now, on the subject of Irish Peerage descendants, with any degree of documentary certainty, than the following piece of evidence brought forward during the progress of the above family contest. It is part of a Chancery pleading wherein it is alleged, and was not denied or disproved, that there was no less than four sons of William Desmon, the 1st Earl of Kildare, to whom co-heirs had occurred in the family of Kildare, previous to that time, and that none of them had inherited the title nor dignity of the Parliamentary Baronie belonging by the descent of the said Lady Digby Baroness of Offaly for life. Whereupon that ancient title devolved on the deceased Lord's second son and successor,

Hugh, 12th Earl of Kildare. This nobleman m. Lady Frances Howard, dau. of Charles, Earl of Nottingham, and had surviving issue,

1. Robert, who d. 1st, Rory O'Donnell, created Earl of Tyrconnell and Baron Donegal, and by him, who was attained, had issue, 1 Hugh O'Donnell, w. to Luke Plunkett, 2 Elizabeth O'Donnell, 1st Earl of Fingal.
   The 2nd of Tyrconnell espoused 2dly, Nicholas Barnwell, 1st Viscount Kingsland.

2. Lettice, d. u.n.

His Lordship dying thus without male issue, was a, by his brother,

William, 13th Earl, who d. u.n., when the honors devolved upon the son of Edward Fitzgerald, brother of the 11th Earl, by his wife, Mabel, dau. and heir of Sir John Leigh, and wife of Sir John Paston, of Norfolk, his kinsman.

Gerald, 14th Earl, whose grandson,

George, 16th Earl, was the first of the family brought up in the reformed religion, being so educated by his guardian, the Duke of Lennox. His Lordship m. Lady Jane Boyle, dau. of the 1st Earl of Cork, and had, with other issue, Wautewrath, his successor.

Robert. This gentleman having taken an active part in effecting the Restoration, was appointed by Charles II. Comptroller of the Mastors and Cheques of the Army, in 1661, with the fee of 20s. a day, and was sworn at the same time of the Privy Council. He was subsequently appointed Governor and Custos-rotulorum of the Co. of Kildare, in which he shire he resided at Grangemelian. Upon the accession of King James, however, he was stripped of all his employments and estate, to the value of £3,300 per annum, and imprisoned in Newgate for twenty-one weeks, but afterwards, in consequence of the state of his health, removed to his own house, where he remained guarded for five months. On the landing of William in Ireland, Capt. Fitzgerald was placed in close durance within the College of Dublin, and so restrained until the defeat of James at the Boyne, when he broke from his prison, and by his courage and prudence preserved Dublin from being sacked.

When William entered the metropolis, Capt. Fitzgerald had the honor of presenting to his Majesty the keys of the city. He was afterwards sworn of the Privy Council. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of James Clotworthy, Esq. of Monimore, Co. Londonderry, and had, with several daughters,

Robert, who s. as 19th Earl of Kildare.

George, 16th Earl of Kildare, who d. a. by his elder surviving son,

Wautewrath, 17th Earl, who was a. by his son,

Charles, 18th Earl, m. in 1671, and d. on 9 Nov., 1677, when the honors reverted to his cousin (refer to Capt. Robert Fitzgerald, second son of the 18th Earl),

Robert, 19th Earl, an eminent statesman in the reigns of Queen Anne, and of George I. and George II. His Lordship m. 7 March, 1766-8, Mary, eldest dau. of William (O'Brien), 3rd Earl of Inchiquin, by whom he had four sons and eight daughters. (two of whom only survived him), and, dying 20 Feb., 1794-5, was a. by his only son then living.

Elizabeth, was married to the Earl of Ormond; and lastly, Katherine, sister and heir of Thomas, late Earl of Kildare, who he married. Besides any of these co-heirs are mentioned by Mr. John Lodge, whose "Peerage of Ireland," from his official situation, as my lord, and as such, of course there, owed a reputation for authenticity which it now clearly appears has been multiplied or desire for accuracy by no means justified. From him most of the British accounts of British antiquities have been taken, and hence error has decidedly been propagated; to what an important extent, may be guessed from the fact that the right to Peerages will not unfrequently depend on the establishment or establishing of such occurrences of co-heirs.

The Earl m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Andrew, 3rd Lord Grey, relict of Lord Glamis, but by that Lady had no issue. He espoused 3rdly, Agnes, dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Cambusnethan, and had with other issue,

Andrew, who inherited the Earldom of Rothes. The Earl, after the forfeiture of his eldest son, appears to have been invested by the Crown, by some act or deed, which cannot now be traced, with the power of disposing of the home of the family and whichever of his sons he pleased. He conferred them therefore upon the above Andrew, and he gave the lands of Findrassie to his son, Robert, who became in consequence,

Robert Leslie, of Findrassie, from whom lineally derived,

1. ALEXANDER, Viscount Balgome, b. 19 Nov., 1831.

3. Elizabeth-Jane.

iv. Anne-Maria.

v. Susan.

The Earl is one of the Representative Lords.

Lineage.

This noble house is chief of the very ancient Scottish family of MELVILLE, which, it is said, derive their descent from a person of Anglo-Norman lineage, called MALE, who settled under David I., upon some lands in the Co. Edinburgh, which he called MALVILLE, and thence his descendants assumed that designation as a surname.

GALFRIO DE MALVILLE, the first of the family, lived in the reigns of DAVID I., MALCOLM IV., and WILLIAM the Lion. He was Vicomcomes de Castella Poetlaurum, for MALCOLM IV., and had the honor of being the first Justiciary of Scotland on record. This eminent person left three sons, viz.,

Gregory, whose line terminated in an heir female.

AOMAR-MELVILLE, who m. Sir John Ross, of Hawkhead, temp. Robert II., and conveyed to him the lands of MELVILLE.

PHILIP, ancestor of the MELVILLES of Glenbervie. This branch ended in the male line in 1460, when ALEXANDER MELVILLE, of GLENBILLY, left a dau. and sole heir, ELIZABETH, married to Sir John Archibald, of Aucheneil, and her grandda. ELIZABETH ARCHIBALD, married the Baron to her husband, Sir William Douglas, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus. Walker.

The third son,

WALTER OF MELVILLE, was grandfather of

SIR JOHN BR MELVILLE, one of the principal men of Scotland who agreed to the marriage of QUEEN MARGARET with Prince Edward of England, in 1290; and who sore féality to Edward I., in 1296. From this this distinguished personage we pass to his lineal descendant, Sir John Melville, of Raith, who had charters jointly with his wife Helen Napier, of the King's lands of Murdocarne, in Fife, dated 23 May, 1538, and 23 Oct., 1542. He enjoyed the confidence of James V., who appointed him Master-General of the Ordinance, and Capt-General of the castle of Dunbar, having previously conferred upon him the honor of Knighthood. Sir John, in the minority of Queen Mary, was, however, convicted of treason, and executed towards the end of 1548. He had married Helen, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander Napier, of Marchistoun, and had issue,

John, who was restored to his father's forfeited estates by the Queen Regent of Scotland, about 1553, and then became of Raith. He was s. by his son,

John, of Raith, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Balweirie, and was s. by his elder

John, of Raith, who s. his cousin as third Lord Melville.

Robert, of whom presently.

James (3d) of Hall-hill, in Fife, ambassador from Mary to Elizabeth, and of the Privy-Council to James VI., d. in 1617, leaving issue.

William, who was appointed a Lord of Session in 1582, and sat on the Bench till 1614.

Andrew, (Sir) of Garrock, Master of the Household to Mary, and to James VI.

David, of Newmill.

Jacmt, m. to Sir James Kilkyaldy, of Grange, Hrnon.

Thom. Mc. of Scotland; by whom she was mother of Sir William and Sir James Kilkyaldy, who were executed in 1573, for their fidelity to Queen Mary.

Margaret, m. to Sir James Johnstone, of Elphinstone.

The 2d son,

Sir Robert Melville, of Murdocarne, upon his return from France, where he held some official employments, was sworn of the Privy-Council of Scotland, and accredited Ambassador to England in 1592. In 1617, he had a charter of the hereditary office of Keeper of the Palace of Linlithgow, and was sent a second time Ambassador to England, in 1597, to endeavour to prevent the execution of Mary, Queen of Scots, which duty he discharged with so much boldness before the council, that Elisabeth massacred his life, and would have imprisoned him, but for the interest of his colleague, the Master of Gray, with her Majesty. In 1609, when he married the daughter of Sir Thomas, of Lennoxtown, who went to Denmark on the affair of the King's marriage, Sir Robert was appointed Vice-Chancellor and Treasurer-Depute; and, in 1594, he was constituted an Extraordinary Lord-of-Session, under the title of Lord Murdocarne: from which office he retired in favor of his son in 1616, and was elevated to the Peereage, 30 April, 1616, as Baron Melville, of Moneymall, with special remainder, in default of his own male issue, to the heirs male of his brother John, &c. His Lordship d. in 1621, at the age of 54, and was s. by his only son, Robert, 3d Lord Melville, who had been constituted an Extraordinary Lord-of-Session, in 1691, under the designation of Lord Moneymall. This nobleman obtained a charter from Charles I., dated Bagshot, 10 Aug., 1657, of the Barony of Moneymall, and the dignity of Lord Moneymall, with reversion to his heirs general, bearing the surname and arms of Melville.

His Lordship d. s. p. 9 March, 1655, when he was s. by his cousin, George, 4th Lord Melville. This nobleman was involved in the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth, but had the good fortune to effect his escape into Holland. His estates were consequently forfeited by act of attainder in 1654; but returning to England with King William, his Lordship was fully reinstated in fortune and dignity upon the success of that Prince, with the additional honors (8 April, 1689), of Lord Raith, Moneymall and Balweirie, Viscount of Kirkwall, and Earl of Melville, Lord Melville m. in 1654, Lady Katherine Leslie, (who s. her niece as Countess of Leven), dau. of Lord Balgonie, and grandau. of Gen. Alexander Leslie, who had been elevated to the Peereage of Scotland, 11 Oct., 1641, as Baron Balgonie, and Earl of Leven; (see EARLDOM OF LEVEN, at foot,) by this lady he had issue,

E ADO M OF LEV E N.

ALEXANDER LESLIE, (son of Capt. George Leslie, of Balgonie, by Anne, dau. of Stewart, of Ballechin,) having adopted the profession of arms, served as Captain in Lord Vere's Regiment, in Holland, against the Spaniards, and there founded his reputation. Thence he entered the ser-vise of GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, of Sweden, by whom he was promoted to the Rank of Lieutenant-General, and afterwards made Field-Marshal of the Swedish Army. In 1638, Leslie defended STRALLEN against the Imperialists under Count Walsten with so much gallantry, that he forced them to raise the siege; and he was rewarded by a con-siderable present from the citizens, who caused medals to be struck up in his honor. He continued in the Swedish service after the death of GUSTAVUS, until invited back, in 1659, to Scotland by the COYNNETERS, to take the command of their army. His first exploit, after his return, was the capture of Edinburgh, at the head of a thousand musqueteers, by assault; and he afterwards com-manded the Scottish army at Dunve Len Low in 1639, where his camp is said to have been a spectacle, "not less interesting to the military, than edifying to the devout." His banners were inscribed with the crown and covenant of Christ; his soldiers were summoned by the drum to ser-vice, and their tents resounded at sunrise and sunset with psalms and prayers. The clergy were instrumental in pre-serving discipline; and the ambition of the Nobles was restrained by the discretion of the general, en unlettered soldier of fortune, of an advanced age, a diminutive sire, and distorted person, but prudent, vigilant, experienced, and enterprising. Leslie marched into England in Aug., 1640, and upon the 29th of that month, completely routed the Royal Army at Newburn, which gave him possession of Newcastle, Tynemouth, Shields, and Durham, with large magazines of provision and arms. The treaty of Ripon fol-lowed this victory, and peace was ratified by Parliament in 1641, when General LESLIE was elevated to the Peerage as Lord Balgonie, and created, 11 Oct., in the same year, EARL OF LEVEN. He was subsequently engaged upon the side of the Parliamentarians in the Civil War, and commanded the Scottish Forces, amounting to 22,000 men, at MABTON Moor. His Lordship m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of Ronton, of Billy, in Berwickshire, by whom he had (with five dau.) two sons, viz.

Gustavus, who d. s.p. in the life time of the Earl. ALEXANDER, Lord Balgonie, who m. Lady Margaret Leslie, only dau. of John, 6th Earl of Rothes, end by her (espoused, 2ndly, Francis, Earl of Buccleuch; and 3rdly, David, 2nd Earl of Wemyss,) had issue, ALEXANDER, who b. his father-in-law as 2nd Earl.

KATHARINE, m. to GEORGE, EARL OF MELVILLE.

His Lordship d. before his father.

The Earl m. 2ndly, Frances, dau. of Sir John Ferrers of Ten-worth, and relief of Sir John Packington, Hart of Westwood, but had no other issue. He d. 4 April, 1669, and was s. by his grandson, ALEXANDER, 2nd Earl of Leven. This nobleman, by bond of Feilitz, dated 12 Feb., 1603, obliged himself to make a resignation of his estates and唬, a loan in favor of himself and the heirs male of his body; which failing, to the eldest heir-female to be procreated of his body, or of his heirs-male; which failing, to the 2nd son of John, Earl of Rothes; which failing, to the 2nd son of Lord Melville and Catherine Leslie; which failing, to the 2nd son of the Earl of Wemyss and Dame Margaret Leslie, his wife. His Lordship m. in 1656, Margaret, 5th dau. of Sir William Howard, and sister of Charles, Earl of Carlisle, by whom he had two daughters. He d. in 1665, and was s. by the elder,

MARGARET, Countess of Leven, who m. the Hon. Francis Montgomery, of Gilfren, 2nd son of Hugh, 7th Earl of Eginton, but died the same year, in minority, without issue, when her Ladyship was s. by her sisters,

KATHERINE, Countess of Leven, at whose decease, unm., in 1706, the honors devolved upon her aunt,

III. — a son, b. 5 March, 1836.

IV. Louisa-Mary.

V. Anne-Francis.

VI. Harriet-Frances-Maria.

His Lordship z. his father in the Viscountcy, 31 July, 1818, and obtained the Earldom by letters patent, dated 7 Sept., 1831. The Earl of Lichfield is Postmaster-General & a Privy-Councillor.

Linitage.

The family of Anson has resided in the Co. of Stafford for several generations; first, at Dunston; but since the time of James I. at Shugborough, which manor was purchased to that reign by William Anson, Esq., who had been an eminent lawyer in the present reign; and of whom Sir William Dugdale, in his Antiquities of Warwickshire, gives this account:—"Sir Walter Anson, K.B., and Bart., sold the mansions of Bolehall and Glascote, Co. Warwick, unto William Anson, of Lichfield, who, for 3000l., Esq. of whom they were purchased by William Cumberford, of Tameswell, Esq., and Anne, his wife, in the 2nd of James I." This William Anson m. Joan, dau. of Richard Mitchel, of Oldbury, in Worcestershire, and, dying at an advanced age, about the year 1644, was by s. by his son.

William Anson, Esq. of Shuckborough, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Stafford, Esq. of Bothams Hall, in Derbyshire, and s. by his son.

William Anson, Esq. This gentleman m. Isabella, dau. and co-heir of Charles Carrier, Esq. of Wirksworth, and had (with younger daughters),

Thomas, his successor.

Grosvenor, of whom presently.

Janet, m. to Sambrooke Adams, Esq. of Sambrooke, Co. Salop, and left a son.

Grosvenor Adams, who eventually inherited the estates of his two maternal uncles, and assumed the surname of Anson.

Mr. Anson, Sen., d. in 1730, and was s. by his elder son, Thomas, who represented Lichfield in Parliament: and at his decease, by a. p., bequeathed his property to his nephew, George Adams. The youngest son.

Grosvenor Anson, having early evinced a strong bias to the naval service, was educated suitably for the profession, and appointed in 1723, Capt. of the Wzelce slop. On the breaking out of the Spanish war, Commodore Anson was appointed to command a fleet of five ships, destined to annoy the enemy in that dangerous and unfrequented sea which lies beyond America, and to attack him in that unexpected quarter with vigour. His departure being naec countably delayed some months beyond the proper season, he sailed about the middle of Sept., 1740; and toward the vernal equinox, in the most tremendous weather, arrived in the latitude of Cape Horn. He doubled that perilous Captain 1744, after a bad passage of forty days, in which he lost two ships, and arrived off Juan Fernandez in June, with only two ships, besides two attendants on the squadron, and 335 men. He left it in Sept., took some prizes, and burnt Paita; and sailed about the coast of America until May, 1745. He then crossed the Southern Ocean, and proceeded with the Centurion only, the other ships having been destroyed in Aug. Having refreshed his crew at Tfinian, he sailed for China, remained there till the beginning of 1745, waiting for the galeon at the Philipine Islands; met her on the 9th June, and captured her. Having sold the prize in China, he set sail for England, in Dec., 1745, and arrived at Spithead 16 June, 1744, having sailed in a fog through the midst of the French fleet, then cruising in the Channel. Soon after his return he was appointed Rear-Admiral of the Blue, and one of the Lords of the Admiralty. In April, 1745, he was made Rear-Admiral of the White; and in July, 1746, Vice-Admiral of the Blue. In 1747 (13 June), he was elevated to the Peersage, by the title of LORD ANSON, Baron of Soberton, in Hanover, and the same year appointed Vice-Admiral of the Red. In 1741, his Lordship was constituted First Lord of the Admiralty; and he continued in that high office, with a very brief interval, until his death. This gallant and enterprising seaman is characterized as calm, cool, and steady; but he was known, from the simplicity of his disposition, to have been frequently duped at play, whence it was observed, that although Lord Anson had been round the world, he had never been in it. His celebrated voyage round the world was composed by Mr. Benjamin Roberts, under his own inspection, and few works ever experienced a more favourable reception. Four large impressions were sold off within a year: it has been translated into most of the European languages, and it still sustains its reputation.
His Lordship espoused Lady Elizabeth Yorke, dau. of Philip, 1st Earl of Hardwicke, but dying s. p. in 1762, the Barony of Anson became extinct, while his fortune devolved upon his nephew,

G. Anson, Esq., who subsequently inherited the estates of his elder uncle, Thomas, and assumed by sign manual, 30 April, 1733, the surname and arms of Anson.
He likewise succeeded (in 1773) in the Representation of Lichfield. He m. in 1763, Mary, dau. of George-Venables Vernon, 1st Lord Vernon, and had issue,

1. Thomas, of whom presently.
In the Army, and Col. of the 4th Dragoon Guards,

Lothian, Marquess of (John-William-Robert Kerr), Earl of Aernan and Earl of Lothian, Viscount of Brian, Baron Marlbrook, and Baron Jed—burgh, in the Peerage of Scotland; Barou Kerr, of Kerskengh, Co. Roxburgh, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; b. 1 Feb., 1794; z. to the honors, as 7th Marquess, upon the demise of his father, 27 April, 1824; m. 19 July, 1831, Lady Cecil Chetwynde-Talbot, only dau. of Earl Talbot, and has two sons and a daughter. The Marquess of Lothian is Lord Lieutenant of the Co. of Roxburgh, and Col. of the Edinburgh Militia.

Lineage.

Two families of Kerr, of Ango-Norman lineage, descended, it is said, from two brothers, settled in Scotland, in the 13th century, and neither yielding superiority to the other, formed two separate races of warlike borderers. Of the family of Kerr, of Cessford, the Duke of Roxburgh is the chief; and of the Kerr of Fernherst, the noble house of which we are now about to treat, is the representative.

Mark Kerr, 2nd son of Sir Andrew Kerr, of Cessford, entering into Holy Orders, was promoted, in 1546, to the dignity of Abbot of Newbottle, in which station the Reformation found him in 1550, when he adopted the new doctrine, and held his benefice in commendam. He had the Vicarage of Linton, Co. Peebles, for life, in 1564; and was appointed one of the extraordinary Lords of Session in 1569. He m. Helen, 2nd dau. of George, 4th Earl of Rothes, and had issue, MARES, his successor.

Andrew Kerr, of Ormonston, George, who is mentioned by Robertson as an Emigrant from the Catholic nobility to the Court of Spalto in 1522.

William. Catherine, m. to William, Lord Herries.

He d. in 1584, and was s. by his eldest son,

Mark Kerr, an Extraordinary Lord of Session, and Master of Requests, who had the Abbacy of Newbottle erected into a temporal Barony, with the title of Baron, 28 July, 1367, and obtained a charter of the Barones of Prestongrange and Newbottle, united into the Lordship of Newbottle, with the title of a Lord of Parliament, 15 Oct., 1394. He was appointed one of the Commissioners for holding the Parliament in 1397, and created Earl of Lothian, 10 Feb., 1504. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Herries; and had, with daughters, Robert, his successor.

William, (Sir), of Blackhope, who, on the death of his brother, assumed the title of Earl of Lothian, but was interdicted from using it by the Lords of Council, 8 March, 1522.

Mark, (Sir) James.

The Earl was s. at his decease, in 1609, by his eldest son,

Robert, 2nd Earl of Lothian. This nobleman m. Lady Annabella Campbell, dau. of Archibald, 7th Earl of Argyll, by whom he had two daws, Anne and Johanna; but having no son, his Lordship obtained permission from the Crown to transfer his titles and estates to his eldest dau. at his decease; which event taking place in 1624, that lady became

Anne, Countess of Lothian, and married Sir William Kerr, Knt., who, in consequence, was elevated to the Peerage, 21 June, 1631, by the title of Earl of Lothian. His Lordship was only son (by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Murray, of Blackbarony) of Robert Kerr (descended from Thomas Kerr, of Kerskengh, who built a house in the middle of Jedburgh Forest, and naming it Fernlurie, was designated by that title in the records of Parliament, 1470, by the crown Earl of Lothian, Lord Kerr of Nissh, Longstaff and Dolphinston, 24 June, 1638, with remainder to the male descendants of his 2nd marriage, and in default of those to his issue male whatsoever. He had issue, 1. Sir William (Stanley) Earl of Derby, and widow of Sir Henry Fortman, of Orchard Fortman, Co. Somerset, by whom he had a son, Charles, and several daus.

Lord Anerum was the confidential friend of King Charles I. and when Prince of Wales, was the means of bringing about his marriage with the Lady Anne Stanley. In 1629, he had the misfortune to kill, in a duel, Charles Maxwell, whose father was a member of the King's family, and was obliged, in consequence, to fly to Holland, but he was received into Royal favour in the course of the next year. He d. 1654, and was, according to the limitation, by the son of his 2nd marriage, Charles, 2nd Earl of Anerum; at whose decease, without issue, the title devolved upon his eldest brother and only brother, the Earl of Lothian.

His Lordship by his marriage with Anna, Countess of Lothian, had five sons and nine daws; and, dying, in 1675, was s. by his eldest son, Robert, 4th Earl of Lothian and 3rd Earl of Anerum.

This nobleman was an of the Privy-Council to King William, Justice-General of Scotland, and High-Commissioner to the General Assembly. His Lordship was created Marquess of Lothian, Viscount of Birnie, Lord Kerr, of Newbottle, &c. 23 June, 1704. He m. Jane, dau. of Archibald, Marquess of Argyll, by whom he had (with five daughters),

William, his successor.

John, on Officer of rank in the Army,

Mark, General in the Army, d. unmarried,

James, d. without issue.

His Lordship d. in 1735, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 2nd Marquess, who had previously succeeded, in 1692, at the demise of his kinman, Robert Ker, 3rd Baron Jedburgh (a Peerage conferred upon Sir Andrew Kerr, on 2nd Feb., 1637), to that Baroncy, by virtue of special limitation in the patent of creation. His Lordship, who was Knight of the Thistle, one of the Representative Peers, and a Major-General in the Army, m. Jane, dau. of the unfortunate Earl of Argyll, who was beheaded in 1685, and, dying in 1722, was s. by his only son,

William, 2nd Marquess, K.T., one of the Representative Peers, High Commissioner to the General Assembly, and Lord-Register in the Court of Session. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Nicholson, Bt. of Kemyngay, Co. Aberdeen, by whom he had

William-Jenry, his successor.

Robert, a Gentleman Officer, who fell at Culloden.

Jane, d. young.

He m. 2ndly, Jean Janet, eldest dau. of Lord Charles Ker, of Cranond, by whom he had no issue. He d. in 177, and was s. by his eldest son,

* Sir Andrew Ker, 1st Lord Jedburgh, was eldest son of Sir Thomas Ker, of Fernhirst, by his 1st wife, Janet, dau. of Sir William Kirkaldy, which

Sir Thomas, of Fernhirst, who was Hereditary Bailie of Jedburgh Forest, Warden and Justice of the Middle Marches, &c., took a very prominent part in public affairs during the reigns of the unfortunate Mary (in whose cause he suffered altogether fourteen years' imprisonment), and her son, James VI. Sir Thomas Ker m. 2ndly, Janet, dau. of Sir Walter Scott, of Buccleuch, and his youngest son by that Lady, LOUTH.

LOUTH, BARON OF (Thomas-Oliver Plunkett), Co. Louth, in the Peerage of Ireland; s. 5 Aug., 1689; to the dignity, upon the demise of his father, 25 June, 1823; m. 29 Nov., 1830, Annamaria, dau. of Philip Roche, Esq., by Annamaria, youngest dau. of Randall, Lord Dunsany (see Burke's Commoners), and has issue and heir, RANDALL-PERCY-OTWAY, b. 28 Aug., 1822.

Linnage.

This noble family claims a common ancestor with the Earls of Fingal and the Barons Dunsany: namely, John Plunkett, Esq., who was seated, about the close of the 11th cent., at B ey ley, Co. Louth. From this gentleman descended two brothers, John and Richard Plunkett; the younger of whom was the progenitor of the Lords Fingall and Dunsany; and the elder, the ancestor of

SIR PATRICK PLUNKETT, KN. OF KILFARAN, REWLEY, and TALANTON, who was appointed, in 1487, Sheriff of Louth, during pleasure. He m. Catherine, dau. of Thomas Nagle, Baron of Navan, and, dying in 1508, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR OLIVER PLUNKETT, KN. OF KILFARAN, who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 18 June, 1541, as BARON OF LOUTH. His Lordship m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and heir of John Rochfort, Esq., of Carnick, Co. Kildare, by whom he had six sons and four daughters; and 2ndly, Maud, dau. and co-heir of Walter Rath, Esq. of Rathfeigh: by whom he had two sons and two daughters. The Baron was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 2nd Lord. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Nicholas Barnwall, Esq., and was s. at his decease in 1571, by his eldest son,

PATRICK, 3rd Lord, who m. Maud, dau. of Lord Killeen; but, dying in 1575, without issue, (having been slain by M'Mahon, in the recovery of a prey of cattle, at Esseford, Co. Monaghan,) the title devolved upon his brother,

OLIVER, 4th Lord. This nobleman having, with the Plunketts of Ardee, brought six archers on horseback to the general host, at the hill of Tarah in 1583, was appointed to have the leading of the Co. of Louth. His Lordship m. 1st, Frances, dau. of Sir Nicholas Bagenall, Kn., Marshal of Ireland, by whom he had three sons and five daughters; and 2ndly, Genet, dau. of Patrick Dowdall, Esq. of Tremorganleigh, by whom he had no issue. He d. in 1607, and was s. by his eldest son,

Matthew, 5th Lord, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir Richard Fitzwilliam, of Meryon, and had four sons. His Lordship d. 1659, and was s. by his eldest son,

OLIVER, 6th Lord. This nobleman joining the royalists in 1678, was at the siege of Drogheda; and at a general meeting of the principal Roman Catholic gentry of the Co. of Louth, held at the hill of Tallaghtower, the Lord Louth was appointed Col.-Gen. of all the Forces to be raised in that county; and in the event of his Lordship's declining the same, then Sir Christopher Bolles: and, upon his refusal, then Sir Christopher Barnwall, of Rathaskin: which latter gentleman accepted the said post of Col.-Gen, for which he was imprisoned, in 1674, in the Castle of Dublin, and persecuted by the Speaker Cromwell's Parliament. Lord Louth m. Mary, Viscountess Dowager Dillon, 2nd dau. of Ra Holland, 1st Earl of Antrim, and was s. at his demise in 1679, by his only son,

MATTHEW, 7th Lord. This nobleman, like his father, suffered by his adhesion to royalty, having attached himself to the fortunes of James II. His Lordship d. in 1689, and was s. by his eldest son,

OLIVER, 8th Lord. This nobleman, upon taking his seat in Parliament, was informed by the Chancellor that his grandfather, Oliver, 6th Lord, had been outlawed in 1641; and not being able to establish the reversal of the same, the dignity remained, for the two subsequent generations, unacknowledged in law. His Lordship d. in 1707, and was s. by his only son, (by Mabella, dau. of Lord Kingsland.)

MATTHEW, 9th Lord, who was s. in 1724, by his eldest son,

OLIVER, 10th Lord. This nobleman m. Margaret, dau. of Luke Nettiville, Esq., by whom he had

1. THOMAS, his successor.
2. Matthew, who m. Sydney, dau. of Col. Shaw, and left at his decease, in 1689,
4. Anne, m. to Anthony Tisdall, Esq.

His Lordship d. in 1762, and was s. by his third and eldest surviving son,

THOMAS, 11th Lord, who had the outwary of his great-grandfather annulled, and was restored to his rank in the Peerage in 1798. His Lordship m. in 1841, Margaret, eldest dau. of Ra Holland, 13th Lord Dunsany, and sister of the present Lord, by whom (who d. in 1851) he had issue,

THOMAS, present Peer.

Lineage.

The family of Bingham is of Saxon origin, and of very great antiquity. It was originally seated at Sutton Bingham, Co. Somerset, where it remained, during the reign of William the Conqueror, to Bingham's-Melcombe, Co. Dorset, where a branch of the family continues still to reside.

Sir John de Bingham received the honor of Knighthhood in the reign of Henry I., and from him descended, linally.

Robert Bingham, Esq., who m. Alice, dau. of Thomas Croker, Esq., by whom he had eight sons and two daws., of which

Sir Richard Bingham, Knt., the second son, became the most eminent person of his family, and one of the most celebrated Captains of the age to which he lived. At the time of the Armada, Sir Richard was one of Queen Elizaabeth's Military's council. He was instrumental in reducing insurrections in Ireland, in 1584, 1596, and 1603, and was eventually constituted Marshal of that Kingdom, and General of Leinster. Sir Richard d. at Dublin soon after attaining those honors, leaving an only dau., when the representation of the family in Ireland devolved upon his nephew, sentative in Parliament of the Co. Mayo. He m. Anne, dau. of Agmonesham Vese, Esq., grand-niece of the celebrated General (in the Irish Army of James II.), Patrick Sarsfield, Earl of Lucan, who fell at the battle of Landen, in Flanders, and great-grandau. of Charles II., through his illegitimate dau., sister of the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth. Sir John Bingham was an Officer of rank on the side of James, at the decisive conflict of August, and contributed much to the success of William, by departing his colors in the very brunt of the battle. He d. in 1749, and was s. by his eldest son,

Lytten, Lord (William-Henry Lyttleton), Baron of Frankley, Co. Worcester, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Baron Westcote, of Ballymore, in the Province of Ireland; and a Bart. of England; b. 3 April, 1792; m. 4 March, 1813, Sarah, eldest dau. of George-John, present Earl Spencer, by whom he has issue,

1. GEORGE WILLIAM, b. 5 March, 1817.
2. Spencer, b. 19 June, 1819.
3. William-Henry, b. 3 April, 1809.
5. Lavinia.

His Lordship is, to the honors, as 3rd Baron, at the decease of his half-brother, 12 Nov., 1828.

Lineage.

The family of Lyttleton is of long standing in the Co. of Worcestershire, and had considerable possessions in the vale of Evesham, particularly at South Lyttleton, whence the name has probably been assumed, in the beginning of the 13th century.

THOMAS DE LYTTELTON, about the 18th year of Hen. III., m. Emma, only dau. and heir of sir Simon de Frankley, Knt., by whom he had an only dau., Emma, who m. Augerus de Talynton, (which Augerus was disdained in the 40th year of Harw. III., for not taking upon himself the Order of Knighthood.) Thomas de Lyttleton, m. 2ndly, Anselm, dau. and heir of William Pitt- warren, of Upton, Co. Worcester, one of the Justices Inferior and Judge of the Common Pleas, 12th H. II. and Sheriff of Worcestershire the following year, by whom he left three sons. This Thomas was a considerable benefactor to religious institutions, particularly to the convents of Pershore, and the abbey of Evesham. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

EDMUND DE LYTTELTON, who resided at Coulesdon, and had lands at Naunton, in Worcestershire, which still continue in possession of a branch of the family of Lyttleton; but, dying without issue, his estates devolved upon his youngest and only surviving brother,

THOMAS DE LYTTELTON, who represented the Co. of Worcester in Parliament, from 9th Edward II. to the 24th Edward III., and was a. at his decease by his eldest son,

Thomas de LYTTELTON, who recovered the Manor of Frankley, by a writ of right, on failure of issue to his cousin, Thomas de Westcote, this Thomas de Lyttleton was Esquire of the Body to three successive Kings, namely, Richard II., Henry IV., and Henry V.; and was rewarded with several grants of money, timber, &c., from each of these Monarchs, pro bono et gratuito servitute, as expression of favor and grants. He d. in the 1st year of Henry VI., and left an only dau. and heiress.

ELISABETH DE LYTTELTON, who m. Thomas Westcote, Esq., the King's servant in Court, a gentleman of Devonshire, ascendedly descended, but a family of noble spirit (to use the phraseology of Lord Coke), and having large possessions and inheritances from her ancestors, de Lyttleton, and from her mother, the d. and coheir of Quartermain, and other ancestors, resolved to continue the honor of her name, and therefore provided, by Westcote's devise, before marriage, that her issue inheritable should be called by the name of Lyttleton. Upon this marriage, Mr. Westcote settled at Frankley, and served the office of Escheator of Worcester 29th Henry VI. 1450; soon after which he d. leaving four sons and as many daws., and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE LYTTELTON, (or Lyttleton, as he began to write it,) who, having been brought up to the Bar, was called, in 1454, in the degree of Serjeant-at-Law; and, in the following year, was nominated King's Serjeant, when he rode Justice of the Assize in the Northern Circuit. In 1464, (44th year of Edward IV.) Mr. Serjeant Lyttleton was appointed one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas; and the King granted him, at the same time, out of the customs of London, Bristol, and tullis, 110 marks yearly, with the sum of 106. 10d. for a robe and furs, and 6s. 6d. for a sumptuous chamber, called house. In the 15th year of the same Monarch, his Lordship, with the Prince of Wales, and other persons of distinction, was created a Knight of the Bath. Sir Thomas wrote his celebrated "Treatise on Tenures," after he had ascended the Bench; a book which Lord Coke has characterized as "the ornament of the common law, and the most perfect and absolute work that ever was wrote in any human science." Sir Thomas Lyttleton m. Joan, widow of Sir Philip Chet- wind, of Ingestre, Co. Stafford, and dau. and co-heir of Sir William Bulkley, of Bronnecastle, in Shropshire, Knt., by whom he had (with two daws, who d. wms.)

William, his successor,

Richard, to whom the Treatise is addressed, and who followed his father's profession. From this gentleman descends the family of Lyttleton, of Pillaton Hall, in Staffordshire; which family continued, without interruption, always through Sir Edwards, at first Knights, afterwards esq. to the death of Sir Edward Lyttleton, Bart. in 1812, when the title became extinct, and the estates passed to (the grandson of his sister, Frances, and her husband, Moreton Walhouse, Esq.) his grand-nephew,

EDWARD JOHN LYTTELTON, Esq. of Teddesley, M.P. for the Co. of Stafford, who was recently elevated to the Peerage as Baron Haterton. (See that Life, and Burke's History of the Com- moners, Vol. 1.)

Thomas, who was seated at Spechley, near Worcester, and was the ancestor of Lord Keeper Lyttleton, Baron of Mount Edgcumbe, 1st. and Sir William Lyttleton, Speaker of the House of Commons, temp. Will- liam III. See Burke's Extinct Peerage.

His Lordship d. at Frankley, 28 Aug., 1841, and was interred under an altar-tomb, which he had erected in his life-time, on the south-side nave of the Cathedral at Worcester, which is a curious document, he bequests considerable sums for masses to be said for the repose of his own and the souls of his immediate relations.

Sir Thomas was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM LYTTELTON, of Frankley, who m. 1st. Elyam, widow of Thomas Fielding, Esq., and dau. and heir of William Walsh, Esq. of Wanaply, in Leicestershire, by whom he had an only daughter.

John, who m. Sir John Aston, of Heywood, in Staffordshire, and carried the Mansions of Tithall and Wanaply into the Aston family.

Sir William m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Whittington, Esq. of Pauntley, Co. Gloucester, and dying in 1507, was s. by his only son,

John Lyttleton, Esq. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, and great-great-grandau. (maternally) of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster: in right of whom the family of Lyttelton quarters the arms of France and England, within a bordure gobony. Of this marriage, there were seven sons and two daughters. Mr. Lyttelton was s. by his eldest son,

John Lyttleton, Esq., who d. 17 May, 1532, and was s. by his son,

Sir John Lyttleton, Knt. This gentleman was granted, by Queen Mary, in 1557, the office of Constable of Dudley Castle, Co. Stafford, with the Rangarness of the old and new parks there; and, though adhering to the Catholic religion, he enjoyed the confidence of Queen Elizabeth, being, during her Majesty's reign, one of the Council of the Marches of Wales, Deputy Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the Co. Worcester, and in the Commission of the Peace for that and the Co. Stafford. He received, too, the honour of Knighthood from Queen Elisabeth, in 1556, at Kenilworth Castle, when her Majesty honoured Dudley, Earl of Leicester, with a visit there. Sir John d. 15 Feb., 1589 90, and was s. by his eldest son,

Gilbert Lyttleton, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Worcester, 13th and 14th of Elisabeth, and high Sheriff in the 25th of the same reign. He m. Elisabeth, dau. of Humphry Combercome, Esq., of Nympton, in Shropshire, and of Hampton Court, Co. Hereford, and dying 1 June, 1599, was s. by his eldest son,

John Lyttleton, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Worcester, temp. Elisabeth. This gentleman (to use the words of Sir Francis Bacon) being much respected for his wit and valor, and a Roman Catholic, was courted by Lord Essex and his friends; and in some measure drawn in by Sir Charles Danvers to that conspiracy which cost Essex his head, and Lyttleton his estate: for he was tried and convicted of high treason at the Queen's Bench Bar, 20 Feb., 1600 1; and died in prison in the 7th following: (the execution of the penalty regarding life being averted, through the interest of Sir Walter Raleigh,) Mr. Lyttleton m. Muriel, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Knt., and left no male issue, only a daughter, who died unmarried. Mr. Lyttletons estate was obtained, upon the accession of James I., a reversion of the attainer of her husband, and a grant, by letters patent, of the whole of his estate. She was a person of great prudence, and discharged debts, contracted by her husband and his estate, to the amount of £2,000, although she was remarkable for benevolence and hospitality. This lady survived Mr. Lyttleton twenty-eight years, and brought up her children in the reformed religion. The eldest son, Sir Thomas Lyttleton, Knt. represented the Co. Worcester in Parliament, and served the office of Sheriff of that shire in 1613. He was created a Bart. 18 July, 1618. This gentleman was an active adherent of Royalty during the Civil Wars, and suffered imprisonment in the Tower, in consequence. Sir Thomas m. MACDONALD.

MACDONALD, Baron (Godfrey-William- Wentworth Bosville-Macdonald), of Slate, Co. Antrim, in the Peerie of Ireland, and a Bar. of Nova Scotia: b. 16 March, 1609; s. as 4th Baron and 11th Barrt., on the demise of his father, 15 Oct., 1632.

LINEAGE.

This nobleman is the Representative of the Lords of the Isles, princes of the ancient Celtic race, who, for several generations, held themselves independent of the Scottish monarchy.

SOMERLED, Thane of Argyll, who acquired the Western Islands by his marriage with Effrica, or Rachel, dau. of Olaughe the Sorcery, King of Man, and grandau. of Harald Hafgarson, King of Denmark, assumed the designation of King of the Isles. This predatory chief was killed at Renfrew, in 1144, in a successful attempt to invade Scotland, and was s. by his son.

RAGINALD, who was designed King of Man and the Isles. This chief was received under the protection of King John of England, in 1165, and from him we pass to his descendant,

ANGUS, Lord of the Isles, who, after King Robert Bruce was defeated by the English, in 1306, afforded him an asylum in his castle of Dunantra. The descendant of this Angus,

DONALD, Lord of the Isles, entered into a treaty with

RICHARD II. in 1338, on the footing of a sovereign prince. He m. Lady Margaret Lesly, only dau. of Euphemia, Countess of Ross, by Sir Walter Lesly, in her right, Earl of Ross, and he subsequently took up arms to establish his right to that Earldom. He was defeated, however, or, more correctly speaking, weakened, by the Earl of Murr, who engaged him at Harlow, near Aberdeen, 24 July, 1411. The battle was bloody and obstinate, but indecisive. On the side of Donald, the chiefs of Macintosh and Maclean fell, with about nine hundred, while Murr lost about five hundred, amongst whom were some persons of rank. The Lord of the Isles was forced to retire; and the Regent Duke of Albany marched to and took the castle of Dingwall. Eventually Donald was compelled to abandon his pretensions to the Earldom, to make personal submission, and to give oaths and hostages for indemnification and future observance of peace. He was s. by his son.

ALEXANDER, Lord of the Isles. This chief was defeated by James I., at Lochaber, 23 June, 1429, and reduced to the most absolute submission. In absolute despair, the Lord of the Isles sent an embassy to sue for peace, which being refused, he resolved to throw himself upon the King's mercy. For that purpose he came privately to Edinburgh, and on the 27 Aug., 1427, entered in his shirt and drawers presented his sword to the King upon his knees, before the high altar of Holyrood Church, in presence of the Queen and Nobles. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon and Huntley, and was s. by his son.

JOHN, 11th Earl of Ross, and Lord of the Isles. This nobleman having entered into a treaty with EDWARD IV. of England, in 1462, was deemed a traitor to his liege Sovereign of Scotland, and was forced to surrender the Earldom of Ross, which was unconditionally annexed to the Crown, by Act of Parliament, 10 July, 1478. He d. in 1486, without legitimate issue, when the line was continued by his brother,

HENRY OF THE ISLES, whose great-grandson,

DONALD, styling himself Lord of the Isles, but being refused the dignity by James V. took up arms to support his pretensions, and laid siege to the castle of Klenoudurn. From the battlements of which he was shot dead with an arrow in 1507, leaving son.

DONALD, OF THE ISLES, commonly called "Donald Gorme Macdonald of Slate." This personage was restored by Queen Mary of Scotland to the lands of Slate, for fidelity by his father, and took her Majesty's part in the civil war of 1567. He d. in 1583, and was s. by his eldest son.

DONALD MACDONALD, of Slate, who d. s. p. in 1616, and was s. by his nephew.

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who was created by CHARLES I. a Bar. of Nova Scotia, 14 July, 1631; with a special clause of precedence, placing him second to that order in the kingdom of Scotland. Sir Donald arrayed himself, of course, under the Royal banner at the breaking out of the civil war, but died within four years, anno 1643. He m. Janet (commonly called "Fair Janet"), second dau. of Kenneth, 1st Lord Mackenzie, of Kintail, and was s. by his eldest son.

SIR JAMES MACDONALD, of Slate, who joined the Marquess of Montrose, in 1645, and sent some of his men to to the assistance of CHARLES II., when he marched into England, in 1651. He m. 1st, Margaret, only dau. of Sir Roderick Mackenzie, of Tarbet, and had four sons and two daughters. He espoused 2ndly, Mary, eldest dau. of John Macleod, of Macleod, and had another son, John, of Blackney. Sir James d. 8 Dec., 1678, and was s. by his eldest son.

7. Louisa-Isabella, d. in 1830.
8. Elizabeth-Mary-Anne.

Sir Evan es. to the title, as 2nd Bart., at the decease of his father, 29 June, 1822.

Lineage.
The family (or clan) of Mac Gregor deduces its lineage from Achallus, the celebrated King of Scotland, who commenced his reign in 787.

Patrick Mac Gregor joined the great Duke of Montrose, in support of the Royal cause, in 1644, with a thousand fighting men of his own clan, and was held in the highest estimation by that illustrious personage. He m. Marian, dau. of Mac Donald, of Auchtrichatan, by whom he had three sons, and was e. by the eldest.

John Mac Gregor, who m. Anne, dau. of Mac Gregor, of Ross, and was e. by his only son.

John Mac Gregor, alias Murray, who amassed a very considerable fortune. This gentleman is said to have privately favoured the rebellion of 1715; but he was cautious of appearing publicly, and therefore none of the clan took up arms, excepting Dugal Cian's tribe, under the famous Rob Roy. He m. Catherine, eldest dau. of Hugh Campbell, Esq. of Dux, by whom he had five sons, the fourth of whom,

M'GRIGOR, Sir James, of Camden Hill, Co. Middlesex, M.D., F.R.S., Knight-Companion of the Tower and Sword, Director-General of the Army Medical Department, Physician-Extraordi- nary to his Majesty, and Fellow of the Colleges of Physicians of London and Edinburgh; &. 9 April, 1771; m. 23 June, 1810, Mary, youngest dau. of Duncan Grant, Esq. of Lengcistone, Co. Moray, and has issue.
This gentleman entered the Medical Department of the Army in 1793, and served in the Continental Campaigns of the two following years. In 1796, he was Chief of the Medical Staff in the Island of Grenada. In 1798 he proceeded to India; and in 1800, we find him placed at the head of the Medical Staff of the Anglo-Indian Army in Egypt, first under the command of Sir Arthur Wellesley, and afterwards of Sir David Baird. After his return from India, he was appointed Chief of the Medical Department on the expedition to Wakehaven; and his services upon that unfortunate occasion are honorably noticed in many of the official despatches. In 1811, he joined the Army of the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsula; and there his services met the approbation of his great Commander, and were frequently mentioned in his Grace's despatches, particularly in those detailing the surrender of Badajoz, and the victory of Victoria. For all these eminent services, Mr. McGrigor at the conclusion of the war received the honor of Knighthood, and obtained permission to wear the decorations of the Portuguese Order of a Knight-Commander of the Tower and Sword, conferred upon him by the King of Portugal. In 1815, he was placed at the head of the Medical Board, and was created a Bart. in Sept., 1831.

MACKENZIE.

Mackenzie, Sir Alexander, Bart., of Tarbat, and Royston, Co. Cromarty, b. 16 May, 1892. This gentleman was served heir male of provision in general of Sir Kenneth Mackenzie, the 3rd Bart., 3 Oct, 1826. He is also heir general of George, 1st Earl of Cromarty. Sir Alexander is at present in India, in the Military Service of the East India Company.

Lineage.
This is a branch of the ancient family of Mackenzie of Kintail, founded by Sir Rodbrach Mackenzie, Knt. of Tarbat (2nd son of Colin Mac Kenzie, of Kintail, and brother of Kenneth, 1st Lord Mac Kenzie, of Kilmuir), who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Torquil Macleod, of Lewes, and thereupon added to his armorial bearing the achievement of Macleod, viz. or, a rock in flames, proper. Sir Roderick had issue,

John, his successor.
Kenneth, of Scatwell, (see Mac Kenzie, baronets, of Colin.)
Alexander, of Bellona, Margaret. m. to Sir John Mac Donald, Bart. of Slate.
He was s. by his eldest son,

John MacKenzie, Esq. of Tarbat, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 21 May, 1698. Sir John m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Sir George Erskine, of Innerleithen, by whom he had, with several daus, four sons, viz.

George, his successor.
Alexander, of Ardlock, in Sutherland, m. Barbara, dau. of MacKenzie, of Garloch, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, of Ardlock, who m. Sibella, dau. of Kenneth Mackenzie, of Dunonald, and was s. by his son, Alexander of Ardick, who m. Margaret, dau. of Robert Sutherland, Esq., of Langwell, Co. Inverness, 12th in descent from William de Sutherland, 5th Earl of Sutherland, and the Princess Margaret Bruce, sister and heir of David II., who was s. by his son,

Robert, a Lieut.-Col. in the East India Company's service, m. Katherine, dau. of Col. Sutherland, of Uppat, Co. Sutherland, a cadet of the Kintail family, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of William Baillie, of Rodshall, and Elizabeth Sutherland, of Clyde, and had issue, ALEXANDER, present baronet, James Sutherland.

Elizabeth Baillie, m. to Lieut. Sutherland, R.N., by whom (who d. in 1822) she has issue, Margaret-Sutherland, m. at Bayfield, Ross-shire, 5 Aug., 1660, to the Rev. James Henry Hughes, M.A., late Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, Chaplain to H.E.C. Bombay.
Roderick, of Preston Hall, M.P. for Cromarty in 1706, and for Fortrose in 1703, in which year he was constituted one of the Senators of the College of Justice, as Lord Prestonothie, who on a refusal to resign his commission to his nephew, Sir James Mackenzie, of Royston, in 1710, Lord Prestonothie m. 1st Margaret, dau. of Alexander Mackenzie, of Caray, Archdeacon of St. Andrews, and left, at his decease, in 1712, the son mentioned above, Sir Alexander, who m. Amelia, eldest dau. and heir of Hugh, 10th Lord Lothian, and changing his name to Fraser, was designated of Frazerdale, he was engaged in the rebellion of 1745, and attainted. Lord Prestonothie espoused 2dly Margaret Halliburton, reliet of Sir George Mackenzie, of Rosebaugh, King's Advocate.

John.
Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

Sir George, 2nd Baronet, who, for the good services he had rendered to Charles II. during his Majesty's exile, and the restoration, was made by that monarch one of the Judges of Session, Clerk-Register, sworn of the Prive-Council, and constituted Justice-General. His lordship was elevated to the Peerage by James II. 15 April, 1685, in the dignities of Lord Macleod and Castleharne, and Viscount of Tarbat. At the revolution he went up to Court, and was well received by William; but his arbitrary proceedings disenchanted him of the esteem the former reigns had for him. He was no longer unpopular in Scotland, that his name was not included in the new Commission of Lords of Session, 1 Nov., 1689. He was however restored to his office of Lord Clerk-Register, in 1695, from which he retired in four years after, engaged upon a scheme of 450 per annum. On the accession of Queen Anne, Lord Tarbat was sent for to Court, by letters patenti, dated 1 Jan., 1706, Lord Macleod and Castleharne, Viscount of Tarbat, and Earl of Cromarty, himself and his heirs male and of entail. He was at the same time appointed one of the principal Secretaries of State, which office he soon after, on account of his great age, exchanged for that of Lord Justice-General, and finally retired in 1710, after zealously promoting the union by his parliamentary influence, as well as his writings. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir James Sinclair, of Mey, Bart., by whom he had, with four daus, three sons:

1. John, who succeeded as 2nd Earl of Cromarty, and was succeeded himself by his eldest son George, 3rd Earl, which latter noblemens, and his eldest son, Lord McLeod, having taken an active part in the rebellion of 1745, and being both made prisoners in the field, were tried, convicted, and attainted of high treason, but becoming objects of Royal clemency, their lives were spared and their freedom restored. The honors, however, became forfeited, while the Earl was permitted to reside in England, and his son obtained leave, in 1746, to accept a commission in the Swedish service, of which kingdom he was created Count Cromarty, &c. He returned in 1777, raised two battalions of Highlanders, and became Col. of the 71st Foot, with which he served in India, with the local rank of Major-General. His Lordship came home in 1754, when his forfeited estates were restored to him, and he d. in 1760, without issue. The estates* have since passed through co-heirs into other families, and the honors remain under the attainder.

The family of Mainwaring was founded in Cheshire, by RAVELING, one of the companions in arms of the Conqueror, who obtained fifteen lordships in that county, including Peure (now Over Peover), as his division of the spol (see BURKE'S COMMEMS. MAINWARING, OF WHITMORE, Fel. iii.), and was s. by his son,

M A I

Richard de MENSILWARING, of MAINWARING, whose great-grandson.

Sir RAUPH MENSILWARING, Knt., was Justice of Chester in the time of Richard I. He m. Amicia, dau. of Hugh (Kevelock), Earl of Chester (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), and was father of Roger MAINWARING, of Warmsnach, who conferred, temp. Henry III, upon a younger son,

William MAINWARING, the estate of Over Peover, which has ever since continued the chief seat of the family. From this William we pass to his descendant,

William MAINWARING, of Over Peover, who m. 1st,
Joan, dau. and co-heir of William Pearse, of Baddeley, and had a son,

William, his successor.

He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Nicholas Leicester, and sister of John Leicester of Nether-Thalby, and had several children. He d. in 1364, and was s. by his eldest son,

William MAINWARING, who, the elder branch of the family, that of Warminham, becoming in the male line extinct, bore for his arms, without the mark of cadency, "Arg. two bars, gules; the crest, an ass's head, couped ppr.;" which his descendants have ever since borne. He d. a. p. in 1395, and was s. by his half brother,

Sir Thomas MAINWARING, 3rd Bart. This gentleman d. a.m.s. in 1792, when the Baronetcy became dormant, and so remained until the death of the deceased Bart.'s nephew.

Sir Henry, 7 Nov., 1792. This gentleman was posthumous son of Henry Mainwaring, Esq. (who had purchased Over Peover from his brother, Sir Thomas), by Diana, only dau. of William Blackett, Esq., and grandau. of Sir Edward Blackett, Bart. of Newby, in Yorkshire. Mrs. Mainwaring (his mother) espoused, 2ndly, the Rev. Mr. Wittenhall, Rector of Walmhamstow, in Essex, and had a son, Thomas-Wittenhall, of whom presently.

Sir Henry d. unm. 6 April, 1797, when the Baronetcy became extinct, but his estate passed by will to his uterine brother,

Thomas WITTENHALL, Esq., who, in consequence, assumed the surname and arms of MAINWARING. He m. Catherine, youngest dau. of William Watkins, Esq. of Nantwich, and had surviving issue,

Upon the question of this lady's legitimacy, there was a protracted paper war between Sir Peter Leicester and Sir Thomas Mainwaring; and eventually the matter was referred to the Judges, of whose decision, Wood says,

"At an Assize, held at Chester, 1675, the controversy was decided by the Justices itinerant, who, as | have heard, adjudged the right of the matter to Mainwaring."

Lineage.

The surname of this family was anciently written in Latin, de Monte A. into A., and in English, Montague; but the original was, nevertheless, Montagu, from the town of that name in Normandy. The first of the Montaguas in England was

DUGO DE MONTAGUO, a warrior in the immediate train of Robert, Earl of Morton, at the Conquest. From this personage descended, in nearly five centuries afterwards,

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., a distinguished lawyer, who was appointed Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench, in 1782, was elevated in 1784, and was constituted, in the same year, Lord-Chief-Justice of the Common-Places; "a descent," says Fuller, "in honor, but an ascent in profit." Sir Edward was also of the Privy-Council, and in such high favor and esteem with his sovereign, Henry VIII., that the King appointed him one of those sixteen executors of his last will and testament, who should be Regents of the kingdom, and governors to his son, EDWARD VI. His m. thrice; and the eldest son of his third marriage (the sons of his first marriage all d. in infancy),

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., 2. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Harington, of Exton, in Rutlandshire, by whom he had six sons. (See BURN's Extinct Peerage, Montagu, Dukes of Montagu.) The third son,

SIR HENRY MONTAGU, was one of the representatives of the city of London in the Parliament called by JAMES I. upon his accession (19 March, 1604), and acquired great distinction as a Parliamentary member. In 1616, he was appointed Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench; in 1620, constituted Lord-Treasurer of England; and elevated, 19 Dec. in the same year, to the Peerage, as Baron Montagu, of Kimbolton, and Viscount Mandeville. Upon the accession of CHARLES I., his Lordship was advanced (5 Feb., 1628) to Earldom, as Earl of Manchester, and subsequently appointed Lord-Privy-Seal. He m. 1st, Catherine, second dau. of Sir William Spencer, of Aston, in Oxfordshire, third son of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had issue,

EDWARD, his successor.

Waller, who, having embraced the Catholic religion, retired into a monastery in France; and attracting the notice of the QUEEN MOTHER, Mary de Medecis, was received into the special favor of that Princess, and eventually appointed by her Abbot of St. Martin's Abbey, near Poitouise, in the diocese of Rhoan.

* Sir Edward had been Speaker at one time of the House, and the following anecdote is related of him when filling the Chair. A Bill of subsidies not passing, Mr. Speaker was sent for by the King, and thus addressed while on his knees in the Royal presence. "Ho! will they not let my Bill pass?" and laying his hand on the head of Manchester, Harey continued, "Get my Bill to pass by such a time to morrow, or else by such a time this head of yours shall be off." The speech was brief and conclusive; for we are told that Sir Edward "contrived so effectually, that before the time prescribed, the Bill was passed with the approbation of the House, and the Sovereign's satisfaction."
He was also of her Cabinet Council, and the chief instrument of introducing Cardinal Mazarin to her Majesty. In 1643, he was apprehended at Rochester coming to England with letters of importance, and he remained in confinement here until 1647, when he was banished, the kingdom by a vote of Parliament. He d. in 1670, and was buried in the Church belonging to the Hospital of Incurables, at Paris.

MARJORIBANKS.

MARJORIBANKS, Sir William, of Lees, 5. Berwick; b. in 1830; s. his father as 3rd Bart., 22 Sept., 1834.

Lineage.
The original surname of this family was Johnston, and at what period the alteration took place cannot now be determined; it continues, however, to bear the Johnston arms. The assumed surname, which is local, is said to have been thus derived:—when Walter, High-Steward of Scotland, and ancestor of the royal House of Stuart, espoused Marjorie, only dau. of Robert Bruce, and eventually heir to his crown, the Barony of Ratho was granted by the King, as a marriage portion, to his dau., by charter, which is still extant; and those lands being subsequently conveyed "Terre de Matho-Marjorie- bankus," gave rise to the name of Marjoribanks.

As in the case with many other private families, no records remain of the early history and intermarriages of the House of Marjoribanks; but several of its members are mentioned in the history of Scotland, as representatives in the Scottish Parliament. In 1540, Thomas Marjoribank, of Matho, sat for Edinburgh, and was appointed one of the Senators of the College of Justice in 1554.

EDWARD MARJORIBANKS, Esq. of Hallyards, m. Miss Lock, and was father of

His Grace's 4th Duke, but 5th in succession to the honors of Marlborough, and 7th Earl of Sunderland, upon the demise of his father, 30 Jan., 1817. He had previously, in 1807, obtained a royal license to assume and bear the additional surname and Arms of his distinguished predecessor, John (Churchill), 1st Duke of Marlborough.

The Duke is a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire.

Lineage.

Family of Churchill.

The patriarch of the Churchills, according to the eminent antiquary Dr. James Anderson (genealogical tables) was

GITTO DE LON, of a noble family in Normandy, who lived in the year 1055, and whose 2nd son,

WANDUL DE LEON, was Lord of Council. This Wadrill m. Isabella de Tuya, and his eldest son,

ROGER DE COURCEL, coming into England with the Conqueror, was rewarded for his services, as appears by Domesday-Book, with divers grants of lands in the Counties of Somerset, Dorset, and Devon. The grandson of this Roger,

SIR BARTHOLOMAW DE COURCEL, a great warrior, and celebrated in old ballads, held the castle of Bristol for King Stephen, and died fighting in his cause. From Sir Bartholomew we pass to CHARLES CHURCHILL, who was engaged by Thomas Courtenay, Earl of Devon, in the cause of Edward IV., and adhering to that Monarch, when the Earl deserted his party, obtained in marriage, by the King's interest, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir William Widelsey, a lady nearly allied to the Queen. The descendant of this marriage.

JAMPER CHURCHILL, of Bradford, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Chaplet, Esq. of Harrington, in Dorsetshire, and was s. by his elder son.

John Churchill, Esq. of Minster, in Devonshire, an eminent Lawyer, who m. Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Winston, of Standon, in Lincolnsire, and by that alliance, as well as his practice at the Bar, considerably augmented his estate. He was father of

Sir WILIAM CHURCHILL, b. in 1633, when m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Drake, Bart. of Ashe, in Devonshire, and had, with other issue,

1. John, of whom presently.
2. George, in 1655, a Naval Officer of eminence in the reign of King William, and one of the Council in Naval affairs to the Lord-Admiral, Prince George of Denmark, temp. Queen Anne. He d. Jun. in 1710, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.
3. Charles, a Military Officer, who served with distinction at the battle of Steinkirk and Landen, and was made Lieut.-Gen. by King William. He was subsequently Governor of the Tower, and participated in the glory of Blenheim. He d. s.p. in 1714.
4. Arabella, who was mistress to James II. when Duke of York, to whom she was annulled by the King.

1. James Pitt-James, the celebrated Duke of Berwick (seeBurke'sExtensive Peerage).
2. Henry Pitt-James, commonly called the grand Duke of Berwick.
3. Arabella Churchill married afterwards Col. Charles Godfrey, Master of the Jewel Office, and d. in 1714, leaving by him two daughters.
5. Elizabeth-Godfrey, m. to Lord Wittenham, in Berkshire.

The eldest surviving son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, who became the most celebrated Captain of the period in which he lived, and is remembered as the first General in the Military Annals of England, was b. 24 May, 1650, and in his youth was page of honor to James, Duke of York, through whose favor he obtained an Ensigncy in the Guards. In 1671, he served at Tanger against the Moors, and being in the Army sent next year under the Duke of Monmouth, to the assistance of Louis XIV., against the Dutch, signified himself at the siege of Maastricht. In 1679, he attended the Duke of York into Flanders, and the following year into Scotland. He was also with the Duke in 1685, when the Gloucester frigate, in her voyage to Scotland, struck on the Leman and Orm sand, and was one of those persons for whose preservation his Royal Highness was particularly solicitous. In the Dec. following, by the influence of the Duke, he was dignified with the title of Lord CHURCHILL of Firle, in Eastbourne, Co. Berwick, in the Peerage of Scotland; and the next year, being then a General Officer, he got the command of the 1st Regt. of Dragoons, at that time newly raised. The Duke of York ascending the throne, as James II., Lord Churchill was accredited Ambassador to the Court of France, and he was created a Peer of England, 14 May, 1685, as BARON CHURCHILL, of Sandridge, Co. Hertford. Notwithstanding, however, these sterling marks of royal favor, Lord Churchill, who had assisted in defeating the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemoor, was amongst the first to attach himself to the fortunes of the Prince of Orange, in 1685, and to vote in the convention Parliament for the vacancy of the throne, and he filling it with the Prince and Princess of Orange. For these generous acts he was sworn of the Privy-Council to the new Sovereign, and created, 9 April, 1689, EARL of Marlborough. In which year he was sent to command the English forces in the Netherlands, under Prince Waldeck, General of the Dutch Troops. He subsequently fell under the displeasure of King William, and was confined for a short time in the Tower. Upon the cession of Queen Anne, her Majesty appointed the Earl of Marlborough Capt.-Gen. of all her forces in and of those employed in conjunction with her allies, and he was created, 14 Dec., 1704, Marquess of Blenheim and Duke of Marlborough. Within ten years afterwards, 2
Aug., 1714, France won the great victory of Blenheim, which has immortalized his name, and for which he obtained a grant from the Crown, at the desire of Parliament, to himself and his heirs, of the Royal Manor of Woodstock and hundred of Wootton, in Oxfordshire.
Here is a rising, splendidly developed, one of the most remarkable monuments of this remarkable hero. Here, in a noble mansion, was born the proud name of Blenheim, which was erected at the national expense, and a monumental pillar raised to hand down to posterity the achievements of the great and victorious soldier. His Grace espoused Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Richard Jennings, Esq., of Sandridge, Co. Hertford, by whom he had issue,
John who d. in infancy of the small-pox, 20 Feb., 1702.3
Henrietta, m. to Frances, Earl of Godolphin, and succeeded, under a special Act of Parliament, as Duchess of Marlborough. Her Grace had an only son,
William, Marquess of Blenheim, who d. p. s. in 1718.
The Duchess d. 24 Oct., 1733.
Anne, m. to Charles Spencer, Earl of Sunderland, (see family of Spencer), and had issue,

Her Ladyship d. 15 April, 1716.
Elisabeth, m. to Scroope, 1st Duke of Bridgewater, and
d. 22nd March, 1713-14, without surviving issue.
Mary, m. to John, Duke of Montague.
The late having no prospect of heirs male, after the death of his only son, and being desirous of having his honors and dignities, together with the manor of Woodstock and house of Blenheim, settled on his posterity, an act for that purpose obtained the royal assent 21 Dec., 1761; and, on Jan., 29th ensuing, the like sanction was given to another act, for settling on him and his posterity a pension of £6000 per annum. The Emperour Levee in consideration of the eminent services performed by the Duke of Marlborough, created him a Prince of the empire, and his Majesty's successor, the Emperor Joseph, bestowed upon his Grace the principality of Mindelheim, in Swabia. The Duke d. 16 June, 1722, having survived some years his mental faculties, and was s. under the Act of Parliament, by his daughter, Henrietta, as Duchess of Marlborough, at whose decesse, 24 Oct., 1733, the honors and estates of this great branch of the Churchill family devolved upon her nephew, Charles Spencer, 5th Earl of Sunderland, as Duke of Marlborough, &c.
FAMILY OF SPENCER.
Sir Robert Spencer, Knt. of Wormleighton, Co.
Northumberland, descended from Geoffrey Le Despenser, younger brother of Hugh, Justiciary of England (from whom the Barons Le Despencer derive), was elevated in the Peerage, 21 July, 1603, by the title of Baron Spencers of Wormleighton. This nobleman appears to have been a very spirited member of parliament, as his reply to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel, in a debate upon the royal prerogative, in 1621, evinces:—"My Lord," said Howard, "when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep." "When my ancestors were keeping sheep," replied Spencer, "your Lordship's ancestors were plotting treason." This excited such irritation at the moment, that Arundel, as the aggressor, was committed to the Tower; but soon after, acknowledging his fault, was discharged. His Lordship
d. 25 Oct., 1627, and was s. by his son, William, 2nd Baron, who m. Penelope, dau. of granted to him 26 May, 1406, in remainder to his natural son, Sir Thomas Stewart, to revert, in case of failure of male issue of the latter, to the Crown. His Lordship was Ambassador to England in 1406, and again in 1407, when he engaged in a tournament with the Earl of Kent. The following year he went to France and Flanders, with a noble escort, and eminently distinguished himself in the service of the Duke of Burgundy, who employed him to assist in quelling a rebellion of the people of Leige against their Bishop, John of Bavaria. The Earl commanded the royal army at the battle of Harlaw, against the Lord of the Isles in 1411, and was appointed Ambassador Extraordinary to England in 1416, and soon afterwards Warden of the Marches. He d. in 1435, and his natural son, mentioned above, having predeceased him, the Earldom of Mar, according to the charter, reverted to the Crown; when it was claimed, in 1435, by Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, as lineal descendant of Lady Elyne Marr, (refer toGrantney, 11th Earl), but though the descent was indisputably established, the Earldom was not conferred upon the Erskines until it had been enjoyed by four Earls of different families, the last of whom was the celebrated Robert Moray, a period of 130 years having elapsed, when at last it was restored, in 1565, by Queen Mary, to John, 8th Lord Erskine, who should of right be 6th Earl of Mar, to the Earl of M-Arr, was so, by the women assigned by charter, in 1565, heritable Sheriff of the Co.- Stirlig, and Keeper of Stirling Castle, and chosen Regent of Scotland, by Parliament in 1571, during the minority of James VI. Creation.—Earl of Marr, not defined: date of precedence, 1457; confirmed to the family of Erskine, 1565. Lord Erskine, 14 Oct., 1457.

FAMILY OF ERSKINE.

Tradition states that a Scotchman, having killed, with his own hand, temp. MALCOLM H. ENSIGN, a Danish General, at the battle of Murthil, cut off his head, and, with the bloody dagger in his hand, showed it to the king, saying, in Gaelic, Erise Shine, alluding to the head and dagger, whereupon MALCOLM imposed upon him the surname of Erskine, and assigned for his armorial bearing, a hand, holding a dagger, with "Je pense plus" for motto. It is more probable, however, that the name was assumed from the Baron of Erskine, on the Clyde, the property of the family for many ages.

HANRICUS OF ERSKINE was proprietor of the Barony of Erskine, in the reign of Alexander II. his grandson.

John Erskine, of Erskine, submitted to EDWARD I. of England, in 1296, and left a son,

Sir John Erskine, of Erskine, whose grandson,

Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, was appointed GREAT CHAMBERLAIN of Scotland in 1350; and was one of the Commissioners to treat of the release of David II. in 1348, 1351, 1359, and 1354; and at a Parliament held at Perth, 17 Jan., 1356-7, he was nominated, with the Bishops of St. Andrews and Brechin, plenipotentiary to treat with England, not only for the ransom of the King, but likewise for a truce between the two kingdoms. These objects being accomplished, Thomas, son of Sir Robert, was one of the hostages granted for the ransom. In 1359, he was accredited Ambassador to France; and he ratified the alliance with that kingdom at Paris, 29 June, 1359. From David II., Sir Robert obtained extensive grants and immunities; and upon the demise of that monarch, Robert II. coming to the throne, he assisted at the new King's Coronation, and did homage at Scona, in March, 1371, his seal being appended to the Act of Settlement of the Crown of Scotland. Sir Robert d. in 1385, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Thomas Erskine, of Erskine, who s. for his 2nd wife Janet Keith, only child of Sir Edward Keith, Mariscal of Scotland, and great-grand.s. of Graitney Marr, 11th Earl of Marr, and was s. by his eldest son.

Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, who claimed unsuccessfully the Earldom of Marr, in 1435, but nevertheless assumed the title. He d. in 1453, and was s. by his son,

Thomas Erskine, who was dispossessed of the Earl-dom of Marr by the assize of Error in 1457, and had a charter to Thomas, Lord Erskine, of the lands of Dalnotter, in Lennox, 5 Jan., 1463-9. His Lordship was s. by his son, Alexander, 2nd Lord Erskine, who being in great favor with James IV., was sworn of the Privy-Council to that monarch, and constituted Governor of Dunbarton Castle. He d. in 1510, and was s. by his son,

Robert, 3rd Lord Erskine, who fell at Flodden Field, 9 Sept., 1513, and was s. by his son, John, 4th Lord Erskine. This nobleman m. Lady Margaret Campbell, eldest dau. of Archibald, 2nd Earl of Argyll, and dying in 1552, was s. by his eldest surviving son.

John, 5th Lord Erskine, who at length obtained the Earldom of Marr, as above.

Laurence Martin, who purchased lands in 1449, of William, then Abbot of St. Edmunds Bury, and exchanged others. The great-great-grandson of this Laurence, Roger Martin, was so remarkable for benevolence, that when he advanced in years, and was not able to go far from home, he contrived a whistle at the end of his cane, to concert the poor around him. In the 14th of Henry VIII., he was appointed one of Commissioners for levying the subsidy granted to that King, having previously been called to the Bar, and chosen a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. In the reign of Mary, upon being offered the Secretaryship of State, he replied, that, for himself, he was highly satisfied with the sufficiency God had bestowed upon him, and as for his son, he would inherit a competency sufficient, if he proved an honest man, but if he became otherwise, far too much. This excellent person reached nearly his hundredth year, and from him lineally descended,

MASSEY.

MASSEY, Sir Hugh Dillon, of Doonass, Co. Clare; s. to the 2nd Bart., on the decease of his father, 29 April, 1807; m. 14 May, 1796, Charlotte, dau. of Thomas Hankey, Esq., of Fetcham Park, Co. Surrey, and has an only daughter, Charlotte-Eliza, who m. in May, 1830, Felix Vaughan Smith, Esq., Capt. in the Queen's Dragoons.

Lineage.

This family derives from a common ancestor with the noble house of Massy, namely, Hugh Massy, who had a command in suppressing the rebellion in Ireland of 1641. His grandson, Hugh Massy, Esq., of Donilngus, Co. Limerick, m. Elizabeth, dau. of the Right Hon. George Evans, and had several children. His eldest son and successor, Hugh, was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, as Lord Massy, in 1726. The youngest, Charles Massy, having taken Holy Orders, became Dean of Limerick. He settled at Doonass, Co. Clare, and, having m. Grace, dau. of Sir John Dillon, Knt. of Lismullen, was s. at his decease by his eldest son, I. Hugh-Dillon Massy, Esq. of Doonass, who was created a Bart. of Ireland, 9 Oct., 1721. Sir Hugh m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Stackpole, Esq. of Anagh, Co. Clare, and had issue,

Sir Hugh represented the Co. of Clare in Parliament in 1783, and d. in 1807.

Creation.—9 Oct., 1721.

Arms.—Ar. on a chevron between three lozenges sa. a lion passant or.

MAXWELL.

MAXWELL, Sir William, of Calderwood, Co. Lanark; b. 7 Jan., 1748; s. to the title, as 6th Bart., upon the decease of his father, 2 Jan., 1789; m. 5 May, 1807, Hannah-Leonora, youngest dau. of the late Robert Paisley, Esq. of Mount Annan, Co. Dumfries, by whom (who d. 1 Oct., 1829) he has no surviving issue.

Lineage.

The family of Marcusville, by corruption Marcuswell, or Maxwell, may be regarded as one of the most ancient and distinguished in North Britain. It is generally believed to have been founded by Marcus, son of Unwyn (evidently of Saxon origin), who in 1166, to the inquisition of David I., into the possession of the church of Glasgow. The grandson of this Marcus, HARRAB BE MACPNESSLIVLVR, living temp. Malcolm IV., was the first who assumed the abbreviated surname of Maxwell. He d. in 1180, and was s. by his son,

John MacMaxwell, Great-Chamberlain and Sheriff of Roxburgh, in the beginning of the reign of Alexander II., who d. in 1241, and was s. by his son,

EMBRICE BE MAXWELL, Lord of Carlaverock, who, temp. Alexander II., was Justiciar of Galloway. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Roland da Meuris, with whom he obtained extensive possessions in the West of Scotland, viz. the lands and Baronies of Meuris, Nether-Pollock, Dryps, and Calderwood. This Emericus left two sons: Sir Hubert, from whom sprang the Lords Maxwell, Earls of Nithsdale (an Earldom forfeited in 1713); and

Sir John Maxwell, Knt., who got from his father the lands and baronies of Nether-Pollock, Co. Renfrew, and the lands of Dryps and Calderwood, in the shire of Lanark; and, dying in the beginning of the reign of David Bruce, was s. by his son,

Sir Robert Maxwell, Knt. of Calderwood, who d. in 1291, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Robert Maxwell of Pollock and Calderwood. This gentleman m. Isabel, dau. of Sir James Lindsay, and had two sons: John, to whom he gave the lands of Nether-Pollock; and

Sir Robert Maxwell, who got the Baronies of Calderwood, and other lands. This distribution of the estate of Sir John Maxwell is proved by a mutual indented and entail entered into by the two brothers, in which all their lands are enumerated: and in which it is provided, that, failing male issue of either of their bodies, the whole estate shall devolve upon the surviving heir male of the other. This deed is dated at Dumfartan, 18 Dec., 1401. Sir Robert m. in 1409, Elisabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Dennistoun, of Dennistoun, by whom he obtained a considerable augmentation of landed property. From this marriage immediately descended

Sir James Maxwell, Knt., of Calderwood, who is 1st, Margaret, dau. of Robert Porterfield, Esq. of Porterfield, by whom he had two daughters. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of Sir Alexander Hamilton, of Inveresk, by whom, with six daughters, he had two sons: and, thirdly, Margaret, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairn, relict of Sir James Hamilton, of Evandale, and sister of Ann, Marchioness of Hamilton, by whom he had four daughters, and two sons.

John, lineal accessor of the present Bart. Alexander.

Sir James d. in 1725, and was s. by his eldest son,

1. Sir James Maxwell, of Calderwood, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 28 March, 1627. Upon the demise of Sir John Maxwell, of Pollock, without surviving issue, in 1647, the estates of that gentleman ought to devolve, it was presumed, upon Sir James, according to the deed mentioned, as having been executed, in 1640, by their ascendants, the brothers, Sir John and Sir Robert Maxwell; but Sir John, of Pollock, dispelled with the expense habits of Sir James, made a disposition, some time before his death, in favor of George Maxwell, of Aulthouse, who succeeded accordingly. Sir James endeavored to set aside this disposition, but unsuccessfully. He d. in 1657, and was s. by his eldest son,

2. Sir William, who re-agitated his claim to the Pollock estates in 1655, but as unsuccessfully as his predecessors. This gentleman m. Jane, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, of Soughton Hall; but leaving no male issue at his decease, having outlived his two sons, the title reverted to his first cousin.
III. Sir John (only son of Col. John Maxwell, halfbrother of the 1st Bart., who fell fighting under the banner of royalty, at the battle of Dunbar, in 1650.) This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Capt. Wood, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son, IV. Sir William, who m. Christian, dau. of Alexander Stewart, Esq. of Torrence, by whom he had, with four daws., three sons, viz.

William, his successor.

John, a Col. in the Army.

Alexander, a Merchant at Leith, who m. Mary, dau. of Hugh Clerk, Esq., and left, with other issue, William Maxwell, Esq., a General Officer in the Army, heir-presumptive to the title, who m. Isabella, dau. and heir of Henry Wilson, Esq. of Newbottle, Co. Durham, and has four sons.

Murray, (Sir) a gallant and distinguished Naval Officer.

Sir William d. in 1750, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. Sir William. This gentleman m. Grizel, dau. of James Peadie, Esq. of Rough Hill, and, dying 2 Jan., 1729, left an only surviving son,

VI. Sir William, b. 7 Jan., 1748. 5 May, 1807, Hannah-Lenora, youngest dau. of the late Robert Patsey, Esq. of Mount Annan, in Dumfries-shire, but, dying s. p., was s. by his nephew, Sir William, the present Bart.

Maxwell, Sir John, of Nether Pollock, Co. Renfrew; m. Hanway-Anne, dau. of Richard Gardiner, Esq. of Mount Amelia, in Norfolk, and has issue,

I. John, M.P. for the Co. Renfrew.
II. Harriett.
III. Elizabeth, m. to Archibald Stirling, Esq. of Kenmure.

Sir John s. as 7th Bart. on the decease of his father, in 1785.

Lineage.

This family, with fourteen others, mentioned by Lord Hales, accompanied Edgar Atheling into Scotland, when England submitted to William of Normandy; and Mac- cus (whose posterity took, like Somer, the term ville, or well, indicating their possessions) was witness, in 1116, to the Inquisito Davidi, as the Diplomata scottie proves. A charter from William the Lion, of a grant of property, is still in the possession of the Nether-Pollock family, who had founded the church of Maccuswell, now Maccuston, as early as the beginning of that Monarch's reign.

John de Maccusville, who was Ambassador to England, from 1515 to 1520, was a guarantee to the treaty of marriage between Joanna of England and Alexander II. This John left a son, Aymer or Maccuswell, who acquired lands in Renfrewshire and Dumfries-shire, and was Chamberlain of Scotland in the year 1128, as a Baron of Scotland, this Aymer (according to Rymer's Federus) engaged that the Scotch should not make peace without the consent of the Welsh. He left three sons,

Herbert, ancestor of the family of Caerlaverock, in Dumfries-shire, Earl of Nithsdale, attainted in 1715. (See family of Constable-Maxwell, of Kerringham and Caerlaverock, Burke's Peerage, Vol. I. p. 229.)

John, founder of the family before ns, which is now chief of the ancient house of Maxwell. He is generally styled Dominus de Pollock, and is allied, by mar-riage, to the celebrated Bruce, and the unfortunate house of Stuart.

Alexander.

Sir John Maxwell (descended from the above John), 3rd Baron of Pollock, and of Calderwood, left two sons the younger of whom, Sir Robert Maxwell, obtaining the Barony of Calderwood from his father, became the founder of the Maxwell of Calderwood, while the elder son, Sir John Maxwell, Knt., inherited Nether-Poolock, and several other estates. This Sir John, and his brother, Sir Robert, executed a deed, in the year 1600, mutually providing that, should the male descendants of one at any time fail, the estates of both were to devolve upon the surviving male heir of the other. Sir John Maxwell d. in the reign of James I., leaving issue,
John, his successor.
Hugh, ancestor of the present Baronet.

From the elder son,
Sir John Maxwell, descended

Sir John Maxwell, at whose decease, without issue, became the last descendant of Sir John Maxwell, one of the parties to the deed of 1600, already mentioned, the estates ought to have devolved, it was asserted, upon Sir James Maxwell of Calderwood; but some time previously to Sir John's decease, he made a disposition of those estates to favour of his kinsman, George Maxwell of Auldhouse. This disposition was subsequently litigated, but without being disturbed. Sir John was therefore s. by

Sir George Maxwell, Knt. of Auldhouse, descended from Hugh Maxwell, Esq., younger son of Sir John Maxwell, the first of Nether-Poolock. This Sir George m. Annabella, dau. of Sir Archibald Stewart, by whom he had one son and three dau., and, dying in 1707, was s. by his son,

I. Sir John Maxwell, of Poolock, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 12 April, 1662, with remainder, according to a renewed patent, to his heirs male whatsoever. This gentleman was nominated one of the Privy-Council, for Scotland, by King William, on the first institution thereof in 1686; and constituted one of the Lords Commissioners of the Exchequer and Treasury. Sir John was appointed, in 1689, a Senator of the College of Justice and Justice-Clerk. He m. Marian, dau. of Sir James Stewart, of Kirkfield; but, dying without issue, the title devolved upon his cousin,

II. Sir John Maxwell, of Blawarthill, who m. 1st, Lady Anne Carmichael, dau. of John, Earl of Hyndford, by whom he had one son and a daughter. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Walter Stewart, Esq. of Blairhall, and by that lady had three other sons and two dau.; and, 3rdly, Miss Margaret Caldwell, without issue. Sir John d. about the year 1725, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. Sir John: at whose decease, unm., in 1755, the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. Sir Walter, who m. Darcy, dau. of Thomas Briscans, Esq. of Brisbane and Bishopport, and, dying in 1761, was s. by his only child.

V. Sir John: at whose decease in infancy, nioo weeks after his father, the title reverted to his uncle,

VI. Sir James. This gentleman m. Frances, 2nd dau. of Robert Colquhoun, Esq. of St. Christopher's, by whom he had issue, MONTFORT.

MONTFORT, LORD (Henry Bromley, D.C.L.), Baron of Horsecastle, Co. Cambridge; b. 14 May, 1773; m. 5 Sept., 1793, Miss Elizabeth Watts, but has no issue. His Lordship s. as 3rd Baron, on the demise of his father, 24 Oct., 1799.

Lineage.

This family is descended from Sir Walter Bromley, Knt., of Bromleigh, Co. Stafford, who lived in the reign of King John; but its patent of nobility was not granted to five centuries after that period. It enjoyed, however, in the interim, considerable rank amongst the gentry of the kingdom, and flourished particularly in the Co. of Stafford, Salop, and Chester. In 1579, it gave a Lord-High-Chancellor to England, in the person of Sir Thomas Bromley, Knt., one of the most eminent lawyers of his day. This learned person m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Adrian Fortescue, K.B., and, dying in 1567, was s. by his eldest son, Sir Henry Bromley, who received the honor of Knighthood from Queen Elizabeth, in 1569, and was returned to Parliament, in the same year, by the Co. of Worcester. He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Pelham, Knt., and had (with four dau.) a son, Thomas. He espoused, 2dly, Elizabeth, dau. of Hugh Vernon, of Somersetshire, and had a son, John. Sir Henry wedded 3rdly, Anne, dau. of Mr. Alderman Bewick, of the city of London, and had three more sons, Henry, Philip, and Robert. He d. in 1615, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir Henry Bromley, of Holt Castle, who m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Welbye, Knt. of Shedsley Webe, in Worcestershire, and, dying in 1641, was s. by his eldest son,

Henry Bromley, Esq. of Holt Castle. This gentle

MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Sir Henry, of Donegal, Bart., of Donegall and Kirkcowan, Co. Donegal, was a Captain in the 82nd Regiment, and sold his commission at the conclusion of the war of 1776, when he settled at the Hall, Co. Donegall. He married Maria, dau. of James Allen, Esq. of Castle Dobbs, Co. Antrim, and had issue.

Henry-Cunningham, his heir. James, of Sea View, Co. Donegal, b. in 1771; m. in 1806, Jemima, dau. of James Glasgow, Esq. of Aughadenarrin, Co. Leltrim, and had issue. Martha, m. to Anthony Coare, Esq. of Higginstown, near Ballyshannon. Anne, m. to the Rev. John Hawkins, eldest son of the late Bishop of Raphoe.

The elder son, Henry-Cunningham Montgomery, entered the East India Company's Military Service in 1763, and served as a Captain in the 82nd Regiment. At the breaking out of the war with Tipoo Sultan, he raised a corps of 300 horse, and served with the grand combined army under General Sir John Floyd, when he was placed at the head of three battalions of Infantry, 5,000 cavalry, and 17 pieces of Artillery. Upon his subsequent departure for England, general orders were published to the Army both by the Governor-General in Council, and by the Government of Madras, highly complimentary of his services. Captain Montgomery was appointed in 1803, Inspector-General of Volunteers and Volunteers in the Co. Donegal, with the rank of Lieut.-Col. in the Army. He served in Parliament for the Borough of St. Michael's and the Borough of Yarmouth, and was created a Bart. 3 Oct., 1818. Sir Henry m. Sarah-Mercer, dau. of Leslie Grove, Esq. of Grove Hall, Co. VI. Emily, m. 16 Aug., 1833, to Edward-Thomas Foley, Esq.

His Grace as 3rd Duke, at the demise of his father, 23 Sept., 1796. The Duke of Montrose is a Knight of the Garter, Lord-Justice-General of Scotland, Lord-Lieut. of the Counties of Stirling and Dumbarton, and Chancellor of the University of Glasgow.

According to the Scottish historians, this ducal family is as ancient as the monarchy of Scotland, by Fraser I.; and, by the same authority, it derives its origin from the renowned Graeme, who governed that kingdom during the minority of Fraser's grandson, Edward II., which reign commenced in the early part of the 5th century. It is certain, however, that no family of North Britain can boast of greater antiquity.

Sir David Graham, Knt. of Old Montrose, Co. Forfar (lands obtained by his father, Sir David Graham, of Kincardine, in exchange for the estate of Cardross, from Robert I.), a personage remarkable for patriotism and valor, was one of the Scottish Barons employed to negotiate the ransom of David II., made prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1346; and Sir David's son, Sir Patrick Graham, Lord of Dundaff and Kincardine, Knight-Banneret, became one of the hostages by which the release of the king was eventually accomplished.

Sir Patrick m. 1st, Matilda, and had issue,

William, his successor.

Matilda, m. to Sir John Drummond, of Conerrig.

He m. 2ndly, Egidia, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Bervous, brother of Robert II., by whom he had four sons, of which, Sir Patrick Graham, the eldest, m. Euphame, Countess Palatine of Strathmann and Countess of Caithness, and in her right became Earl of Stre-math, by which he had a son, Sir Robert Graham, 2dly, m. to his eldest daughter Sir William Graham, of Kincardine, who m. 1st,

John.

He m. 2ndly, the Lady Mary Stewart, 2nd dau. of King Robert III., and widow of George, Earl of Angus, and of Sir James Kennedy, of Dunur, by whom (who m. 4thly, Sir William Edmoundson, of Dunurth) he had five sons, of which,

Robert, was ancestor of the Graham of Fintry (now represented by Robert Graham, Esq.), and of the Graham of Claverhouse.

Patrick, Bishop of St. Andrews, and Papal Nuncio, now d. a prisoner in Lochleven Castle, in 1478.

William was progenitor of the Graham of Garrock, now represented by Robert Graham, Esq. of Gar-rock, (see Ruther Comyn's Commentaries, Vol. iii. p. 123), and of the gallant Lord Lyonhoch.

Sir William d. by his grandson,

Patrick Graham, of Kincardine, who having been appointed one of the Lords of the Regency during the minority of James II., was made a Lord of Parliament about the year 1445, by the title of Lord Graham. His Lordship d. in 1468, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

Lineage,

The Earl don of Moray become vested in the Crown of Scotland, by the forfeiture of Archibald Douglas, 3rd Earl of Moray, in 1540, and it remained dormant until the reign of James IV., who by letters patent, dated 30 June, 1541, conferred it upon James Stuart, his natural son, by the Honorable James Kennedy, the Lord Kennedie's daughter; but this nobleman dying without male issue in 1544, the Earl don again reverted to the Crown, and was presented by Queen Mary, in 1546, to George, Earl of Huntly, High-Chancellor of Scotland; her Majesty recalling, however, that grant was graciously pleased to bestow the Earldom, 30 Jan., 1561, upon James Stuart, Prior of St. Andrews, illegitimate son of James V., by Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Erskine, and natural brother to her Majesty. This nobleman played a conspicuous part, subsequently, as Regent of Scotland, when the unhappy Queen was compelled to surrender her Crown to her infant son, James VI. His Lordship m. in 1561, Anne, dau. of William Keith, Earl Marischal, and by that lady had two daughters, Elizabeth, m. to Sir James Stewart, son of James, Lord Doun.

Margaret, m. to Francis, 9th Earl of Errol.

The recent Moray, one of the most prominent persons in Scottish history, is thus characterized: "Personal intrepidity, military skill, and vigour, in the administration of civil affairs, are virtues, which even his enemies allow him to have possessed in an eminent degree. In a fierce age, he was capable of winning victory with humanity, and of treating the vanquished with moderation. A patron of learning; zealous for religion to a degree which distinguished him even at a time when professions of that kind were not uncommon. His confidence in his friends was extreme, and inferior only to his liberality towards them, which knew no bounds. His treatment of Mary, to whose bounty he was so much indebted, was unbrotherly and ungrateful. Amidst the turbulence and confusion of the period of his Regency, he dispensed justice with so much impartiality, he suppressed the licentious borderers with so much courage, and established such uncommon order and tranquility in the country, that his administration was extremely popular, and he was long and affectionately remembered among the commons, by the name of the Good Regent." The Earl of Moray eventually fell a victim to one of his foes. Hamilton, of Bothwellhaugh, a man distinguished for a vindictive disposition, in an age when revenge was counted a virtue and a duty, had a plot formed against him, which was discovered, and the perpetrator, in the act of flying the line of Langside, with the other captives, had been doomed to death after the battle, and, like others, he had received pardon from the Regent. But though Bothwellhaugh had been favourably treated, a separate property belonging to him had been declared forfeited, and was conferred by Moray upon one of his favourites, who, eager to obtain possession, brutally drove the wife of Bothwellhaugh, then recently delivered of a child, half naked into the fields, where she became so ill of a morning that she died. Her husband vowed vengeance on the Regent as the original author of the injury; and the Hamiltons, his kinmen, who had so much reason to hate and fear the then ruler of Scotland, encouraged him by applauding and abetting his design. Having taken singularly active measures for effecting his purpose and his escape, he lurked in an empty lodging in a street in Linlithgow, mortally wounded the Earl of Moray by a shot from a carbine, as he rode through the town, and, though closely pursued, among the commons, by the name of the Earl of Moray. This nobleman is known in history by the appellation of the "Bonny Earl of Moray." His Lordship had issue,

James, his successor.

Francis (Sir), 2nd, Member of Sir Walter Raleigh's Club, and one of the learned men of his time.

Margaret, m. 1st, to Charles, Earl of Nottingham, Lord High Admiral of England, and 2ndly, to William, Viscount Monson, and 3d. Aug., 1619, Mary, m. to John, 9th Lord Abernethy.

Grissal, m. to Sir Robert Innes, of Iness.

The Earl was murdered 7 Feb., 1592, by his hereditary enemy, the Earl of Huntly, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

James, 2nd Earl, who, through the King's mediation, was reconciled to his father's murderer, and was married, in 1601, to that nobleman's daughter, the Lady Anne Gordon, by whom he had one son, James, his successor, and a dau., Margaret, m. to Sir James Grant, of Grant. His Lordship accompanied James VI. into England, and got a new investiture of the whole Earldom of Moray to himself and his heirs male, 17 April, 1611. He d. in 1636, and was a by his son,

MORDAUNT.

Lineage.

The family of Mordaunt was originally of the Co. Bedford, and it ranked amongst the most eminent houses in that shire; it is the only one now remaining of those enumerated by Fuller, from an old record or catalogue of the principal gentry, taken during the reign of Henry VI.

Sir Osborne Le Mordaunt, a Norman Knight, of Redwell, Co. Bedford (an estate granted by William the Conqueror to his brother), was s. by his son,

Osmund Le Mordaunt, whose son,

Euchache Le Mordaunt, obtained with Alice, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir William de Aisseto, the Lordship of Turvey, Co. Bedford, and was s. by his son,

William Mordaunt, Lord of Turvey, Redwell, and Ashull, who was s. by his son,

William Mordaunt, Esq., who obtained permission from the Crown, in 1297, to inclose a park at Turvey, the inheritance of its being granted as the chief seat of the Percivall branch of his descendants. He m. Rose, dau. of Sir Ralph Wake, and was s. by his eldest son, Robert Mordaunt, Esq. of Turvey, M.P. for the Co. Bedford, in the 16th Edward III., who was s. by his son,

Edmund Mordaunt, Esq. of Turvey, m. Helen, dau. and co-heir of Ralph Bock, and was s. by his son, Robert Mordaunt, Esq. of Turvey, who m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John de Strange, of Aunton Tymouth, in Suffolk, and was s. by his son,

Robert Mordaunt, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Bedford, in the 9th of Henry V. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Holdenhuy, of Holdenhuy, Co. Northampton, and was s. by his son,

William Mordaunt, Esq. of Turvey, living in the 11th of Edward VI., m. Margaret, dau. of John Peeks, Esq. of Coole, Co. Bedford, and had, with other issue,

John (eldest son), who succeeded at Turvey, and was one of the King's Commanders at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. Being likewise learned in the law, he was, in 1491, constituted King's Serjeant in the 21st of Henry VII.; Justice of Chester in four years subsequently; and soon afterwards, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. In 1493, he was made one of the Knights of the Sword. Sir John d. in the following year, and his second son (who, at the decease of his brother, became heir),

Sir John Mordaunt, was summoned to Parliament in 1532, as Lord Mordaunt, a dignity which passed in regular succession to John, 5th Lord, who was created Earl of Peterborough, 9 March, 1627-8, an honor which expired with his descendant, the Earl of Peterborough and Morley, in 1814; and the Barony of Mordaunt devolved upon the late Duke of Gordon at the decease of Mary-Anaitasia, Baroness Peterborough, c. p. in 1619 (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage).

The second son (of William Mordaunt, Esq. of Turvey),

William Mordaunt, Esq. Protonotary of the Common pleas, m. in 1485, Anne, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Thomas Huntingdon, Esq. of Hempsted, in Essex, and was s. at his decease by his eldest son, Robert Mordaunt, Esq. of Hempsted. This geni-

mor

man m. Barbara, dau. and heir of John L'Estrange, Esq. of Masingham Parva, Co. Norfolk, and acquired thereby the estates of Masingham, and of Walton D'Eville, in Warwickshire. He was s. by his grandson, John Mordaunt, Esq., who was s. by his brother, James Mordaunt, Esq., who was likewise s. by his brother, Robert Mordaunt, Esq., who d. s. p. and was s. by his brother, Henry Mordaunt, Esq., who was s. by his son, I. L'Estrange Mordaunt, Esq. This gentleman having signalized himself during the reign of Elizabeth, as a Military Commander during the Wars in the Low Countries, and subsequently in Ireland, was amongst the first raised to a Baronetcy: being so created 29 June, 1611, soon after the institution of the order. Sir L'Estrange m. Margaret, dau. of Peter de Charles, of Antwerp, and had issue, Robert, his successor. Henry, who m. Barbara, dau. of James Calthorpe, Esq., and had a son, L'Estrange Mordaunt, Esq., who m. Barbara, sister of Sir Nevil Cattin, Knt., and had issue, Henry, Barbara, m. to Capt. John Browne. MOR

William.

Robert, Earl of Buchan. George (Sir), so celebrated as the deliverer of Mary, Queen of Scots, from the Castle of Lochleven, in 1568.

Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

Sir William Douglas, of Lochleven, of whom hereafter, as 6th Earl of Morton.

Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith, was assassinated by order of Sir David Barclay, of Brechin, in 1599, and Barclay himself was slain on the Shrove Tuesday following, by order of William de Douglas, in revenge of the foul deed.

Sir James Douglas, who s. his uncle, the Lord of Liddesdale, in the Barony of Dalkeith and Aberdour, and the remainder of his large possessions, whereby he was placed among the first rank of the greater Barons. Sir James was present at the Coronation of Robert II., 1st Scome, 26 March, 1327, and his seal is appended to the Act of Settlement of the Crown of Scotland, in 1373, he made a pilgrimage to Canterbury, for which a safe conduct was granted to him, as "James de Douglas de Daweth, Chivaler," dated 8 Dec. in that year. Sir James m. Agnes Doudobe, dau. of the Earl of March, and was s. by his son,

James, Lord of Dalkeith, who m. the Princess Elisabeth, dau. of Robert III., and had a son and successor,

James, Lord of Dalkeith, who was s. by his son,

James Douglas, Lord of Dalkeith, who was created a Peer of Parliament, 14 March, 1457-8, by the titles of Lord Aberdour and Earl of Morton. His Lordship m. Johanna, dau. of James IV., and relict of James, 2nd Earl of Angus, and was s. by his only son,

John, 2nd Earl of Morton, who was s. by his eldest son,

James, 3rd Earl, who m. Catherine, natural dau. of James IV., and had three sons, Margaret, m. to James, Earl of Arran, Duke of Chezzeltoun, Baronet of Scotland.

Beatrice, m. to Robert, Lord Maxwell, and had a son,

John, Lord Maxwell, of whom hereafter, as 6th Earl of Morton, according to the grant of the Crown.

Elisabeth, m. to James Douglas (son of Sir George Douglas of Pittendriech, and brother of the Earl of Angus), who s. under special settlement to the Earldom of Morton.

His Lordship having thus no male issue, made an entail of his estates and honors in favor of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven; but afterwards changed the destination in favor of his son-in-law, James Douglas, and Elisabeth, his wife. In consequence of which, at his Lordship's decease, in 1555, the honors devolved upon the said

James Douglas, of Pittendriech, as 4th Earl of Morton.

This nobleman was raised to the Chancellorship by Queen Mary, and held the seals until March, 1583, when he was forced to fly into England for alleged acquiescence in the murder of David Ritzia. His Lordship obtaining some afterwards, a pardon, returned, and was again Chancellor, under the Regency of the Earl of Moray; he was, subse-sequently, High-Admiral of Scotland; and, in 1587, Regent of the Kingdom. This tide of prosperity lasted, however, the Earl was accused of being accessory to the murder of Lord Darnley, in 1566, and being arraigned upon that charge, was found guilty, and publicly executed, at the market-Cross of Edinburgh, 2 June, 1566, by the machine called the Maiden, which he had himself invented, etc.

Morton, his Lordship, having no issue, made an entail of the Earldom in favor of his nephew, the Earl of Angus, and, in case of failure of issue of that nobleman, in favor of William Douglas, of Loch-levan. After his Lordship's execution and forfeiture, however, the Crown immediately conferred the Earldom of Morton upon John, Lord Maxwell, grandson of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, who became 4th Earl of Morton; but a general act of indemnity passing in 1663, that nobleman was obliged to surrender the Earldom to the heir of the entail; in recompense for which, the Crown created the Earldom of Nethusdale, with precedence, from Lord Maxwell's receiving the Earldom of Morton in 1681. On this succeeder, the Earldom of Morton accordingly de-volved upon

ARCHIBALD, 8th Earl of Angus, as 6th Earl of Morton (Lord Maxwell being regarded as 5th Earl), at whose demise, without issue, in 1688, it descended to

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, Knt. of Lochlevan, as 7th Earl of Morton (refer to descendants of Sir Henry Douglas, of Lugton and Lochlevan, 3rd son of Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith). This nobleman m. Lady Agnes Lesly, eldest dau. of George, 4th Earl of Rothes, and, dying in 1688, was s. by (the son of his deceased son, Rothes, by Jean, only dau. of John, 10th Lord Glamis), his grandson, WILIAM, 8th Earl, K.G. and Lord High Treasurer of Scotland. This nobleman, before the Civil Wars broke out, was one of the richest and greatest subjects in the kingdom, and, with the royal council, he advanced considerable sums for its support, disposing for that purpose of the noble property of Dalkeith, with other estates to the value of no less than £100,000 Scots of yearly rent. On that account the islands of Orkney and Zetland, with the other jurisdictions and appurtenances appertaining thereto, were granted to his Lordship, 15 June, 1664, by royal charter, redeemable by the crown on payment of £30,000 sterling. He m. Lady Anne Keith, eldest dau. of George, 5th Earl Marischal, and, dying in 1648, was s. by his eldest son.

Robert, 9th Earl, who m. Elizabath, dau. of Sir Edward Villiers, Knt., and, dying in 1649, was s. by his eldest son, WILIAM, 10th Earl. This nobleman procured a new grant of the islands of Orkney and Zetland, and that and the original grant being contested by the King's Advocate, and being renewed, those islands were annexed by Act of Parliament to the Crown, 27 Dec., 1669. His Lordship m. in 1692, Lady Grisel Middleton, eldest dau. of John, 1st Earl of Middleton, but, dying without surviving issue, in 1681, the honors reverted to his uncle.

SIR JAMES DOUGLAS, of Smithfield, as 11th Earl. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of James Hays, of Smithfield, and, dying in 1686, was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, 12th Earl. This nobleman was of the Privy Council to Queen Anne, and one of the Commissioners for the Union, which he strenuously supported in Parliament. He d. unmarried, in 1715, and was s. by his brother,

Robert, 13th Earl, who d. unmarried, in 1730, and was s. by his brother,

George, 14th Earl, e. Lieut.-Col. in the Army, and M.P. for Orkney, prior to inheriting the Peerage. He m. 1st, a dau. of Muirhead, of Linhouse, Co. Edinburgh, but by that lady had no surviving issue. His Lordship espoused, secondly, Frances, dau. of William Aderyer, of Halsow, in Kent, and, dying in 1738, was s. by his eldest son,

James, 15th Earl, K.T., b. in 1720, 1st, Agatha, dau. and heir of James Halliburton, Esq. of Pitcur, by whom (who d. 12 Dec., 1748), he had two surviving children, Sulloco-CHABIS, his successor.

Peter Eggecony, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Holland, Esq., and was father of

Sir Richard Eggecony, Knt., a person of great eminence in the times of Edward IV., Richard III., and Henry VII. In the 7th of the first-mentioned Monarch, he served in Parliament for Tewstok; and in the same year was Exchequer of the Co. Cornwall, an office then of great trust. He subsequently joined Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, against Richard III., and had a narrow escape for his life after the defeat and execution of that nobleman. But making his way into Brittany, he enrolled himself under the banner of the Earl of Richmond, and returning to England, participated in the victory of Bosworth, and received the honor of Knighthood from his victorious chief on the field of battle. He was afterwards sworn of the Privy Council, and appointed Comptroller of his Household by the new Monarch. He obtained likewise grants of the castle, honor, &c., of Totness, and the Manor of Cornwall, with various other lands in the Co Devon: of which shire he served the office of Sheriff in 1497. Sir Richard was subsequently sent into Ireland, "being a person observed by Sir James Ware, of singular prudence," to administer the oaths of allegiance and obedience, as well to the nobility, gentry, and prime officers, as to the commonalty of the realm: and brought over with him 50 armed men. Lineage.

This ancient family deduces its descent from the Baron of Montmorency, in France; a branch of which illustrious house came into Ireland with William the Conqueror, and having obtained a grant in the principality of Wales, soon settled in the Isle of Anglesay.

Harvey de Monta-Mariscoe, of Beaumaris, uncle of Richard, Earl of Strongbow, attended that chief in his expedition to Ireland; and, upon the subjugation of the kingdom, obtained considerable territorial grants in the Co. of Wexford, Tipperary, and Kerry; some of which still remain with his successors, but the greater part have been conveyed, by intermarriages, to the houses of Leinster and Ormonde. This Harvey m. in 1125, Nesta, dau. of Maurice Fitzgerald, ancestor of the Dukes of Leinster; but, in 1179, retired from the world, and became a Brother in the Monastery of the Holy Trinity, in Canterbury. At his decease, he bequeathed the greater part of his extensive property to his nephew Geoffrey de Mariscoe, who was Chief-Governor of Ireland in 1215, 1226, and 1230. From these eminent personages, we pass to their descendant, John Morris, Esq. of Knockagh Castle, Co. Tipperary, who was created a Bart., 29 March, 1782. Sir John m. Miss Walsh, dau. of Pierce Walsh, Esq. of Abingdon; and, dying in 1788, was s. by his eldest son,

2. William, in Holy Orders; b. 19 Feb., 1796, and d. 1 Nov., 1830.

MOU

His Lordship s. as 3rd Earl, on the demise of his father, 4 July, 1816.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the lordship of Annesley, Co. Nottingham, where its ancestor, Richard or Annesley, was seated at the time of the general survey in 1729. From this Richard descended

Sir John Annesley, Knit. of Hedonst, Co. Oxford, M.P. for Nottinghamshire, temp. Edward III. and Richard II., who m. Isabel, sister and co-heir of Sir John Chamlour, one of the Knights of the Garter, at the instigation of that noble Order; Viscount of the Isle of Constantine, in Normandy; Great Seneschal of Poictou; and High Constable of Aquitaine; and was s. by his son.

Thomas Annesley, Esq. of Annesley, M.P. for the Co. Nottingham, whose great-grandson, William Annesley, Esq. of Annesley, had, with other children,

Robert Annesley, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, Co. Bucks, who d. in 1553, and was s. by his son,

George Annesley, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, whose eldest son,

Robert Annesley, Esq., was a Naval Officer to the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and also a cap. in her Majesty's Army, raised to the Earl of Desmond's rebellion, after which he became an undertaker in the plantation of Munster. He m. Beatrice, dau. of John Cornwall, Esq. of Moor Park, Co. Hereford, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Francis Annesley, Knit., who filled for forty years several of the highest official situations in Ireland. In 1656, he was appointed Comptroller over the Clerk of the Works; in 1607, made Joint-Clerk of the Council, and Keeper of the Signet in the Province of Munster; in 1612, he was constituted Constable of the Castle of Mountnorris; in the next year, Sir Francis represented the Co. of Armagh in Parliament; and in 1616, he was nominated one of the Principal Secretaries of State for Ireland, and sworn of the Privy Council; but the office being granted without fee, he had a reversionary patent, dated 8 June, 1616, of the Secretaryship and Custody of the Privy Signet, on the avoidance or death of Sir Dudley North, whereupon he resigned the reversionary grant of the Master-Master-Generalship, which he had previously obtained. Upon the institution of the Order of Baronets of Ireland, Sir Francis Annesley was the second person upon whom that dignity was conferred, by patent dated 7 Aug., 1620, and in the following year, Sir Francis obtained a reversionary grant, by patent, dated 11 March, 1621, of the Irish Viscountcy of Valentia, at the decease of the then Viscount, Sir Henry Power. He was put, however, into the more immediate possession of a Peerage, by the title of Baron Mountnorris, of Mountnorris, Co. Armagh, 8 Feb., 1628. For the sufferings of this nobleman under the government of the Earl of Strafford, see Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage. His Lordship m. 1st, Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Philips, Bart. of Picton Castle, Co. Pembroke, by whom he had Arthur, his successor, and other children. He espoused 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Sir John Stanhope, and widow of Sir Peter Courtenay, Bart. of Addington, Co. Worcester, by whom he had several children, the eldest of whom,

Francis m. Deborah, dau. of Henry Jones, Bishop of Meath, and was father of

Francis of Thorganby in Yorkshire, M.P., who left, with other issue,

1. Francis, ancestor of the Annesleys of Betchinglythoo. (See Burke's Peerage. Vol. 1. p. 7.)

2. Martin, in Holy Orders, had issue,
MOW

His Lordship d. in 1650, and was s. by his eldest son, Arthur, 2nd Baron, who was enrolled amongst the Peers of England, 29 April, 1661, as Baron Anthoney, of Northfield Park and Earl of Anglesey. This nobleman was Treasurer of the Navy, in 1667, and Lord-Privy- SEAL in 1673. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir James Atalh, of Oxen, Co. Herts, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, by whom he had (with other children),

1. James, Lord Anthoney.

2. Altham, who was created Baron Antham, of Altham, with remainder to the issue male of his younger brothers (after his own). 14 Feb., 1660, and, dying in 1669, was s. by his only son,
James-George, 2nd Lord Altham; at whose decease, in infancy, the dignity reverted to his (father's younger brother) his uncle,

III. The Hon. and REV. Richard Anthoney, D.D., Dean of Exeter, as 3rd Lord Altham, who d. in 1701, the year he inherited the Peerage, and was s. by his son, Arthur, 4th Lord Altham, whom m. Mary, natural dau. of John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham and Normandy, but, dying a. p. in 1727, was s. by his brother, Richard, 5th Lord Altham, of whom hereafter, as 5th Earl of Anglesey.
The Earl d. 6 April, 1688, and was s. by his eldest son, James, 2nd Earl, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Earl of Rutland, and had issue,

James, m. successively Earls of Anglesey.

Arthur, m. Elizabeth, to Robert Gayer, Esq. of Stoke Poges, Bucks.

His Lordship d. in 1690, and was s. by his eldest son,
James, 3rd Earl, who m. Lady Catherine Darnley, natural dau. of James 11., and left an only dau. and heir, Catherine, m. to William Phipps, Esq., son of Sir Constantine Phipps, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and had a son, Constantine, who was created Baron Moulgrave, in the Peerage of Ireland.

His Lordship d. 10 Jan., 1701-2, and was s. by his brother, John, 4th Earl, who m. in 1706, Lady Henrietta Stanley, eldest dau. and co-heir of William, Earl of Derby, by whom he had no surviving issue. He d. in 1716, and was s. by his brother,

Arthur, 5th Earl. This nobleman m. Mary, dau. of John Thompson, Lord Heversham, but, dying issueless, the honors devolved upon his kinsman, Richard, 5th Baron Altham, as 6th Earl of Anglesey (revert to descendants of Altham, 2nd son of 1st Earl). This nobleman was not left, however, in uninterrupted enjoyment of the honors; for soon after his accession, a claimant arose in the person of Mr. James Annesley, who asserted that he was himself the son of Arthur, 4th Lord Altham, and a publication, entitled "The Adventures of an Unfortunate Young Nobleman," gave v. extraordinary and interesting narrative of his case. In that statement it was alleged, that Mr. Annesley was the true and lawful son and heir of Arthur, Lord Altham, and that he had been kidnapped and transported by his uncle Richard, to make room for his own accession to the honors and estates of the family. Mr. Annesley followed up the matter, instituted a suit at law for the recovery of the estates, and, after a trial in the Court of Exchequer in Ireland, James Annesley versus Richard, called Earl of Anglesey, begun 11 Nov., 1743, and continued daily, by adjournment, to the end of the same month, obtained a Verdict. We believe, however, that he did not live long after, as the uncle, notwithstanding this decision, continued to enjoy the honors and fortune. The conduct of that person throughout the whole course of his iniquitous career, fully sustained the presumption that he had been very capable of committing the foul crimes thus laid to his charge. He is said to have married three wives, two of whom he heartlessly abandoned, and the offering of the third was unable, but partially, to establish his legitimacy. The second lady, whom he wedded, was a half-pay officer, without title or fortune, and for some years afterwards was chiefly maintained by her father and friends. After his accession to the Barony of Altham, and subsequently, to the Earlomf of Anglesey, this lady was received at the Fisc Regal Court in Dublin, as the consort of his Lordship, and so introduced by himself. He cohabited with her for several years, during which time he had three daus. and those, with their mother, he eventually left to starve. His third wife was a Miss Donovan, whom he espoused in the lifetime of the second, under the allegation that he had a wife living when he married Miss Simpson, and that his marriage with that unhappy lady was therefore illegal. To Juliana Donovan he appears to have been married in 1741, immediately after the decease of Anne Phrust, the first wife, by his own chaplain, the Rev. L. Neill, at his seat, Camolin Park, Co. Wexford, and by her (who m. after his decease, Matthew Talbot, Esq. of Castle Talbot, Co. Wexford), he had an only son,

Arthur,
The Earl d. 4 Feb., 1703, when the legitimacy of his son was contested by the heir at law, John Annesley, Esq. of Ballysack, who petitioned the Irish Parliament to be admitted to the honors of the family. The matter excited great public interest, and was pending in the Irish House of Lords for nearly four years, when their Lordships came to a decision, establishing the marriage with Miss Donovan, and confirming the right of her son,

To the Viscount of Valentia and the other Irish honors. His Lordship on coming of age, in 1705, and taking his seat in the House of Lords of Ireland, applied for a writ as Earl ANNESLEY to the English Parliament, but there the decision was against him, and the writ was, of course, denied. He continued, however, to sit as Viscount Valentia (his claim being a second time investigated and confirmed in Ireland), and was created 20 Dec., 1703, Earl of Mountnorris. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1707, Lucy, only dau. of George, lst Lord Lyttelton, by whom (who d. in 1733), he had

m. Mary, dau. of Sir Richard Graham, Bart. of Netherby, by whom he had three sons and four daughters. The Bart., was a distinguished supporter of the Royal Cause, and was made Col. by Charles I. of a Regt. which he had raised and maintained at his own expense. To sus-tain, however, the heavy charge, he was necessitated to alienate estates to the amount of £2000 a year. Sir Edward attended CHARLES II. at the battle of Worcester, and when the Prince's horse was shot under him, dismounted, and supplied him with his own. After the defeat he fled into Scotland, and was protected by the Duke of Gordon, until Crawford, finding him out, dispatched a message to the Duke, "That if he did not forthwith deliver up Neat Musgrave, that arch rebel, he would send a troop of Horse, and storm the castle." Sir Edward was then forced to fly to the Isle of Man, where he soon after died, and was s. by his eldest son,

Stirling, Esq. of Kippendavie, and has issue,

1. Hubert-William-Milliken.
3. William.
4. James.
5. Mary.
6. Anne-Campbell.

Sir William-Milliken-Napier, was served heir male general of Archibald, 3rd Baron Napier, 17 March, 1817, and consequently to the Baronnetcy enjoyed by that Peer, one of the oldest Baronetcies in Scotland. Sir William is the 17th to descend from the 1st Baron Napier, who flourished temp. Alexander III., King of Scotland.

Lineage.

1. Archibald Napier, Esq., eldest son of John Napier the celebrated inventor of Logarithms, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 2 March, 1667, and elevated to the Peercy of Scotland, 4 May, in the same year. On the death of his grandson, Archibald, 3rd Baron, his male line terminated, when the Barony passed, as stated in the Lineage of Lord Napier, and the Baronetcy descended to his heirs male.

Robert Napier, Esq. of Cullereigh, second surviving son of the author of the Logarithms, by his second wife Agnes, dau. of Chisholm, of Cromis, m. twice, and by his second wife (the issue of his 1st wife became extinct in 1817), left two sons William, who d. without surviving

Lineage.

Michael Nasmyth, Chamberlain of the Archbisho-ric of St. Andrews, obtained the estates of Posso, in the year 1544, as a dowry with Elizabeth, one of the dau. and co-heirs of John Baird, of Posso. During the intestine troubles in Scotland, in the reign of Queen Mary, this gentleman appears to have espoused the cause of the unfortunate Princess, and to have fought under her banner. at Langside, in 1568. He was subsequently banished, and his property seized upon by the Regent Moray. He d. at an advanced age, about the year, 1600, and was s. by his grandson.

James Nasmyth, Esq., Member of the Scottish Parlia-mament in 1627, and Sheriff of the Co. Peebles. This gentleman m. in 1640, Agnes, dau. of William Burnett, Esq.
of Bars, and was s. by his eldest son.

Sir Michael Nasmyth, Esq., who was appointed, in 1683, Falconer to the King; and, in 1689, obtained a pension of £100 a year. The arrears of this gentleman has been preserved to the present time; and a lure worn by the King and presented to him, is yet in the family. He d. 1710, and was s. by his brother.

Dr. Robert Nasmyth; at whose decease, without issue, in 1712, the lands of Posso, and the representation of the family, reverted to his cousin.

"One of the greatest names," says Sir Egerton Brydges, "which will hereafter occur in the annals of British history, or perhaps in the annals of the world, at least as far as the operations of war are concerned, will be NELSON. His heroic deeds are so numerous, so splendid, and so incalculably important, that in him the biographer is confounded with excess of light. Of some men, the great deeds require to be told, because they deserve celebration. The celebrity of Nelson is already so universal, that he who endeavours to add to it, incurs the hazard of effecting no other purpose than the tedium of a tale a thousand times told. The three words, NEL, COMPANHON, TRAFALGAR, would say more than a hundred pages could relate." Fully impressed with the truth of this opinion, we will not dare to dim the glory of this immortal seaman, by the faint light which our limited space could throw upon his exploits. His death—he died of his own disease—was a sorrow to the nation. Nelson, who was created a baronet by the late Rev. William Walpole, R.N., was at his death in 1747, by his eldest son,
1. SIR WILLIAM NELSON, Rector of Hillborough, in Norfolk, who m. Mary, dau. of John Bland, of Camber, Sussex, general, and was a. 2nd Jan., 1770, to his granddaughter.

5. Nelson, b. in 1809.

NELSON.

Nelson, Earl (Horatio Nelson), of Merton and Trafalgar: Viscount Merton and Trafalgar, of Merton, Co. Surrey; and Baron Nelson, of the Normandy and of Hillborough, Co. Norfolk; in the Peacock of the United Kingdom; Duke of Bronte, in Sicily; b. 7 Aug, 1823; s. to the honors, as 3rd Earl, on the demise of his father, in 1855.

* By his wife Anne Turner, dau. of Sir Charles Turner of Warham, in Norfolk, Bart., by Mary, eldest dau. of Robert Walpole, and sister of Sir Robert Walpole, K.G., bart., Earl of Orford, and of Hora, Lord Walpole, of Wolterton. See Burke's Commissioners. pointed; in 1725, Comptroller of the Navy, and young Nelson was soon afterwards nominated to act as 4th Lieut. of the WORCESTER, commanded by Capt. Mark Robinson. On the 9th April, 1777, he passed his examination as Lieutenant, and the next day received his commission as Lieut. of the ROYALTIES E agate from which, at the end of a year's active service, he was appointed third Lieutenant of the Bristol, the flag-ship of Admiral Sir Peter Parker. In 1778, at the close of the year, he was a Commander in the Badger brig, and in Jan., 1779, POST-CAPTAIN. Thus much for his early promotions. He did not, however, attain the rank of Rear-Admiral until March, 1792, or before he had fairly won his way by the most gallant and indefatigable services; & et this period he was rewar ded, too, with the Order of the Bath. In addition we shall briefly state, that his triumph of the Nile was achieved 1 Aug., 1798, and that he was advanced to the Peerage in consequence, as Baron NELSON of the Nile, and of Burnham Thorp, Co. Norfolk; & pension of £3000 per annum being attached to the Peerage for his own life, and the lives of his two immediate successors. In April, 1801, His Lordship appeared before CORNHAGEN, and there, to the fame of a great captain, added the reputation of a prudent negotiator. The next month (22 May, 1801) he was created Viscount NELSON; and soon after gratified (4 Aug., in the same year) by the grant of a collateral Peerage to his family, under the title of Baron NELSON of the Nile, and of Hilborough, in Norfolk, with remainder to his family, and the heirs male of his body, and after those to his sisters, Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Matcham, in succession, and the heirs male of their bodies of the female line. From this period we pass over many a valiant exploit, until the HABIO at length won the imperishable wreath of immortality, by the proudest conquest ever achieved, the VICTORY of Trafalgar (21 Oct., 1805). He fell, though, at the moment his country was saved. He fell when the naval host of France and Spain was scattered like dust before the whirlwind, and their importance, as naval powers, for ever annihilated.

His Lordship espoused, in 1797, Frances, dau. of William Herbert, Esq., and relict of Josiah Nisbet, M.D. of the Isle of Nares; but, dying s. p., all his honors, save that of the last barony, become extinct, but that, in accordance with the limitation, devolved upon his brother, the REV. WILLIAM NELSON, D.D., the 1st Earl Nelson. The Viscount had been created, by the King of the Two Sicilies, Duke of Bronte. The remains of all gallant and lamented heroes were honored with public obsequies, and deposited in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, in London, 2 June, 1806. His Lordship was s. by his elder surviving brother,

WILLIAM (the REV. D.D.), 2nd Viscount, who was created Earl NELSON, 20 Nov., 1806, with permission from his Majesty to inherit his deceased brother's Sicilian dukedom of Bronte. The Earl, who was b. 20 April, 1777, was a Prebendary of Canterbury; he m. 1st, 9 Nov., 1799, Sarah, dau. of the Rev. Henry Yonge, by whom (who d. 13 April, 1828) he had an only surviving dau., Charlotte-Mary, m. in the present Lord Bridport. Earl Nelson espoused, 2ndly, 26 March, 1839, Hillare, third dau. of Rear-Admiral Sir Robert Barlow, sister of the Viscountess Torrington, and widow of his cousin, Capt. George-Urlic Barlow, who d. in 1824, by whom he had no issue. His Lordship d. 28 Feb., 1838, when the honors devolved on his nephew,

NEW BURGH.

Newburgh, Earl of (Francis Eyre-Radcliffe-Livingstone), Viscount Newburgh, of Newburgh, Co. Aberdeenshire; Viscount Kinnaird and Baron Livingstone, of Floraig, in the Peerie of Scotland; b. 7 July, 1794; s. to the honors, as 8th Earl, at the decease of his brother, 22 May, 1833.

Lineage.

Sir John Livingstone, of Kinnaird, descended from Robert, 2nd son of Sir John Livingstone, of Calendar, ancestor of the Earls of Linlithgow, had charters of the Barony of Kinnaird, Co. Fife, in 1618, and was created a Bart, in 1627. Sir John d. in the following year, and was s. by his son,

Sir James, one of the Gentlemen of the Bed-Chamber to Charles II, who was elevated to the Peersage of Scotland, at Newburgh, 13 Sept., 1642. His Lordship retired to the Hague during the usurpation, and returned with his Royal Master at the Restoration, when he was appointed Captain of his Majesty's Body-Guard, and advanced to an Earldom, 31 Dec., 1660, by the titles of Earl of Newburgh, Flavigny and Baron Livingstone, of Flavigny, with remainder to his heirs general whatsoever. The Earl m. 1st, Lady Catherine Howard, dau. of Theophilus, 2nd Earl of Suffolk, relict of George, Lord Aubigny, and mother of Charles, Duke of Richmond and Lennox, by whom he had an only dau., Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Robert Delaval, Esq., and 2ndly, to Henry Hatcher, Esq. The Earl m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Henry Poole, of Saperton, Co. Gloucester, by whom he left an only surviving son, his successor, at his decease, 30 Dec., 1670.

Charles, 2nd Earl, who m. Frances, dau. of Francis Lord Brudenel, son of George, Earl Cardigan, which Lady m. 2ndly, Richard, Lord Belloue, of Ireland, and, dying in 1694, was s. in the earldom, d.e. (the first Baroney and Baronetcy expires) by his only daughter.

Charlotte Maria, Countess of Newburgh. Her Ladyship m. 1st, the Hon. Thomas Clifford, eldest son of Hugh, Lord Clifford, of Chudleigh, by whom she had two daughters.

Anna, m. 1st, to Lieut. Gen. Count de Mahony, in the service of H.M. the King of Naples, and had an only daughter.

Carulla, b. at Naples, in Dec., 1740, m. in 1757, to the Prince Glieni, by whom she had several children, all born in Italy, and this deprived her of the right of succession to the honors of the house of Newburgh.

Count de Mahony d. in 1757, and her Ladyship m. 2ndly, Count Carlo Savaroni, but by him she had no issue.

Francis, d. unm.

The Countess of Newburgh m. 2ndly, the Hon. Charles Radcliffe, third son of Francis, Lord Radcliffe (by Mary Tudor, natural dau. of Charles II.), and brother of James, Earl of Derwentwater. Both of the Radcliffes engaging in the rising of 1715, the Earl was executed 24 Feb., 1716, and his great and noble estates forfeited; while Charles, who was taken prisoner at Preston, 14 Nov., 1715, found guilty of High Treason, 18 May, 1716, and condemned, effected his escape out of Newgate 11 December following, and retired into France. On the death of his nephew, John, Lord Radcliffe, in Dec., 1721, Mr. Radcliffe assumed the title of Derwentwater. Adhering still to the fortunes of the house of Stuart, he embarked with his son to join the Chevalier in 1745, and was taken prisoner on board the Esperance Privateer by the Sherness man-of-war, when he was immediately committed to the Tower of London, and was, under his former sentence, on Tower-Hill, 8 Dec., 1749. The Countess of Newburgh had, with other issue, who d. unm., by this faithful but unfortunate personage,

1. James Bartholomew, her Ladyship's successor.
2. James Clement, a Gen. Officer in the French service, d. 11 May, 1760.
3. Mary, who m. 11 Feb., 1755, Francis Eyre, Esq. of Walworth Castle, Co. Northampton, and d. 27 Aug., 1766, leaving issue,

1 Francis, a daughter.
2 James, b. 6 Jan., 1776, m. to Serjeant Osbourn, M.P., who d. to m. to Radcliffe, of Challock Court, and has a dau. Mary, 1800.

The Countess d. in 1735, and was s. by her eldest son,

James Bartholomew Radcliffe, as 4th Earl, who claimed the revenues of the Derwentwater estates but the claim appears to have been relinquished, for his Lordship seems subsequently to have acquiesced in an Act of Parliament passed in 1725, settling those estates upon Greenwich Hospital, but allotting thirty thousand pounds thereto from himself and his sisters. This nobleman, who was born at Vincennes in 1725, m. in 1749, Barbara, only dau.
and heir of Anthony Kemp, Esq. of Silston, Sussex, and, maternally, of Henry, 5th Viscount Montagu, and, dying 2 Jan., 1786, was s. by his only son, ANTHONY JAMES, 5th Earl. This nobleman m. in 1719, Anne, dau. of Joseph Webb, Esq., by whom he had no issue. Lord Newburgh having presented a petition to Parliament, leave was given 3 June, 1778, to bring in a bill for granting £25,000 per annum to his Lordship, commencing from March, 1779. The Earl d. 29 Nov., 1814, when the honors devolved upon his first cousin, FRANCIS EVRE, Esq. as 6th Earl, (refer to Mary, dau. of Charlotte-Maria, Countess of Newburgh), who assumed the additional surnames of "Radcliffe-Livingstone." His Lordship, who was b. 10 Feb, 1763, m. 28 Aug., 1775, tingham, Custos-Rotulorum of Newark, Steward and Keeper of Sherwood Forest, and High-Stew-ward of Retford.

LINEAGE.

This ducal family is supposed by some to derive its su-urname of Clinton from a Lordship in the Co. of Oxford, at present denominated Glinptom t. and to deduce its descent from William de Villa Teneredi, Chamberlain of Norma-dy, and Maud, his wife, dau. of William de Arches, descended from Wevis, sister to Gunora, Duchess of Nor-saud. By others, however, it is said to be of Angle-saxon origin.

John de Clinton, of Amington, Co. Warwick, was summoned to Parliament, as Baron Clinton, of Masteb, in the 27th Edward I., 6 Feb., 1293. He m. lady, dau. of Sir William de Odelinga, Lord of Maxtlock Castle, and other possessions in Warwickshire, and had two sons, the youngest of whom,

Sir William de Clinton, having attained considerable military renown in the reign of Edward III., and participated in the triumph of Halidon Hill, was created by that monarch, 16 March, 1337, Earl of Huntington, but dying without male issue, in 1354, the dignity expired (refer to Burke's Extinct Peers);

While the elder son,

Sir John Clinton, s. his father, and had summons to Parliament, as a Baron, in the 5th, 7th, 9th, and 9th of Edward III., in the last year, or very soon after, he died,
and was s. by his son,

Sir John Clinton, a participant in the Military glories of Edward II., and the Black Prince; in the list of which monarch's reign he was summoned to Parliament as a Baron. His Lordship m. Idonea, eldest dau. of Jeffery, Lord Say, grandua, maternally, of Guy Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, co-heir of her brother, William, Lord Say, and cousin and heir of William de Say, Baron of See;
which Idonea Say, upon the decease of her niece, Elizabeth, dau. of her brother, William, Lord Say, became eldest co-heir of that noble family. By this lady, Lord Clinton had three sons, and was s. by the eldest,

William, 4th Lord Clinton, summoned to Parliament from the 23rd of Richard II. to the 9th of Henry VI.
Inclusive. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Horreux, and widow of Sir Pouke Fitwaryn, Knt, and dying 30 July, 1425, was s. by his only son,

John, 5th Lord, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Fynes, Lord Dacre, of Hurst-Monceaux, in Sussex, and was s. at his decease, 23 Sept., 1464, by his son,

Humphrey Stafford, and dying 29 Feb., 1485, was s. by his son.

* By Elia, dau. of Walter Fitz-Robert, son of the famous Robert Fitz-Walter, "the Marshal of the Army of God," who headed the confederated Barons against King John, by Idia, his wife, 4th dau. of Elia, Countess of Salisbury, and her husband, William Longespere, natural son of Henry IV, by Fair Rosamond.
John, 7th Lord, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Morgan, of Tredegar, Co. Monmouth, and was s. at his decease, 6 June, 1515, by his son,

Thomas, 8th Lord, m. Mary, dau. of Sir Edward Poyning, Knight Banneret, and Knight of the Garter, by whom he left at his decease, 7 Aug., 1517, an only son, Edward, 9th Lord Clinton, a personage of the highest eminence, as a Naval officer, during the reigns of Henry VIII and his three immediate successors. His Lordship was sworn, in 1530, of the Privy Council, and constituted Lord High Admiral. In June, 1531, he was installed a Knight of the Garter. In 1557 he was a second time appointed Lord High Admiral, and confirmed in that office by Queen Elizabeth, upon her accession, who created his Lordship, 4 May, 1572, Earl of Lincoln. 12. Emily.

His Lordship inherited the Earlom and Viscounty, as 2nd Earl, at the decease of his father, 27 July, 1831, and the Barones of Norwood and Norbury, on the death of his brother, in 1832.

Lineage.

The family of TOLER, originally of Norfolk, was established in Ireland by one of the successful soldiers in Cromwell's Army, who acquired grants in the Co. of Tipperary, and settled at Beechwood.

DANIEL TOLER, Esq. of Beechwood, m. Letitia, dau. of Thomas Otway, Esq. of Castle Otway, in the same Co., and had issue,

1. DANIEL, who succeeded at Beechwood, and represented his native County for several years in Parliament. He m. Rebecca, dau. of Paul Mincen, Esq., and had issue,

i. DANIEL, who d. on marriage.

ii. HENRY, d. in May, 1807.

iii. OTWAY, d. in May, 1807.

iv. CATHARINE, m. to John Green, Esq. of Old Abbey, Co. Limerick, and d. in 1797.

v. PHOEBE, m. to John Head, Esq. of Ashley Park, Co. Tipperary, and d. in 1843.

The 2nd son,

JOHN TOLER, b. in July, 1740, was called to the Irish Bar in 1770, and returned to Parliament by the Borough of Tralee in 1775, when he arrayed himself under the banner of Government, and in the turbulent times that followed, sustained, as well by his eloquence, as his personal courage, the cause he had espoused. In 1701, he obtained a silk gown. In 1780, he was appointed Solicitor-General, and he succeeded Mr. Wolfe (the lamented Lord Kilwarden) in the Attorney-Generalship. While holding one of those offices, Mr. Toler accepted a challenge from the celebrated demagogue leader, James Napper Tandy, who afterwards shirked from the rencontre. In the dreadful era of 1798, when his native country was desolated by a triumphant and vindictive faction—when the brand and the scourge blazed and resounded from one extremity of that ill-fated land to the other, and atrocities were of every day occurrence, at the bare recital of which humanity now revolts with disgust and horror, the arduous duties of Attorney-General devolved upon Mr. Toler,—how he fulfilled them the partisan deceits according to the tone and tinge of his party—will the impartial historian leave the errane of Lord Norbury unsculted?

In 1810, he was elevated to the Bench and the Peerage, to the former, as Chief-Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, to the latter (by letters patent, dated 29 Dec., in that year) in the dignity of Baron Norbury; he had previously obtained a Peerage (2 Nov., 1797) for his lady, as BARONESS NORWOOD. His Lordship retired from the Bench in 1827, when he was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Glandine, and EARL OF NORURY, with remainder to his 2nd son, Hector-John. Lord Norbury m. 6 June, 1728, Grace, dau. of Hector Graham, Esq., Secondary of the Irish Court of Common-Pleas, and had issue,

1. DANIEL, who, his mother in the BARONY OF NORWOOD, and his father, in that of Norbury, d. w.o. in 1829, and the former, and son of Thomas Otway, of Beechwood, Co. Carlow, and his 2nd wife,

2. HECTOR-JOHN, present Peer.
3. Isabella.
4. Letitia, m. 3 March, 1813, to William Browne, Esq. of Browne's Hill, Co. Carlow, and his 2nd wife.

"During a long enjoyment of lucrative offices," says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine, "Lord Norbury accumulated a large fortune, at the same time he was an excellent landlord, and a gentle and forbearing master. In his deportment towards the Bar he was undulatingly polite; and in private society he was a most agreeable, although a very grotesque, companion. His literary studies stopped short of the present century. He was always a remarkably good horseman, and to his latter years appeared well mounted in the streets." His Lordship d. 17 July, 1831. Lady Norbury pre-deceased him some years; her Ladyship d. 21 July, 1822.

Arms.—Quarterly: first and fourth, az. a cross, fleur. gu. charged with a plain cross, coped of the field, between four leaves vert., a crescent for cadency, for TOLER: second and third, az. a trefoil slipped vert. in chief az. three escutcheons or, for Graham.

Crest.—A fleur-de-lis or.

Supporters.—Dexter, a horse ar. bridled gu.; sinister, a lion rampant, pp.

Motto.—Regi et patriae fideli.

Seals.—Cahiragh, Co. Dublin, and Burrow, King's County.

NORFOLK, DUKE OF (Bernard-Edward Howard, F.R. and A.S.), Earl of Arundel, Surrey, and Norfolk; Baron Fitz-Allen, Clan, and Oswedestrie, and Multavets; EARL-MARSHAL AND HEREDITARY MARSHAL OF ENGLAND; Premier Duke and Earl, immediately after the Princess of Blood Royal; b. 21 Nov., 1765; m. 23 April, 1789, the Lady Elizabeth Bathurst, 3rd dau. of Henry, last Earl of Fauconberg (which marriage was dissolved by Act of Parliament in 1794, and her Ladyship re-married, in the same year, Richard, 2nd Earl of Lucan), by whom (who d. in 1819) he has an only son,

Henry-Charles, Earl of Surrey, M. P., b. 12 Aug., 1791; m. 27 Dec., 1814, Charlotte Sophia, eldest dau. of George-Granville, 1st Duke of Sutherland, and has issue, Henry-Granville, Lord Fitzalan, a Cornet in the Horse Guards, b. 7 Nov., 1815.

Edward-George, b. 20 Jan., 1818.

Bernard-Thomas, b. 30 Dec., 1823.

Mary-Charlotte. Adeliza-Matilda.

His Grace s. as 12th Duke, on the demise of his kinsman, Charles, the late Duke, 16 Dec., 1815.

Lineage.

This ducal house stands, next to the blood royal, at the head of the Peerage of England, and is the chief of the family of Howard; of whose origin, Dogdale thus speaks: "There are those, perhaps, who will expect that I should ascend much higher in manifesting the greatness of this honorable and large spreading family of Howard, in regard I do not make any mention thereof above the time of Edward I, some supposing, that their common ancestor, in the Saxon time, took his original appellation from an eminent office, or command; others, afterwards, from the name of a place. And some have not stuck to derive him from the famous Hereward, the chief conductor of those forces which so stoutly defended the Isle of Ely, for a time, against William the Conqueror and his Army. But to this last I cannot well assent, on reason that Ingulph, then Abbot of Crowland, who was his contemporaneous, affirms that Hereward left no other issue than an heir female, named Turforde, wife to Hugh de Everme, Lord of Depping, Co. Lincoln. I shall therefore, after much fruitless search to satisfy myself, as well as others, on this point, begin with William Howard, a learned and reverend Judge of the Court of Common Pless, for a great part of the reign of Edward I., and beginning of that of Edward II."

This William Howard, who was Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, from 1257 to 1266, had large possessions in Wingenhale, Co. Norfolk. He s. twice: 1st, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Fitzton, Knt., by whom he had two sons,

John, his successor. William; 277 and, 2ndly, Alice, dau. of Sir Robert Ufford, Knt., but there was no issue of that marriage. Sir William was s. by his elder son, Sir John Howard, Knt. of Wiggenhall, one of the Gentlemen of the Bedchamber to Edward I. He m. Joan, sister of Richard de Cornwall, and, dying in 1301, was s. by his son.

Sir John Howard, Knt., who was constituted in the 9th of Edward III., Admiral and Captain of the King's Navy in the North, and in the following year had an assignation of £128 7s. 6d. for the wages of himself, with his men at arms, and the same year, having affairs to transact beyond the seas, the King granted him his protection, dated 24 April, 1337, to be in force, till the 1st of Aug. following. Sir John was Sheriff of Norfolk in 1346. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir Robert de Boys, and sister and heir of Sir Robert de Boys, of Furseldon, in Norfolk, by whose alliance the whole inheritance of the Boys came into the Howard family. Sir John Howard s. by his grandson,

Sir John Howard (only surviving son of Sir Robert Howard, by Margaret, dau. of Robert Hands, who was Sheriff of the Co. of Essex and Hertford, in the reigns of Henry IV. and Henry V. He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John Plats, of Tofte, in Norfolk, and of Stansted, Mountfitchet, in Essex, by whom he had issue,

John, (Sir) who d. in the Holy Land during his father's lifetime (1409), leaving by his wife, Joan, dau. of Sir Richard Walton, Knt., and sister and heir of John Walton, Esq. of Wyvenhoe, in Essex, an only dau. and heir,

Elizabeth, who m. John Vere, Earl of Oxford, and through this lady the Veres acquired the Baronetage of Plats, and became co-heirs to that of Scales. (See Burr's Extinct Peerage.)

Margaret, m. 1st, to Constantine Clifton, of Bickingham Castle, Norfolk, and 2ndly, to Sir George Talbot.

Sir John m. 2ndly, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir William Tendring, of Tendring, and had two other sons, Robert, (Sir) his successor.

Henry, who had by gift of his father, the Manor of Tendring, Earl Walton, Bockenham, Wiggenhall, and other lands in Norfolk. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Henry Hussey, and left a dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Henry Wentworth, of Codham, Essex.

Sir John d. in 1436, and was s. by his elder surviving son,

Sir Robert Howard, Knt., who m. Margaret, elder dau. of Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, by Elisabeth, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel, and cousin and co-heir of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk. By this marriage, the inheritance of those great families became, eventually, in part vested in the house of Howard; and, by Isabel, the other co-heir, partly in the house of Berkeley. (The above-mentioned Thomas da Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, was son and heir of John, Lord Mowbray, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John, Lord Segrave, and of Margaret-Plantagenet, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel, and of William de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, and Marshal of England, the eldest son of Edward I., by his 2nd wife, Margaret, dau. of Philip the Hardy, King of France. This Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, was invested with the office of Earl Marshal, 19 Feb., 1380-1, being the first so designated, his predecessors having been simply styled Marshals.) Sir Robert Howard had, by this illustrious alliance, two daughters, Margaret, m. to William Daniel, Baron of Bathwre, in Ireland.

Catharine, m. (2nd wife) to Edward Nevil, Lord of Aberavenny.

And an only son,

Sir John Howard, an eminent Yorkist, not only on account of his princely birth (maternally) and magnificent fortune, but from the stations of high trust which at different periods he had filled. After distinguishing himself very early in life, in the French wars of Henry VI., Sir John was constituted, by Edward IV., in 1461, Constable of the Castle of Norwich; appointed Sheriff of the Cos. of Norfolk and Suffolk; and granted some of the forfeited Manors of James Butler, Earl of Wiltshire, in England, and of Ormonde, in Ireland. In 1468, being Treasurer of the King's Household, Sir John Howard obtained a grant of the whole benefit that should accrue to the King by the confiscation of monies or absence offficers in the city and Tower of London, or elsewhere, in the realm of England, so long as he should continue in that office. In 1470, when he was summoned to Parliament under the titles of Lord Howard, he was made Captain-General of all the King's Forces at sea, for resisting the attempts of the Lancastrians, then rallying under Nevill, Earl of Warwick, the Duke of Clarence, and others. In 1471, his Lordship was constituted Deputy-Governor of Calais and the marches adjacent; and his summons to Parliament, as a Baron, continued until he was created Earl Marshal of England, and Duke of Norfolk, 29 June, 1483; when his son and heir, Thomas Howard, was created Earl of Surrey. The Duke had been previously invested with the insignia of the Garter. As Earl Marshal, his Grace was empowered (in the King's presence or absence) to bear a golden staff, tipped at each end with black, the upper part thereof to be adorned with the royal arms, and the lower with those of his own family; and for the better support of the dignity of the said office, he obtained a grant to himself, and his heirs for ever, of 1000l. annually, payable half-yearly, out of the fee-farm rent of Ipswich, in Suffolk. His Grace was subsequently constituted Lord-Admiral of England, Ireland, and Aquitaine, for life, and obtained grants of divers Manors and Castleships in the East of Suffolk, Kent, Cambridge, Cornwall, Somerset, and Wiltts. But he did not long enjoy these great possessions; for, the next year, being with Richard, at Bosworth Field, he fell in leading the van of that Prince's army. His Grace was warned by some of his friends to refrain from attending his sovereign to the field; and, the night previous to the battle, the following diastich was set upon his gate:

"Jockey of Norfolk, be not too bold,
For Dickon, thy master, is bought and sold."

Yet he would not desert his royal master; but as he had faithfully lived under him, so he manfully died by his side. His Grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William, Lord Molines, by whom he had issue,

Thomas, Lord Surrey.
Anne, m. to Sir Edmund Gorges, of Wraeshall, Somerset.
Isabel, m. to Sir Robert Mortimer.
Jane, m. to John Timperly, Esq. of Flintham, in Norfolk.
Margaret, m. to Sir John Windham, of Crountheorpe and Felling, in Norfolk.

His Grace espoused, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Chedworth, Knt., by whom he had one daughter.

Catherine, m. to John Bouckier, Lord Berners.

The Duke was attained by Parliament, 7 Nov., 1485, when all his honors became forfeited: while his only son, Thomas, Earl of Surrey, being also attainted, lost his Earldom. His Lordship was, however, after suffering an imprisonment of three years in the Tower, restored in 1489; and created Duke of Norfolk and Earl-Marshal, 1 Feb. 1491, in lieu thereof, a Knight of the Garter, and nominated Lord-Treasurer. This nobleman was a distinguished Military Commander, and celebrated as Lord Surrey, for the victory he had achieved over the Scottish Monarch at Flodden, in which the Prince (James IV.) fell, 9 Sept., 1513. His Grace m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Frederick Tilney, Knt. of Ashwell Thorpe, Co. Norfolk, and widow of Sir Henry Bourchier, K.B., son of John, Lord Berners, by whom he had, with other issue,

1. Thomas, created Earl of Surrey, in the Duke's lifetime.
2. Edward, K.G., who acquired great eminence in arms, tended Henry VII., and Henry VIII., and was made King's Standard-Bearer for life, and Admiral of his Fleets, by the latter Monarch; in which capacity he lost his life in boarding a French vessel of Brunt, in action, 25 April, 1513.
3. Edmund, Marshal of the Horse in the battle of Flodden, 9th Sept. 1513, of Henry VIII.; m. 1st, Joyce, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Cippeuer, and had issue,

1 Henry, whose wife, Anne Howard, was attainted of his Grace, Queen Catherine Howard. 5 Catherine, Queen Consort of Henry VIII.
2 George, (Sir) of d. s. p. 6 Margaret, m. to Sir Thomas Arundal, of Warwick.
3 Charles, (Sir) of d. s. p. 7 Joyce, m. to John Stanley, Esq.
4 Margaret, m. to Sir Thomas Stanley, of War- 8 Isabel, m. to Sir Henry Baud- dour.

Lord Edmmond wedded, 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Thomas Troyes, Esq., but had no other issue.

John, (Sir) d. s. p.
5 Elizabeth, m. to Thomas, Viscount Rochford, by whom she had issue of Anne Boleyn.
6 Mary, m. to John Grey, Viscount Lisle, and afterwards to Sir Thomas Knyvet, Knt. of Boleham, in Yorks.

His Grace espoused 2ndly, Agnes, dau. of Hugh Thistle, Esq., by whom he had

VII. William, ancestor of the Lords Howard of Elstam.

VIII. Thomas, who, aspiring to the hand of Lady Margaret Douglas, dau. of Margaret, Queen of Scotland, and niece of Hannay VIII., was attainted of treason, and died a prisoner in the Tower of London, in 1536.

A. Anne, m. to Sir Thomas Wriothesley, Knt. of Oxford.
B. Dorothy, m. to Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby.
C. Elizabeth, m. to Henry Ratcliff, Earl of Sussex.
D. Margaret, m. to Sir John, K.G., and 2ndly, to Sir Henry Dabney, Earl of Bridgewater.

The Duke d. 21 May, 1524, and was a. by his eldest son, Thomas, 3rd Duke, who was attainted in 1526, was restored in 1535, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His Grace m. 1st, the Princess Anne, 3rd dau. of Edward IV., but had no surviving issue; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, by whom he had

Hannay, K.G., Earl of Surrey, one of the brightest ornaments of the house of Howard, whose intrepid and execution was the last tyrannical act of Henry VIII. This distinguished statesman, poet, and warrior, Sir Egerton Bridge's thus characterizes amongst his friends, as a man of learning, a genius, and a hero; of a generous temper, and a refined heart, he united all the gallantry and unbroken spirit of a rude age, with all the elegance and grace of a polished era. With a splendidness of descent, in possession of the highest honors and studious wealth, he relaxed not his efforts to deserve distinction by his personal worth. Conspicuous in the rough exercises of tilts and tournaments; and commanding armies with skill and bravery in expeditions against the Swiss under his father, he found time, at a period when our literature was rude and barbarous, to cultivate his mind with all the exquisite spirit of the mode tle and Rome; to catch the excellences of the revived muses of Italy, and to produce in his own language composition, which, in simplicity, perspicu- ity, graceful ornaments, and just and natty thought, exhibited a shining contrast with the works of his predecessors, and an example, which his successors long attempted in vain to follow. The Earl of Sur dey underwent the penalty of his unjust sentence during the lifetime of his father (whom he had the burs of the said from the date, 20 Jan. 1446, leaving issue by his wife, Frances, dau. of John Vere, Earl of Oxford,

Thomas, successor to his grandfather.
His Grace d. 18 July, 1554, and was s. by his grandson,

Thomas, 4th Duke, R.G., who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and eventually heir of Henry Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel (see Berkeley's Erniont and Dormant Peerages), by whom he had an only son, Philip; and, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Audley, of Walden, by whom he left two sons, Thomas, who s. to the Baronry of Walden, in right of his mother, and was created Earl of Suffolk.

William, from whom the Earl of Carlisle [see that dignity], and Henry Howard, Esq. of Corby Castle. (See Berkeley's Commonwealths.)

This nobleman shared the fate of his distinguished father; for, being attainted of high treason, for his communications with Mary, Queens of Scots, he was beheaded in 1579, when all his honors became forfeited. His eldest son, Philip, however, inherited, in right of his mother, the feudal Earldom of Arundel, as owner of Arundel Castle, in Sussex, with the Barony of Fitz-Alan, Clan, Cleveland, and Maltravers, and was summoned to Parliament as Earl of Arundel: but being attainted in 1599, he died a prisoner in the Tower in 1605, leaving by his wife, Anne, sister and co-heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gilsland, an only son,

Thomas, who was restored in 1603, to the Earloms of Arundel and Surrey; created Earl Marshal in 1621, and Earl of Norfolk, 6 June, 1644. His Lordship m. A. alister, dau. and co-heir of Gilbert, Earl of Shrewsbury, and had issue, James, Lord Mowbray and Maltravers, K.B., d. issu.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the Lordship of Compton, Co. Warwick; of which place its founders were lords previous to the Conquest.

SIR WILLIAM COMPTON, Knt. (descended from Turchuillia de Eardene, a person of great influence and power before and after the Norman Invasion, and supposed to have been Earl of the County of Warwick), having been employed in his youth about the affairs of his late Duke of York, obtained the confidence of that Monarch, and was subsequently his companion in the tournament and battle. Sir William filled the offices of Chief Gentleman of the Bedchamber, Usher of the Black Rod, Constable of Dudley Castle, Constable of the Castle of Gloucester; and, after the battle of Spurs, in which he took a distinguished part, he was constituted Chancellor of Ireland, for life, which he officiated by deputy. He m. Werburg, dau. and heir of Sir John Breveton, Knt., widow of Francis Cheyne, Knt., and heir of her mother, who was sister and heir of Sir William Berkeley, Knt. He d. 31 May, 1628, and was s. by his only son,

LINEAGE.

The House of Percy was founded in England by one of the Norman chieftains (William de Percy) who accompanied Willam the Conqueror, in 1086; and it derives the name from the village of Percy, near Ville-dieu. The family of Percy, of Normandy, deduced its pedigree from Geoffrey (son of Mainfrod, a Danish chieftain), who assisted Rollin, in 912, to subjugating that principality, and acquired considerable possessions therein.

William de Percy, being high in favor with the victorious Duke, obtained, according to Mados, in his "Baronia Anglica," a Barony of thirty Knights' fees from that monarch, in his new dominions, and thus became a feudal Lord of the Realm from the Conquest. The Lord William de Percy, who was distinguished amongst his contemporaries by the addition of Algermes (William with the Whiskers), whence his posterity have constantly borne the name of Algeron, restored, or rather refounded, the famous Abbey of St. Hilda, in Yorkshire, of which his brother, Serlo de Percy, became first Prior. Accompanying, however, Duke Robert, in the first crusade, 1099, he died at Montjoy, near Jerusalem, the celebrated eminence whence the pilgrims of the Cross first viewed the Holy City, leaving four sons and two daughters, by his wife Emma de Port, a lady of Saxon descent, whose lands were amongst those bestowed upon him by the Commines, and, according to an ancient writer, 'he wended his way that was very near to them, disobliging of his conscience.' His daughter was a, in his feudal rights and possessions by his eldest son,

Alan de Percy, 2nd Baron, summoned the Great Alan, who m. Emma, dau. of Gilbert de Gaunt (which Gilbert was son of Baldwin, Earl of Flandres, and nephew of Queen Matilda, wife of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR); and was s. by his eldest son, William de Percy, 3rd Baron; at whose decease, the eldest branch of the first race of Percys, from Normandy, became extinct. In the male line, and their great inheritance devolved upon his Lordship's two daws. (by Alice de Tumbridge, dau. of Richard, Earl of Clare, who was usually styled de Tumbridge, from his Castle of that name), the ladies MAUD and AONNE de Percy, successively.

Maud de Percy, the elder, was 1st wife of William de Newburgh, Earl of Warwick, by whom (d. 1804), and then the whole possessions of the Percys descended to the family of her sisters.

Aonienne de Percy, who m. Jooseltine, of Loyset, brother of Queen Aelidice, 2nd wife of Henry I., and son of Godfrid Barbaus, Duke of Lower Lorraine, and Count of Brabant, who was descended from the Emperor Charlemagne. Her Ladyship would only consent, however, to this great alliance, upon condition that Josceline should adopt either the surnames or arms of Percy; the former of which he accepted, and returned from his pention coast, in order to perpetuate his claim to the priscipality of his father, should the eldest line of the reigning Duke at any period become extinct. The matter is thus stated in the great old pedigree, at Siem House: “The ancient arms of Hainault this Lord Joscelin retained, and gave his children the surname of Percy.” Of this illustrious alliance there were several children, of whom,

1. Henry de Percy, the eldest son, who appears to have died before his mother, m. Isabel, dau. of Adam de Bruis, Lord of Skelton, with whom he had the manor of Levengton, for which he and his heirs were to repair to Skelton Castle every Christmas-day, and to tend the lady of the Castle from her chamber to the chapel to mass, and thence to her chamber again, and after dining with her, to depart. This Henry left two sons,

1. William, of whom pre-

Henry de Percy, of Hesets, Sussex.

2. Henry, ancestor of the Percy family.

II. Richard de Percy, the youngest son of Agnes and Josceline de Percy. His eldest sister, Matilda, Maud, Countess of Warwick, and even of a great proportion of that of his mother, and retained the same during the principal part of his life; at length, subsequently to infinite litigation, it was settled between him and his nephew, William de Percy, to whom the inheritance belonged, after a solemn hearing before the King in person, 6 July, 1244 (14th Henry III.), that the estates should be divided into equal portions between the parties during Richard’s life: and that after his death, all the ancient patrimony of the Percy family should devolve upon his nephew, aforesaid; a small cession having been made for Richard’s son and heir, Henry de Percy. This Richard de Percy continued for the whole of his life at the head of the family, and enjoyed all its hereditary rights. He was one of those powerful Perculis in the judgment who took up arms, in 1215, against King John, and having a principal hand in extorting the Great Charter of English freedom, was shown one of the twenty who signed the MAONA CHARTA duly observed. He d. about 1244, and then his nephew, William de Percy, came into full possession of all those rights and properties which had been usurped at the decease of his mother; but did not live long to enjoy them. He d. in 1245, and was s. by his son (by his 2nd wife, Elen, dau. of Ingelram de Balliol, by whom he acquired, in dower, Dalton, afterwards called Dalton Percy, in the Bishopric of Durham).

HENRY de PERCY, who m. Alienore, dau. of John Pontefract, Earl of Warenne and Kenrey; and, dying in 1272, was s. by his only surviving son,

HENRY de Percy, 9th Feudal Lord, who was summoned to Parliament from 6 Feb., 1289, (27th Edward I.) to 20 July, 1315 (8th Edward II.). This nobleman obtained, 19 Nov., 1309, from Anthony Beck, Bishop of Durham, by purchase, a grant of the Barony of Alnwick, Co. Northumberland. His Lordship was one of the great Barons who subscribed, in 1301, the celebrated letter to Pope Boniface VIII., upon the attempt of his Holines to interpose in the affairs of the Kingdom, intimating, “That their king was not in our judgment, for any rights of the Crown of England, before any tribunal under heaven, &c., and that, by the help of God, they would resolutely, and with all their force, maintain against all men.” * He d. in 1315, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY de Percy, 2nd Lord Percy, of Alnwick. This nobleman obtained a grant from the Crown, 2nd of Edward I., of the reversion of the Barony and Castle of Warwick, &c. He had summons to Parliament from 1292 to the time of his death, 26 Feb., 1315-6, when he

Early of Northumberland fall subsequently (29 Feb., 1407-8), in arms against the King, at Bramham Moor, near his cousin, and thus his house became forfeited under an attainder, but were restored, in 1414, to his grandson, HENRY PERCY, 2nd Earl of Northumberland, who m. Lady Eleanor Nevill, dau. of Ralph, 1st Earl of Westmorland, and Joan de Beaufort, dau. of John of Gaunt, and of HENRY V. Of this nobleman and his Countess, and their issue, the following account is given in a very curious MS. preserved in the British Museum, and there said to be extracted "Ex Registro Monasterij de Whitby."

"Henry Percy, the son of Sir Henry Percy, that was slain at Shrewsbury, and of Elizabeth, the dau. of the Earl of Marche, after the death of his father and grammar, was exiled into Scotland in the time of HENRY V.; by the labour of Johnn, the Countess of Westmorland (whose father, Alanor, he wedded in coming into England), he recovered the King's grace, and in the Co. of Northumberland was the third Earl of Northumberland. And of this Alanor his wife, he begat IX somes and III dais, whose names be Johnn, that is buried at Whithy's Thomas (created), Lord Egremont; Kathylene Gray, of Ruthyn (wife of Edmund, Lord Grey, afterwards Earl of Kent); Sir Ralph Percy; William Percy, a BYSHP; Richard Percy; John, that died without issue: another John (called by Vincent, in his MS. Baromage at the Harleian's office, John Percy, senior, of Warwick), George Percy, Charles Percy, that died without issue; besides the eldest son, and successor, Henry, 3rd Earl of Northumberland."

His Lordship, who was Lord-High-Constable, fell at the battle of St. Albans, 22 May, 1455, under the banner of HENRY VI., and was by his eldest surviving son.

HENRY, 3rd Earl, who m. Eleanor, dau. and sole heiress of Richard Poyning, who died in the lifetime of his father, Lord Poyning, by which marriage the Barony of Poyning, Fitzpayne, and Bryan, came into the family of the Percy, and Sir Henry Percy was summoned to Parliament, while his father, the Earl of Northumberland, yet lived (29th HENRY VI.) as Baron Poyning. His Lordship fell leading the van of Lancastrians, sword in hand, at the battle of Tewton, 29 March, 1461, and his honor became consequentially forfeited by an act of at-tainder, but were restored to his only son.

HENRY, 4th Earl, K.G., who was confined in the Tower of London from the death of his father until the 27th Oct., 1469, when, being brought before EDWARD IV. at his palace of Westminster, he subscribed an oath of allegiance, and was restored to his freedom and dignity, although the reversal of his father's attainder does not appear upon the rolls of Parliament. The King had previously created John, Lord Montague, Earl of Northumberland, but, upon the re-establishment of the rightful Earl, Lord Montague was created Marquess of Montague. This Henry, 4th Earl, fell a victim, in 1469, to the avarice of HENRY VII.; in that year Parliament having granted the King a subsidy for carrying on the war in Bretagne, the Earl of Northumberland, as Lord-Lieut. of his County, was empowered to enforce the same: but the tax causing a general commotion, his Lordship wrote to inform the King of the discontent, and praying an abatement, to which Henry peremptorily replied, "that not a penny should be abated;" which message being delivered incautiously by the Earl to the populace, who had assembled to complain of their grievances, they broke into his house (supposing him to be the promoter of their sufferings), Cocklodge, in Yorkshire, and murdered his Lordship and some of his attendants, 28 April, 1469. The Earl was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY-ALGERNON, 5th Earl, K.G., who m. Catherine, dau., and co-heir of Sir Robert Spencer, Knt., of Spencer-Combe, Devon (by Eleanor, his wife, dau., and at length, co-heir of Edmund Beaufort, Duke of Somerset), and had issue, HENRY-ALGERNON, his successor.

THOMAS, (Sir) executed for Ask's conspiracy, 29th HENRY VII., leaving two sons.

THOMAS, successively Earls of Northumberland, Henry, land.

Ingledram, (Sir). See claim of James Percy, at foot.

Margaret, m. to Henry Clifford, 1st Earl of Cumberland.

Maud, m. to Lord Coniers.

His Lordship d. in 1527, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY-ALGERNON, 6th Earl, K.G. This nobleman entertained a strong and early passion for the beautiful Anne Beaufort, but urged by the irresistible influence of HENRY VIII., his father compelled him to renounce all intention of making that lady his wife, and to espouse the Lady Mary Talbot, dau. of George, Earl of Shrewsbury. His Lordship d. without issue, in 1537, and his brother, Sir Thomas Percy, having been previously attainted and executed, all the honors of the family became forfeited, and the title of Duke of Northumberland was conferred, by EDWARD VI., upon John Dudley, Earl of Warwick; but that nobleman having forfeited his life and honors by treason against Queen Mary, in 1553, his Majesty resolved to advance by letters patent, dated 30 April, 1537,

THOMAS PERCY, son of the attainted Sir Thomas Percy, to the degree of a Baron, by the titles of Baron Percy, of Coecermouth; Baron Poynings, Lucy, Bryan, and Fitz-Payne; and, on the day following, his Lordship was created Earl of Northumberland, with the title of Lordship, to his brother, &c. This nobleman having espoused against Queen Elizabeth, was beheaded at York, 22 Aug., 1572 (showing the Pope's supremacy, and affirming the realm to be in a state of schism, and those obedient to Elizabeth no better than heretics), when his honors would have fallen under his attainder, but for the re-formation clause in favor of his brother,

HENRY PERCY, who s. as 8th Earl. His Lordship m. Katherine, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Nevill, Lord Latimer, by whom he had eight sons and three daughters. The Earl having been committed to the Tower, for participation in a supposed plot in favor of MARY, Queen of Scots, was found dead in his bed there, wounded by three bullets from a pistol, 21 June, 1588, when he was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 9th Earl, K.G. This nobleman, after every effort to involve him in the Gunpowder Plot proved in vain, was "cast (says Osborne) into the State House, by being sentenced to a fine of £30,800, with imprisonment in the Tower during his Majesty's pleasure, and actually suffered several years' incarceration. His Lordship m. Dorothy, sister of Queen Elizabeth's favorite, Essex, and widow of Sir Thomas Fortescue, Knt., and, dying 5 Nov., 1628, was s. by his eldest surviving son, ALGERNON, 10th Earl, K.G., who had been summoned to Parliament, in the lifetime of his father, as Baron Percy. This nobleman took an active part, during the Civil Wars, against CHARLES I., but was entirely free of any participation in his murder. He subsequently promoted the Restoration. His Lordship d. 13 Oct., 1665, and was s. by his only son (by Lady Elizabeth Howard, 2nd dau. of Thobertus, 2nd Earl of Suffolke),

JOCOBINE, 11th Earl. This nobleman m. Elizabeth, youngest dau. of Thomas Wrothley, Earl of Southeam-ton, Lord-High-Treasurer of England, by whom he had, at Portman, 21 May, 1670, an only dau., ELIZABETH, of whom presently, but no male issue, when the honors created by Queen Mary ceased. CHARLES I. created, in 1674, his third natural son, by the Duchess of Cleveland, George Fitzroy, Earl, and, afterwards, Duke of Northumberland; but that nobleman dying without issue, in 1716, those dignities expired. In the meantime the James Percy, a trunk-maker, claimed the honors of the Percy family, and so annoyed the House of Lords, that their Lordships at last sentenced him to wear a paper in Westminster-Hall, declaring him "A false and impudent pretender to the name of Percy," distant, as the parchment states, five miles from Alnwick, the residence of Percy; but his Lordship d. without issue, 1 Nov., 1680, and her Ladyship m. 1682 (3rdly, it is stated, but she appears to have been only contracted to Thomas Thynne, Esq. of Longleat, who was assassinated 12 Feb., 1661-2), Charles Seymour, Duke of Somerset, who, as already stated, by preliminary engagement, the surname and arms of Percy, from that stipulation he was released when her Grace attained majority. By this marriage the Duchess had thirteen children, the eldest surviving of whom, Algernon Seymour, was summoned to Parliament, in 1729, on the death of his mother, as Baron Percy. His Lordship inherited the Dukehood of Somerset in 1741, and was created Baron Warkworth, of Warkworth Castle, Co. Northumberland, and Earl of Northumberland, 3 Oct., 1749, with remainder to

* CLAIM OF JAMES PERCY,

(known as the Trunk-maker),

To the Honors and Estates of the Family of Percy, extracted from a Case addressed to Charles II.

The claimant deduced his descent from Sir Ingram Percy, 3rd son of Henry, 5th Earl, who, he alleged, left two sons, Haway and Robert. The elder, Henry Percy, esq. the deu. of one Tibbott, and had three sons, James, William, and Henry. The two elder d. ann.; but the younger,

James Percy, m. Lydea, dau. of Mr. Robert Cope, of Horton, in Northamptonshire, and had three sons, Henry, who d. young.

James, the trunk-maker, and claimant to the Percy Honors.

Henry, d. young.

James Percy, the claimant, arrived in England to prosecute his claim in 1679, and entered the same in the Signet-Office, 3 Feb., 1671. In 1674, he brought an action at law against one John Clerk, for scandalizing that he had been an impostor, &c., but upon the trial he was nonsuited, owing, he declares, to the collusion of his attorney; and he states that the Lord-Chief Justice Hales, disinterested with the decision, stood up, and said aloud, in open Court, that the claimant had proved himself a true Percy, by father, mother, grandfather, and grandmother, and of the blood and family of the Perces of Northumberland; and that he did verily believe the claimant was cousin and next heir male to Joceline Percy, late Earl of Northumberland, only he was afraid he had taken the descent a little too late; and Lord Hales is further stated to have said, when entering his coach, to Lord Shaftesbury, I verily believe he James Percy hath as much right to the Earldom of Northumberland, as I have to this coach and horses, which I have bought and paid for. The claimant brought a subsequent action against another of his adversaries, one Wright, for slander, in declaring his illegitimacy, &c., and the case was tried before Lord Chief Justice Rainsford, when, having proved his legitimacy end pedigrees, he had a verdict for £300 damages. After this he appears to have had a long litigation in the Exchequer, with Edward Craster, Esq. of Alnwick, for £20 annual rent out of that shire attached to the Earldom, and it must be owned that all the difficulties, which weight and importance could devise, were thrown in the way of anything like a fair decision of the merits of the case.

SIR HENRY SMITHSON, Bart. (see "Family of Smithson" at foot), who had married his Grace's dau., the Lady Elizabeth Seymour, and who succeeded to those honors upon the demise of the Duke in 1754, obtaining in the same year, an Act of Parliament to allow himself and his Counties to assume the surname and arms of Percy. His Lordship was installed a Knight of the Garter in 1755; and created Earl Percy and Duke of Northumberland 18 Oct., 1765. He formed the Barony of Louvaine, of Alnwick, with remnant to his son, Lord Algernon Percy, by patent, dated 28 Jan., 1764. He d. in 1766, and was s. by the eldest son.

Creations.—Bart., 2 Aug., 1806. Baron and Earl, 2 Oct., 1749. Earl and Deke, 18 Oct., 1765; Baronesse in fee, through various alliances of the ancient Percy. Sir Hans Nicolas, in his very able Synopsis, comes to the following conclusions regarding the Baronesse supposed to be vested in his Grace of Northumberland.

1. That according to the fair deduction from modern decisions, the ancient Baron Percy, created by writ of summons, 6 Feb., 1296, became extinct on the death of Henry-Algernon, 6th Earl, in 1837.

2. That the Baroney of Percy of Cockeramouth, and Pelworth, with the Barony of Poyings, Lucy, Bryan and Fitzpayne, created by the patent of 20 April, 1537, became extinguished on the death of Joceline, 11th Earl, in 1670.

3. That Algernon Seymour, afterwards Duke of Somerset, and 1st Earl of Northumberland, was erroneously placed in the precedence of the ancient Barony on being summoned to Parliament in 1722.

4. That Hugh Percy, grandson of the said Duke, and Baron Percy, Poste mortem, and Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, were likewise erroneously placed in the precedence of the original Baron.

5. That the only Baron of Percy vested in his Grace, Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, is the Barony in fee, created by writ of summons to his great-grandfather, Algernon Seymour, in 1726.

Family of Smithson.

The family of Smithson derives its surname from an ancient family in the North Riding of Yorkshire, called Smithton, or Smithon, in which district the Smithsons have possessed considerable estates since the Conquest.

In Doomsday Book the name is written Smithton, and, MALORUM de Smithton held a manor there.

ROBERT DE SMITHTON, brothers, or first cousins, and THOMAS DE SMITHTON, bear on a jury in an inquisition taken on Thursday, the feast of St. Catherine, anno 1333; and it appears that the family about this period removed from Smithson to Yafford, which latter estate John Smithson exchanged, in 1441, with Robert Denhy, for the lands of Newsome, &c. From this John we pass to his lineal descendant,

ANTHONY SMITHSON, Esq. of Newsome, b. in 1560, who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of George Cakerick, Esq. (the representative of a family which ranked amongst the most ancient gentility of Yorkshire), and had several children, of which the 2nd son,

HUGH SMITHSON, Esq. of Stanwick, in the Co. York, b. in 1628, becoming eventually the chief, and eminently distinguishing himself during the Civil wars upon the side of royalty, was created a Baronet 2 Aug., 1660. Sir Hugh m. Dorothy, dau. of Jerome Rastborio, Esq. of Plais-Co. Essex, and had three sons,

This family paternally derives from the ancient Milesian family of O'Reillys (Prince of Lower Brefney, now in the Co. Cavan). The O'Reillys, Gough, in his additions to Camden, makes the following observations: "Whence Mr. Camden received his information that the O'Reillys derive from the Ridleys does not concern us to enquire. Spencer falls into a similar error: he derives the Mac Mahons from the Ves of England, because the one in Latin, and the other in Irish, have some affinity in sound to the name of ho'on pig in those languages; but both are equally the impositions of etymology. Before the English got footing in Ireland, the O'Reillys of Cavan, the Mac Mahons of Monaghan, the Mac Guires of Fermanagh, the O'Donnel of Donegal, with other chieftains in their own septs, were tributary to O'Neill, of Ter Gen. Such of the descendants of those chieftains as I have ascertained, have assimilated with the rest of the Irish in their Military extraction. When Hugh O'Neill threw off his allegiance to Queen Elizabeth, he also threw off the title of Earl of Tyrone, saying that he would rather be O'Neill of Ulster, than King of Spain."

CHARLES, Catharine.
The younger son,

1. CHARLES OAKLEY, Esq. was created a Baronet, 5 June, 1726, in consequence of his services in India. After filing various important offices he was appointed Goverror of Madras, in 1740. His exertions, which enabled Lord Cornwallis to refit his army at a moment of great distress in 1758, were publicly acknowledged by that distinguished Commander, and the success of his Government was also marked by the brilliant capture of Pondicherry, in 1758.
Sir Charles effected a vast improvement in the Company's finances, and received the unanimous thanks of the Court of Directors on his return to England, in 1794. He m. in

Lineage.

This ancient family claims a royal Milesian descent, and deduces its lineage from the common ancestor of the O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone (originally Kings of Ulster), and the O'Melagheans, Kings of Meath. Passing, however, over the remoter degrees of royalty, we shall commence with Hugh Oon, alias Hugh Devere, Chief of Tyrconnel, who d. 5 July, 1557, leaving a son, Manus O'Donell, who m. 1st, — by whom he had issue,

Cath. Hug.

Manus O'Donel m. 2ndly, the dau. of Shan O'Neill, Lord of Enniskillen, and had a son, Manus Oge. He m. 3rdly, Joan, sister of Con Baccagh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrona, by whom he had

2 Roy, upon whom, 29 Sept., 1660, the English monarch conferred the Baronry of Donegall, and

3 A 2

O'DONEL OF TYRCONNEL. The Earl of Tyrconnel's male line terminated with his great grand-son, Manus O'Donell, who left two dau. only at his decease.

The eldest son of Manus O'Donell, Calvagh O'Donell, dying s. p. in 1556, was s. by his brother, Hugh O'Donell, whose only son, Con O'Donell, m. the dau. of Tirlogh Luineagh O'Neill, and had three sons and a daughter,

Calvagh, d. by Hugh Roe O'Donell,

Caffrey, d. by O'Neill and his rebels.

Neil Garri,

Margaret, m. to Hugh O'Reilly, of Camels, Co. Cavan.

The youngest, but only surviving son, Sir Neil Garri O'Donell, received the honor of Knighthood from Lord Mountjoy in 1592, and was inaugurated as the O'DONEL: but was subsequently compelled to surrender that dignity to Rory, Earl of Tyrconnel. He m. his cousin, the dau. of Sir Hugh O'Donell, and had three sons, Neughtan, d. s. p.

Manus.

OGILVIE.

OGILVIE, Sir John, of Innerquhary, Co. Forfar, Lieut-Col. in the Life-Guards, inherited as 8th Bart., on the decease of his father, in 1824; m. in July, 1831, Julian-Barbany, youngest dau. of the late Lord Henry Howard, which lady d. 27 Dec., 1833. Sir John wedded, 2ndly, 5 April, 1836, Lady Jane-Elizabeth Howard, third dau. of Lord Suffolk.

Lineage.

The ancient and far-spreading family of Ogilvie, of Scotland, deduces its pedigree from Gilchrist, who was created Earl of Angus, by King Malcolm Canmore, and was s. by his son, Gilchrist, 2nd Earl of Angus, whose 3rd son, Gilbert, assumed the surname of Ogilvie, from lands of that denomination in his possession. From this Gilbert Ogilvie descended Sir Walter Ogilvie, of Auchterhouse, High-Sheriff of Forfar, who lost his life in resisting Duncan Stuart, natural son of the Earl of Buchan, who had entered the shire of Angus, at the head of a gang of robbers, for the purpose of plunder. The youngest son of Sir Walter, Sir John Ogilvie, obtained from his brother Sir Walter Ogilvie, in the beginning of the 18th century, the lands and Baron of Innerquhary, which descended lineally to...

OGILVIE, Sir George—Musgrave, of Barns, Co. Kin- cardine & 8. 10 Aug., 1779; s. as 6th Bart., on the decease of his father, in 1799.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Ogilvie, of Innerquhary (Barns), springing from Andrew Ogilvie, son of Sir John Ogilvie, the first possessor of the Barony of Innerquhary; from whom we pass to his lineal descendant, I. George Ogilvie, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of the Hon. John Douglas, of Barras, Co. Kincardine, which estate he afterwards purchased from his brother-in-law, Sir John Douglas. During the Civil Wars, Mr. Ogilvie, who had been for many years an Officer in the King's Service, was nominated Lieut.-Governor of the fort and castle of Dunottar, wherein the Regalia of Scotland had been deposited; and although obliged, after a protracted siege, to surrender to the arms of the usurper, Captain Ogilvie contrived, nevertheless, to preserve those invaluable insignia of Royalty in security until the restoration of the monarchy. The Regalia were removed from the castle prior to its surrender by Mrs. Grainger, the wife of Mr. James Grainger, Minister of Kinness, who passed through the besieging Army, attended by a servant, with a bundle of flax upon her back, in which lay concealed the crown, sword, and sceptre of Scotland. After the Restoration, Captain Ogilvie delivered up these valuable emblems to the Earl Marischal, and was created, in consideration of his fidelity and sufferings, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 3 March 1661, obtaining a warrant at the same time, to the Lord-Lyon, to matriculate his coat of arms in the Lyon Register, conformable to the blazon therein stated; in which he was allowed to bear a crowned thistle, the Royal Badge of Scotland, with the motto, with a close imperial one, or, for Ogilvie; second and third, ar. an eagle, displayed, sa. beaked and membered gu. for Ramsay, of Auchterhouse. Crest.—A lion's head erased gu. Supporters—Two wild men, wreathed about the temples and waist with leaves, and holding branches in their exterior hands, all ppr. Motto.—'In hoc signo vinces.' Lineage.

This is a family of very great antiquity in the Co. Northumberland.

Sir Robert Ogle, Knt. of Ogle (the eighth in lineal descent from Humphrey Ogle, who was settled at Ogle, at the Conquest), m. Helena, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Bertram, Lord of Bothall, and was s. by his grandson, Sir Robert Ogle, who d. in 1410, and was s. by his eldest son.

Sir Robert Ogle, who was summoned to Parliament as Lord Ogle, from 26 July, 1411, to 7 Sept., 1409 (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peers), to which latter year his Lordship died; and the Barony passed in regular succession, from father to son, to

Cuthbert, the 11th Baron, who s. his half-brother, Robert, 6th Lord Ogle, in 1502; but dying without male issue, in 1507, the Barony fell into abeyance between his two sons, the demise of one of those ladies, Jane, w. of Edward, 7th Earl of Shrewsbury, without issue, in 1527; when the other,

Catherine, relit of Sir Charles Cavendish, became Baroness Ogle, and obtained a ratification of the dignity by patent, 4 Dec., 1605, to herself and her heirs for ever. Her Ladyship d. in 1609, and the Baronry devolved upon her son, William Cavendish, who was eventually created Duke of Newcastle, when it merged in that of Dukedom, and so continued until the demise of his Grace's son and successor, Henry, 2nd Duke, in 1601, without male issue, when all the Duke of Newcastle's honors, except the Barony of Ogle, expired, and that fell into abeyance between his five daws: two of whom dying, without issue, it now remains between the representatives of Lady Margaret Ogle, who m. John Holles, Duke of Newcastle; Lady Catherine, who m. Thomas, Earl of Thanet; and Lady Arabella, who m. Charles, Earl of Sunderland. From

William Ogle, 3rd son of Sir Robert Ogle, Knt., father of the first Lord Ogle, sprang

Marianna, Esq., who purchased Kirkley from Ralph, Lord Eure, to the beginning of the 17th century; and from him descended

Nathaniel Ogle, M.D., sometime Physician to the Forces under the great Duke of Marlborough. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of Jonathan Pope, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Barrister-at-Law, and had issue,

1. Nathaniel, his successor at Kirkley, who d. unm., in 1762.

2. Henry, D.D., Dean of Winchester, Inherited Kirkley, at the decease of his elder brother, and d. in 1804, leaving by Susanna, his wife, dau. of Dr. Thomas, Bishop of Winchester, issue, ONSLow.

ONSLow, EARL of (Arthur-George Osnlow), of the Co. Salop; Viscount Cranley, of Cranley, Co. Surrey; Baron Osnlow, of Osnlow, Co. Salop, and of West Clroidon, Co. Surrey; and a Barl: 25 Oct., 1777; m. 24 July, 1718, Mary, eldest dau. of George Onslow, Esq., of Co. Rutland, by whom (who d. 1 March, 1830) he has issue:

1. ARTHUR-GROR, Viscount Cranley, b. 16 June, m. August. [1800]. His Lordship s. as 3rd Earl, on the decease of his father, 22 Feb., 1827.

Lineage.
The family of Osnlow was anciently seated in Shropshire, where it enjoyed extensive possessions; and in the reign of Henry III. it assumed its surname from the lordship of Osnlow (styled, in Doomsday-Book, Osnlowes, but now written Osnlow), situated within the liberty of the town of Shrewsbury.

EDWARD OSNLOW, Esq. of Osnlow, m. Anne, dau. of Richard Houghton, Esq. of Houghton, Co. Lancaster, by whom he had four sons: the 2nd of whom,

ROGER ONSLOW, Esq. of Shrewsbury, m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Payne, Esq., by whom he had two sons, Fulk, Clerk of the Parliament in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and

RICHARD ONSLOW, Esq., Barrister-at-law, who was successively Recorder of the City of London, Attorney-General of the Duchy of Lancaster, Solicitor-General and Speaker of the House of Commons. This eminent person had a grant of the convent of Blackfriars, in the City of London, where he resided. He m. Catherine, dau. and heir of Richard Harding, Esq. of Knoll, Co. He m. 1st, Rose, only surviving dau. and heir of Nicholas Stoughton, Esq. of Stoughton, Co. Surrey, but by that lady no issue; 2ndly, Mary, 2nd dau., and co-heir of Alderman Sir Thomas Foot, Knt. of the City of London, who served for the Office of Sheriff in 1661, and that of Lord Mayor in 1649; which Sir Thomas Foot was created a Baronet 21 Nov., 1660, with special remainder to his son-in-law, Mr. Osnlow; and, dying in 1687, the dignity so descended. Sir Arthur Osnlow had, by this marriage,

RICHARD, his successor.

Foot Osnlow, First Commissioner of Excise, m. Susanna, dau. of Thomas Anlaby, Esq. of Elton, Yorkshire, and widow of Arnold Colwell, Esq. and had with five dau., Arthur Osnlow, who was elected Speaker of the House of Commons in Jan., 1726-7, and continued until March, 1761, when he received, upon his retirement, the unanimous thanks of the House over which he had so long and honorably presided, and a pension of £2000 a year from the Crown, at the Commons' special desire. Mr. Speaker Osnlow m. Anne, dau. of John Bridges, Esq. of Thomas Ditton, and niece of Henry Bridges, Esq. of Imber Court, Co. Surrey, by whom he left a son, George (of whom presently, as 2nd Baron Osnlow, and a daughter. He d. 17 Feb., 1768.

a Gothic mansion (the celebrated "strawberry Hill") and made it ever afterwards his chief place of abode. Here he established a private press, at which he not only printed his own works, but many other curious pieces. From this press first issued, "The Catalogue of Royal and Noble

4. A son, b. 23 Jan., 1834.
5. A daughter.

The Earl s. on the demise of his grandmother, 20 Dec., 1831. His Lordship is one of the Representative Peers.

Lineage.

The EARLDOM OF ORKNEY was claimed by

HINNAY SINCLAIR, eldest son of Sir William Sinclair, of Ronly, and Isabel, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Malise, Earl of Strathearn, Calliehouse, and Orkney, and his claim was admitted by HAKON, 8th King of Norway, in 1739, but his investiture was burdened with severe conditions. He was considered as being appointed Governor and Earl of Orkney, by an absolute grace of the King; bound to serve him with 100 men completely armed, when required; to defend Orkney against any invasion with the whole power of his house, &c. From this period the earldom remained in the family of Sinclair, until JAMES III. having acquired the Islands of Orkney in marriage with Margaret of Denmark, in 1468, William Sinclair, 3rd Earl of Orkney, resigned the earldom, the next year, into his Majesty’s hands, and it was annexed to the crown by act of Parliament; in 1471; the late Kari being stilled instead, Earl of Caithness and Lord Sinclair. The Orkenys thenceforward conferred no dignity until the year 1857, when

JAMES HEPBURN, 4th Earl of Bothwell, was created Duke of Orkney, 18 May, in that year, three days after his marriage with MARY, Queen of Scots, but he forfeited all his honours in the December following.

ROBERT STEWART, natural son of JAMES V., abbot of Holyrood-House, but who confirmed to the protestant faith, in 1569, had a grant of the crown lands of Orkney and Zeeland in 1563, and was created EARL OF ORKNEY, in 1581. He m. lady Jane KENNEDY, eldest dau. of Gilbert, 3rd Earl of Cassilis, and had issue, PATERICK, his successor.

John, Earl of Carrick, who d. a. p., when that title became extinct.

Capt. Robert Stewart, of Eday, who m. the Lady Jane Gordon, dau. of the Earl of Nithsdale, and left son, Capt. Robert Stewart, of Eday, who m. Miss Isabella Graem, of Graemshall, and left a dau., Jane, m. to Robert Richan, Esq. of Linklater, head of an ancient and distinguished Danish family, which settled in the Orkneys in the 9th century. He left a son, the late Capt. William Richan, of Hapness, who left a son and several daughters.

Col. John Stewart, of Newark, who d. a. p.

He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

PATERICK STEWART, 2nd Earl, who was condemned for high treason, and beheaded at the market-cross of Edinburgh, 6 Feb., 1141. He d. a. p., and his estates and honors were forfeited to the Crown; the former of which, King JAMES VI., granted to Bishop Law.

So much for the extinct Lords Orkney—we now proceed with the present.

LOAN JONAH HAMILTON, 5th Lord William Douglas (created Duke of Hamilton for life), by Anne, Duchess of Hamilton, was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, 3 Jan., 1695, by the titles of Baron Dechmont, Viscount Kirkwall, and EARL OF ORKNEY, to him and the heirs male of his body, which failing, to the heirs whatsoever of his body. His Lordship m. 25 Nov., 1685, Elisabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Edward Villiers, Knight-Marshals of England, and sister of Edward, 1st Earl of Jersey, by whom he left at his demise, in 1737, three daughters. The eldest, Anne, according to the limitation of the patent, succeeded to the honors. The 2nd, Frances, married the Earl of Scarborough; and the youngest, Harriet, married John, Earl of Cork and Orrery. The Earl of Orkney was a celebrated Military Commander, and distinguished himself in the wars between James and William, in Ireland; and, subsequently, participated in the brilliant triumphs of the reign of Queen Anne. His Lordship, who was one of the Representative Peers of Scotland, d. 29 Jan., 1737, and was s. by his eldest daughter, ANNE, as Countess of Orkney. Her Ladyship m. 28 March, 1739, William O'Bryen, 4th Earl of Inchquinn, in Ireland (see Marquess of Thomond), and had issue, Seat.—Taplow Court, Bucks.

Note.—The Orkneys, and the Island of Zealand, which were formerly attached to the Earldom of Orkney, when that dignity was borne by members of the Royal House of Stuart in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries, are now se vered from it, having been granted, in 1752, to the Earl of Morton, who dispossessed of his interest in the Bar rence Dundas; whose grandson, Lord Dundas, now pos sesses them.

ORMONDE.

ORMONDE, Marquess of (James Butler), Earl of Ormonde and Ossory; Viscount Thurlies, of Thurlies, Co. Tipperary; and Baron Arklow, of Arklow, in the Peerage of Ireland; Baron Ormonde, of Longton, Co. Devon, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; b. 15 July, 1774; m. 27 Oct., 1807, Grace Louise, dau. of the Right Hon. John Staple,* and has issue,

II. Walter, b. 14 Jan., 1814, an Officer in the Army.
III. James, b. in May, 1815.
IV. Richard-Molesworth, b. 30 Jan., 1818.
V. Harriet-Eleanor, m. 16 May, 1831, to Robert Fowler, Esq., son of the Bishop of Ossory.
VI. Anne.
VII. Louisa-Grace.
VIII. Elizabeth.
IX. Mary-Charlotte. (The surname of all, but Lord Ossory, is Wandes ford-Butler.)

His Lordship is to the Earldoms of Ormonde and Ossory, and the inferior Irish dignities, at the demise of his brother, 10 Aug., 1820, and was created a Baron of the United Kingdom, 17 July, 1821, and a Marquess of Ireland, 5 Oct., 1823. The Marquess of Ormonde is Hereditary Chief Butler of Ireland, a Knight of St. Patrick, Lord-Liend, and Custos-Rotulorum of the Co. of Kilkenny, and Col. of the Kilkenny Militia.

* By his wife, the Hon. Harriet Molesworth, dau. of Richard, 3rd Viscount Molesworth.

ORM

Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is indisputable; but its origin is not so clearly established. The surname, however, admits of no doubt as springing from the Chief Butlerage of Ireland,* conferred by HENRY II. upon

THEOBALD WALTER, in 1177, who had accompanied him into that kingdom in 1171. This Theobald was eldest son of HERVEY WALTER (one of the companions of the Conqueror), by Maud de Valoie, and brother of Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1180 (translated from the See of Salisbury, while a prisoner in the Holy Land), and subsequently Chancellor, Chief-Justice, and Treas urer of England. Theobald Walter, having returned to England, afterwards accompanied Prince John into Ire land, anno 1185. He was possessed of the Baronies of Upper Ormond, Lower Ormond, and numerous other territo ries; and, dying in 1186, was s. by his only son (by his wife, Maud, dau. and heir of Robert Vavasour, a great Baron of Yorkshire).

THEOBALD, who first assumed the surname of Le Botli er, or Butler, in 1291, and was appointed Lord-Justice of Ireland, in 1247. He m. Joan, eldest sister and co-heir of John de Marisco, a considerable Baron in Ireland, to whose estates in England, and in Ireland, his post erity succeeded; and, dying in 1248, was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD II. BUTLER, who m. Margety, eldest dau. of Richard de Burgu (ancestor of the Lords Clarencinde), by whom he acquired a considerable accession of landed property, and was s. by his son.

THEOBALD III. BUTLER, who sat as a Baron in the Par liament of Ireland, and assisted EDMUND I. in his wars in Scotland. He m. Joan, eldest dau. of John Fitz-Geoffry, Lord of Kirtling, and Baron of Beckhampton, Lord-Justice of Ireland, and youngest son of the famous Geoffry Fitzpier, Earl of Eves, and Lord-Judiciary of England, by whom he had a numerous family. This Lord Theobald, who obtained a grant from EDMUND I. of the priage of wines in Ireland, d. in 1255, and was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD IV. BUTLER, who sat in Parliament as a Baron, his name appearing 5th upon the roll. He d. unm. in 1299, and was s. in his Baronies and estates by his bro ther.

EOMOND. This feudal Lord received the honor of Knighthood in London, in 1306. In 1312, he was ap pointed Lord-Deputy of Ireland; in 1314, Chief-Governor, under the title of Lord-Justice; and, on the 1st Sept., 1315, created Earl of Carrick-Mac-Geoffry. His Lordship m. in 1302, Joan, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Kildare, by whom, with two dau., he left three sons, of St. James of Compostella, died after his return to London, 13 Sept., 1391, and was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS, 9th Earl. He was also attainted, but restored by HENRY VIII., his successor. He was the eldest son, or according to the Peerage, 3rd Earl of Ormonde. This earl was created a Viscount Montagard, 1515, his successor.

Richard, (Sir), of Pomeroy, Co. kilkenny, m. Catherine,
dau. of Gillias O'Reilly, Lord of the Co. of Cavan,
and was s. by his son,
EDMUND, (Sir) who was s. by his son,
James, (Sir) m. Sabina, dau. of Donald Roebuck Mac Morrough Carvagh, Prince of his sept, and dying in 1467, left with other issue, PIRCUS, of whom hereafter, as 8th Earl of Ormonde.

His Lordship d. 1469, and was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, 4th Earl, who was called the White Earl, and estemed a very learned personage. His Lordship pre-valled upon HENRY V. to create King of Arms ir Ireland, by the title of Ireland King of Arms (a designation altered by HENRY VIII. to Ulster, and by Ulster to the
p. to Lord Justice) for ever to the Herald's College. He was Lord-Justice of Ireland in 1467, and again in 1440, in which latter year he had a grant of the temporalities of the See of Cashel, for ten years after the death of the archbishop, Richard O'De, his Lordship's son, John, dau. of Gerald, 5th Earl of Kildare, by whom he had three sons, successive Earls, and two dau.s; and, 2dly, in 1432, Elizabeth, dau. of William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, and widow of John, Lord Grey of Wilton. His d. in 1443,
and was s. by his eldest son,
JAMES, 5th Earl, who was created by HENRY V. 8
July, 1445, for his fidelity to the Lancastrian interest, Earl of Wiltshire, in the Peerage of England. In 1451 he was made Lord Deputy of Ireland, and the next year suc-ceding his father in the title of Ormonde, was appointed Lord-Lieut. for ten years. In 1455 he was constituted
Lord High Treasurer of England, and afterwards made a Knight of the Garter. Falling into the hands of the Yorkists, after the battle of Towton, his Lordship was beheaded at Newcastle, 1 May, 1461, when the Earlom
of Wiltshire expired, as would that of Ormonde, the Earl's brother and heir being also at the battle of Towton, and,
in consequence, attainted, had not EDWARD IV. restored
him in blood, and so enabled him to succeed, as James, 3rd Earl of Ormonde. This earl was considered one of the first gentlemen of the age in which he lived; and EDWARD IV. is reported to have said, "that if good breeding and liberal qualities were lost in the world, they might be all found in the Earl of Ormonde."

He was complete master of the languages of Europe, and was sent Ambassador to its principal Courts. He d. in 1479, in the Holy Land, harvlog, in a ft of devotion, made a visit to Jerusalem, and was s. by his brother, THOMAS, 4th Earl. He was also attainted, but restored by HENRY VIII. of his family, and was s. by his only daughter, ELIZABETH, Lord Rochford, behended 17 May, 1536.

Anne BOLEYN, m. 25 Jan., 1532, to HENRY VIII.
by whom she had three sons, GEORGE, Earl of Ormonde, who ascended the British Throne. The fate of the unhappy ANNE BOLEYN* is so well known, as hardly to require any statement that she became a daughter of the Peerage, 2nd Earl of Ormonde, and was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, 2nd Earl of Ormonde, called the Noble Earl, on account of being grand-son of EDWARD I. In 1299 and 1309, his Lordship was appointed Lord Justice of Ireland, and dying in 1309, was s. by his son. (Sir) Jamks, 3rd Earl, who, by building, and making the Castle of Gower his usual residence, was commonly called Earl of Gower. His Lordship purchased, in 1309, the Castle of Kilkenny, from the heirs of Sir Hugh le Spencer, Earl of Gloucester (an edifice erected in the beginning of the 14th century, by William, Earl Marshall), which he made his chief place of abode, and which has ever since been so considered by the head of the family.
In 1299, 1401, and 1404, his Lordship was Lord Justice of Ireland. He m. Anne, dau. of John, Lord Welleis, and had issue,

James, his successor.
Richard, (Sir) of Pomeroy, Co. Kilkenny, m. Catherine,

ceding his father in the title of Ormonde, was appointed Lord-Lieut. for ten years. In 1455 he was constituted
Lord High Treasurer of England, and afterwards
made a Knight of the Garter. Falling into the hands of the Yorkists, after the battle of Towton, his Lordship was beheaded at Newcastle, 1 May, 1461, when the Earlom
of Wiltshire expired, as would that of Ormonde, the Earl's brother and heir being also at the battle of Towton, and,
in consequence, attainted, had not EDWARD IV. restored
him in blood, and so enabled him to succeed, as James, 3rd Earl of Ormonde. This earl was considered one of the first gentlemen of the age in which he lived; and EDWARD IV. is reported to have said, "that Thomas, 10th Earl of Ormonde, and 3rd Earl of Ossory, called from the darkness of his complexion, the "Black Earl." This nobleman was the first of his family who conformed to the Church of England. He was educated at the court of England, and stood high in the estimation of Queen Elizabeth, by whom, in 1556, he was constituted Lord Treasurer of Ireland. The right of this Earl to the butlerage having been denied by the merchants of Wexford, from whom his servants had demanded "two tones of sacke," as his prizage on a certain cargo of Spanish wines, there imported, his Lordship, when pleading his right to the butlerage, alleged that such office and prizage was in him and his ancestors from time immemorial, that it was subsequently confirmed to them by divers royal grants therein specified, and that the duty consisted of "one choyse tonne of Wyne out of every shipe or bottome arriving, and containing nyne tonnes of Wyne, and two choyse tonnes of every shippe or botto-"me arriving, and containing ninety tonnes of Wyne or upward." His Lordship died, in 1584, and leaving (by his 2nd Countess, Elizabeth, dau. of John, 2nd Lord-Sheffield) one surviving child only, Elizabeth, who, through the influence of King James, was married to Sir Richard Preston, Baron Dingwall in Scotland, and Earl of Desmond in Ireland.

The Duke d. 21 July, 1780, and was a. by his grandson.

James, 2nd Duke, who inherited the Scottish Baron-ey of Dingwall from his grandfather. This nobleman was appointed a Lord of the Bedchamber in 1698, and, serving in the Army, participated in the victory over the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemoor. He was afterwards, however, one of the first to join the Standard of the Prince of Orange, and when that Prince ascended the Throne, his Grace obtained the Garter, and was constituted High-Constable of England for the coronation. He attended William into Ireland, was at the Boyne, and subsequently entertained his Majesty most sumptuously at his Castle in Kilkenney. In 1693, he was at the battle of Limerick, where he received several wounds, and had a horse killed under him. In 1700, he was constituted by Queen Anne, Commander-in-Chief of the land forces sent against France and Spain, when he destroyed the French fleet, sunk the Spanish galleons in the harbour of Vigo, and took the fort of Redondells, for which important service he was created, in 1701, one of the Houses of Parliament. In 1711, he was declared Captain-General and Comman- der-in-Chief of the land forces in Great Britain, or which we, or should be, employed abroad, in conjunction with the troops of the allies; which post he held till the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713; in which year he was made Warden of the Cinque Ports, and Constable of Dover Castle. But in two years afterwards (Gborough having in the interim succeeded to the throne), his Grace was impeached (21 June, 1719) of high treason, and, having retired into the Continent, when his estates became forfeited, his (English) honors extinguished; and Parliament passed an act, which annulled the royalties and liberties of the County Pala- zine of Tipperary, vested his lands in the Crown, and proclaimed a reversion of £10,000 for his maintenance, should he attempt to land in Ireland. But the same Par-lament passed also an act (34 June, 1791) to enable the Duke's brother, the Earl of Arran, to purchase the estate, which his Lordship did accordingly. This great, but unfortunate nobleman, m. 1st, Ann, dau. of Laurence, Earl of Rochester, but that lady died issueless. His Grace espoused, Sudly, Mary, eldest surviving dau. of Henry, 1st Duke of Beaufort, and left one surviving child, Mary, m. in 1710, to John, Lord Ashburnham, and d. s. p. in 1712.

The Duke resided in his exile chiefly at Avignon; he had a pension from the Court of Spain of 2000 pistoles. He d. 16 Nov., 1745, when his remains were brought into England 29 May, 1746, and deposited in the family vault, in Hawarden VIII.'s Chapel, Westminster Abbey. At this period, it was supposed that the Duke's honors were all forfeited under the act of Attainder passed by the English Parliament; but it was subsequently decided, that no proceeding of the English legislature could affect Irish dignities. According to that decision, his Grace's brother, Charles, Earl of Arran, was really 14th Earl of Ormonde, and 3rd Duke and Marquess; but his Lordship never enjoyed, assumed, or was aware of possessing those dignities. He m. Elizabeth, 4th and youngest dau. of Thomas, 3rd Earl of Suse, but had no issue. He d. 17 Dec. 1758, when his own honors became extinct, with the Marquises and Dukedoms of Ormonde. The Scottish Baron of Dingwall passed from the Butler family to the heir of the Prestons, in which it is now certainly vested, and the Irish Earldom of Ormonde and Viscounty of Thurlow, supposed to have fallen under the English attainder, became Dormant, in which state those honors remained, until restored in 1791, by the decision of the House of Lords in Ireland, to John Butler, Esq. of Carryricken (revert to the descendants of Richard Butler, Esq. of Kilkea, 2nd son of Walter, Lord Thurlow, son of Walter, 11th Earl), as 17th Earl of Ormonde. His Lordship m. 26 Feb., 1760, Lady Anne Wandesford, dau. and sole heir of John, last Earl of Wandesford, (who d. in 1746) and by that lady had issue, Liureage.

The family of Harley can be traced to a period antecedent to the Conquest, and its station was so eminent, that the great house of Harlai, in France, deduces its origin from the Harleys of England.

Sir Robert de Harley (eldest son of Sir Richard de Harley, Knt., d. about the 13th of Edward III.), m. Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heir (with her sister Elizabeth, wife of Sir Richard de Cornwall, son of Richard, Earl of Cornwall, King of the Romans, brother of King Henry III.), of Sir Bryan de Brampton, by which marriage he acquired a great estate and the seat of Brampton Castle, which has continued ever since the chief residence of his descendants. His great-grandson, Sir John Harley, of Brampton Castle, received the honor of Knighthood from Edward IV., on the field of battle, at Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471; and was Sheriff of Shropshire, in the 94th year of the same Monarch. From him lineally descended

THOMAS Harley, Esq. of Brampton Castle, who was born about the year 1543, and obtained a grant from King James I., of the honor and Castle of Wigmore, Co. Hereford. He in., Margaret, dau. of Sir Andrew Corbet, Knt. of Morton Corbet; and, dying in 1631, was s. by his only surviving son.

Sir Robert Harley, K.B., M.P. for the Co. Hereford. This gentleman had a grant, 12 Sept., 1630, of the office and house of Master and Worker of Monks to be coined in the Tower of London during his life, with a salary of £400 a year; but, after the murder of the King, refusing to coin with any other than the deuce of the deceased Monarch, he was removed by Parliament. Sir Robert m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Charles Barrett, Esq. of Belhouse, Essex; 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Sir Francis Newport; by neither of whom, however, had he any issue to survive; and, 3dly, Brilliana (so christened from Belli, of which her father was Governor at the time of her Ladyship's birth), dau. of Edward, Viscount Conway, by Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Tracy, of Todington, Co. Gloucester, and sister to Mary, wife of the celebrated General Sir Horace Vere, Lord Vere of Tilbury (by which alliance the Harleys became connected with the Vere, Earls of Oxford, Holles, Earls of Clarendon, and other ancient families). Lady Brilliana Harley was celebrated for her gallant defence of Brampton Castle, during the Civil Wars, when invested, in 1643, by the rebels, whom she forced to raise the siege, after seven weeks' of unwavering hostility. Her Ladyship dying, however, in the Oct. following, the besiegers returned to the Castle, which, after a second gallant resistance, being forced to surrender, was burnt to the ground. Sir Robert Harley, 4th Nov., 1656, and was s. by his eldest son,

Col. Sir Edward Harley, Member for the Co. Hereford, in the Parliament which restored Charles II., who was appointed Governor of Dunkirk by the new Monarch. Sir Edward was 1st, in 1634, Mary, dau. of Sir William Button, of Parkgate, by whom he had four sons; and, finally, Abigail, dau. of Nathaniel Stephens, Esq. of Epsom, Co. Gloucester, by whom he had (with other issue)

Robert, of whom presently, as Earl of Oxford.

Edward, of Eyeworth, Co. Hereford, M.P., m. Sarah, 3rd dau. of Thomas Foley, Esq. of Whitley, Co. Worcesters, and had Edward, who s. to the Earlom of Oxford.

Robert, M.P., Recorder of Leominster, d. unm. in 1774.

Abigail, m. to the Hon. John Verney, Master of the Rolls.

Col. Sir Edward Harley d. 8 Dec., 1790, and was s. by his eldest son, Robert Harley, Esq., b. 3 Dec., 1661. This gentleman was first returned to Parliament for Tregony, in Cornwall, and afterwards, in 1690, for the town of Rednor, which he continued to represent so long as he remained a Commoner. On the 11th of Feb., 1700-1, Mr. Harley was elected Speaker of the House of Commons. In 1704, he was sworn of the Privy Council, and constituted one of the principal Secretaries of State, filling the Speaker's Chair at the same time. In 1710, he was appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer. About this period, Mr. Harley had a miraculous escape from assassination, having been stabbed with a penknife by the Marquess of Guiscrard, then under examination before a Committee of the Privy Council at Whitehall. On the 44th May, 1711, the Rt. Hon. gentleman was elevated to the Peerage by the titles of Baron Harley, of Wigmore, Co. Hereford, Earl of Mortimer, Co. Hereford, and Earl of Mortimer, with remainder; in default of male issue, to the heirs male of his grandfather, Sir Robert Harley, Knight of the Bath; and on 21st May, in the same year, his Lordship was constituted Lord High Treasurer of England. The Earl m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Foley, Esq. of Whitley Court, Co. Worcester, by whom he had

Edward, his successor.

Abigail, m. to George, Earl of Kinnoum, and d. in 1750. Elizabeth, m. to Peregrine Hyde, Duke of Leeds.
OXF

His Lordship m. 2dly, Sarah, dau. of Thomas Middleton, Esq., but had no other issue. On the 10th of June, 1718, Lord Oxford was impeached by the Commons of high treason, and was committed to the Tower by the House of Lords, where he suffered imprisonment until 1 July 1717, when he was acquitted, after a public trial by his Peers. His memory is celebrated by Pope, in the following lines:

"A soul supreme, in each hard instance tried,
Above all pain, all anger, and all pride,
The rage of power, the blast of public breath,
The last of lucre, and the dread of death."

The Earl d. 31 May, 1744, and was s. by his only son, Edward, 2d Earl. This nobleman devoted himself much to literature, and the country is indebted to him for the celebrated collection, so well known as the Harleian Miscellany, purchased by Parliament from the Countess, in 1734, after the Earl's decease, and deposited in the British Museum. His Lordship m. 31 Oct., 1713, Lady Henrietta-Cavendish-Holles, only dau. and heir of John Holles, last Duke of Newcastle, of that family (the dignity expired in 1718), by whose death he became a man of fashion, and heir, Margaret-Cavendish, who m. in 1734, William, 2d Duke of Portland. The Earl dying thus male issueless, 16 June, 1741, the honors devolved, according to the reversionary clause in the patent, upon his first cousin,

Edward Harley, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Hereford, as 3d Earl (refe to children of Col. Sir Edward Harley). His Lordship m. in 1725, Martha, eldest dau. of John Morgan, Esq. of Tredegar, Co. Monmouth, by whom (who d. in 1744) he left Palmerston, Viscount (Henry-John Temple, G.C.B., M.P., P.C.), of Palmerston, Co. Dublin, and Baron Temple, in the Peersage of Ireland; b. 20 Oct., 1784; s. as 3rd Viscount, at the decease of his father, 17 April, 1802. His Lordship is Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a Lord of Trade and Plantations, a Commissioner of the Inland Board, a Keeper of the Signet, and an Official Trustee of the British Museum.

Lineage.

The Temple, from whom this family paternally, and the present ducal House of Buckingham and Chandos maternally, descend, are said to have been of Saxon origin, and to have sprung immediately from the son and heir of Algær, Earl of Mercia.

Edwyn, who was deprived of the Earldom by the Coq-quarren, and killed in defending himself against the Normans in 1071. This Edwyn left a son,

Edwyn, styled Earl of Leicester and Coventry, who is said to have assumed the surname of Temple, from the manor of Temple, in the hundred of Sparkenhoe, Welle borough, which manor (says Burton, in his Leicestershire) was given by the old Earls of Leicestershire to the Knights Templars, who usually gave the name of Temple to their lands, and they granted it to one whose family was called Temple, of great account and livelihood in those parts." Be this, however, as it may,

Henry De Temple was Lord of Temple and Little Shepley, in the reign of the Conqu orough, and from him descended

Thomas Temple, of Whitney, Co. Oxford, whose great grandson, Peter Temple, received in the last year of Edw. VI.

a grant of the Manor of Marston-Boteler, in the Co. Warwick, and purchased, in 1509, the right which Laurence Deven had therein. This Peter being likewise Lord of the Manor of Stowe, Co. Bucks, his descendants fixed their residence there. He m. Millicent, dau. of William Jekyll, Esq. of Newington, Middlesex, and had two sons,

John, the elder, who succeeded at Stowe, and from whom descends, maternally, the noble house of BECKINGHAM AND CHANDOS;

And

Anthony Temple, Esq., who was father of Sir William Temple, Knt., a learned and eminent person in the reign of Elizabeth, Secretary to Sir

Philip Sydney, and, after his decease, to the unfortunate
Earl of Essex; upon whose tragic death, Sir William (then Mr.) Temple, removed into Ireland, and was appointed Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, which University he represented in Parliament in 1613. He received the honor of Knighthood, 4 May, 1622, from the Lord-Deputy St. John, and was appointed one of the Masters in Chancery.
Sir William m., Martha, dau. of Mr. Robert Harrison, of the Co. Derby, by whom he bad two sons, and was a. in Jan., 1817, by the elder,

SIR JOHN TEMPL, Knt., b. to 1600, who was constituted Master of the Rolls in Ireland, and sworn of the Privy Council there. He filled, for a series of years, high and confidential places in the government of Ireland, and was appointed, in 1648, Joint-Commissioner of the Great Seal with Sir William Parsons. He joined, however, the standard of Cromwell, but was nevertheless retained as Master of the Rolls after the Restoration, when he was constituted Vice-Treasurer of Ireland. He m. Mary, dau. of John Hammond, M.D. of Chertsey, in Surrey, and had two surviving sons, viz.:

WILLIAM, (Sir) who had a reversionary grant, after his father's decease, of the Mastership of the Rolls. He was created a Baronet 31 Jan., 1806, and sworn of the Privy Council. Sir William established a very high reputation for learning and abilities, and his writings upon various subjects are yet esteemed. He m. Dorothy, 2nd dau. of Sir Peter Osborne, and had an only son,

PETRE, who lived to maturity, and marrying a French lady, left two daughters,

ELIZABETH, m. to John Temple, Esq. of Moor Park.

DOROTHY, m. to Nicholas Bacon, Esq. of Shrubbland Hall, Suffolk.

JOHN.

Sir John d. in 1677. His youngest son,

SIR JOHN TEMPL, Knt., was Solicitor and Attorney-General, and Speaker of the House of Commons in Ireland. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Abraham Yarner, Knt. of Dublin, and had issue, inter alios, HENRY, his successor, who m. Elizabeth, elder dau. of Peter Temple, Esq. of Moor Park, to Surrey, and grandau. of Sir William Temple, Bart., by whom he acquired that estate, and had a numerous family.

Sir John d. in 1704, and was a. by his eldest son,

HENRY TEMPLE, Esq., who was a Peer of Ireland 12 March, 1729, in the dignities of Baron Tempa and Viscount Palmerston. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Abraham Hobulton, Esq., and by that lady (who d. 8 Dec., 1736) had issue,

8. Ramsay, m. 26 Oct., 1825, to Donald Macmillan, Esq.

IX. Christian.

His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, in 1822, Miss Elizabeth Barton, but has no other issue. This nobleman, who is the 2nd son of George Ramsay, 8th Earl of Dalhousie, having inherited, through his grandmother, Jane Maule, dau. of the Hon. Harry Maule, of Kellie, the estates of the Earl of Panmure, changed his paternal surname and arms to those of the family of Maule, and obtained his Peerage by letters patent, dated 9 Sept., 1831.

Lineage.

The ancient family of Maule was of French extraction, their surname having been assumed from the town and lordship of Mauls, in the Vexin Francais, eight leagues from Paris, a lordship which belonged to the Lords of that name for four centuries. Roger, last Lord of Maule, was slain at the battle of Nicopolis, in Hungary, fighting against the Turks, anno 1396, and his coat of arms was set up in the Parisian Cathedral of Notre Dame. His only dau. and heir espoused Simon de Morastivilles, Lord of Flocourt.

Guain De Maule, a younger son of Aneald, Lord of Mauls, accompanied the Conqueror into England, and acquired, as his portion of the spoil, the lordship of Hatton, in Yorkshire, with other extensive estates. He d. about the year 1080, leaving two sons, one of whom, Robert or Maule, attaching himself to David, Earl of Huntingdon, afterwards David II, removed into Scotland with that Monarch, and obtained broad lands in Lothian, by grants from the Crown. From this Roger we pass to his descendant,

Sir Peter de Maule, who m. about the year 1281.

WILLIAM, his successor.

Thom. Serv., who was Governor, in 1303, of the Castle of Brechin, the only fortress that interrupted the course of the Conquests of Edward I. Sir Thomas Macrae was a soldier of acknowledged intrepidity and boldness, of great vigour and bodily strength; and his resistance to the power of England was strenuous, valiant, and obstinate. He fell, mortally wounded, however, and the garrison of Brechin capitulated the day after.

The elder son,
Sir WILLIAM DE MAULE, of Panmure, held the office of Sheriff of Forfarshire at the death of Alexanders III., and swore fealty to Edward I. at St. Andrews, 10 July, 1292. He m. Ethama, dau. of John Vaux, Lord of Dirleton; the great-grandson of this marriage, Sir William Maule, of Panmure, espoused Margaret, only child of David Fleming, of Biggury, and grandaunt, maternally, of Sir David Barclay, of Barchin. From this Sir William we pass (over two centuries at least) to his descendant, PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who d. his father, in 1695, and, dying in five years afterwards, was s. by his only son.

Patrick Maule, of Panmure, who accompanied King James VI. into England in 1603, and was appointed one of the gentlemen of the Bedchamber to that Monarch; an officer by whose afterwards he held under Charles I., who constituted his Keeper of the Palace at Eltham, and Sheriff of the Co. Forfar. He subsequently adhered with great fidelity to the King in his troubles, and was en-

George Ramsay, 3rd Earl of Panmure, who d. in 1808, when, leaving no issue, the honors and estates passed to his brother.

James, 4th Earl of Panmure. This nobleman, joining the standard of the CHEVALIER ST. GEORGES, in 1715, was taken prisoner at the battle of Sheriffmuir, but rescued by his brother Harry, when he effected his escape into France. An attainted, by Act of Parliament, followed, and his honors and estates, amounting to £3,456 per annum, became forfeited to the Crown. They were, however, at two different times, offered to be restored to him, provided he returned to his native land, and subscribed the oath of allegiance to the house of Hanover; but he preferred sharing the fortunes of the Prince whom he esteemed his legitimate Sovereign, and died at Paris, 11 April, 1785. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret Hamilton, 3rd dau. of William and Anne, Duke and Duchess of Hamilton. In 1717, an Act was passed to enable his Majesty, to make such provision for, and settlement upon, the wife of James, late Earl of Panmure, as she should have been entitled to had her husband been naturally dead. Her Ladyship d. in 1731. The Scottish EARI10 OF PANMURE and BARONY OF MAULE remain yet under the attainted, but the attainted Lord's great-grand-nephew, the Hon. Linage.

This family is one of considerable antiquity, descended from Archbishop Parker, and members of it have uninterruptedly, for full a century and a half, been highly distinguished in our Naval Annals.

1. Petra Parker, Esq., Admiral of the Fleet (son of Rear-Admiral Christopher Parker,* who was a Captain commanding the Speedwell, in Jan., 1712, and who d. at a very advanced age), was created a Baronet, 28 Dec., 1782, in token of distinguished services, particularly when in command of a squadron, in an attack on Charleston, in South Carolina. The action was one of the most sanguinary fought during the American war. The quarter-deck of the Bristol (his, the Commodore's, ship) was cleared of every man but himself. The expedition failed, in consequence of the troops, under Earl Cornwallis, being unable to effect a landing; but Sir Peter did his part, by silencing the batteries. He m. The Earl of Pembroke, of the last Countess, who was esteemed a lady of the most cultivated mind, Sir Philip Sidney dedicated his celebrated romance, the Arcadia. Her Ladyship d. at a very advanced period of life, at her house, in Aldersgate-street, London, 25 Sept., 1611, and the inscription to her memory, by her nephew, the Bishop of Salisbury, in the cathedral of Salisbury, has been so much admired that we make no apology for inserting it—

Underneath this marble hrbce
Lies the subject of all verse, Sidney’s sister, Pembroke’s mother.
Death, ere thou hast slain another,
Wise, and fair, and good as she,
Time shall throw a dart at thee.

The Earl d. 10 Jan., 1600-1, and was s. by his eldest son, PILKINGTON.

PILKINGTON, Sir William, of Chevet Hall, Co. York; inherited the title, as 8th Bart., at the decease of his brother, in 1811; m. in 1825, Mary, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Thomas Swinnerton, Esq. of Buterton Hall, Co. Stafford (see Berke's Commonsers, Vol. iii. p. 941), by whom he has issue,

1. Thomas.
2. William.
3. Lionel.
4. Mary.
5. Sophia-Pontus.
6. Elizabeth.

Fuller says, that the Pilkingtons were originally of Hivington, Co. Lancaster, and a right ancient family; that they were gentlemen of renown in the shire before the Conquest, at which time the chief of the house, being sought after by the Norman soldiery, was fain to disguise himself as a thrasher in a barn: from which circumstance, partly alluding to the beak of the stall falling sometimes on the one, and sometimes on the other side, and occasionally on himself, he took for the motto of his arms, "Now thus! now thus!" The first of the family we find upon record is

LEONARDO PILKINGTON, of Pilkington Tower, Co. Lancaster, living in the reign of Henry I.; from him descended

THE RIGHT REV. LEONARD PILKINGTON, fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Lord Bishop of Durham in 1580. In 1580, the northern rebels coming to Durham, tore the Bible and English Liturgy into pieces, and the bishop would most probably have shared a similar fate, could they have found him. His Lordship subsequently instituted a suit at law against Queen Elizabeth, for the lands and goods of the rebels attainted in the bishopric, and would have succeeded, had not Parliament interfered, and adjudged these forfeitures, "pro hoc tempore," to the Crown. From this learned prelate we pass to

THOMAS PILKINGTON, Esq. of Nether Bradley, Co. York (the 19th in lineal descent from the 1st Leonard) who m. Barbara, dau. of Lionel Reresby, Esq. of Thirbergh, near Rotherham, and was s. by his son,

FRANCIS PILKINGTON, Esq. of Nether Bradley. This gentleman m. Frances, dau. of Sir Francis Rhodes, one of the Justices of the Court of Common pleas, and was s. by his eldest son, Buckingham, by whom he had issue; and died, Lenox, only dau. and heir of Cuthbert Harrison, Esq. of Asa-chester, Co. York, and granda., matronally, of Lord Langdale, of Holme, but by that lady left no child. He d. in 1714, and was s. by his eldest son,

4. Sir Lyon, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Michael Wentworth, Knt. of Wooley, Co. York, and was s. by his eldest son,

5. Sir Lyon. This gentleman served the office of High Sherif of the Co. of York in 1741, but, dying without issue, the baronetcy devolved upon his brother,

6. Sir Michael, who m. Isabella, dau. of the Rev. Mr. Rawstorne, of Babsworth, Co. York, and had issue,

Thomas, his successor.

William, present Baronet.

Catherine-Dorothea, m. to John-Joliffe Tufnell, Esq. of Langley's, Co. Essex.
—, m. to the Rev. Richard Hawkesworth Fawke.

Sir Michael d. about the year 1789, and was s. by his eldest son,

This nobleman having attained the highest eminence at the bar, and filled successively the offices of Solicitor and Attorney-General of Ireland, obtained his peerage by patent, dated 1 June, 1827, upon his advancement to the Chief-Justiceship of the Court of Common Pleas. His Lordship was constituted, in 1830, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, which high office (the brief interval of the Peel Administration excepted) he has continued to hold to the present day.

Lineage.

This branch of the family of Plunket is descended from

SIR PATRICK PLUNKET, who m. in the time of HARRY VIII., a grandn. of Sir William Welles, Lord-Chancellor of Ireland. From the second son of this marriage lineally springs the noble house of Louth, and from another sprung

THE REV. MR. PLUNKET, a Clergyman of the Church of Scotland, officiating in Dublin, who m. Miss Conyngham, sister of Redmond Conyngham, Esq., and left at his decease two sons, Patrick (deceased), an eminent Physician of the city of Dublin.

WILLIAM-COYNGHAM, now Lord Plunket.

PLYMOUTH.

PLYMOUTH, EARL OF (Andrew-Windsor), and Baron Windsor, of Bradenham, Co. Buckingham; b. 12 May, 1764; s. as 7th Earl, at the decease of his nephew, 10 July, 1833.

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the Fitzgeralds and Fitzmaurices of Ireland, and the Carew of Cornwall; namely,

WALTER-FITZ-OTTO, Warden of the Forests of Berkshire, and Castellan of Windsor, in the time of WILLIAM the Conqueror: which Walter was descended from Osbern, a rich and powerful Lord, mentioned to the appendix to the life of King ALFRED, as living in that Monarch's reign. Walter Fitz-Otto left, at his decease, three sons,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Robert, Lord of Eaton, or Estlane, in Essex, whose line terminated with an heiress, his grandson, who m. Robert de Hastings, Gerald, seot as Capt.-Geo., by HARRY II. against Rhese, Prince of South Wales, whose dau., Nesta, after the annexation of that Prince, he married, and from which stock descended the Gerals, the Fitz-Maurices, the Fitz-Gerauds, &c.

Walter Fitz-Otto was s. at his decease, in the Wardenship of the Forest of Berkshire and the Government of the Castle of Windsor, by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, who bore the name of Windsor, as also Fitz-Walter, and was a Baron of very extensive possessions. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DE WINDSOR, a powerful Baron temp. HENRY IV., from whom descended

SIR RICHARD DE WINDSOR, of Stanwell, Co. Middlesex, M.P. for that shire, 26th and 33rd of EDWARD I., and again 2nd, 5th, and 6th EDWARD II. Sir Richard & in the 12th year of the latter reign, seized of the manors of Stanwell, Middlesex, and West-Hackeburn, Berks, also the ward of the Castle of Windsor, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE WINDSOR, of Stanwell, who had issue by his 2nd wife, Julian, dau. and co-heir of James Molyneux, Co. Southampton, two sons

JAMES, his successor.

William was a personage of great military renown, who was constituted by Edward III. his Lord-Lieut. in Ireland, in the 40th year of that King's reign. This William married the celebrated Alice Piers, of whom Barne, in his history of the reign of EDWARD III. says "That, being a person of extraordinary beauty, she was in the 40th of Edward III. made Lady of the Sun, and rode from the Tower of London, through Cheapside, accompanied with many lords, knights, and ladies, every lady leading a lord or a knight, by his horse's bridle, till they came into West Smithfield, where presently began solemn justice, which last for seven days altogether." Sir William was summoned to Parliament as a Baron, 4th Richard II., and died in the 9th year of the same Monarch, 12 Aug. 1513; where, by Richard's Exekit and Dormant Peerage, article Windsor.

Richard de Windsor d. in 1307, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir James de Windsor, of Stanwell, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Stretchie, Knt. of Woburn, Co. Wilts., and, dying 4th Edward III., was s. by his only son.

Sir Miles Windsor, Knt., who m. Alice, dau. of Adam de Wyomondam, of Wyomondam, Co. Norfolk, and was s. by his son, Brian de Windsor, whose great-grandson,

Thomas Windsor, m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Andrews, Esq. of Bayhill, Co. Suffolk; and, dying in 1483, was s. by his eldest surviving son, Sir Andrew Windsor, of Stanwell, Knight of the Bath, who was created Knight-Banneret for his valor at the battle of Spurs in 1513, and summoned to Parliament in 1529, as Baron Windsor, of Lambeth, Co. Bucks. Of this nobleman Sir William Dugdale states, "That, after the dissolution of the great monasteries, King Henry sent a message to Lord Windsor, commannding his issue out of the monastery, with his Lordship's supply for a certain day at Stanwell, and accordingly came; when he was magnificently entertained. Whereupon the King told him he liked that place so well, that he was resolved to have it, yet not without a more beneficial exchange. And the Lord Windsor then, perceiving that his Highness was not in earnest, it being the seat of his ancestors for many ages, and humbly begging he would not take it from him; the King with a stern countenance replied, 'It must be,' commanding him on his allegiance to go presently to his Attorney-General, who would more fully acquaint him with the reason for it. Being, therefore, afraid of his displeasure, he accordingly repaired to the Attorney-General, who showed him a draught ready made of an exchange of his lordship and manor of Stanwell, in lieu of Borldley Abbey, with the lands and appurtenances thereunto belonging in Worcestershire. Whereof being constrained to accept of this exchange, he was commanded to quit Stanwell, though he had then laid in his Christmas provisions, for the keeping of his wonted hospitality there, which he left, in saying, 'they should not find it bare Stanwell.'" His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, and sister and co-heir of Edward, Lord Mountjoy, and had, with daughters, Georgina, who m. Ursula, dau. of Sir George Vere, Knt., and sister of John, 14th Earl of Oxford, but d. p. in the lifetime of his father.

The eldest son,

Sir George Pockock, K.B., b. 21 Feb., 1706, having adopted the naval profession, under the auspices of his uncle, Lord Torrington, was present, on board the Admiral's ship, in the memorable victory gained by that nobleman over the Spanish Fleet, in 1718, and being subsequently engaged in active and distinguished services, succeeded Admiral Watson in the chief command of the English Fleet, in the East Indies, where, with an inferior force, he gained three signal victories over the French, under Count D'Ache. For these services he obtained a vote of thanks from the two Houses of Parliament, and from the East India Company, and was invested with the Order of the Bath. Admiral Pockock subsequently commanded the naval part of the Expedition against the Heavannah, which surrendered to the British Forces, 12 Aug., 1788. Sir George, who eventually attained the rank of Admiral of the Blue, represented Plymouth in two parliaments, and was for some time Master of Trinity House. He married in Nov., 1783, Sophia-Pitti, dau. of Harriet, Duchess of Ancaster, and youngest dau. of Admiral Francis-George Drake, sometime Governor of Madras, his son of Sir Francis Drake, Bart. of Buckland, Co. Devon, by whom he had issue,

POMFRET.

POMFRET, Earl of (George-William-Richard-Fermor), Baron Lempster, or Leominster, of Leominster, Co. Hereford, and a Bart., co-heir of a moiety of the Barony of Fitz-Hugh (see Brake's Extinct and Dormant Peerage); b. 21 Dec., 1624, s. on the 5th Earl upon the demise of his father, 29 June, 1833.

Lineage.

Richard Fermor, Esq., having amassed considerable wealth as a merchant, at Calais, settled himself at Eaton-Neston, Co. Northampton; but, exciting the hostility of Henry VIII., by a zealous adherence to the Church of Rome, and inciting the cupidity of Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, his Majesty's Vice-General, by the extent of his possessions, the whole of his large fortune was confiscated, under a preannunition, because of his having relieved Nicholas Thayne, his quondam confessour, while a prisoner in the goal of Buckingham. It was, however, partly restored by Edward VI.; and Mr. Fermor regained his mansion-house of Eaton-Neston, where he died, universally esteemed, 17 Nov., 1556, and was s. by his eldest son (by Avice, dau. of Sir William Browne, Lord-Mayor of London),

John Fermor, Esq. who was made one of the Knights of the Carpet, at Westminster, 3 Oct., 1553, the day after the Coronation of Queen Mary, in her Majesty's presence, under the cloth of state, by the Earl of Arundel, Commissioner for the occasion. Sir John Fermor represented the Co of Northampton in two Parliaments, and was Sheriff of the Co. in the 4th & 5th of Philip & Mary. He m. PORTSMOUTH.

PORTSMOUTH, EARP(L) (John-Charles Wallop), Viscount Lymington, and Barton Wallop, of Farley Wallop, Co. Southampt(m); d. 16 Dec. 1767; s. by 3rd Earl, at the demise of his father, 16 May, 1797; m. 1st, 19 Nov., 1799, Grace, dau. of Fletcher (Norton), 1st Lord Grantley, but by that lady (who d. 15 Nov., 1813) had no issue. He wedded, 2ndly, Anne, eldest dau. of John Hanson, Esq. of Bloomsbury-place, London, which marriage was annulled, by a decree of the Lord Chancellor, in 1826. The Earl has been declared, by the verdict of an Inquisition, held in 1823, to be in a state of mental derangement.

Lineage.

This family was settled at Wallop, Co. Hants, at a period antecedent to the Conquest, and it is thus noticed by Camden: "The Test having taken into it a little river from Wallop, or more truly Well-hope: that is, by interpretation, out of our forefathers' language, a pretty well in the side of a hill, whereof that right worshipful family of the Wallops, of Knight's degree, dwelled hard by, took name."

MATTHEW De WALLOP obtained a grant, 27 April, 1333, to himself and his heirs for ever, of the custody of the house, castle, and gaol of Winchester, with the lands of Wodecote, and one hide of land in Andover, with the appurtenances, &c., thereunto belonging: and, in the 9th of King John, he had a grant from that monarch of two hundred and eight acres of land in Wallop, which had been Stephen de Benedges's. This Matthew was s. by his son, JOHN DE WALLOP, of Wallop, living in 1298, who was s. by his son,

SIR richard De W Allop, a person of considerable importance in the reign of Henry III., who d. in the 11th year of Edward I., leaving an only dau. and heir, ALICE WALLOP, who m. Peter de Barton, Lord of West Barton, Co. Southampt(m): and her grandson and heir, having assumed the name of Wallop, inherited as RICHARD DE WALLOP, and was returned to Parliament for the Co. Southampt(m), in the 5th year of Edward III. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir John Hussey, Knt. of Beechworth Castle, Co. Surrey, and was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS WALLOP, who m. in the 16th of Edward III., Margaret, dau. of ——— Wellington, and was s. by his son,

John Wallop, M.P. for Salisbury, temp. Henry IV., He m. Alice, dau. of John Buck, and had a son,

Thomas, who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Nicholas Valentine, Lord of Fartery and Clydesden, Co. Southampt(m), and left, with three younger sons, at his decease, in the lifetime of his father, John, successor to his grandfather.

John Wallop d. in the 16th of Henry VI., and was s. by his grandson,

John Wallop, who inherited the estates of the Valentine, through his mother, and made the manor house of Wallop his chief residence, as it was of his descendants, until destroyed by fire, in the year 1027. It was re-built in 1733, by John, 1st Earl of Wallop. This John Wallop was Sheriff of the Co. of Southampt(m), in the 33rd of Henry VI., and in the 1st year of Edward IV., in the 12th year of which latter monarch he represented the Co. of Southampt(m) in Parliament. He was, by his son,

Richard Wallop, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of ——— Hampton, Esq. of Old Stoke, Co. Southampt(m), but, having no issue, was s. by his brother,

Sir Robert Wallop, Knt., at whose decease s. p. the estates devolved upon the eldest son of his brother Stephen, by a dau. of Hugh Ashley, Esq. of Wybun St. Giles, his nephew,

Sir John Wallop, Knt., an eminent military and diplomatic personage in the reign of Henry VIII., who was installed a Knight of the Garter, in 1544. Sir John was twice, but, having no issue, his estates passed, at his decease, in the 5th year of Edward VI., to his brother,

Sir Oliver Wallop, Knt., so created for his gallant conduct at the great battle of Muscovethrough, in 1567. He m. 1st, Bridget, dau. of Pagot, of Beechamp(m), Bucks, to whom he had three sons and a daughter, Rose, who m. Walter Lambert, Esq. Sir Oliver espoused, 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Robert Martin, Esq. of Athelhampton, in Dorsetshire, and widow of Thomas Tregonwell, Esq., and had two other sons and two daughters. He was, at his decease, the eldest son,

Sir Henry Wallop, Knt., Vice-Treasurer and Treasurer-of-War in Ireland, in the reign of Queen Eliza.-

This gentleman was constituted by her Majesty, in 1562 (in conjunction with Lord Grey, of Wilton, and Adam Loftus, Archbishop of Dublin and Archbishop of Armagh), Lord Justice of Ireland. And we have upon record the following account of a trial by battle before their Lordships: "Two near kinsmen, of the noble family of the O'Connors, having charged each other with sanguine treasons in the late rebellion, and desiring a trial by combat, the Lords-Justices consented to it. Whereupon all things being prepared, according to the customary laws in such cases, and the Lords-Justices, the Lords of the Council, Judges, &c., sitting in their places, every one according to his degree, the appellant, stripped in his shirt, was brought before the Court, with only his sword and target, and when he had done his reverence to the Lords-Justices and the Court, was set on a stool; the defendant was likewise brought in the same order, and with the like weapon, and placed against the appellant. But, after the challenge was read, each combatant took an oath of what he avowed, and that it was true, and would justify the same, both with sword and blood. Then the signal, by sound of trumpet, being given them to engage, the appellant did not only dispute the defendant, but also, with the sword he took from him, cut off his head, and on the point thereof presented it to the Lords-Justices, who thereupon acquitted him." Upon Sir Henry's return to England, he had the honor of entertaining Queen Elizabeth, anno 1567, for some days, with her Court, at Farley Wallop. This gentleman obtained considerable estates in Ireland, and, amongst others, the Castle, Manor, and Abbey of Emscorithy. He d. 14 April, 1569, and the inscription to his memory, in St. Patrick's Church, Dublin, reads, that during his government in Ireland, "he was of Desmond terminated; and that the head of that nobleman was sent into England." Sir Henry was x. by his eldest son (by Catherine, dau. of Richard Gifford, Esq.),

Sir Henry Wallop, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Robert Cortes, Esq. of Morten Cortes, by whom he acquired the manor and noble seat of Red Castle, and drives other lordships and manors, in Salop, and had one son and five daughters. He d. 3 Nov. 1624, and was s. by his son, Robert Wallop, Esq. M.P. for the Co. of Southampt(m), and subsequently for Andover. This gentleman, taking an active part against Charles I., was named one. of the unhappy Monarch's Judges, and he sate as such in the painted chamber, but did not sign the warrant for the King's execution. At the Restoration, the Parliament excepted him from receiving any benefit from his estate, &c.; and being brought to the Bar of the House, he was sentenced to be degraded of his gentility, drawn upon a sledgy to, and under the gallowes of, Tyburn, with a halter round his neck, and to be imprisoned for life, which sentence was put in force, 30 Jan., 1682. He d. in the Tower of London, 16 Nov., 1687, and was s. in his estates by his son (by Anne, dau. of Henry Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton),

Of this gentleman It is memorable, that he committed Cardinal Wolsley to the stocks, when that (afterwards eminent) person was only a schoolmaster at Linington, in Somersetshire. The grandson of Sir Amlas, another

SIR ANIAS POULETT, Knt. (son of Sir Poullett, by Philippa, dau. and heir of Sir Lewis Pollard, of King's Nypon, Devon), was ambassador to the French King in 1756, and in the 27th year of QUEEN ELIZABETH, principal keeper of the unhappy Mary of Scotland; in which capacity he is said to have deported himself with great harshness, but he rejected with indignation a proposition to take away, secretly, the unfortunate Queen's life, and lamented that he should ever have been deemed capable of becoming an assassin. In his letter to Secretary Walvingham, he says, "My goodcomings an life are to her Majesty's disposition, and I am ready to lose them this next morrow, if it shall so please her, acknowledging that I hold them, as of her meet and most gracious favor; and do not desire to enjoy them, but with her highnesses good liking. But God forbid that I should engage to foule a shipwreck of my conscience, or leave so great a blot to my posterity, to shed blood without law or warrant.’ Sir Amias M. POWERSCOURT.

POWERSCOURT, Viscount (Richard Wingfield), of Powyscowrt, Co. Wicklow; and Baron Wingfield, of Wingfield, Co. Wexford, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. 18 Jan., 1815; s. as 6th Viscount, at the decease of his father, 9 Aug., 1823; m. 19 Jan., 1836, Lady Elizabeth Jocelyn, dau. of the Earl of Roden.

Kineagr.

The surname of Wingfield is derived from the Manor of Wingfield, Co. Suffolk, where the progenitors of this family are stated to have been located before the Conquest, and the place of their obode was denominated Wingfield Castle. Camden says that this manor gave both a name and seat to a large family, in those parts, famous for their neighborhood and ancient gentility, which brought forth an abundance of renowned knights, and among them two celebrated companions of the Order of the Garter under the reign of Henry VIII.
Sir Richard Wingfield (lineally descended from the Wingfields of Letheringham, in Suffolk, of which distinguished family a full account may be seen in Busa’s History of the Commons, Vol. ii. page 479; article Wingfield of Tickencote), a personage of high military reputation, commenced his career under his uncle, the Lord-Deputy, Sir William Fitzwilliam, in the Civil Wars in Ireland. He was afterwards engaged upon the continent, and returning to Ireland, was appointed by Queen Elizabeth, M.D.C., Marquis of that kingdom, which office he continued to hold by James I., and he was at the same time called to his Majesty’s Privy Council. In 1613, Sir William was joined in the government of Ireland, and again in 1622, having in the interim been elevated to the Peersage of that kingdom (19 Feb., 1618), by the title of Viscount Powrcourt; but, dying without issue in 1634, the dignity expired, while the estates devolved upon his cousin.
